Years ago—aspidistras were the fashionable thing to have in the front parlour, and slit skirts through which a slender ankle might appear, were considered very "fast"! Years ago—the telephone was a new-fangled contraption to be regarded with awe and some suspicion. Years ago—a small-town girl who wanted to be an actress had quite a struggle against parental ideas of respectability.

These are some of the ingredients that go to make up the gay nostalgic comedy, "Years Ago," by Ruth Gordon, which will carry you back to the days when mother was a girl. The University Alumnae Dramatic Club are presenting "Years Ago" at Hart House on November 1, 2, 3 and 4, with the same distinguished cast which played the first act in the Central Ontario regional drama festival last spring and won the Hugh Eayrs Trophy for the best production.

Among the players are several who are well-known to university audiences for their performances both as undergraduates and graduates. Barbara Allen, U.C. '45, plays the leading role of "Ruth" in this autobiographical play. Beatrice Ramsay, U.C. '47 and Elizabeth Rand, of Acadia University, play her two best friends. Marion Jones, U.C. '47, has a comedy role. Marion spent a busy and successful summer with the International Players at Kingston, where she played a variety of parts, including the feminine lead in Robertson Davies' latest play, "Fortune, My Foe."

Radio actor Alex McKee, takes the chief male part in "Years Ago" and among the other members of the cast are Christian Templeton, John Murray, Guy Purser and David Gardnes, at present an undergraduate at Victoria College.

"Years Ago" is directed by John Mantley, who has done radio acting, stage acting and directing in both Toronto and Pasadena, California. He graduated from Victoria College in 1942.

Careerists To Hear Montreal Journalist

Kate Aitken, Women's Editor of the Montreal Standard, will be the chairman of the second in the series of the career forums sponsored by the Pan Hellenic Society. The topic will be "Teaching and Librarianship", the forum will take place today in the Women's Union at 4 p.m.

In addition to her position as an editor, Miss Aitken has had experience as a lecturer, writer, cooking expert and traveller. She acts as Canadian National Exhibition Director of Women's Activities.

Participating guests are Maude Standing, a teacher at North Toronto Collegiate, and Eileen Weber, of the School of Library Science here. Both have had considerable experience in their fields.

The third forum of this series will be held on November 8. The topic will be Radio.

Airforce Plans Employ Students Of All Sciences

An item in last Tuesday's Varsity regarding the R.C.A.F. Summer Employment plan for veteran aircrew members of the R.C.A.F. and R.A.F., gave the erroneous impression that students in the pure sciences would not be eligible for this scheme. Actually, students in such courses as Chemistry, Physics, Biology and Mathematics, as well as students in the applied sciences and Medicine (but not Dentistry) are eligible, provided their age at graduation less their number of years service in the R.C.A.F. or R.A.F. does not exceed 27, F. L. Hutchison, University Air Liaison officer has announced.

For this technical employment plan, candidates must be graduating in 1950 or 1951, though medical students expecting to graduate in 1952 may be considered.

"Applications are being considered on the basis of 'first come, first served' and should therefore be filed immediately with T. R. Loudon, Electrical Building, or F. L. Hutchison, School of Hygiene," Mr. Hutchison said.

For students graduating in 1952 who desire to spend the summers of 1949, 1950 and 1951 in aircrew training, applications must be fully completed and delivered to Professor Loudon or Mr. Hutchison before November 10.

To be eligible, candidates must have reached their 18th but not their 22nd birthday by May, 1949. In the case of Army, Navy or Air Force veterans, however, this age limit is extended by the number of years of their service during World War II.

Stanley Tells Why He Chose The Liberal Party

David C. H. Stanley, president of the University of Toronto Liberal Association, Friday night inaugurated a series of three evening meetings at which student political leaders outline party policies and why they belong and work for the party of their choice.

The meetings, held under the title of "My Philosophy and My Party," are sponsored by the Workers' Educational Association of Canada. Further speakers will be Reid Scott, past president of the University of Toronto C.C.F. Club and member of the Ontario Legislature for Toronto Beaches, and Allen F. Lawrence, dominion president of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation. All meetings are held in the Big Hall of the Economics building.

Describing the Liberal party as "the party of freedom," politically, socially and economically, Mr. Stanley gave his reasons for joining the Liberals rather than any other group. He said that during his first two years at university he attended meetings of four political parties on the campus before making his selection.

He declared that every major piece of social legislation in the past half a century had been passed while a Liberal government has held the reins and added that reforms advocated now by the Progressive Conservatives were put forth by the Liberals 30 years ago.

In reply to a question from the floor, he denied that the rank and file delegates to the national convention in Ottawa were 'muzzled'. As an example that the contrary was true, he cited his own experience when he seconded a motion from the floor which was carried by the whole convention.

Mr. Stanley was introduced by Miss Ruth Radford, secretary of the Varsity Liberal Club, who also conducted the lengthy question period.

The Workers' Educational Association is contemplating the holding of a fourth meeting which would bring together the three speakers on one platform.

I.S.S. Student Poll Approves Foreign Aid

Official results of the I.S.S. student poll conducted Tuesday indicated an overwhelming majority of 98.9 per cent in favor of sending relief to students in Europe and Asia. Of 962 students questioned, 841 were favourable, while 21 answered no

Food was the item of relief favored by the largest number of students. Clothing, books and scholarships also ranked high in preference; while equipment was considered least important.

The countries preferred for relief ranked in the following order: France, Germany, Holland, England, Greece, Italy.

OUR READERS WRITE

To the Editor, The Varsity:

Interest in educational opportunities outside the classroom is usually well rewarded. But the recent Hart House Debate on the C. C. F. program left me disappointed.

First, the resolution was negative There are arguments against anything—buying a car, going to University, or printing this letter. But you don't buy a car because it hasn't a radio or a heater; you choose it for what it has. We ought to do the same with political parties. Why not bring out the good points in each? Anyone who is human will see the faults without any help.

Secondly, the main speaker did not know the arguments followed in adopting the resolution. Why not choose somebody who had been at the convention, so that he could give the reasoning behind the platform, and answer questions about it?

It was as though a politician were trying to excuse the weakness of his own party by saying: "Look! They are WORSE than we are!"

Pointing fingers and calling names may be accepted in politics, but it is a poor practice in an education institute.

I am in favour of political activities, but why make young people think that politics are rotten? A more positive attitude would do much to instill a greatly needed interest in politics.

To the Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir: Enclosed you will find a poem inspired by our team's victory over McGill.

It is definitely not the work of a great poet, but perhaps it merits publication in your newspaper. It simply expresses the desire of an engineer for victory in intercollegiate football.

I would appreciate your careful consideration of this poem sometime in the near future.

D. J. Dudley, S.P.S. 5TI.

Yeah, Blues, hold that line!
You're getting better all the time.
I think the first few games you played
Weren't worth the admission paid.

Now you've had your taste of victory—
Another game goes down in history.
But fellows, do not swell your heads,
'Cause there's Gaels and Mustangs after Reds.

A wall like water stops no mice
Except when frozen into ice.
So keep those muscles taut, my men—
Hold off the foe and press for ten.

Now with fast backfield and firm line,
Not a worry need be mine.
So high up in the stands I'll sit,
You use your brawn I'll use my wit.

Let's do it again.

D. J. Dudley, S.P.S. 5TI.

To the Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir: I was shocked and astounded to learn that a coalition of Liberals and P.C.'s failed to defeat a C.C.F. opposition at the Hart House debate last Wednesday evening.

The socialist movement on the campus is gathering too much strength. Their enthusiasm is too infectious, the logic of their argument too seductive.

What is the reason for this alarming state of affairs? Surely the Torys are not going to deliver up their citadel without a struggle. Up till now the main comeback of the Conservative opposition seems to be the branding of the C.C.F. as communists and denouncing their platform as Moscow inspired, without offering any counter proposals. The C.C.F. in fact seems to have a well conceived program superior in some respects to the policy of the present government. It is supported by intelligent people who obviously have the best interests of the country at heart. The Torys on the other hand are disunited and offer no party platform to speak of.

In this society there are many groups of people with varying interests, all looking for something from their government. These people demand leadership, and while many of them are potential Torys, the C.C.F. is the only party which will give it to them. This is a great shame, for were Canada to accept a socialistic government, we would sacrifice our chance for greatness, our individuality. We would condemn ourselves to mediocrity by placing our destiny in the hands of government officials, who, overwhelmed by the job of investing public funds in speculative enterprises without allowing too much graft, and overwhelmed by the job of administering without catastrophe the incredibly complicated world of industry and big business, must of necessity be dictatorial with, and levy heavy taxes upon the poor ciphers who once were citizens. The situation would be further deteriorated by the fact that many professional men and scientists would prefer the free opportunities and high salaries for good men south of the border to the guaranteed but low paid jobs, the planned pattern of living, and the endless queues in a socialistic Canada. Quebec too would probably desert the happy C.C.F. state, leaving organized labor and a few ivory tower intellectuals to struggle along with their big plan.

Will the Torys wait until too late before they unearth a few clever men and assume an aggressive, intelligent leadership of progressive conservative thought?

C. McF. Jaeger, III U. C.

FORWARD MARCH—SIDEWAYS!

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

May I commend the slogan employed by the spokesman of the Progressive Conservative party in The Varsity's Thursday editorial? "Forward—to the Right" subtly catches the confusion of policy which must proceed from a party purporting to be at once Progressive and Conservative. This confusion naturally arises from a situation in which the party best representing wealth and privilege must make its bid for political power under a voting system which gives election into the hands of the vast majority, the very people who are opposed to uncontrolled wealth and special privilege. It therefore becomes necessary to bamboozle the public with progressive slogans, while embarking upon policies detrimental to the common welfare, policies which might even lead to war.

In the light of these facts, I humbly suggest that a more penetrating slogan might be: "Backwards—to the Front". I also urge that a free enterprise party, which criticizes the 'doctrinaire' proposals of Socialists intent upon solving pressing social problems, give earnest consideration to: "Down to Earth—the Sky's the Limit".

DISCRIMINATION

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Wednesday morning, Oct. 27th, as I proceeded down St. George Street to a lecture, I was greeted by a very nauseating sight. At the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity, 123 St. George Street, there was a poster some seven or eight feet high. This poster was not to the credit of university students or fraternity members. One who is interested in social questions becomes quite accustomed to seeing the usual caricature and stereotype of the Negro with the exaggerated lips, and the deliberate attempt to portray a sub-human creature.

Recognizing the level of mentality that produces such masterpieces, one ignores such things and moves on in the hope of better days to come. However, in this case, I believe these sub-moronic intellects have outdone themselves in crudity and viciousness. Indeed, such work is comparable only to that of a Goebbels or a Bilbo.

For many years now the question of fraternities has been one for heated controversies. These debates would seem to arise repeatedly over the same issue, that of racial prejudice. It is my own opinion that these charges are not unfounded, regardless of the attempts of fraternity members to bend over backwards denying them. Fraternities have always seemed to me to be breeding grounds for snobbery and prejudice. In the face of repeated accusations, fraternities still hesitate to prevent such actions.

One wonders how long it will take to educate such people. Obviously university training could not dint such skulls. When questioned as to prejudice in their own organizations, the logic is usually as follows: "to deprive a person the right to discriminate is to hamper democracy."

The orientation of democratic thinking usually considers the rights of the majority, even when minorities are included in that majority. Is it not time that fraternities at the University of Toronto be compelled to induce some essence of democracy into their organizations, or be banned. In times when racial prejudice is on the rampage, the U. of T. not excluded, it is only fitting to remember that fascism in Europe turned itself first on a few isolated groups. But in the long run, who escaped its lash? Who are we to say "It can't happen here".

Yours truly,
Mae Inwood, IV Psychology.

Union No Memorial

The Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir:

How can anyone deliver a castigation when his mind is filled with pity and humiliation for the person or people in error?

The Varsity, the students of this University, are proposing a student union building as a memorial to the men who died overseas. Our original intent was to erect some kind of memorial and the thought at least was one of respect. Now this thought has been changed to building a memorial to OURSELVES. What a grand opportunity to show Toronto what great things we are capable of doing as the enlightened students and scholars of this great seat of learning!

Who are we thinking of when we say the Union is to contain an auditorium where we can present our plays? Who are we thinking of when we say there will be lounges, co-educational lounges, where we can go and enjoy coffee in the company of one of the opposite sex?

Is there a single thought for the man who went through the agony of trying to keep a burning inferno of an aircraft flying so that his crew could jump and found what he already knew, that it was too late for himself to jump? Is there any thought of the infantry man who, after the slow torture of not knowing when he would be next, finally got his? While we are dancing in the Union will we be thinking of Sunnybrook and Christie Street? No, we will be thinking of ourselves. Here's to us. What great organizers! What great planners! What great co-ordinators!

During my high school days, the principal announced from the stage of the auditorium that due to the death of a member of the Board of Education all classes would be cancelled for the rest of the day. Some fools plunged the whole school into humiliation when they cheered.—Tragic? Yes, it was tragic. It was pitiful. How, after that display could the principal face anyone outside the school?

How can we say, "Three cheers for the boys who died overseas. We'll build ourselves a dandy recreation building in their honor", and then face anyone as the student body of the University of Toronto? Since when have we turned to debasing ourselves by dancing on the graves of the dead? Since when has The Varsity been given the privilege of speaking sarcastically of the monument erected to the men who died in the war of 1914-1918, on the grounds that that monument provides no amusement or recreational facilities for the students of the University?

Mr. Editor, I ask you and every member of every faculty, every student in the University, every graduate who has left the University, can we find any moral justification for debasing ourselves and the city by allowing the erection of a student union memorial building? And the answer is no, we can't.

We are young and healthy, full of ambition and about to enter a world of achievement. What more do we want for ourselves?

May I suggest that not far from here there is a new Hospital for Sick Children being built—and that it will cost a lot of money.

Yours sincerely,
John S. Willmot, IV SPS.

Western Beats Queen's To Tie Record

B. McFarlane And Lenard Injured

London, Oct. 30—Western Mustangs tied a 20-year senior intercollegiate record Saturday when they stretched their unbeaten streak to 26 consecutive games by beating Queen's 23-9 in Little Memorial Stadium.

But it was a costly win for the Mustangs as they lost their ace backfielder Bob McFarlane who broke his collar-bone in the first quarter. It was even worse for Queen's. Al Lenard broke his nose in the final quarter and may be out for the season.

Queen's held the potent Mustangs to a 6-6 tie in the first half but faded in the second as Western let loose an air attack to pick up a 17-3 scoring margin. Western completed 13 of 25 passing attempts for 230 yards while rolling for 21 first downs—16 of them in the second half.

Al Lenard pushed Queen's into th lead with a 32-yard field goal early in the third quarter before the Mustangs picked up three quick majors. Arnott threw a 40-yard pass to Curry for the first, Parry palmed for the second, and Don Scott ran 48 yards after recovering a Queen's fumble for the third. Parry converted two of them.

Soccer Seconds Outlast Macmen Win 3rd Straight

On Friday afternoon the Varsity Intermediate soccer team won their third game of the season with a 1-0 victory over the McMaster Intermeds at Hamilton.

It was a wet day and play was very slow with a soggy ball. Varsity kicked off at three o'clock but within a minute the situation looked grim as the Red forward line pressed around the visitors' goal mouth.

The play was never one-sided but the defenders were never able to clear as the ball was simply too heavy to lift. After twenty-two minutes a left-wing movement was eventually rewarded when the McMaster goalie came out too far, was passed to leave the net open to Art Webb who performed the final rites needed to complete the good work.

Austin Scores Two In Forestry Victory

The green and white clad footballers from the faculty of Forestry held a Woodchopper's Ball on Friday afternoon when they administered a 16-0 trouncing to the hapless St. Mike's Bees on the back campus. The double blue second team, winless in three starts, had their backs to the proverbial wall throughout the contest which saw three players banished from it.

Forestry waited for no preliminaries, starting their attack as soon as they received the opening kick-off. They made fifteen yards through the middle of the St. Mike's line on the first play and backed this up with a twenty-five yard gain around left end. Their third play was a pass to Austin over right end which went all the way for their first score which was not converted.

In the third canto Forestry's Austin scored his second major of the game on a pass and for the third time the convert was unsuccessful.

In Friday's first basketball tilt, St. Hilda's Sophs downed Meds, 19-14. It was afast-moving game with comparatively few fouls. Beth McCree and Sally Sarles took top honours for Meds, with their swift intercepting plays, while Joyce Atkinson of St. Hilda's was outstanding for her quick dodging and excellent shooting.

St. Mike's A defeated UC Sophs 28-12, with Betty Fitzgerald scoring a total of 19 points for St. Mike's. UC's poor guarding and passing aided St. Mike's in making many of their points. Shirley Speck and Donna Klie were high scorers for the UC team, with Shirley gaining 6 points for the Red and Whites.

Vic Sopt A lost to PHE II by a score of 27-12. Marnie Leason played an excellent game for PHE, sinking a total of six balls to gain 11 points. Slow at first, the game speeded up after half time. PHE guards, notably Thelma Henderson were good.

Nurses were downed by Vic Soph B, 16-15 in a very close game. Despite the height of the Nurses guards, Vic managed to hold a three point lead until the end of the last quarter, when Sheila West scored a basket for Nurses. Marnie Gulston came out with eight points as high score for ic, while Sheila West and Ann Miller took top honors for Nurses with six points apiece.

The first meeting of the Ornamental Swimming Club will be held today at the Lillian Massey pool. This is open to all women who have paid their athletic fees and anyone who is interested or wants to learn ornamental swimming is welcome.

Afterthoughts

Rat, Skunk, Redmen Stadium's Visitors

By BRIAN LAND

Varsity Stadium resembled a circus menagerie on Saturday as usual pre-game high jinks were accompanied by the opening of the U. of T. Red Feather campaign. Besides the four or five hens and roosters which were running around, there were a couple of dogs, a black horse, a white horse, a pink elephant, a tame skunk, and the piece de resistance, a white rat wearing a McGill sweater! Believe it or not.

It isn't often that pink elephants are seen before the game and McGill's mascot, a black Chow, sniffed the pink pachyderm contemplatively somewhat to the chagrin of the "end man" in the elephant.

Rocky Robillard proved himself as a game competitor Saturday as time and time again he made fine stabbing catches of some very poor snaps by Lattimer.

For some unknown reason rumors of a Queen's victory over Western prevailed after the Varsity game. Some folks were even prepared to rush off to London and help the Gaels celebrate the non-existent triumph.

Despite the McGill claim that win, lose or draw, the Toronto goal posts would be paraded up St. Catherine Street Monday morning, the

UC Women Take Lacrosse Match

U.C.'s Pat Macdonald and the energy and effective dodging of St. Hilda's Pauline Smith, who scored both Trinity goals, held together the St. Hilda's team which felt the absence of four of their experienced players who had four o'clocks.

This is the first year that women have played lacrosse on the campus, nevertheless Marilyn Craig and Kit Tyrrell, UC, and Pauline Smith, Donna Long and Marg Leitch, St. Hilda's have been able to drum up enthusiasts and raise teams. They are still looking for women who want to play lacrosse or else learn to play and if enough are interested, lacrosse may become an official sport for women within the next few years.

Singles by White, Mewha Edge Meds in Dents' Win

Meds' Seconds nearly created the upset of the year in Interfaculty football Friday when they fought the unbeaten Dents team to a standstill, losing out 2-0 as a result of singles by White and Mewha. The win was the third straight for the Dentsmen but they were hard pressed throughout to maintain their undefeated record as the Red and Black fielded a determined crew of gridders.

The chief reason for the about face by Meds from their weak performance of last week against Forestry was the play of their wing-line paced by Page, Digby and Freeland, which kept Dents off balance for most of the afternoon.

Dents threatened early in the second quarter as plunges by Mewha and Irv. Mednich carried them downfield, but Meds held and White picked up a single point from a hoist to the deadline.

Mewha added the clincher on a kick to the deadline in the final quarter for the molar men's other point.

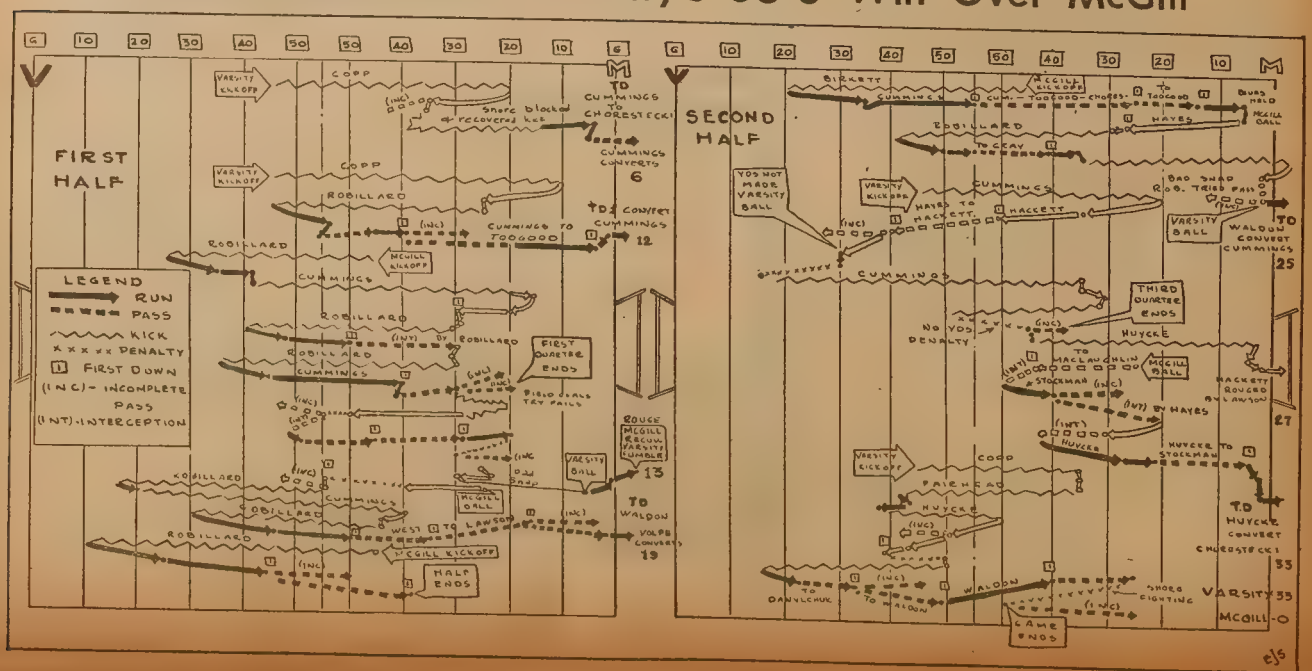
Line-ups:

JUNIOR MEDS: Flying wing, Vernon; halves, Cosens, Roberts, Dawson; quarter, Martin; centre, Page; insides, Paire, Digby; middles, Freeland, McMillan; outsides, Watt, Jones. Alternates: McKee, Sims, McKenzie, Kilty, Caldwell, Stalker, Stalmack, Ridell, Deckert, Doran, Shepherd, O'Toole.

DENTISTRY: Flying wing, Henderson; halves, MacMillan, Mednick, Mewha; quarter, White; centre, Skinner; insides, McLean, Durran; middles, Lampe, Hannah; outsides, Brown, Moore. Alternates: Picard, Jackson, Sivell, Helt, Gallagher, Hickman, Ryan, Hori, Woolidge.

Austin's Scores Two In Forestry Victory

The green and white clad footballers from the faculty of Forestry held a Woodchopper's Ball on Friday afternoon when they administered a 16-0 trouncing to the hapless St. Mike's Bees on the back campus. The double blue second team, winless in three starts, had their backs to the proverbial wall throughout the contest which saw three players banished from it.



Forestry waited for no preliminaries, starting their attack as soon as they received the opening kick-off. They made fifteen yards through the middle of the St. Mike's line on the first play and backed this up with a twenty-five yard gain around left end. Their third play was a pass to Austin over right end which went all the way for their first score which was not converted.

In the third canto Forestry's Austin scored his second major of the game on a pass and for the third time the convert was unsuccessful.

ST. MIKE'S "B": Flying wing, Nadeau; halves, Prendergast, O'Heaney, Casilio; quarter, Holmes; snap, Wiechoreck; insides, Robertson, McRae; middles, Garvey, Fiorack; outsides, Curr, Dubois. Alternates, Jones, Burke-Guffney, O'Hara, MacKenzie, Steele, Hiney, Neville, Sullivan, Brennan, Ross.

ART - MUSIC - DRAMA

Tova Boroditski

The concert of Tova Boroditsky at Eaton Auditorium on Saturday evening was full of delightful and disappointing surprises. In her first number, the Bach choral prelude "In dir is freude," whose structure she clearly yet subtly delineated by precise differentiation of tonal colours, she demonstrated her pianistic genius.

The second prelude, "Ich ruf zu dir, Herr", revealed her unusual ability to project distinct, pure tones, which swelled and diffused themselves in the concert hall. In the Scarlati sonatas, however, where delicate nuances within a homogeneous tone colour must reveal the imaginative but intellectualistic patterns of the music, occasional incongruous Chopinesque colours and rhythm-breaking romanticism destroyed the unity of expression.

Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin" was played with general competence; but Schubert's "Wanderer Fantasie" revealed the pianist's greatest fault and most striking assets. In the first movement, her evident strain during loud playing was manifest in the music. Where she should have been noble and dynamic, she succeeded only in being ponderous and strident. In the "Adagio", however, her sensitivity to colour was reinforced by a graceful outflow of melodic lines and a strongly moving dramatic development.

Miss Boroditsky's rendition of the first etudes was a delightful surprise. She played, even in loud passages, with an enthusiastic abandon which more than compensated for her over-serious tenseness in previous pieces which perhaps she herself did not care for. Though she is temperamental and inconsistent in performance, this young Canadian artist is a pianist of highest calibre.

Don Evans

Frances James

Tall, willowy soprano Frances James opened the year's Wymilwood series Sunday night with Earle Moss at the piano. Ever a champion of Canadian works Miss James presented the premiere performance of composer "The Enchanted Hill" John J. Weinzweig's tricycle of songs: "Of Time and the World." Subtitles were "Time", "Rain", and "The World". Each was a vague twelve-toned study in abstract, "Time passed . . . Time how long . . . Some time."

To present an abstract theme (Time) in a concrete musical form is a real feat. Whether John Weinzweig has succeeded or not only Time will tell. "Rain" was a short, musical onomatopoeia, quite effectively co-produced by Miss James and Mr. Moss, wind, rain and all. All three songs competed for lack of melodic line—while any semblance of regularity in rhythm, phrase and even theme was difficult to see. But the very absence of these plus the presence of abstract lyric by the atonist Tower, all fused into a new kind of song—curious, impressionistic, and bizarre.

Frances James, (like Maggie Teyte) excells in the singing of French songs. Last night's concert game evidence of that excellence, in Debussy's "Fantoches" and "L'Ombre des Arbres", and Faure's "Soir" and "Toujours". All four are similar in mood—wistful, plaintive, sad. Miss James played up these qualities to the hilt, with ample nasal resonance, and near-impeccable French.

Pianist Earle Moss' accompaniments were accurate, sterling and clean cut. His work came to a height in the difficult, sonata-like Schubert lieder, where his artistry reminds one of former pianist Ernest Seitz and the late Josef Lehvine.

Schubert lieder ("Leibe schwaermt", "Gretchen am Spinnrade", "Wiedesschein", and "Rostlose Libe") comprised the singer's final group. Into each Frances James injected an infectious spirit and gayety, brought out the frequent, plunging rhythms peculiar to Schubert's songs.

Empathy between audience and artist hitherto at a low pitch ran high.

Chamber Music

The Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto announces that its annual series of chamber music concerts — the "Wednesday Five O'Clocks" —will begin Nov. 24. First program will feature the Parlow String Quartet in the First Toronto performance of Benjamin Britten's String Quartet No. 1.

The concerts were initiated during the war years as benefit performances given by faculty members in aid of Dame Myra Hess' National Gallery Concerts. Since the war they have been expanded into a regular series held fortnightly during the winter season in the conservatory Concert Hall.

The complete 1948-49 series is as follows: Nov. 24—Parlow String Quartet; Dec. 8—Bela Boszermenyl-Nagy, pianist; Jan. 12 — Greta Kraus, harpsichord, Gordon Day, flute, Perry Bauman, oboe, and Cornelius Yaselslyn, cello; Jan. 26—Norah Drewett, pianist, and Geza de Kresz, violinist; Feb. 9—Parlow String Quartet; Feb. 23—Lubka Kolessa, pianist.

Commerce Clubbers Visit Bank Officials

Last week, a group of Commerce Club members assembled in the board room of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Hyde, an official of the bank, spoke to the group regarding the functions and methods of operation of the bank. The members then made a tour of the Toronto branch.

They saw each of the many departments, from savings and current accounts, through foreign exchange, stock, and bond departments to the clearing department. The size of the vaults, and the complexity of the many time locks and safety devices, forced several into philosophizing upon the utter futility of any attempt to relieve the bank of its funds. The huge steel doors, three feet thick, and weighing 37 tons, required only 11 pounds pressure to be closed. The clearing department was equally fascinating, as here the group saw the machines which handled and sorted 6,000,000 cheques a day.

After a luncheon in the executive dining hall, the members went to the top of the building, but unfortunately they were unable to see very much, as a thick fog was hanging over the city.

Say IUS Bound To Politics In Violation Of Charter; Poses Canadian Challenge

By JACK GRAY

"The International Union of Students by the decision of its majority and the leadership of its executive is firmly committed to a policy of outright partisan political propaganda in violation of its own constitution," said Livingstone, in an interview yesterday. The University of British Columbia student was chairman of an NFCUS committee sent to the Paris meeting of the IUS Council last September to seek affiliation between NFCUS and IUS.

"The conditions of continued Canadian affiliation were in effect totally defeated at this year's IUS Council meeting, and the Council violated the principles of world student unity on which Canadian affiliation had been sought," he continued. "This fact does not end the question of IUS for Canadian students. Instead it poses a challenge of vital interest to the future of Canadian students and NFCUS, both nationally and internationally."

The Canadian delegation went to Paris this summer with the intention of affiliating NFCUS with IUS. A resolution passed at last year's Christmas Conference of NFCUS, called for affiliation, but when the Canadian delegation arrived in Paris they found that the language of the resolution had caused confusion in the IUS executive.

A particular point of contention was a clause of the NFCUS resolution which called for a reversal in some measure of the IUS Secretariat's decision on the suppression of Czech students' rights during and since the communist coup d'etat in Czechoslovakia last February. The Credentials Committee of IUS interpreted this as a condition of NFCUS acceptance of affiliation with IUS, Livingstone said. He explained that it was quite possible that some confusion could arise from the wording of the Christmas NFCUS resolution of affiliation.

"The Canadian Delegation felt that it was their province to interpret any questions of doubt in regard to the NFCUS resolution, but our authority to do so was questioned by the Credentials' Committee," Livingstone stated. The matter was placed before the IUS Council and a resolution was passed offering affiliation to NFCUS. Affiliation will take place if this resolution is ratified by this year's NFCUS Conference. Livingstone said that "the interpretation given affiliation by the Canadian delegation was in effect unconditional signing of the IUS Constitution."

"The Canadian delegation at no time agreed to present any new proposal or basis for NFCUS affiliation with IUS," declared Livingstone. "We agreed only to bring back to NFCUS as clear a picture as possible of the IUS Council meeting, and we agreed to bring back the IUS offer of affiliation for the consideration of NFCUS."

Livingstone called for "clear thinking and positive action on the part of Canadian students" in this matter. He will address an open meeting today at 4 p.m. in West Hall, U.C. to explain what happened at the Paris meeting, and to present concrete resolutions as a result of it.

Hot LPP Meeting Approves Report Voices Protests

Last week the return of chairman Steve Endicott from a Beaver Brigade tour of Europe was the signal for a stormy L.P.P. meeting. His European findings were endorsed and sundry protests against the existing state of affairs were expressed.

His findings were crystallized into a motion which read: "We believe that the profound desire of all peoples of the world community for lasting peace will be achieved through an increasing measure of unity and understanding between these peoples in spite of the minority elements, predominantly in the U. S. A. and Canada, who are seeking to foster a war spirit, and who are launching a new rearmament program unequalled in world history." The motion was passed.

The members then went on to express their disapproval of the alleged anti-semitic discrimination of the Dean of Women of U. C., Miss M. B. Ferguson.

The general feeling expressed was that such race prejudice was the cause of the suffering of the present times. They further criticised the action of the King government in allowing entry into Canada to Vichy collaborators while turning away victims of the Nazi persecutions.

Radio Script Prize Offered to Students

At Friday's meeting of the Radio Committee, Peter Dobell, Director of Radio Playhouse, confirmed an offer by the CBC of $75 for the best script submitted by a university student this year.

Paul Fauteux, Radio Commissioner announced that by Nov. 11 script writers can submit for guidance an outline of their scripts, to Peter Dobell Trinity College or to Oscar Helina SAC Office, Hart House. Each outline, not to exceed 300 words, will be studied and frankly criticized on its originality, subject material and construction. Each outline will be returned to its author as soon as possible. The final script deadline is Dec. 15. All scripts will be judged by Bob Gill, Andrew Allan and Miss Alice Frick of the CBC.

Student Exchange For Next Summer Arranged by ISS

Foreign students may soon be given the opportunity to attend Canadian universities if plans drawn up at last week's ISS national conference materialize. The scheme, put forward at Ajax over the week-end, calls for the exchange of foreign and D. P. students and is expected to go into effect next summer.

Free Tuition

Under the first plan, the exchange of foreign students, the ISS will ask each Canadian university to take one student for one year. The universities will be asked to forego the collection of tuition fees and residence costs.

The students to be sent will be selected on a basis of scholastic standing, qualities of leadership, and intellectual integrity. They will return to their native countries at the end of the year to inform fellow students of the Canadian way of life.

Thirty-five scholarships, each having a value of $1,000, are to be given by Canadian universities for this project. In addition to these scholarships the Dominion government is being asked to supply 165 scholarships worth $1,800 each. Apart from the scholarship each student will be asked to come over to Canada at the beginning of the summer and find work to supply himself with an allowance to cover the year at the university. He will also be asked to attempt to work his way across as his trip cannot be financed by the universities or the ISS.

U.B.C. Leads

The University of British Columbia has started the campaign by offering four scholarships to the students of Hamburg University. The scholarships offered by U.B.C. are to be worth $1500. ISS hopes that other Canadian universities will soon follow this policy.

The second plan is designed to bring over displaced persons to university. They will be offered scholarships lasting one year which may be renewed if the students are considered worthy. These students, however, will have to come over under the laws regarding immigration of foreign persons, but will have the chance of becoming Canadian citizens. Thirty-five D.P.'s will be offered scholarships under this plan.

Plan Relief

The third plan of ISS is proposed relief to the students of European and Asiatic universities. Relief is to be offered to these students according to their needs regardless of political beliefs, race or religion. The universities to be aided this year are University of Bombay, $5500, University of Paris, $3500, Universities of Athens and Salonika, $3300, and University of Hungary, $2800.

The plans are expected to go into effect next summer with the students coming over at the beginning of the summer to work and to start school in the fall of 1949.

There will be a seminar in Europe again next summer but the place has not yet been chosen.

NFCUS MEETS TODAY

Grant Livingstone, chairman of the NFCUS delegation to the IUS conference in Paris last summer will address an open meeting of the undergraduate body at 4 p.m. today in West Hall, U. C. He will discuss what happened at the Paris meeting and the delegation's stand on affiliation of NFCUS with IUS.

Hold Auction Sale of Books From House Collection

"Forever Amber" and "Kitty" are only two of the books that will not be on sale Wednesday, Nov. 3 in the Hart House Library's auction sale. There will be however, 200 rare books, hand-chosen for student digestion.

Among the modern novels on sale is a book called, "Manners and Rules of Good Society or Solecisms to be Avoided." It is written anonymously by a "Member of the Aristocracy" and it is in its 32nd edition. This book is a "must" for potential university aristocrats. Subjects include such valuable material as "chaperones and debutantes; the responsibilities of lady patronesses; of public balls; bowing; and christening parties."

The auction will take place in the East Common Room between 12.30 and 2 p.m. Auctioneers will be Art Bell and Harvey Hay. All receipts will go to charity. Students are being given the first opportunity to purchase the rare books. Unsold books will go to other needy causes.

Another of the modern books was published in 1875, bearing the title "Curiosities of Modern History." This contains such interesting items as "Madam Chang and the Dwarf; Rothwell Bone House; Remarkable Position of Ben Jonson's coffin; and Moonlight walk in search of Fairies."

Student Union

Union Is Center For Ripon Activities

This is the fifth in a series of articles to better acquaint students at the University of Toronto with the proposed co-ed memorial union building.

By HARRY RASKY

Unfortunately a student can not live his whole life in a classroom. By the time he leaves college he has to be ready for life in society. A student union can help him prepare for this non-academic life.

The President of Ripon College put it this way in his dedicatory remarks at the opening of the student union at that college, "A liberal education embraces much more than formal classroom instruction. To be real it must include the student's whole being, subtly modifying his tastes, ennobling his ideals and nurturing his soul. Unobtrusively, yet surely, it must train him to live happily and effectively both as an individual and as a member of society."

Take a Trip

Keep your eye on this word and follow it down the line. It will lead you directly to the Student Union at Ripon College. Ripon is a small non-denominational liberal arts institution in Wisconsin. We'll set our newspaper-magic-carpet on the green grass in front of the Lannon stone building at the south-west corner of the campus. Watching not to trip on the stairs, we enter the building where we find a large foyer containing murals of various aspects of college life on the Ripon campus.

Kitchen Considered

Following our collective nose we head straight for the dining hall which is right off the entrance. Here, the doorman informs us that the hall holds 450 student stomachs. Farther down the hall, we look into a spacious lounge. The kitchen is also located on this, the first floor.

Steps Stepped On

By way of upper case, we mount the stairs to the second floor. There are rooms for the kitchen staff. Also second-storied are the union manager's quarters, the dining room, and the college admissions department. Here also are the public relations offices and college newspaper and yearbook offices. The alumni meet and greet each other in their office here.

Basement—No Bargains

Downstairs from the foyer is a grill room which has also an outside entrance from the street at the rear of the building. In addition, there is a college-operated bookstore and a game room containing pool, billiard and tennis tables. One other large room on this floor is available for student dances. There also rooms are set aside for storage and refrigeration.

Union Fee Free

Ripon College has a liberal general fee of $25 a semester. These funds are not allocated to activities but any balance of these funds is credited to the union as union fees. In contrast to the common practice elsewhere, the college does not have a direct union fee. No charge is made to students for the use of the building for their dances and other social functions, but some revenue is derived through rental of the union facilities to off-campus organizations.

In Wisconsin, they needed a cultural and social centre. In Wisconsin, they satisfied their need. We, at the University of Toronto, need such a building. The rest is up to you.

Labor-Progressive Party

Today Canadians are faced by the threat of war and fascism. Our livelihood and survival are endangered. The government is spending nearly $300 million on war, it calls for a large standing army and is entering military pacts with many countries. The reason is not that Canada is in danger of being attacked but because she is committed to join any war in which the United States may be involved. "We cannot remain neutral . . ." says our minister of defense. We have lost our independence.

The United States is run by profit-mad monopolists who evidently will stop at nothing, not even atomic war in an attempt to save the capitalist system and their swollen profits ($28 billion in 1947 compared to $6.5 billion in 1939). The US military expenditure is 14 times pre-war and it uses 66 per cent of the national budget. She has 489 military bases and stock-piles of atomic bombs. This is the country our government has agreed it must join in war.

The excuse given for this unprecedented militarization is Russian "aggression". But the Soviet Union's military expenditures are back to pre-war level, 12 per cent of the budget and Russia has no military bases or troops outside her own territory, except by international agreement. The Soviet Union has always proclaimed its desire and worked for peace. The Soviet Union has proposed at the United Nations, a reduction of armaments by one third, outlawing of the atomic bomb, and international inspection to enforce this.

The United States has rejected this and under the smoke-screen of war cries against the Peoples' Democracies of Eastern Europe and the Land of Socialism, we find that fascism is being foisted upon us. Sections of the trade unions are being undermined and attacked and union leaders restricted in their movements; living standards are being forced down as armament expenditures increase and civil liberties are destroyed. There are witch-hunts of civil servants and mobs of school children are organized to attack communists and their property.

But Canada's people and the world's people want peace. We do not want Canada transformed into a U.S. occupied war base, with an Atlantic Pact replacing the Atlantic Charter. It is the policy of the Labor-Progressive Party to fight for the defeat of warmongers and the winning of a lasting peace through the United Nations; to get better working conditions and social opportunity for Canadians; to oppose racism and all forms of fascist oppression; to end all colonial oppression and war preparation, and finally to educate and organize the working class in the spirit of socialism.

The LLP seeks the maximum labor and progressive unity in elections and therefore only puts forward its own candidates where it has the best chance of winning. Elsewhere it supports the CCF and farmer-labor candidates, in order to best be able to supplant the old parties. In supporting the CCF, the LLP maintains the right to criticize the policies of the right-wing opportunist CCF leaders.

The position of the LLP is stated in the draft resolution for the 1949 Party Convention: "The fundamental character of the times in which we live is expressed in the fact that the capitalist system is breaking down. Socialism is strengthening over an expanding part of the world. The democratic masses of the world's people are on the march. The struggles for national independence, democratic advance and social security are integral parts of the world-wide democratic struggle for Peace and the eventual triumph of Socialism. The Labor-Progressive Party works to unite democratic forward-looking Canadians in this struggle for human progress, to make the working class the leader of the nation in the struggle for Peace and Socialism in Canada." —Steve Endicott.

Bored of Control Bans Rats; Says Not Human

The Bored of Control announced last night that they were going to appoint Controller In-and-out head rat-chaser in the latest drive to kill the four-footed enemies of democracy—rats.

The cat said in an interview last night that she was right behind Ins-and-outs, who should be right behind the rats. The cat, however, expressed her fear that if the city starts killing off rats, who knows what may be next—maybe cats.

"Don't laugh," said the cat. "Humans without a vote are next in line."

In an interview with the cat, I-&-O said, "We shall not flag. We shall get them by the tail. We will fight them in the lanes and open fields. We will go on to the end of the rats."

Hirem McPhirem, mayor of "rat-town" said he would be honorary chairman of the rat committee. "We will give two cents for every rat turned in, and three cents for rat's whiskers," he said. It will be a "rats-to-riches" drive.

Controller Ball-four said not to forget that the worst rat was a red-rat. Asked by the cat, whether he had ever seen a red rat, Ball-four declined to comment first, then said, "Anything red is a rat. Even a red rat is a rat." Anybody who didn't hold this view, he claimed, was an enemy of democracy, "Red rats," he said, "get their cheese direct from Moscow."

The Bored of Control said that they were dropping all other business to attend to this pressing matter. Houses for veterans must wait till they get the rats out of the houses they already had.

Controller I. said that it was weeks till the first snow-removal campaign and the Bored was running out of campaigns. Elections he mentioned, under his breath, are only a couple of months away. He said that the rat roundup had nothing to do with the coming election. He said slyly, "Everybody knows a rat can't vote."

Asked for a suggestion on how to get rid of rats, The Farcity editor, Mark Myword, said, "More Champus Cats."

Harpo.

We tried out a new idea on Hallowe'en, and judging by our present predicament, it worked out very well. Instead of putting the traditional pumpkin in our window, we persuaded a particularly horrible and completely obnoxious friend of ours to sit there with his face toward the street. His veined, yellowish face, twisted leer and staring eyes created just the proper terrifying effect, and we were quite satisfied with our handiwork. We guess it was too realistic, because, before very long we heard a police cruiser pull up, and in two piercing shrieks the law was frantically pounding on our door. "What's the matter," we inquired innocently, "did something frighten you?" "Frighten us," they exploded, "where did you get that ghastly thing in the window!" "Oh, that," we deprecated, "that's just a friend of ours. Don't let him bother you." "It's not that," they gasped, "but, it's that horrible glow behind his eyes. It's just as if ——" "Oh, yes," we laughed lightly, "to get the proper effect, we hollowed out his head and put a candle in it. Effective, isn't it?"

Float Parade To Highlight Big Week-End

The big homecoming week-end planned for November 12th, 13th, and 14th is establishing a tradition on the campus. Completely organized by the Blue and White Society the plans are nearly complete with a full three days of activities for all graduates, undergraduates and their parents.

One of the main events of the week-end, apart from the Varsity-Western game, will be the colorful and gala parade to be staged on the Saturday morning. In an effort to represent the unity of the university the judges in the big float parade will be the three presidents, Dr. Smith, President of the University; Dr. Bothwell, President of the Alumni Federation, and Gordon Gwynne-Timothy, President of the Student Administrative Council.

The most colorful part of the parade will be the float section. Already ten faculties and campus clubs and organizations have entered floats in the parade. The prize for the best float will be a shield donated by the Alumni Federation and presented to the winner by President Smith. Every year the shield will be put into competition for the Homecoming Week-end.

The parade will be headed by a color guard composed of UNTD and COTC personnel in uniform. They will be followed by the Varsity brass band and behind it will be the floats and the pipe band. "The University of Western Ontario's brass band has been invited," said Dave Gold, parade organizer, "but we have received no word from them yet." Special features such as clowns, etc., are also being planned by the parade committee.

Parade Route

The parade will form up on the east side of Hoskin Avenue facing north and will move off by 10 a.m. It will first proceed up to Bloor Street East along to Yonge, down on Yonge to College and along College to the corner of the Wallberg Memorial Building around the front campus and in front of Hart House where the reviewing stand will be situated.

Faculties, clubs and organizations wishing to enter floats in the parade should get in touch with Dave Gold.

Prehistoric Iroquois Site Dug By Students At Weston

By D. P. SID FOX

On October 22, 23 and 24 approximately 200 students supervised by J. N. Emerson, Anthropology lecturer, and with the authority of Professor T. F. McIlwraith, Anthropology department head, excavated a western Iroquois (Seneca or Cayuga) site at Black Creek, a branch of the Humber River, near Weston.

The site is termed Seneca because the closest counterpart to the material found is from the Seneca site in New York state. The date is 1450—because no French trading materials were found. So this is a pre-historic site.

Among the materials found was an effigy pipe, a standard pipe found principally among Seneca and Cayuga. It represents the cultural hero, Taronhaiwagon, who is the personification of those aspirations held highest by the Iroquois. "Creator" or "Transformer" is a more accurate description of him.

The Iroquois regarded the pipe as a dynamic spiritual force, an entity animated by the supernatural being it portrayed, and possessing latent powers when respectfully used.

The process of self-study, of dream cultivation and submission to dream control is the dominant feature of the inner life of the Iroquois, Spirit entities, that appear to the individuals as dream visitors, offer guidance and aid in every day life. Dreams thus obtained and interpreted, remain to be paid for; satisfaction to be rendered to the dream source, and in hunting, to the animals whose lives fall victims to its power. The means of compensation are to be found in the respect paid to the deities, in observance of certain rites, offerings and taboos, and in the execution of symbolic and decorative art design.

The site was surrounded by a palisade, a series of vertical logs one foot in diameter, five feet apart, inside of which was a one foot space which is suspected of being filled with bark and interwoven branches. Back of this wall was evidence to suggest posts which supported a firing platform. Since there was relatively heavy fortification, and little evidence of agriculture, the anthropologist concluded that a raiding party of about 600 Indians lived here and pillaged the surrounding agricultural community.

The students who worked under the direction of Mr. Emerson are as follows: student supervisor, Fred Taylor, II Vic; treasurer, Gordon Thompson II Vic; equipment department, Jerry Polowski, II UC; photographer, Al Brown, IV Gen, UC; commissary department, D. P. Sid Fox, III Vic; public relations, Audrey Lucas IV Art and Archaeology, Vic, and Pat Irwin IV Art and Archaeology, Vic; pottery department, Smiley Wallace, III St.

Students Of All Countries Take Part in Varsity Ball

Anyone dropping into Hart House this Friday evening might think they have stumbled into a costume ball or perhaps a private party of the United Nations. Rather, they will find themselves in the midst of the Varsity International Ball.

Presented as an expression of welcome for Varsity's guest students and as an opportunity for Canadian students to meet students from other countries, the Committee for the ball has arranged an evening with all the features of a regular dance plus its own unique attractions. Students from some 30 countries will be present in national dress for the evening's entertainment.

National Clubs

"Interest in presenting the Ball stems from the desire to integrate the efforts and interests of the various national clubs on the campus," stated the committee chairman. "An international dance seemed the most appropriate expression of our corporate interests. As to the proceeds, it was unanimously agreed that they be directed to the I.S.S. campaign fund."

A short variety folk-dance program is planned to take place early in the evening. In accord with this it was decided that optional dress be the order of the day, and guest students be invited to wear their national costume.

The program committee is presenting a half hour floor show which will represent the culture of five countries. Miss Kirstie Heppin, an interpretive dancer who recently toured Europe and England, will do a Mexican hat-dance and variations on a Russian theme. Toronto's lyric tenor Albert Morson, will be singing with the orchestra as accompaniment. Dances characteristic of the Ukraine foothills will be presented by William Sametz, dancing to a four-piece Ukrainian string orchestra. Michael Roth who has also perfofmed in Europe and America will be on hand to produce rabbits and sundry other things from his top hat.

Tickets Available

Tickets are available in U.C., Vic., Trinity, and at the Economic Building, also in the SAC office at Ajax and at SPS and Newman Hall offices.

Gala Feather Fair Will Be Highlight Of Fund Campaign

The highlight of this year's Community Chest drive on the campus will be the Feather Fair, which is to be held on the front campus at noon hour on Friday, November 5. Students from each college and faculty will take part in displays or side-shows to trap the pennies, dimes, and quarters from the hungry lunch-hour crowd as they cross the grounds.

Box lunches are to be offered to the customers at twenty-five cents each, and hot dogs, cokes, fudge, and even candy-floss will be in evidence (if there is enough hydro to run the candy-floss machine that Meds have acquired).

Fish Pond

There will be a penny-toss, and a ring throwing contest. There will be nail hammering contests, with a new nail for first prize! The Physical Education students have devised an electric fish pond with money on the buttom—all you have to do is reach in and try to get it. Of course you never will as long as the power is on.

On Friday morning, as if by magic, a large and thriving carnival will mushroom where once was the quiet, empty campus. There will be streaming banners, the hoarse cries of the hawkers, beautiful girls, and mystics telling fortunes, and enough food, drink and candy to make you wondrous sick.

The Fair is not the only fund-raising scheme on the campus, however, for the Toronto Symphony has already given a concert, and some of the colleges are planning shows and dances thoroughout the week. The Feather Frolic at Vic, where Miss Toronto, and Miss Beautiful Toronto will take part on Thursday night, will be one of the most outstanding efforts.

Canadian Opening Of Priestley Play By Trinity Group

Rehearsals for the first Canadian performance of J. B. Prestley's "The Linden Tree" under the auspices of the Trinity College Dramatic Society are entering their final stages this week.

"The Linden Tree", to make its Canadian bow at Hart House Theatre November 8th, 9th and 10th, is under the direction of Mrs. Dora Mavor Moore, founder and director of the New Play Society. In August, 1947, Priestley's play opened in London and enjoyed a year's continuous run there. Its run in New York is partially responsible for its appearance this year at Hart House, since the play attracted the attention of Dramatic Society members there on vacation.

Among the members of Trinity's cast are Ruth Osler, leading lady of the MacMillan-Bryden musical, "What, No Crumpets?" last year, William Hutt, who has taken part in many of Robert Gill's Hart House productions, Mary Lois Wishart and Dorothy Boulton, both members of St. Hilda's first year class, Margaret Bronson, II, St. Hilda's, who recently appeared in "Skin of Our Teeth", Robin Taylor, who has done considerable dramatic work with Gill, and David Donaldson.

Tickets for the play may be obtained in the rotunda at Trinity College this week and at Hart House box office.

Find Pyjamas, Engineers, In Cars

In an absolutely impartial survey conducted yesterday morning, two reporters investigated the back seats of parked cars in an effort to find out just what students stow there.

The most popular item was Kleenex boxes (both full and empty), followed closely by blankets, books and lunches.

Among the miscellaneous items discovered were: firecrackers, an egg cup, a Hallowe'en mask, shirts, an empty 7-up bottle, rubber gloves, a saw, a guitar, a pair of maroon and yellow striped pyjama pants, and a sleepy engineer, who was trying to read "The Design and Control of Concrete Mixtures."

PHARMACY ELECTION

The Pharmacy Junior Class election held Tuesday resulted in H. G. Coons and W. W. Morris being chosen as presidents of the two-year and four-year courses respectively.

Other members of the two-year course executive include J. H. Stutt, vice-president; Miss R. F. Cant, secretary; and Miss S. J. Murcar, treasurer.

Students in the four-year course elected D. J. Hooper, vice-president; Miss M. J. Allarice, secretary; and Miss P. S. Takenata, treasurer, to complete their executive.

Dean R. O. Hurst is the honorary president of both the courses.

Joining Lit and WUA Subject For Meeting

"The whole question of amalgamation of the U.C. Women's Undergraduate Association with the Literary and Athletic Society will be thrown open at the first joint open meeting of two societies next Wednesday evening in the J.C.R." stated presidents Mary Innis and Ralph Campbell today. "For years this problem has occupied the attention of both societies separately and has been the subject of a number of investigating committees."

This meeting, the first of its kind since the passing of the Articles of Agreement last year, will commence at 7.30 and include a discussion of the bands and dress of the Arts Ball before turning to the main topic. A short debate, "Resolved that amalgamation of the 'Lit' and W.U.A. would be beneficial to University College" with Ben Shek and Rosemary Duff on the affirmative, and Al Noble and Barbara McLaurin on the negative, will introduce most of the points of view. A discussion will follow.

Art And Prices

A good tip to university students that they should have practical experience in more than one school, was voiced by artist Rody Kenny Courtice, one of the five women who have donated their work to a two-week exhibit of contemporary art. This exhibit in the Women's Union comprises some 34 paintings by Mrs. Courtice, Isabel McLaughlin, Bobs Haworth and Paraskeva Clarke.

On the 11th of November there will be an opportunity to discuss with these artists many details about their work and the field of Canadian painting. The five women, all of whom were represented by their works last year at the Riverside Museum in New York, are members of the Heliconian Club with Mrs. Courtice and Miss McLaughlin having been past presidents. With the exception of Bobs Haworth who hails from South Africa and Paraskeva Clarke coming from Russia they were born in Canada but all five were trained in Canada and are members of the modern Canadian Contemporary Group, an outgrowth of the Group of Seven.

Prices are going up but some prices are up already. At a time when Britain is trying to re-establish her equilibrium, it seems a shame that so many of the present imports, in particular wearing apparel, are at a higher level than most Canadian goods.

This remark does not come as a condemnation but rather as a suggestion to those who wish to see strong trade relations with the British Isles, and therefore will try to act accordingly. Certainly the "Buy British" slogan should be continued; but at more moderate prices the idea would be carried out more effectively.

British tweeds and woollens are sought by most buyers but when Canadian goods can be obtained more reasonably what would you do?

CO-ED COOKERY

By NAN McKENZIE

Most gals get domestic sooner or later, and what better time to show off with a little domestic dash than when you and "he" are having a couple up for bridge? With something just a little different in mind for that bridge party may we suggest: uncooked little cakes, relishes, Vienna coffee.

Uncooked Little Cakes

Cut small, one cup marshmallows (use knife dipped in milk). Mix with ½ cup chopped dates, ¼ cup chopped walnuts, ½ cup heavy cream. Allow to stand one hour. Pick up the soft mixture by spoonfuls and drop into a small bowl of fine crumbs of Graham wafers or crisp cornflakes, coating each little cake completely. Chill until firm.

Relishes

Everyone enjoys relishes and you can never put on too many. Top the usual large plate of celery (quartered through the middle), ripe and green olives, radish-roses, and watercress with "Golden Poppies"

Golden Poppies

Trim stem end of large carrot in cone shape. With sharp knife cut in sawing motion thin strip around cone shape. Before serving draw a thick sprig of parsley through the curl for the centre and stem. Work on carrot when limp then crisp in ice-water until served.

Vienna Coffee

Serve coffee (two level tablespoons coffee to one cup water) in demi-tasses topped with thickly whipped cream. Sugar if desired When making coffee a pinch of mustard and a pinch of salt works miracles.

Careers Go With Marriage, Kate Aitken Tells Forum

"Careers and marriages seem to march very happily hand in hand," said Kate Aitken, radio commentator, writer, traveller, cooking expert and housewife, at yesterday's Career Forum. Under the sponsorship of the Panhellenic Association, Mrs. Aitken, with Eileen Weber of the U. of T. Library School and Maude Standing of the staff of North Toronto Collegiate, participated in a discussion of career possibilities with Varsity co-eds at UC Women's Union.

In a short talk towards the end of the discussion, Mrs. Aitken described the career she herself has enjoyed. At 16, she was a teacher; at 23, she married and became engaged in raising chickens. So enthusiastic was she about the chickens that the Department of Agriculture invited her to act as a lecturer for them. Now, as woman's editor of the Montreal Standard for half of each week and busy with the preparation of 10 broadcasts the rest of the time, she has managed, in the past few years to find time for such activities as covering the Royal wedding, making a food survey in Europe for the British Food Ministry and undertaking the work of C.N.E. Director of Women's Activities.

Miss Weber, speaking on the openings, opportunities and salaries offered women in library work, emphasized the variation in the type of work done. "A mixture of the almost clerical with the almost professional characterizes the work done by most librarians," she said. For University graduates with specialized training, there are jobs in technical and scientific libraries. "The main qualifications for any library position," she said, "are a love of books and a love of people. Just one of these won't do."

Salaries in the library and the teaching fields, agreed Miss Weber and Miss Standing, who outlined the opportunities for women with University training in education, compare quite favorably with those in other professions for women. In libraries, salaries start at $1,800 to $2,000 for beginners. Opportunities for advancement vary with the department or type of library as well as with the ability of the individual. "As a class," Miss Weber stated, "librarians grumble less than any other group."

Teachers' salaries, according to Miss Standing, begin at $2,000 paid in 10 monthly installments which make budgeting for the summer months rather a problem. Hours, she said, are usually good, although the beginner often has considerable "homework" to do.

The question of the distinction between specialists and non-specialists was discussed and an explanation given by Miss Standing. "A B.A. in a specialized course with 2nd class honours or better plus a year at O.C.E. qualified a teacher as a specialist. A general B.A. and the year at O.C.E. makes a non-specialist.

Personal qualifications listed by Miss Standing include a liking for young people; patience and self-control, good physical and mental health and good grooming are the attributes of the good teacher. Some women teachers holding principals' positions may earn as much as $5,000 per year.

Next week's Career Forum will take the form of a discussion of radio.

Distaff Side

By PAULA ZUMSTEIN

Did you hear about the McGill student who carefully preserved a white rat from her zoology lab, knit for it a red sweater with a white M on the front, provided a long red and white leash and walked through ten Toronto-bound cars of rooters causing consternation among those who had volunteered to hold James McGill Jr.?

Well, this was the first indication of red and white which dotted the McGill section of Varsity Stadium last Saturday. Fur coats brought along for the cold weather were not needed and reposed until evening on escorts' arms. The Varsity cheering squad was greeted with loud, approving whistles and clanging bells when they ran up to lead "McGill rah, rah, rah" and do cartwheels for the disheartened followers of the Red Machine.

For the rugby dance Saturday night, McGill co-eds found that because of the weather previous to the game they had brought more wool than crepe dresses, too many skirts and blouses. The dance was sponsored by Delta Gamma fraternity and they raffled a very attractive pair of pumps which were carried away by Shirley Blakeman.

Next Saturday Varsity co-eds will make an impressive invasion of Queen's territory. Although blue and white blazers ordered last year are just arriving now, there should be enough to make a colorful showing in the Toronto section of the Gaels' stadium.

Did I hear someone say Oil Thigh?

Province's Woman Jurist Combines Law and Humanity

By JANET SCOTT

Sixty years ago it was unheard of in Canada for a woman to study law. Of all professions, law was considered one of the most "unsuitable" for the weaker sex; until around 1915. few women were called to the bar and fewer still actually practised. After the First World War, however, more and more women took up law as a career, and their achievements have more than vindicated their invasion of the field.

Despite growing recognition of women as lawyers, few Canadians realize that Ontario has been a pioneer in appointing a woman to high legal positions in this province; Judge Helen Kinnear, County Court Judge for the County of Haldimand, is, perhaps the outstanding woman in Canadian legal circles today.

Helen Alice Kinnear was born in Cayuga, Ontario. Later, her family moved to Port Colborne, and she attended school there and in

HELEN ALICE KINNEAR

Welland. In 1913, she enrolled in University College in English and History.

As graduation approached, the problem of what to do "after" confronted her; the inevitable recourse of female graduates—teaching—did not appeal to her. A friend, (who later became a teacher herself) suggested law as an interesting career; moreover, Miss Kinnear's father was a lawyer—so in 1917, after graduation with honors from university, she enrolled in Osgoode Hall. Her choice was a good one, as she won a scholarship in her first year.

In 1920, she was the first woman to be called to the Bar of Ontario. From then on, her career has been a remarkable series of firsts. She was the first woman to plead a case before the Supreme Court of Ontario; in 1935, she was the first woman to appear before the Supreme Court of Canada in Ottawa.

In 1934, Miss Kinnear was the first woman in the Commonwealth to be appointed a King's Counsel. Finally in 1943, she was appointed to her present position as County Court Judge, again the first woman in the Commonwealth to hold that position.

The jurisdiction of a County Court Judge is wide, and Judge Kinnear hears criminal as well as civil cases. She has, by her position and personality, a profound influence in her community. In 1947, her scope of action was extended by her appointment as Juvenile Court Judge for Haldimand.

Judge Kinnear has never allowed her preoccupation with law to ruin her sense of proportion. Her interests are wide and she was especially active in politics before her appointment to the Bench. She was President of the Welland County Liberal Association for two years.

In 1941, she won the Liberal federal nomination, but resigned in favor of Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell. Today, her ideas are greatly respected by Members of Parliament, especially the younger ones.

Her interest in politics is said to have originated when, as a young lawyer practising in partnership with her father, she decided not to go to a local political meeting. Her father reminded her that if women in her position showed no interest in politics, how could other women be expected to do so. She went to that meeting, and thereafter she undertook active participation in provincial and national affairs.

Judge Kinnear is a very femin-

RED FEATHER

By JANET HARBRON

Were you at the football game on Saturday? It seemed at the time that three McGill followers had gone mad . . . but no, it was the opening of the University's Red Feather campaign. Very effective. In case you weren't there, three hens produced a community chicken, which sold the first red feather to President Sidney Smith. These clucking hens were the masculine type from S.P.S. Indicative that men and women are working together to achieve a common goal. Practical social work is no longer strictly a women's field.

Canvassing is being carried on by undergraduates and graduates, voluntary teams with captains, men and women, in charge. Second-line teams of girls do follow calls that haven't been completed and need a fresh outlook.

Canvassers not only are attempting to achieve in a monetary sense feel extremely gartified if they have accomplished something in the educational field. Measuring the success of such endeavour is not easy, but can be gauged by numbers of people talked to through agencies. Educational value is high in a group that can't afford to contribute financially. For example, one dis-

VIC'S CORNER

"An ideal evening in Toronto with two Shmoos". This is just one of the many outstanding prizes that will be given away this Thursday evening. We aren't prepared to define a Shmoo BUT we are prepared to describe the ideal evening in Toronto. Not the evening that will be won with the Shmoos, but just an ideal evening.

Imagine a picturesque red building perched in a certain corner of the Campus. Imagine, too, that for one night this impressive old structure has been thrown open to the entire University. The place is alive with activity. In the co-educational Common Room the guys and gals are dancing to the soft, mellow recordings of Don Eller. There is a midway with all manner of novelties and games. There's a Variety show, a show that features the old and the new talent hereabouts. There's Miss Toronto and Miss Beautiful Toronto welcoming all the guests. There's . . . well may WE'LL just stop there for a while and let YOU go on.

And that's not all. The highlight of the entire evening is the sensational draw . . . for which tickets are now being sold over the entire Campus. Just get a load of the prizes . . . a $25 voucher from Eaton's, four reserved tickets to the Ice Capades, the evening with the Shmoos (and no foolin' . . . it will really be a perfect evening) tickets to the Palace Pier, Odeon, Famous Players, International, the Royal Alex, the Barclay, Royal York, King Edward, THE VIC INFORMAL, the Western Dance and the evening's Booby Prize — tickets to "Skule Night".

We almost forgot to mention that "What's Your Beef?" will be transcribed and that this transcription will be rebroadcast over the Trans-Canada Network. Refreshments will be sold and . . . and . . . But perhaps we'd better stop. Nothing could be that good, you're saying.

Well, we're willing to bet the price of admission, which is twenty-five cents, that it is that good. On one condition of course. That you be at Vic this Thursday at 7:30 to find out for yourself.

This is the moment for which we have been waiting. For months we have planned and schemed the way we would say it. And now that the time has arrived we just can't seem to find the right words. We'll just have to content ourselves with the following simple paragraph:

The Victoria College Students' Handbook is here. It will be distributed in the halls of Vic during the remainder of the week between the hours of ten and two . . . and so get one all you needs is your AMS card. Each member of Victoria College is entitled to one copy.

Much as we would like to hand out two or three for each member of the family, that elusive substance known as collateral, greenback, specie or exchange prevents the V.C.U. from doing so. And when you do get the Handbook remember that each copy is actually worth fifty cents but unlike the cash cannot and will not be replaced.

All members of the Class of 5T2 are asked to ponder the following profound announcement and then spread the word to your illiterate comrades: Tomorrow (roughly speaking about 24 from today) the Class picture will be taken at 1 p.m. in front of Vic. Mirrors, curling tongs and make-up kits will be supplied by the executive.

The first meeting of those interested in trying out for the Vic Squash Team will be held on the courts from 9 to 9:40 on Thursday. The squash referred to is not of the garden variety nor has it anything to do with the type of squeezing that goes on in street cars, chesterfields . . . but this is digression.

Acta Victoriana is having a Tea tomorrow afternoon at 4:15 in the Blue Room at Wymilwood. All those interested in this field of activity, as well as those who are thirsty are asked to be present. First, second and third year students are especially welcome. Come out and get acquainted.

This evening at 8:15 the Liberal Arts Club will have as speaker, Mr. Lister Sinclair, radio playwright whose topic for the evening will be "The Meaning of Tragedy". Having heard Mr. Sinclair on previous occasions we can recommend him as a sure cure for melancholia, the blues or just plain boredom.

On Saturday, November 13, Vic, along with other colleges and Faculties will enter a float in the Homecoming week-end parade. Among other things, the Committee in charge at Vic have decided that at least the following essentials are necessary. A truck, (unless someone would volunteer to carry the float on his back), material (sometimes referred to a "stuff") glues (not of the Indian variety) and ideas (that are at least half practical). The float is to be made up on Friday Nite, Nov. 12, when "conscripted volunteers" and all others who are willing to help will be "refreshed" for every hour of "labour". For further details see Kip Fleming in Middle House.

Each group or society that would like a date on the Spring Social Calendar are asked to send a representative to the V.C.U. Office this Thursday at four p.m.

Last week we promised to have that "feminine touch you love so much" as the prominent feature of this week's Corner. We don't pretend to have acquired that particular inherent ability nor do we lay claim to imitate it. Circumstances just prevented us from having a Vic chick that would do the trick. But next week, and this is a promise, if you're on hand in the Corner you'll get all the gentle at Vic as a gal sees them. From our point of view that's interesting whatever way you look at it.

Meds Win Off-Delayed Boxla Opener

Harry Damp, Sherwood Give Vic Fourth Win

By GORD PLAXTON

Vic and UC-PHE met for their second tilt of the Inter-faculty football league, yesterday afternoon on the Back Campus, with Vic's 2-0 win making their fourth victory in four games.

Vic's two points came in the first half, with Bill Sherwood and Harry Damp each kicking singles in the first and second quarters respectively.

Vic relied mostly on end runs and plunges to gain yards, with considerable success, the credit going to Harry Damp and especially to Harry Boyd who played a nifty game.

UC/PHE showed decided improvement over their last game with the Scarlet and Gold, by an offensive of theirs which was sparked by a bucked up back line. UC's blocking on the other hand was weak,—thus the line did not give their teammates the support they deserved.

Much of Vic's gain in yards was only possible due to the holes which their line made in the opponents' line. Fumbles and failure to complete passes, by both teams, when in position to score, no doubt accounted for the absence of TD's for either side.

In the first quarter on Vic's second down, that Boyd's plunges netted them two first downs, thus putting them in position for Sherwood's third down kick for a single. Damp kicked for the second single, in the second quarter, Boyd tackling Scott who carried the ball.

Vic stars were: Bill Gore, Harry Damp, and Bill Sherwood. UC/PHE stars were: Scott, Hank Henshall and Art Anderson.

AJAX SPORTS NOTES

BASKETBALL PLAYERS ! ! ! If you want to play on the inter-faculty team, be up at the Rec. Hall for tryouts today at 5 p.m. This year the success of the team will depend on newcomers because eight players of the ten on last year's team are now in Toronto. Come out and bring back the championship which Ajax has won for the past two years!

All interested in hockey, report to the Athletic office today at 5 p.m. This year we are fortunate in having Johnny McCready as coach. Johnny, who is a former Leaf forward and who was on a Leaf team that won the Stanley Cup, coached the Sr. S.P.S. team to the championship last year. Not only is he outstanding as an athlete but also as a student. He has obtained honor standing in his class for the past three years and is now in his fourth year.

The inter-residence Harrier is being held this Thursday at 5.15 p.m. The course is three miles long and a map is posted in the Rec. Hall. Those taking part are asked to turn in their names to their own Athletic Rep.

HOCKEY PRACTICES START

The first ice of the season was made in Varsity arena yesterday and practices for the junior team will start today. Practices for the intermediates and seniors will start next week.

DID YOU KNOW?

Bill Korz, of the UC/PHE football team was appointed Athletic Director for the Town of Mimico last year, at a reportedly fine salary.

Speaking Of Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

The recent successes of the Blues remind of a letter to the editor of The Varsity, which appeared in this issue of October 4th. It was signed J. H. Woodrow, and some of the excerpts follow:

"I almost cried when I read George MacFarlane's sports column in Tuesday's Varsity." (A reference to a column deriding the lackadaisical attitude of senior students—the support this season has shown a vast improvement, thank you!)

"Maybe someone should warn the freshmen to believe only one quarter of what they see in The Varsity's sports section." (Very nasty Mr. Woodrow—very nasty.)

"About this time every year The Varsity gives the Blues the rugby championship because they have beaten some intermediate team by 20 points or so." (McGill will be hurt I'm sure.)

Well, Mr. Woodrow, The Varsity in general, and this column in particular, still isn't handing the Blues the championship, but if you can find suitable odds to the contrary, a pro-Varsity bet may well prove to be a good investment. And if you find those suitable odds kindly let me know.

When told of Bob McFarlane's broken collar-bone, one of the Blues quipped, "Well it couldn't have happened to a nicer guy." What about Jack Parry—I understand he's a fine type, and nothing ever seems to happen to him.

Seriously though, it is never pleasant to see a fine athlete seriously injured—and Bob McFarlane is one of Canada's finest athletes.

When you talk about the stars of last Saturday's game, let's not overlook a fine display by Varsity's front line forces. One in particular played his greatest game under Blue colours. That's Jack Williams, who was everywhere—making tackles, opening holes, and firing the entire team with a great all round display. Fans are ever inclined to overlook the poor linemen—the men who make those fancy [illegible] dippers possible.

My, L[illegible] Shore is a nasty fellow—heavens!

PHE Introduces A New Sport

The third year PHE class had both themselves and a few dozen onlookers confused yesterday when they introduced a new game—speedball—to the campus.

The game, a combination of basketball, soccer, rugger, and football, was devised before the war in the USA and was brought to Varsity by Lou Smith and Art Chetwynd. "It's a good conditioner," said Lew Barnes, coach of St. Mike's football team and PHE student.

Under certain circumstances the ball can be passed as in basketball, kicked as in soccer, scored as in rugby, or as in rugger.

SPORTSWOMAN

Softball

PHE IV came from behind in the last of the fourth yesterday to defeat Meds 7-4. Although hampered by a wet field, this game was interesting and exciting. Meds outfield was good and only in the last inning did it go to pieces enough to allow PHE three runs.

Sliding in for her team's first run, and catching capably at first was Meds' Sally Sarles. Her teammates, Irene Hain, who not only pitched a fast ball but caught many field pop-ups, and Dawne Jubb, who was on her toes behind the plate, both handed in top performances.

Ann Harland, who hit the only homer of the game, pitched a top game for PHE. Only two of the first eight Meds batters reached first base in the first two innings.

Having won this first sudden-death playoff game, PHE IV will meet PHE II who topped league II.

Basketball

U.C. Freshies A defeated P.H.E. Freshies 15-11 in the first of four games played last night at O.C.E. In the fast rough game, Barbara Redfern and Maureen Irvine of the U.C. team scored 11 points between them. On the whole the plays and shooting were poor.

Vic Freshies edged St. Hilda's Freshies 18-17 in the second game which can be described briefly 'clean and close'. Betty Aston was the star of the game scoring nine points for the winners, and Jane Rogers played her usual good game chalking up six for the Saints. Both coaches felt that the guard lines were exceptionally tight.

St. Hilda's Sophs beat the Nurses 17-13 in another close game. The play was relatively slow. Fifteen of St. Hilda's points were made by Pauline Smith and Pat Ketchum while Margo Master shone for the losers.

By a score of 23 to 7, Meds trounced the Vic Sophs in the last game of the evening. Both teams played close and well, although in spots there was a little roughing. The star of the night was Beth McCrea with 14 of the Meds' tally to her credit.

Archery

The first meeting of the new Archery Club, which is for men as well as women, will be from 4:30 to 6:00 today. Anyone interested or anyone who has done some shooting should go to the first 'shoot' this afternoon at Margaret Eaton's. Equipment will be supplied.

It's Blue Saturday For Blues at McGill

McGill soccer team beat the Varsity Blues 2-0 on two disputed goals Saturday in Montreal, while the Blue ruggerites dropped a 6-5 contest to the Redmen.

The soccer team, playing without Bob Antoni, Neville Conyers and Jim Barber were paced by captain Brian Barton, Jim Colvin and Ted Evans. Hudson and O'Brien scored for McGill.

Forestry, UC Deadlock 3-3 In Other Tilt

By EDDIE VOIGHT

For the first half of yesterday's opening lacrosse game at 1 p.m. in Hart House gym the U.C. firsts stayed right with the powerful Meds firsts, but in the second half, the Red and Whiters collapsed at the seams to take an 11-6 defeat.

Meds, 1947's Interfaculty lacrosse champs, have the same personnel as last year, and as usual, their old reliables, "Axe" Haliburton and Jimmy McKay paced their attack. Haliburton popped in four goals and was a going concern whenever he was on the floor. McKay scored only two, but set up his mates for many a shot on the U.C. goal.

U.C. started off with a bang. Two shots on goal and they had two markers as Firman, Meds' goalie, looked poor. Meds came back to take a 4-3 lead at the end of a rather dull first half.

In this same period, U.C. defenseman Raymond just about strangled McKay. The Meds forward came up fast to pick off a rebound off the end-wall just as Raymond came charging over to try and snag the pill. He didn't get the ball, but not being deterred by this fact in the least, went after McKay, succeeded in getting one arm and his stick around McKay's neck, and then hung on while McKay went in on Byrnes in the U.C. nets.

The final result of the whole thing left McKay rolling on the 'Best Game Ever' Ruggerites Claim

This afternoon at 4.15 on Trinity's back campus will emerge the greatest battle ever witnessed in the history of Varsity, according to a Trinity source. It's the English Rugby enthusiasts of Trinity versus all other facutlies combined. "Ambulances will be in attendance for the benefit of foolish spectators who insist on standing too close to the play," said our informant.

The battle will featcha Jack (the bullet) Gibbs for the opposition and Don (the Ram) Glen for the (overconfident) Trinity squad who are rumoured to have in their possession the new jet-propelled rugby ball complete with Radar.

1100 Pasteboards For Gael Tilt Sell Fast

Nearly 1100 tickets for the Queen's-Varsity football game were sold in the Athletic and SAC offices yesterday, but there are still some left, K. S. Gregory, chief accountant said yesterday.

About 750 game tickets were sold, and the other 350 were sold with train tickets. There are still some tickets left at $2.00, while a new shipment of dollar ducats will go on sale this morning.

Tickets for the Western-Varsity game will go on sale for students Thursday at the south door of the Arena from 10.00 to 4.00.

Austin Is Tops In Intramural Rugby Scoring

Austin of Forestry added two touchdowns Friday to his five-point total to zoom into the top spot in the interfaculty scoring race with 15 points according to unofficial scoring statistics compiled by The Varsity.

Harry Damp, who chalked up a single point in the Vic-UC game yesterday remains in second place with 12 marks, two ahead of Medsman Al Varga.

Two members of the St. Mike's A team take over fourth and fifth spots. Bill Kelly has nine points and teammate Brown has eight.

Parry Paces Rugby Scores Bill Danylchuck Is Second

By BRIAN LAND

Latest unofficial statistics reveal that fleet Jack Parry, U.W.O.'s pride and joy, took over leadership in the Intercollegiate Senior League Saturday by virtue of his one touchdown and three convert effort against Queen's. Bill Danylchuk, who went scoreless in the Toronto rout of McGill remains with 20 points, six behind Parry.

Bruce Cummings moved from eighth position to fifth as a result of his eight markers counted against the Redmen. Toronto's Tommy Waldon made his first appearance in the scoring by bursting out with two majors.

Al Lenard added a field goal and convert to his total before being taken off with a broken nose. Big Al has been the chief reason for the Gaels' spirited drive this season, and his loss will be a crippling blow to Kingston hopes to win their remaining games and finish second.

For the first time in three years the scoring column is not dominated by the Western Mustangs. Bob McFarlane and brother Don have both missed games through injuries, (Don for the first time in five years) while Bob is out for the season.

Jim Allen's Goal Sinks Vic Firsts

The Ajax-Vic soccer match yesrday afternoon was a display bove average and a close game ith the only goal going to Ajax. The game was characterized by e evenness of play; there was ttle to choose between either side nd it would be a difficult matter o single out any one player as utstanding. Where Ajax did show ight uperiority was in their icking but even so it was an interesting game with the ball seldom ong in any one half. Although the tandard of shooting was not low he forwards were only able to alk up one goal when Jim Allen cored for Ajax in the first half.

The Adventures of Athie

(N.B.—The characters in this are not fictitious and any resemblance between persons either living or dead is purely intentional.)

First, let us introduce you to Athie Armstrong. (Athie as in Cathie but without the C, see?) What is Athie short for? What a silly question! Athie short for Athletic, natch! This coed of good old U of T is game for all sports but continually gets the run around, poor kid!

The other night our heroine, who wasn't fortunate enough to get into residence, hung around the campus and grabbed a sandwich supper at Mac's just so she could go to her basketball practice at 7.30. It was at OCE but she had only read the schedule hastily and presumed that it was at Lillian Massey where all the other practices had been.

Athie arived at 7.35 and climbed into her shorts but didn't see any of her team-mates. Gee, I'm early for once, she thought but when none of her pals appeared she felt something was wrong. I'm sure it's tonight, she puzzled. Let's see. Ah, here's the schedule on the notice board. Oh no!—I'm not going all the way over to OCE, I'm too darn tired.

But she did. She ran all the way over in her shorts. When she got there at about a quarter to eight she found that the practice had been cancelled—a game was going on.

Poor Athie! If someone had only told her she could have gotten that essay written. The team manager had her phone number. Why hadn't she phoned?

Athie was seething. In fact she had been browned off and was now broiling. She felt jilted most of the long way home in the street car and then it hit her.

Don't get excited. Nobody conked her on the head, it was an idea that just struck her. After all, why should she be mad. She'd stayed down for four hours when she didn't have lectures, and missed a hot supper at home so she could spend 30 cents on a sandwich and a shake just so that she could go to the practice. But now the practice had been cancelled so she could drag her weary bones home a whole hour sooner. Gosh, she thought, am I ever lucky?

We wonder.

trict captain discovered a gang of eager small types telling everyone in their neighbourhood about the Community Chest and its purpose.

But you might ask, are the organizations served by this campaign satisfied with the annual outcome? It has been the experience of Canadian and American welfare agencies that a central group operating on a year round basis provide adequate results. Such things as publicity luncheons are donated and little is spent on administration.

The objective this year represents the actual need of the societies involved. It is therefore extremely gratifying to know that when we donate the money will be used in welfare work.

To complement our contribution let's become more socially conscious and co-operate to the fullest with the Red Feather campaign. In the direction of publicity, teamwork as a whole, or volunteer canvassing, on and off the campus, a fine organizational job has been accomplished.

floor, gasping for breath,.. while Raymond got a one-minute penalty. Poor McKay didn't even score.

Just two minutes later, the same McKay, still burning from his brush with Raymond, sailed into Robb of U.C. when the two got entangled in the corner while chasing the ball. Apparently Robb became careless where he placed the butt-end of his stick. Shortly after, McKay got his first penalty in five years of Interfaculty boxla for being too close to a U.C. player who was being given the once-over by Medsman Moher.

An example of Meds' superiority came near the end of the third period. While Moher was off for one minute for slashing, not only did U.C. fail to get a shot on Firman, but they didn't even get possession of the ball as Halliburton and Hetherington ragged the pill perfectly. At that, Hetherington deked Byrnes completely once only to hit the top cross-bar.

Other Meds scores were Utsonomiya with two and Hetherington who played a shifty, tricky game throughout, with three. On three other occasions he hit the goal-posts. Raymond with three, Robb two and Burnie one were U.C. marksmen.

In the other game at four o'clock, Forestry and U.C. fifths played to a 3-3 tie in what was undoubtedly the cleanest game of the season. Bob LaRose did his best for the Red and White in the penaltyless game, scoring two of their goals. Davies notched the other.

Clark, Cunningham and Shannon each scored once for the Foresters.

Let's LOOK At It

THE UNIVERSITY GIRL'S NATURAL shopping territory is Park Plaza corner, the F. J. Watt, Sportswear, who are showing some of the season's top designing in woollen dresses and coats. Every co-ed knows the shop for smart separates, and it's gratifying to remember that now Watt's can supply you with the type of all-day-long woollen number that can actually take you dating as well with a good solid quota of oomph. Watt's encourage you to shop around any time, like to get your slant on things, have outfitted more campus queens than most big stores.

IF YOU'RE THE TIMID TYPE WHO turns away from the Joan Rigby window with a shuddering sigh knowing that such perfection is not in the territory of your only budget, take our advice and reconsider the whole strategy. Joan Rigby suits start at fifty-five dollars, and lady you can travel farther and do much worse. Moreover, Joan Rigby suits are the type to give your investment a pretty long life-line. A suit of the J. R. heritage just keeps rolling along, season after season, and spiked up with a new accessory or two it maintains its gentle air of superiority. It is likely at last handed down to some deserving relative. 54 Bloor St. W.

ANY YOUNG MAN WITH AN EAGER LOOK in his eye and matrimony on his mind, is well advised to visit Scheuer's at 131 Yonge Street, if in quest of a three-stone engagement ring or solitaire of definite quality quotient. Scheuer's pride themselves on a special price of one hundred dollars on a carefully selected group of engagement rings which have been a Scheuer advertisement of good value these mony mating seasons. Oldest diamond importing house in Canada, Scheuer's are downtown, facing Temperance.

A FRIEND OF OURS WHO COMES into Toronto from a city nearly as big twice a year on a shopping spree, had just purchased three ensembles from Travers Fox. "Why three?" we asked, being on the cautious side. "Well, it's like this" she said. "I like my clothes custom-made. I also like to know that they are going to look like after they're made up. I go to Travers Fox because I can have custom-made fittings on a dress I know will suit me." Try it on, get the "look" and let those wonderful fitters do the rest. Moved, incidentally, to larger and verree luxurious showrooms at 1175 Bay.

AND WHEN WE TELL YOU you can still buy a lunch with the civilized trimmings for thirty-five cents we're not fooling. Go to the Hearthstone and check. They do it at noon and of course, you can be more lavish with fifty or sixty cents, but it's a spot you're not ashamed to take admiring friends from back home. Banquets a specialty, incidentally, and they can seat up to two hundred and fifty guests. Bloor West of Bay.

MONTHS UNDER THE tutelage of Palmer Brown, a natural flare for the perfect hat to make you perfect, a year of thaining at art school and a couple of years at millinery design to go into the background of that very remarkable young person Gilbert Phillips, who is hanging up a shingle at 95 Bloor Street West. Already a coast-to-coast theatre "big name" and several of the more sophisticated career girls around town have discovered Gilbert. He's hoping you'll do the same, makes it interesting to be pretty and knows a lot about what it takes to give your headline "zing." Go up to the top floor.

PEOPLE ARE USUALLY BETTER LOOKING than they think, reason being that most sensitive souls develop an anguished expression in front of the camera which is of course the result of really caring. But now if you Really Care, and want someone else to Really Care, there is this remarkable Polyfoto technique by which forty-eight photographic shots are pelted at you at every possible facial angle, and out of all these is sure to come the look that expresses the real, the indestructible, the irresistible you. Drop in and prove the value of these words at Bloor and Balmuto. Chances are you'll come away all built up to a dramatic and compelling new ego.

Book Review

Sailors and Varied Breezes

"Nautical Nostalgia"

Though only three years have passed since the year of final triumph over Germany and Japan the recollections of the long six-year conflict are already fading into the mists of memory. It requires an effort now to recall clearly the personal experiences of those eventful years. They were happy times for some and grim and rugged for others. But gay or hard, the experience of serving in the forces was one few would have wanted to miss.

In "Sailor Remember", (Collins, $3.75) William H. Pugsley strikes the same delightful salty note that he hit in his previous, "Saints, Devils and Ordinary Seamen." The book is profusely illustrated with pictures of matelots at work and play. It is the family album of the navy. There are shots of all the scenes sailors knew so well, from the shore establishments "Naden" and "Niobe" to life on corvettes and destroyers at sea.

Pugsley has dedicated the book to the memory of those stout hearts who have not returned and will not be returning from the dark waters. "One remembers them not alone for the gallantry of their sacrifice, but too because somehow one's own life seems the richer for having had their friendship."

The story is well told in what might be described as a virile, punchy style. Life in the R.C.N. is viewed from the "lower deck". Pugsley was an RCNVR officer before the war. He was called up as an accountant officer but later resigned his commission to write of the lower deck. During the two years he spent as a rating he served in nearly thirty ships and shore bases.

Although the book is full of amusing anecdotes and the lighter side of the matelot's life, the hardness and seamy side of the service is not passed over. As a matter of fact, Pugsley drives some rapier thrusts at the ward room and the excessively strict discipline of the navy.

Supporting peacetime compulsory service, he urges that the administration should be shorn of its outdated ways reminiscent of an earlier and totally different age. "The Navy today must fight by standards of the 20th Century: why should it continue to live by the standards of the 18th Century?"

"And who can say that present living conditions are modern, when ratings tell one that breakfast in 'Stadacona' isn't worth going to the mess hall to get? Yet an officer may send back to the galley an egg that hasn't been done the way he likes 'em!"

Pugsley continues, "I have always had a fondness for the navy, so naturally I'd like to see it the very best navy we could possibly have, but I can't help thinking that, in order to reach this objective, we should give more attention to improving conditions on the lower deck, and less attention, at least for the present, to such things as salutes in honor of somebody's backside."

This breezy narrative will delight anyone who ever served in, or was otherwise interested in the Royal Canadian Navy.

George E. Bettson.

Crosswinds

Crosswinds (Thomas Allen: $2.75) is not so boisterous as its name implies; it is more a succession of barely perceptible breezes, becoming in places a flat calm. The author, Martha Cheavens, tells of the Reverend J. Bronson, of his doubts about his fitness as a minister, and of his decision in the end to remain in the ministry, a decision which is apparent from the first page. This familiar theme has gained little or nothing in the retelling. Miss Cheavens introduces another more significant theme, the misery of the underprivileged Mexicans in the minister's town. This is considerably more vivid. But after hanging a man and crushing several children beneath a falling tenement wall, she abandons the cause of the Mexicans to deal with other matters, such as the affairs of the Bronson children. Unfortunately there is a preponderance of children.

Crosswinds is a well-meaning book, but neither an exciting nor well-written one. Novels should be more than a series of incidents haphazardly strung together, and good intentions are hardly enough.

ART - MUSIC and DRAMA

Years Ago

Last night the University Alumni Dramatic Club presented "Years Ago", a charming parody on the difficulties and dangers in the way of a girl's ambition to tread the Great White Way. Ruth Gordon, who wrote the play, should know, for she was that girl. The curtain rings down as Ruth Gordon Jones leaves for the Big Lights, and it is a satisfaction to us that she actually achieved her goal; she is currently starring in her own play, "Leading Lady", on the New York stage.

There are many bouquets to be handed out for the high standard achieved on the Hart House stage. Mr. Alex. McKee, an accomplished radio actor, deserves to be congratulated on one of the most polished and convincing portrayals we have ever had the pleasure of enjoying. As Mr. Jones he wrestled with an unruly daughter who abhors the repulsive prospect of becoming a "healthy" gym teacher. His speech is salted with nautical expressions; his actions are both natural and dramatic, a most successful combination. In fact, Alex. McKee transported himself and his audience back to the days of the "Pink Lady" and its star, Hazel Dawn.

Barbara Allen, U.C. '45, played the stage-struck heroine, Ruth, with a great deal of understanding and sensitivity. She was charming and graceful. With her two school chums, Barbara sang the snatches of the waltz, Pink Lady, with appealing simplicity.

David Gardner, III Victoria, and Marian Jones, U.C. '47, handled their difficult comedy roles more than adequately, and Beatrice Ramsay, U.C. '47, and Elizabeth Rand of Acadia University both supported the principals in highly commendable performances. John Murray and Guy Purser were both well cast. Christina Templeton as Mrs. Jones was unaffected and continually at ease.

The production of "Years Ago" was handled with professional skill. The set was charming; the lighting and sound effects were extremely successful. John Mantley's direction promises this campus a rich reward in the future.

Organ Recital

The first in a series of four organ recitals was given yesterday afternoon by Dr. Healey Willan in Convocation Hall. Walter Sangster's Prelude and Fugue in G. minor began the program and was followed by three chorale-preludes of Karg-Elert, "O world I now must leave thee", "O Blessed Jesu", "By the waters of Babylon"; the Fantasie-Sonata No. 2 in A flat of Rheinberger; Andante e con dolore by Moussorgsky; the Dance of Angels by Wolf-Ferrari and Schumann's rousing Fugue No. 1 on Bach.

The prelude of the first work is a fast-moving study of chromatic arpeggios gradually giving way to a steadier, more solid background which is loudly triumphant. The unusual prelude adequately serves to prepare the listener for a very difficult Fugue of the most intricate type, but capably executed by Dr. Willan. The chorale-preludes, all similar in quality, were rich in tonal brilliance and revealed Karg-Elert in a pensive mood.

Josef Rheinberger's Fantasie-Sonata was just that. Boldly announced, it was a variety of grave and allegro, pesante and leggero, pianissimo and triple forte all terminating in an impressive conclusion. The familiar Andante e con dolore was typically Russian and typically Moussorgsky, and in contrast the Dance of Angels was a dainty mixture of harps and strings.

The Schumann never tired the listener with its steady accelerando and crescendo attitude and fittingly brought to a close a well-planned program designed to please the average listener as well as organ enthusiasts.

ISS Redrafts Constitution At Conference

Reaffirming its interest in the promotion of education, the International Student Service, a national federation of students, graduates and faculty members, drew up a new constitution at the conference at Ajax last weekend which stated its aims as: (1) the exchange of ideas, (2) material aid within the university community, and (3) exchange of students and professors.

A National Committee will be set up composed of two students, one graduate, and one faculty member from each of, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. Western Canada will send three students, one graduate and one faculty member. This committee will be elected at a meeting of the regional delegates at the annual convention.

The members of the annual convention will be half students, to give the students a greater part in ISS than they previously have had.

Membership in ISS is open to any student, graduate, or faculty member who accepts the principles of ISS. On the campus every student is considered a member of ISS.

"ISS is financed by donations and campaigns authorized by the national committee. Previously it was not responsible to any organization but acted on student opinion", said ISS president Pat Daniel. "It is now responsible to the national committee. This will enable ISS to reach more students and will increase the interest of the students in the organization," she said.

Preliminaries For Moot Court Are Being Held

An important part of the law school curriculum, the Moot Court, gets under way each February. Themes like sedition, murder, negligence, criminal law, and broken contracts are assigned to students of the law school of the University of Toronto in the fall. Mock trials are built about these themes and are being presented in the next two weeks before student judges who mark each participant on his presentation and choose the best case to be argued in the famous February Moot Court.

Final year students preside over these preliminary trials in which second and third year students take the part of the senior counsels and the first year students take that of junior counsels.

Two years ago the Moot Court heard the highly publicized case of Pat Teney vs. Babs Flint. Pat, it was charged, won the annual law school contest, "The Girl We Would Most Like To Be Called To The Bar With" by packing the poll with her friends. Babs, who had for four years won the title, called Miss Teney, "a cheap chorus girl, a bleached blonde and an insignificant freshie."

"The preliminaries," said Frank Adams, chief justice of the first division. "take from an hour and a half to three hours each."

Toronto Post Office Needs 1,500 Students

Applications for Christmas employment with the post office will be received in the employment office of the S.A.C. in Hart House today.

Positions to be filled are those of sorters, routers, and letter carriers. Pay for all positions will be at the rate of 70 cents an hour. Women students will be employed only as sorters while men may apply for all positions.

Sorters will be taken on for a period of seven or eight days, routers for the same time, while letter carriers will be employed for 13 days. All shifts are for eight hour periods except in the case of sorters who will work a shorter seven hour shift.

It pays to help the post office during their rush season.

Rumors of Protest Discredited by DVA

Rumors, that over 90 D.V.A. students, disgruntled because they had not received their cheques, intended to contact D.V.A., were discredited by officials last night. They said: "We know nothing about a delegation coming to see us with regard to the recent pay issue."

Mr. Whitten of D.V.A. stated that the students who have not received their cheques are those who have not filed their registration forms with D.V.A. or students who have any changes to report.

These students must inform DVA of the changes, and the cheques will then be sent out. Officials said the next pay will be November 15.

Livingstone Recommends NFCUS Should Join IUS But In Opposition Role

By JACK GRAY

A recommendation that the National Federation of Canadian University Students join the International Union of Students was strongly expressed by Grant Livingstone, chairman of the Canadian delegation to the IUS Council meeting held in Paris last summer, in an open meeting in West Hall, University College, yesterday.

Must Defend Democracy

"I think we must endorse the IUS constitution by reaffirming the Christmas resolution of affiliation," declared Livingstone. "We should join IUS in the role of opposition, based on the principles of our democracy. If we do not defend our democracy then we shall be unworthy of it, and if we are unworthy of it then we shall lose it."

Livingstone outlined the steps which led to this summer's meeting in Paris. He explained that the Canadian delegation went to Paris seeking affiliation between NFCUS and IUS as called for in a resolution drawn up at the NFCUS Conference held at Winnipeg in December, 1947. According to this resolution there were several conditions attached to any affiliation between NFCUS and IUS.

Conditions Binding NFCUS

The Canadian delegation, in letters sent to the IUS executive before the council meeting and in discussions with members of the Credentials Committee at the council meeting, interpreted these conditions as being binding on NFCUS but not on IUS. The Credentials' Committee was of the opinion that the Canadian delegation's authority to interpret the Christmas resolution was not clear, and accordingly the IUS Council passed a resolution inviting NFCUS to affiliate with IUS, on condition that this resolution is ratified by NFCUS. NFCUS membership in IUS will become effective if and when the resolution is accepted by NFCUS.

IUS A Partisan Group

Livingstone charged that IUS, in conflict with the principles of its constitution, is a partisan group. In spite of this, he said, "we agreed with the principles of the IUS constitution and sought to join it as a world student body. We did not agree with IUS as a partisan body." It was hoped that in IUS, NFCUS and Canadian students could work for the following principles "to provide for positive, non-political, or at least non-partisan student activities; to represent Canadian students in the world at large; to pro-

Lunch Hour Debating Will Start Tomorrow

Something new in Hart House Debates — an informal noon-hour session—will be held on Thursday at one o'clock in the Debates Room. The topic will be: "That as a potent political force the Liberal Party in Canada is dead and embalmed."

Because of the short period of time available, normal rules of procedure have been amended to allow the leading speakers five minutes each; after that the debate is open to the floor, with all comers allowed three minutes to bury or resurrect the Liberal Party. A vote will be taken.

The names of the principal speakers have not yet been announced, but Fred Giles, III U.C., who is organizing the noon-hour debates, said that no resolution would be put forward by members of political clubs opposed to the Liberal government.

The noon-hour debates are designed to allow people who have difficulty in getting to evening debates a chance to take part in Hart House debating. They are also designed, Giles said, for inexperienced debaters who may feel more at home in an informal atmosphere; for experienced debaters who want more experience; for people with political conviction; and for any member of Hart House who wants to come.

Panel Questions If University Can Find Truth

"Does the University discover truth?" was the topic presented at the panel discussion of the third open forum meeting, held yesterday at the Viv Alumni Hall under the auspices of the Student Christian Movement.

The first speaker on the panel, W. C. Leslie, professor in ethics, said that the university normally does not help us to discover truth in that it tends to be divisive and partial. He explained that a great deal of information is accumulated without any coherent system of finding the truth. He also stated that subjectivism was present in knowledge which served to confuse partial relationism with that of total relationism.

Miss Belva Parker Vic III said that the university offered a better chance to discover truth than other institutions because of extra curricular activities which provided contact with many people who desired truth.

The third speaker, Murry Pashler, Vic III, said that scientific knowledge played an important part in determining facts and that the university was certainly doing its job as far as factual knowledge was concerned.

In reply to question from the floor, which constituted the second part of the meeting, Professor Leslie said that the university should offer every opportunity to give an integral point of view to help students recognize problems in academic life.

LOST BOOKS

All books lost in the University Library are turned in to Miss Julia Jarvis, the University Librarian. These books, including some valuable volumes on French and History, may be claimed on identification by the owners. The books, although of no value to the library, are in some cases extremely so to the student.

Looking Forward

The plan drawn up at last week's ISS annual conference whereby German students may be admitted to Canadian Universities for a period of one year is one of the most concrete proposals yet undertaken by ISS.

The idea—the details of which have yet to be worked out—is directed primarily toward German university students in the belief that re-establishment of Germany on a sound democratic basis is fundamental to European recovery.

Although the scheme is to be carried out on a minor scale in Canada, involving less than fifty students per year, it is a progressive step in the attempt to overcome the mental vacuum prevailing in Germany since 1933. In the words of the ISS petition to the SAC seeking its endorsement of the plan "The previous antagonistic attitudes of Germany and the present cynicism were and are based to a significant extent on lack of understanding and prejudice."

The most effective means of re-education in Germany is at the university level because of students' intellectual ability and their potential influence on German affairs. German students studying in Canada for one year and then returning to their homeland could be in a better position to spread the seeds of Western liberal thought and explain Canadian attitudes to their compatriots.

Nor would the benefits be one-sided. Canadian students could be in a better position to understand the culture of another national group and many of the bitter conceptions left lingering from the war years could be modified. Reason could replace rancour; and many existing prejudices could be re-examined by closer association with German students.

Sanders Lectures Grads At Business Club Meeting

Mr. Wilfred Sanders of the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion spoke yesterday to the Graduate Business Club on "The Application of Marketing Research to Business and Industry." A director of both the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll) and the Canadian Opinion Poll, Mr. Sanders explained the work done by the companies and the business need of the poll's advice.

"Modern marketing research is giving management very much help in making decisions that were formerly made on hunches and guesswork," Sanders said. He cited a number of cases to emphasize this statement. "The Graduate Business Club being an organization of graduates in the Business Administration course, its members should know of the tremendous help marketing research will give them in their work," he continued.

Mr. Sanders is a graduate of the university and a former editor of The Varsity.

Russian Instruction Offered to Students

A new course designed to achieve a reading knowledge of the Russian language was organized in Hart House recently. The group will meet every Wednesday between 2.00 and 3.30 p.m.

Although intended primarily for members of the faculty and staff, the course will be available to students whose special interest and academic programs indicate they would profit from the study.

The next meeting would take place today, November 3rd, in the Upper Reading Room of Hart House at 2 p.m.

Plan Christian Meet To Be Held In Winter

Extensive preparations are now under way in the colleges and faculties of the University Christian Mission to be held from Jan. 16-20. Student committees are being organized and these are headed by the following: Meds, Al Weir; S.P.S., Paul Wiegand; University College, Doug MacBrien and Jean Leppington; Victoria, George Speers; Trinity, Temple Kingston; St. Hilda's, Shiela Higgins; Knox, Joe McClelland and Dick Ritchie; Wycliffe, Fraser Bournes; P.H.E., Scott Bricker.

The purpose of this mission is to present the need of all men for a spiritual life in Christ in contrast to the dominantly materialistic outlook of the present generation. Therefore, the prayers and services of every student are requested towards the success of the mission. If you wish to help carry out preparatory plans, please get in touch with your college or faculty representative.

Handbook Issued For Vic Members

The first edition of the Victoria College Students' Handbook is being given to members of the College this week. This 150 page booklet which is published by the V.C.U. contains information on all clubs and societies as well as social and athletic activities at Vic. The articles are written in narrative fashion and spiced with anecdotes of life on the Strand.

One of the more important features of the Handbook is the inclusion of the constitutions of the V.C.U. and all affiliated organizations in the College.

The publication of the Handbook, which is the direct responsibility of the Publicity Director, is one of the outstanding features of the new V.C.U. Constitution. It is hoped that this venture will result in greater participation and interest in College affairs. This is the first book of its kind to be published by an individual faculty or college on the campus.

Student Exhibition Open to All Photogs

The Hart House Camera Club will hold an exhibition in the Hart House art gallery, of the leading photographs submitted to an all-Canadian University contest for photographic art. The exhibition will be on display from from the 15th to the 22nd of November, and then will be taken to the Public Library for a further display.

The contest is open to all Canadian University students and faculty, and Varsity students should submit entries to the Hall Porter, Hart House, on or before November 7. Entry forms may be obtained from him.

SPORTSWOMAN

By JOAN EDDIS

Four teams—that's all that are left in the softball playoffs. St. Mike's win over PHE III yesterday puts them in position to tackle Vic I, who stood second in League I. PHE II are still in the running by virtue of their 11-10 edge over PHE IV yesterday. At the beginning of this game it seemed probable that enthusiastic PHE IV, who were winning 7-2 at the end of the second, were going to walk over their big sisters. It looked then as if PHE IV might be the black horse that would defeat PHE I, last year's champs, who stand at the top of League I. But the second team piled up five runs in the third, by finding the holes in the fourth team's fielding, retired PHE IV batters one-two-three by their snappy fielding and went on in the last of the fourth to bring in four runs and win the game.

How does the playoff system work? There are two play-off groups—those who won their group and those who were runner-up. From there on in it's a sort of ladder or work-up system in which the fourth league team plays the third league in the same group and the winner of that sudden death game goes on to challenge the second league team and so on until there is only one team left in each group.

Trinity, Rest Tied In English Rugger

Yesterday afternoon nothing happened . . . at least nothing very much happened on the Trinity back campus . . . at least nothing very much when you realize that it was an English rugger game. There were no injuries and although the Rest argued very hard about a doubtful try, the referee was adamant and there was no score.

mote world student unity; to work for peace and to work for democracy."

Livingstone explained that if this was found to be impossible in IUS then the NFCUS policy would be to withdraw "and put our efforts into some other student organization based on democratic principles." In recommending NFCUS affiliation with IUS, he said that his opinion had changed since the original NFCUS resolution on affiliation had been drawn up and that he now felt affiliation advisable. He said he felt that Canadian students and NFCUS should join IUS "to work to restore the balance of power in the IUS—the moral balance of power", which he claims is now predominantly communist.

SKI CLUB

There will be a general meeting of the Ski Club on Wednesday, Nov. 3rd at 5 p.m. in Room 111, Anatomy Bldg. Slides will be shown and a general discussion will take place. Everyone is welcome to attend this meeting.

The Red and White Night held a week ago is still the talk of the U.C. campus. We haven't seen such an enthusiastic and good-time bunch since our last informal college affair — the Frosh-Freshie caper. Those in charge of the Red and White Nights are seriously thinking of using the Maple Leaf Gardens in the future to accommodate the terrific crowds that seem to turn out to all U.C affairs these days. Our boy, Jack Hoolihan, deserves one big pat on the back for his M.C. efforts, and another for his work in organizing the whole affair. Loads of credit also must go to residence boys and girls who put on the entertainment and to Rae Evans, Jean Truemner and Olive Jane Piper who worked with Jack in seeing that the whole affair went according to plan.

By this time you know about the Joint Open meeting that is being held tonight in the Junior Common Room at 7.30. It really seems a waste of time to urge you to come out tonight. We predicted some weeks ago that the whole question of amalgamation would arise again this fall. Much of the discussion this evening will centre around that very topic. If you don't care whether we have one undergrad body instead of two (or three), or if you aren't interested in any other phase of student government, don't bother to come. However, we should like to utter a little warning. . . . Whether you are there or not, the decisions made will affect you personally and directly, and it will be too late to raise loud voices of indignation after it's all over. There is always weeping and gnashing of teeth after open meetings of any kind around this college, and the ones who cry loudest are those who didn't take the trouble to turn out. It won't do you any good to declaim and decry in the rotunda or mumble your protests over coffee at Mac's. So unless you like others telling you what to do — come out tonight!

That colourful Follies' Star has been attracting considerable attention in the rotunda — and rightly so. Art Schipper, aided by "Choc" Silverstein, has really done a stupendous job and is to be congratulated. Who says that there is no spirit in U.C.? Art was up until the wee hours of the morning working on the Star in order to have it ready for last Monday afternoon when it made its debut. Incidentally if you are wondering who took the sensational pictures that appear on the Star, the name of the young man with the camera is Peter Wade. Peter takes pictures of all U.C. functions and he's another lad that deserves a tremendous amount of hallelujahs and huzzahs for the fine work he has done — and will be doing. . . . You will notice that a different picture of a lovely star of the Follies is featured every day. Take a look and see who is the Star for Today.

Note and Comment. . . . Those who were at the All-Varsity dance last Friday were greatly impressed by the P.H.E. entertainment. That "Penguin at the Waldorf" number was a sensation. It looked almost professional—with a freshness that professional shows usually don't have.

. . . Bubbling Bill Greene, men's second-year president, triumphantly announces that the second-year party will take place at the Women's Union, tomorrow night. Bouncing Bill promises all second-year U.C. people that a very happy evening is in store for all sophomores. . . . Just 'cause it's tucked in near the end doesn't mean that it's not important — we're speaking of a meeting for all U.C. seniors tomorrow at 1:15 p.m. in West Hall. . . . Oh yes, don't forget to support the Red Feather campaign. Help U.C. get over the top in this big effort. . . . Have fun at Queen's and we'll see you here next Wednesday.

Meds And School Battle To Twelve All Stalemate

In one of the most thrilling finishes of the Intramural season, Sr. SPS and Sr. Meds battled to a 12-12 deadlock on the Back Campus yesterday. With about five minutes remaining in the game and the score 11-5 in favor of Meds, fleet-footed Johnny Ward broke through to block a Meds' placement attempt on the SPS 20 yard stripe, gobbled up the ball and raced 90 yards just ahead of the pursuing Tony Cecutti for the tieing touchdown.

Bud Powell converted to put Skule ahead for the first time in the game. But apparently it just wasn't in the cards for the winless Schoolmen to gain their first victory yesterday.

Only a few plays later the charging Meds' line smothered a Skule kick and the penalty for recovering their own blocked kick left SPS on their 15 yard line ready to try again. This time Meds received on the SPS 30. Jimmie Smith lost no time in hitting Cecutti with a pass for first down and on the last play of the game Al Varga knotted the count for Meds with a long punt to the deadline.

Leading 6-0 at the half Meds gave every indication of adding to their total as their flashy backfield sliced through for large gains and only a tight SPS pass defense kept the Medicine men from posting a larger score. The spirited Skulemen came back in great style in the second half, however, and outscored Meds 12-5.

With the game less than five minutes old, Meds opened the scoring when Kent Armstrong recovered a blocked SPS kick on the School 20 yard line and two plays later Jimmie Smith took a long pass from Gabe Varga for a T.D. Smith converted his own touch to make the score 6-0 for the Red and Black.

Shortly after the start of the third quarter Meds again entered the scoring column. This time a Smith to Cecutti aerial took them to the School 5 yard marker and after the fighting SPS front wall held for two plays, Cecutti plunged over on a quarterback sneak. The convert was blocked.

An offside penalty to the Doctors gave the Blue and Gold another chance which they cashed in as Jack Trist tossed a short pro pass to Brent Rowe for a touchdown. Bud Powell converted both School tries.

St. Mike's A, Knox Victors In Rugged Boxla Tilts

St. Mike's A edged out UC-PHE IIs 5-3 in close fought lacrosse battle yesterday. The UC squad, better known as last year's PHE firsts, did not disappoint the fans who lined the track as they employed the rockem-sockem checking tactics for which they were well-known in previous seasons.

PHE started strongly, beating Goalie Harry Edmunston for two markers in the first period with the Mikemen failing to reply. In the second stanza, however, the double blue reciprocated, scoring by Duffy and Gilkinson who netted one each. PHE's first quarter tallies were by Winters and J. Sterling.

The scoring was still knotted at the end of the third canto, in which both teams scored singles. Winters racked up his second for PHE while Ross contributed for St. Mike's.

St. Mike's netted two goals in the final period to clinch the game with encores from Gilkinson and Duffy supplying the margin.

Knox's College's lacrosse entry beat out St. Mike's thirds by a 6-3 score. The Knoxmen came from behind in the final period to score four goals to salt away the contest. Percy Heath and Jack Watt scored two apiece for the victors. Phillips and Walroth were in for single efforts. For the losing cause Bob McIntyre, Bill Kennedy and Jerry Larmer netted singles.

The game was cleanly played except for two match misconduct penalties to Phillips and McIntyre who were banished for fighting.

At the end of the first half Sr. SPS were leading Vic firsts by a 2-1 count.

Washington's Proposed Union

This spacious five-floor edifice is the plan of the proposed student Union building of the State College of Washington. Stanley A. Smith, the college architect, designed the structure with H. C. Weller, the associate architect. The plan was the result of an architectural planning and consulting service, organized to avoid unnecessary expense and errors. Colleges, planning or remodeling unions may obtain the combined experience of other unions translated into technical terms.

Meet Difficulties While Seeking Hall For English Dean

"Considerable trouble" has been experienced by the Humanist Club in obtaining a hall in one of the University of Toronto buildings for the expected visit and address Friday by Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, members of the club executive reported last night.

On American Tour

The noted Church of England clergyman, sometimes dubbed the "Red Dean", recently arrived on this side of the Atlantic for a speaking tour of Canada and the United States. He has just completed a six-month visit to Russia and Eastern European countries.

Executive members of the Humanist Club, sponsors of the university meeting, said that requests for a large hall were rejected by the office of the superintendent of buildings and by Dr. W. R. Taylor, Principal of University College. Places declared unavailable for the meeting include the Royal Ontario Museum theatre, Convocation Hall, McLennan Laboratory and West Hall, University College.

Hart House Available

However, permission was granted by Nicholas Ignatieff, warden of Hart House, for holding of the meeting in the Debates Room. Myer Brody, president of the Humanist Club, expressed regret that a larger place could not be obtained and that women students would not be able to attend.

The Humanist Club executive was turned down verbally, Frank Rebbick, vice-president, reported. Political reasons were not given as the basis of the refusals, but Rebick said he felt that the rejection seemed more than a coincidence.

If the dean arrives in time, the Hart House meeting will be held at 1 p.m. He will be invited to have luncheon with the warden at the High Table of Hart House before his address.

Brody promised that a full statement would be issued today.

One of the more colorful clerics of the Church of England and center of many a controversy, the dean attended a Congress of Intellectuals in Warsaw, Poland. Originally, he was invited to tour the United States by the National Council for American - Soviet Friendship but was declined a visa by the State Department in Wash-

Modern Tragedy Missing In Drama States Sinclair

The time is ripe to write the modern tragedy, said Lister Sinclair, dramatist and critic, addressing Vic Liberal Arts Club on "The Idea of Tragedy" in Wymilwood on Tuesday night. There is plenty of the comic sense in modern drama, but the tragic sense is the most important thing missing from it.

Mr. Sinclair reviewed the traditional idea of tragedy and showed the aspects which are significent for modern audiences. Illustrating his point from Sophocles, "Oedipus Rex", "Macbeth", and Ibsen's "Ghosts," he said that the emotions of pity and terror which tragedy aims at arousing, are best achieved if the hero remains alive to face the consequences of his errors. Tragic deaths today are too often ludicrous, and tragic heroes who have become real men through their sufferings should not be killed off when things are too much for them to bear.

While the comic sense shows us how small we are, the tragic sense shows man as a great creature with a soul, that nothing is really trivial, as small actions have heavy issues. Ibsen's plays still seem realistic, but 1881 is getting further away every year, and we need a great 20th century tragedy. It should have a local setting, should be written in prose, and the hero should be an uncommon man, for the average person does not identify himself with the common man. A contemporary tragedy will remove the idea that most people identify with the word, something gloomy and remote, and it can perform a definite and useful purpose in the modern world.

Coeds Condemn Free Love, Judges Decide Otherwise

The motion "That love without marriage is more moral than marriage without love" was upheld by judges but defeated by the vote of the house at the St. Hilda's Debating Society Tuesday.

Speaking for the government, Lois Martin, II Phil. and Eng., defined morality as "action tending to elevate and exalt human nature." "Marriage without love," she said, "is stultifying, while love brings out the best in each human being, helping the individual to realize his highest potentialities."

Buffy Evans, IV Pol. Sci., first speaker for the negative, said that love was "friendship set on fire.' She excited the horror of the affirmative speakers that by contending that marriage for ambition was not immoral because there was no immorality in selling goods.

"I object strenuously to any comparison of human love to mere shopping in Eaton's bargain basement," said Miss Martin in rebuttal.

Miss Evans, however, maintained that "to uphold living in sin would eventually lead to upholding prostitution and adultery." She substantiated this with references to Maclean's Magazine and the Readers' Digest.

Speaking for the government, Susan Burgess, IV Eng. Lang. and Lit., claimed that "for man to allow himself to be tied to anything less than love can lead only to degradation, degeneration and moral collapse. "Without love the poetry of life is gone," she said. "A true marriage is the physical expression of the spiritual love between two people," concluded Miss Burgess.

"Through the centuries chastity has been upheld," asserted the second speaker for the opposition, Carlotta Bolton, III Pass. She praised and arranged marriages of the East in contrast with the unsuccessful love contracts of the West. "Love will cool," she warned, "and turn into utter horror."

In the lively debate from the floor, views were advanced that morals are based on economics and that marriage was therefore moral; that monogamy was an economic law since no man can support ten wives; that society did not sanction love without marriage. As one speaker put it, "You just don't have Mr. Whoosie and his mistress around to dinner."

Canada's Economy Is First Subject For RCI Program

The Royal Canadian Institute will open its series of Saturday evening lectures for the 100th session on November 6th, in Convocation Hall. Dr. J. W. Bain will deliver the first address on "Canada's Industries—Whence and Whither".

Dr. Bain was born in London, but came to Canada at an early age. He graduated from the University of Toronto, Department of Mining Engineering in 1897 and joined the staff of the Faculty of Applied Science. Appointed Head of the Chemical Engineering Department in 1916, Dr. Bain held this position until his retirement in 1946, when he was appointed Professor Emeritus of Chemical Engineering.

Dr. Bain is a Fellow of the Royal Institute of Chemistry of Great Britain and Ireland, and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada. He was the first recipient of the Medal of the Society of Chemical Industry, Canada.

Dr. Bain will give a brief description of Toronto as it appeared one hundred years ago and deal with the primitive nature of Canadian industries of a century ago and subsequent developments.

Motion pictures will illustrate the lecture.

Fireworks, Margie Featured at Rally

On Friday, Nov. 12, at 7.45 p.m. in Varsity Stadium, Marjorie and the band will lead the assembled students in a beat-Western pep-rally. After a show, cheering and a pyrotechnique display, the band will lead a monstrous snake dance to the University Ave. Armories where a dance will be held. Beat Western buttons and ribbons will be sold.

Mock Parliament Bill Entered By Liberals

The first Mock Parliament will be held in Brennan Hall, Thursday, Nov. 11th, at 8 p.m. The Liberals will present the government bill and the Tories will be the loyal opposition.

The government bill will be announced in tomorrow's Varsity. The opposition must present their amendment to the speaker by 7 p.m. on the night of the debate and sub amendments by the other political parties and by the Independents may be moved from the floor during the debate.

Whitney Girls No Prudes They!

"Love will find a way."

An ad appearing the classified section of Monday's Varsity asked that the "two beautiful girls living in the south-west corner room 2nd floor Whitney Hall" contact two "heartbroken young men".

The girls, Ann Washington and Georgia Phillips, two freshies from Oshawa, said they had not replied to the ad but "might if we knew who the boys were."

Great Christian Serves Japanese In Slums of Kobe

Rev. C.J.L. Bates described the life and works of the great Japanese Christian, Toyohiko Kagawa, at the first Hart House Wednesday Noon Hour Series. He said, "Kagawa is not a man behind a pulpit but a demonstrator in a laboratory, showing that Christianity is not merely talk, but also action and redemptive power."

Dr. Bates described Kagawa's 13 years of service in the slums of Kobe, his fight against poverty, and the social service centres he founded. Although plagued by illness he still works constantly.

Kagawa believes that an essential concern of the Christian must be the economic emancipation of the poor. This, he says, can only be accomplished through the abolition of the profit motive, and elimination of the competitive ideal. He thus advocates the formation of co-operatives as a prelude to socialism, and for these views has been imprisoned several times.

Says Consolidation Needed For World Mental Hygiene

The recent World Mental Health Conference was conceived in recognition of the need for consolidating the work of all the social sciences, including those dealing primarily with mental health, Dr. J. D. M. Griffin, Medical Director of the Committee for Mental Hygiene, told the School of Social Work Student Association yesterday.

Dr. Griffin was one of 20 Canadian delegates to the conference, which was held in London. It was attended by 2,500 official delegates representing 56 countries.

The conference studied the theme "World Citizenship Against War" in relation to the problem of mental health, Dr. Griffin said.

The delegates felt that a common language of social science was needed and that small groups of educators, lawyers and others interested in human development should be encouraged to participate in the work of the conference.

A new organization, the World Federation for Mental Health was set up with the primary purpose of "promoting the highest level of mental health among all peoples." This organization replaces the former International Committee for Mental Hygiene.

Campus Red Feather Drive Promoted In All Colleges

Yesterday a bright battered jalopy was seen moving slowly around Queen's Park. Fosters, signs and bright red feathers waved gaily in the breeze. Lovely girls in short skirts scattered leaflets to the passing throngs of students.

All this was to advertise the Vic Feather Frolic which is to be held tonight at Victoria College. Prizes including tickets to the Ice Capades, Royal York, King Edward, Barclay, and the Vic Informal, will be given to the holders of the lucky tickets in a draw.

There will be a midway, with twelve booths, refreshments stands, dancing, and several skits, under the direction of J. Harvey Smith. Both Miss Toronto and Miss Beautiful Toronto will be there to add a touch of glamor to the proceedings.

"As usual, the Vic contributions to the Red Feather Fund will probably be ahead of any of the other student efforts," said Harry Green, vice president of the VCU. "We should like the people on the campus to know that all the students from every college are invited to our Frolic."

Turtle Race

At Trinity, it has been announced that there will be a turtle race in the hall today with bets being taken on the winner, while St. Mike's is planning a tea dance on Tuesday night next week.

Both the Faculty of Music, and SPS have already done their part in the fund drive. At the Varsity-McGill game on Saturday the boys from "Skule" produced and directed a chicken-rooster free-for-all on the grid-iron. The more sedate music group sponsored a very profitable Symphony concert in Convocation Hall.

On Friday morning, there will be taggers stationed at strategic points over the entire campus, who will charm prospective customers into buying red feathers.

"The support that we have received from all the colleges and faculties in response to our appeal has been very gratifying," said Jane Hazard, chairman of the campus Red Feather Committee.

Hamlet Problem Play Says English Expert

Hamlet is a problem play rather than a tragedy, was the contention of Professor Eustace Mandeville Wettanhall Tillyard, expressed at the opening of the Alexander Lectures on Monday. Professor Tillyard, Master of Jesus College, Cambridge, since 1945, and a lecturer there since 1926, will also speak on Troilus and Cressida, Love's Labor Lost and Measure for Measure.

Not only an expert on Shakespeare, Prof. Tillyard has written books on Milton, Lamb and Wyatt, and has collaborated with C. S. Lewis.

The C.C.F. Party

This editorial attempts to give no specific points in the C.C.F. programme, rather it attempts to state some of the ideas behind these points.

The Cooperative Commonwealth Federation is composed of people who, like the present Prime Minister, believe that "the struggle to defend and extend freedom never ends." These people believe that Canadians not only must hold to their political democracy but must also extend democracy to include the economic aspect of modern life.

As the name of their party implies, the members of the C.C.F. believe that economic democracy will be realized through co-operation; co-operation which is to be exercised in the collective ownership of some of the means of production, distribution and consumption.

The specific areas which would be affected if the C.C.F. took office at the present time are listed in the C.C.F. first-term program which can be found elsewhere. It must be remembered that the C.C.F. presents no dogmatic blueprint which the members believe is valid for all time. At each C.C.F. convention, in the light of conditions present at the time, the members revise their program to fit the needs of our country or province. As conventions are held every year (provincial) or two years (national), this program is revised frequently.

Co-operative, or social, ownership of the means of consumption consists of action in the field of social security which is accepted too widely today to need consideration in this short space.

Social ownership of some of the means of production and distribution is the second field of co-operation desired by C.C.F. members. This social ownership includes producers', consumers' and joint co-operative societies as well as municipal, provincial and national ownership of various enterprises.

The C.C.F. National Convention held in Winnipeg this summer stated that, "It cannot be too often emphasized that the C.C.F. regards socialization of industry as a means to an end and not an end in itself. It believes in social ownership and economic planning because only through such policies can we lay the basis in Canada for a much greater freedom and security for the individual and his family than exist today."

But "Freedom" is a very abstract word. It brings up the question "Freedom to do what?" or "Freedom from what?" The answer to the first is that C.C.F. members believe that Canadians should be free to control their own economic activity and destiny. They believe with Thomas Jefferson that, "Every man and every body of men on earth, possess the right of self-government. They receive it with their being from the hand of nature. Individuals exercise it by their single will; collections of men by that of their majority; for the law of the majority is the natural law of every society of men".

This self-government—rule of the majority—is what the members of the C.C.F. advocate today in our economic life, they call for recognition in the economic field of a principle long upheld in the political field.

To view the question from another angle—freedom from what? Freedom from the tyranny of the business cycle—depression and inflation; freedom from what Mr. Wendell Berge, former Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, has called the private government of monopolists and cartels.

Put in a nutshell, C.C.F. members express an attitude epitomized by Mr. J. S. Woodsworth: "What we desire for ourselves we wish for all."

Hell Let Loose All A Mistake

Pandemonium reigned for half an hour at last Saturday's regular intercollegiate fixture when it was announced that three of the University of Toronto Blues would not be dressed for the game.

Cries of "Shocking" and "Shame" were heard from the stands and several freshies passed out.

When the announcer enumerated the players who would not be dressed, several elderly fans, apparently of the opinion that this was going too far, got up and left the stadium.

Mixed approval came from the students' section. Looks of disapproval were seen on many faces, but bawdier elements, pleased at the thought that they would be first to see such an innovation as this, shouted "Yea School," and, "Give us Lady Godiva."

(It was rumored before the game that Coach Bob Masterbun of the Blues would take this way out as a means of beating a rugby union ruling that a team could only dress twenty-four players per game. Few thought that he would go through with it.)

A temporary hush fell over the stadium when the Blues began filing out onto the field. Co-eds hid their heads in their hands.

Slowly the suspense mounted. As the twentieth Blue trotted out an elderly gentleman rose in the covered stands and screamed, "Stop! Stop! Don't do it, Masterbun! We can change the rules." (The gentleman was recognized as a high official in the Canadian Rugby Football Union.)

Grimly watching his charges trot onto the sward, Masterbun was unperturbed by the havoc he was causing. As the twenty-third Blue came out of the dressing-room six students cracked under the strain and raced from the stadium, gibbering like idiots.

NFCUS Union Is Necessary States Wilkes

The National Federation of Canadian University Students should join the International Union of Students "in an active expression of our democratic principles," George Wilkes, Chairman of the Toronto Committee of NFCUS, said yesterday. Wilkes was commenting on a recommendation expressed Tuesday by Grant Livingstone, Chairman of the Canadian delegation sent to Paris last summer by NFCUS to seek affiliation between NFCUS and IUS.

Livingstone's recommendation that he thought "we should join IUS in the role of opposition to Communist influence, based on the principles of our democracy," was given in an open meeting on the campus Tuesday.

Wilkes stressed that his was a personal point of view and did not represent the opinion of the SAC or the Toronto NFCUS Committee. "At present I agree with the statement that we should join IUS. The second part of the statement is axiomatic, and as a firm believer in our system of democracy, I endorse it," he said.

"The most important part of Mr. Livingstone's recommendation lies, in my opinion, in the statement that we should join the IUS in the role of opposition'," stated Wilkes. "In my opinion this is a recommendation for future tactics of the NFCUS delegation to the IUS. Before making a final decision on this point I feel it is necessary to consult the reports of the other members of our delegation to Paris, Robert Ramboush and Clifford Smith, when these reports arrive in the hands of the NFCUS executive."

Wilkes said he felt this was the only fair method, "as at present only Mr. Livingstone's views and those of certain observers to the Council meeting have been heard."

International Co-operation Needed

Commenting further on this part of the recommendation Wilkes said: "I feel, as I believe Mr. Livingstone does, that we must join the IUS in a genuine spirit of co-operation, to offer to do our part in serving students on the international level. It is obvious that Canadian students cannot sit outside of international student affairs in these active times. If this co-operation is frustrated by partisan political activities by members of IUS this must be opposed."

"Canadian students cannot shirk the responsibility of joining IUS and the signing of its constitution. At present there is no alternative organization to IUS or the hope of successfully forming one. We have not yet tried to restore IUS to non-partisan action by its Executive and Council. Until that has been done I support the view that we join IUS."

Gesundheit!

The "sniffling student" (David Donaldson) in "The Linden Tree" opening at Hart House Monday, Nov. 8, practises a sneeze while Dorothy Bolton watches. These first year students are appearing in the Canadian premiere of J. B. Priestley's play being produced by the Trinity College Dramatic Society.

Longer Plays For Contest Project of Drama League

Members of the Intervarsity Drama League, at their annual conference at Queen's last week, planned a change to three-act plays in the league's future drama contests.

This was one of several decisions made by the representatives at the conference, during which plans were laid for this year's program, for a constitution revision and for publication of the bulletin by all the member colleges. J. Hamelin, St. Mike's, representative at the conference, said.

The competing college drama groups will present their plays at their home theatres. Robertson Davies was chosen as travelling adjudicator of the student productions.

The professional nature of plays at Hart House was the reason given by Toronto reps Jim Hamelin, II St. Mike's, and Jane McNally, III St. Mike's for Toronto not taking part in this year's competition.

The delegates decided to ask N. F. C.U.S. for a trophy for the winning drama group. Last year's prize was donated by the London Free Press.

To keep the member colleges in touch with each other's dramatic happenings, it was decided to publish a monthly bulletin. Toronto, Queen's, McMaster, OAC, Bishop's, MacDonald, Carleton and Loyola Colleges will send news to Western, where it will be edited, and then sent out as a composite news bulletin.

The O.A.C. delegation was chosen to head a committee to revise the league's constitution. Elaine Costello and Bill Holden, both from Western, were elected president and secretary, respectively. Charles Lovett, Loyola, and Jim Hamelin, S.M.C., were named chairmen of the eastern and western sections of the league.

Recommend Union Of U.C. Societies In Stormy Debate

A recommendation that the question of amalgamation of the UC Lit and the WUA be placed before the UC student body in the form of a plebiscite, was made at a joint meeting of the two organizations last night. The debate resolving "that amalgamation of the UC Lit and the WUA would be beneficial to UC" was passed by a vote of 47 to 12.

Student Life Hampered

Ben Shek, III Pol Sc, speaking first for the affirmative, said various forces in the University tend to separate the sexes into two groups. He mentioned Hart House being only for men and the absence of a joint centre, which hampered colorful student life. By amalgamation of these organizations this split could be remedied.

The first speaker for the negative, Barbara McLaurin, IV Classics claimed the interests of the two bodies were not necessarily the same. In addition, she said that the men in UC outnumber the women two to one, and any organization such as the one proposed would not allow the women any voice.

Greater Interest

Rosemary Duff, III Pass, second affirmative speaker, said "I think amalgamation would bring forth greater interest in student government." She said that the duplication of the two complete executives was wasteful and increased efficiency could be gained from amalgamation.

The last speaker, Al Noble, IV Pol. Sci., claimed the interests of the two groups were dissimilar and that amalgamation should be postponed because of high enrollment.

Stormy speeches from the floor followed the debate. Generally the members were in favor of amalgamation but the point was raised by Gary Clarke, III Classics, as to how amalgamation could be practically accomplished. It was not the principles, but the details which were important. Hal Rosenthal, IV General, made the motion that the resolution as voted on be placed before the UC student body in the form of a plebiscite.

Diverse Cultures Deserve Respect Warden Maintains

The principle of development of respect for the contributions of various national cultures in the Canadian way of life was expressed as the ideal in the problem of assimilation by Warden Ignatieff, in an address to the first meeting of the Nisei Club at Wymilwood last night.

"This viewpoint seems the most realistic pattern, although the more complicated of two philosophies of assimilation," the Warden said. "It adheres to the idea that all cultures have unique features which other nationalities might profit by."

"The other philosophy involves the idea that all men are brothers and the faster and the more completely differences are eliminated, the better," he stated.

The Warden's status of a new Canadian of Russian birth, led him to choose this topic for his talk to the club. Even as a child he was faced with the problem of conflicting ideals, his parents being anti-revolutionary and a respected tutor advocating revolution. After coming to Canada, he found this same problem among new Canadians in Northern Ontario mining camps. This stimulated his desire to understand this problem, and search for truth.

Warden Ignatieff's talk opened a discussion on this subject. He encouraged the NISEI students to express their viewpoints on assimilation in the Canadian way of life. The Canadian ideal as described by one Nisei student comprises the best contributions of all the nationalities represented. The melting-pot should form a unit of Canadian life. The first step in achieving the ideal must be the acceptance and respect of each race involved. Each national group must contribute as equals.

Trinity Players Plan "Linden Tree" Premiere

Rehearsals for the Canadian premiere performance of J. B. Priestley's "The Linden Tree" are moving ahead at Trinity College under the direction of Mrs. Dora Mavor Moore, founder of the New Play Society and director, in the past, of many University productions.

"The Linden Tree", a new play so far as Canada is concerned, opened last season in London and has had several New York performances. In the London cast were Dame Sybil Thorndike, etc. Trinity's cast includes student actors from many parts of the world. Bob Glen, who plays Professor Linden, is from Rio de Janiero, and two other members of the cast, Dorothy Boulton and David Donaldson are from England and South Africa, respectively.

Campus Courses

Eager Hearts And Hands Demanded Of OT's

Human nature being what it is, co-eds in every course at the U. of T. seem to fall into the more or less typical category of smart, chic, dull and positively repulsive.

If this is true and observation seems to back up this statement, why are all the girls in Occupational Therapy so all-around and popular? (Two thirds of second year are engaged!) The answer seems to lie in the very essence of the career itself for which the girls in "O.T." are being prepared.

Aiding a mind to regain its self-confidence, helping to repair broken dreams as well as broken limbs —who can see a biase or selfish girl engaged in this type of career? The graduate and undergraduate O.T.'s job is to go in and take over where the medical men and women have left off. The workman whose crushed hand has been successfully operated upon is put in the hands of the occupational therapist.

With her background knowledge of human anatomy, psychology, pathology, psychiatry and twenty manual skills, the O.T. brings this man through weeks, months of training to the point where he can go out into the world secure in the knowledge that he can get the utmost performance from this mutilated hand, and with the courage and confidence to live a full life with this handicap.

The patient assigned to the O.T. may be a crippled or arthritic child who feels himself "different" from his pals, a tuberculosis victim whose morale must be constantly kept up, or a middle-aged woman whose worries and heartache have shaken her mental stability.

If a girl is not "the right type" as one sophomore O.T. put it, she just can't do this kind of "crucial work". Where one thoughtless word, or incorrect diagnosis can mean the failure of a human's physical and mental readjustment to life, a girl lacking the qualities of meticulousness, resourcefulness, kindness and a sincere interest in people, can not possibly qualify.

To work successfully in the reconstruction work of human minds and bodies, a genuine understanding is needed. Interest in people not sympathy is one of the prime requisite you will be gravely told by one blonde O.T. student.

These warm-hearted, conscientious girls go into "the field" at the end of their first year. They intern for two months in mental or general hospitals between the first and second years and then between second and third.

A choice of internship is given at a D.V.A. hospital, a children's hospital, or a T.B. sanitorium, three times a week for a period of three months during the second and third years.

Each girl's progress and attitude is reported upon and criticized at each place of internship by a head O.T. and the girls find the suggestions invaluable.

Swedish weaving, oil painting, Turkish and Persian rug work, wood carving, metal work and gardening are a few of the twenty manual skills that the girls combine with such knowledge as Kinesiology, Child Psychology and Psychiatry. There is a tale behind the words of the Occupational Therapy Calender on the Psychiatry Course: "A series of lectures and demonstrations in psychopathology, portraying the course of mental defect and mental disease through slight deviations from the "normal" to outspoken psychotic states."

The tale behind these words is one that every O.T. will write herself. It is a tale of patience and genuine understanding. It is the monotonous story of explaining to a girl at nine what you explained to her at noon. There will be chapters of careful watching, noting, analyzing and a special paragraph at the end on the pricelessness of cheerfulness and perseverence.

No matter what she is doing, an occupational therapist soon finds how much her patients rely on her personality for the confidence they need. Her standards of cheerfulness and even good nature must never waver. These people need her and continually draw on her resource of vigor and her bright outlook.

It's not easy work—if you're not the right type of person. When emotional stability and complete balance of personality are the most important characteristics demanded of an O.T., who will not believe that these girls comprise one of the most popular, loveable, and most engaged portions of the female population on the U. of T. campus?

Youth and the Modern World

It is a platitude, of course, to declare that the world is in a very serious state of upheaval. This has been its state for almost as many years as we can remember. It has become the accepted background to our lives. It is also a platitude to say that the only thing which can save the world at this time is a return to Christ and the Christian religion. But, although this is widely affirmed in Christian circles, no one seems to do anything much about it. While Communism is one of the most advertised and vociferous movements in the modern world, with its incessant use of propaganda and proselytism, the Christian religion seems to have little to say for the salvation of the world, and even fewer people to voice its message. The reason for this state of affairs is not that there are fewer Christians today than at any other period in the world's history, but rather that there are not many Christians who know why they are the servants of Jesus Christ, or who can give any adequate explanation of the faith by which they live.

For they have never been taught the true significance of the life and teaching of the Crucified Lord. To many of our young people Christianity seems to have no message at all. Perhaps they have never gone regularly to church or to Sunday School; perhaps they have gone but have failed to learn anything. But it comes to the same thing in the end,—they have grown up without any knowledge or experience of Jesus Christ. Our modern system of education leaves out religion, and the consequence is that the youth of today, who have no religion, are only half-educated. The whole realm of the spiritual, with its joys and its trials, its depths and its heights, is a closed book to them. They must learn to know Jesus Christ, not only as a great figure in history, but as an even greater figure, who is alive and working in the world today, who is vitally concerned with the present situation, and who is seeking to find some trustworthy servants today to speak for Him, and to lead us all through our troubles according to His divine purpose.

eds fainted when the twenty-fourth made his appearance.

The awful tension was broken a moment later by the booming of the loud speaker. "The players it was reported would not be dressed for the game," the announcer said, "will not be playing."

The sigh of relief could be heard at Ajax.

Book Review

Where Poetry Stands Now

The basic problem facing any individual in any age is the relation of that indicidual to the Society in which he finds himself. When the individual happens to be a poet, his solution to this problem gravely affects his poetry. This, briefly, is the theme of Henry W. Wells' philosophical-critical essay, Where Poetry Stands Now (Ryerson Press; $2.25). If, thinks Wells, there is no integration of the poet with society so that he speaks for society through himself, then that poet's work will automatically fall into one of two categories: "personalism," which is "egocentric" and "esoteric," or "impersonalism" which is "banal" and "commonplace." Wells admits that this approach is not the only touchstone to the evaluation of poetry, but he thinks that the conclusions drawn from such an approach are valuable.

The application of this critical method to American poetry during the last hundred years yields some interesting results. Such poets as Amy Lowell, Emily Dickinson, Ezra Pound, and Kenneth Patchen fall under the limiting shadow of personalism; others, like Whitman, Sandburg MacLeish, are classified under the opposite extreme of impersonalism. Poets who are "moving to re-integration," whose work tries "to close the gap between . . . the soul and society," include Melville, Hart Crane, and E. E. Cummings. In his last chapter, Wells attempts to put his finger on the thing necessary for the individual's re-integration with society. It is what he calls "humanism," "faith in humanity," which will "put an end to the crude socialism of the early verse of Sandburg (and) the stupid frustrations and barren metaphysics of T. S. Eliot."

The above quotation perhaps indictates the chief defect in Wells' critical approach. It permits only a narrow view of poetry, a view narrower than Wells can see since he is so close to his method. It is, however, a different approach and as such, is a worthwhile contribution to criticism. But the view of poetry which it encompasses is not large enough to make such sweeping condemnations as the quotation indicates. A prerequisite in the appreciation of poetry is the establishment of a harmony between poet and reader by means of a passive receptivity on the part of the reader; Wells' method might be said to entail an active receptivity which puts two strikes on the poet before you begin reading him. After a harmony has been established, judgments which would have been harshly dogmatic become considerably more lenient. The method followed in Where Poetry Stands Now reveals some truths, but it is too inflexible when applied to specific writers to arrive at whole truths.

—Kenneth Kee.

St. Mike's 'A' Wallop Ajax Gridders 19-6

Washington Majors Twice As Irish Stay Undefeated

By JOHN KENNEDY

St. Mike's A rugby team continued their winning ways last night drubbing Ajax 19-6 for their fourth straight win. Fumbles largely accounted for Ajax's rather inept showing. Bill Kelly started things going for the Double Blue in the first quarter with a fifty yard hoist that rolled out of touch on the Skule goal-line.

The Collegians showed their power afoot in the second canto on sterling jaunts by McIntyre, Brown and Washington that took them to the Ajax five. Gerry Washington hit pay dirt from here with Eddie Brennan converting, ending the half at 7-0.

In the third quarter the Saints recovered a fumble on the Ajax 30 and rolled from there for their second major. Washington snared his second TD after sparkling runs by McIntyre, Coghlan and James. Good blocking was supplied on this play by Popp and Macdonald. Eddie Brennan again got the extra point but this time ran it after the snap-out was bobbled. Skule again made a critical misplay on an attempted kick when they fumbled into the eager arms of Ron Macdonald who scampered 30 yards for St. Mike's third touchdown. Eddie Brennan hoofed his third convert to end the Blue-men's scoring.

Ajax made their only score in the last quarter on a rapidly darkening field. Valenti intercepted a St. Mike's pass deep in his own end and bulled his way 40 yards to the Saint's 35. On the next play he threw a lovely pass to Crandall who went over standing up. Macdonald's convert attempt was good. That was the game except for a brief flare up of temper as time ran out. Dick Brown, Eddie Brennan, Lorne McIntyre and Gerry Washington sparkled for the Saints while Valenti, Mollenhauer and Whyte played well in a losing cause for the Skule-men.

Ski Clubbers Prepare Trails At Newmarket

Another meeting of the Varsity Ski Club was held Wednesday and already people are thinking about trails, ski jumps, reservations, waxes, ski boots, skiis and even snow.

Jim Wait, a member of the club, showed a variety of colored pictures, taken on his ski trips to Mt. Washington in New Hampshire, Mt. Mansfield in Vermont, Mt. Tremblant, St. Sauveur, Piedmont in Quebec and Collingwood and North Bay in Ontario.

There is a lot of work to be done on the trails at Newmarket, where the ski grounds are, and Jules La Prairie, president of the club, urged the Faculty Representatives to get volunteers for the job of "brushing", before the snow comes.

Arrangements are being made for a house in Collingwood that will hold about 50 people. It is hoped that week-end excursions can be made throughout the season.

Men, interested in trying out for the Intercollegiate Team, are only eligible if they put in at least one Sunday's work at Collingwood on the jump being constructed. Jules La Prairie is in charge of this.

Junior B Hockey Begin Practise

The Varsity Junior Bees, edition of '48 held their first practise last night at Varsity Arena. Coach Bill Wade was on hand to welcome over sixty hopefuls including several members of last year's squad.

Back from last year are Porky McDougall, Pat Duffy, Rich Howson and Harry Hyde among others. The team drilled for two hours bringing to light a considerable amount of talent both new and old.

Phil Stone Edits New Sports Mag 'Weekly Sports'

By HANK WESTCOTT
Sports Editor

If you want to know the origin of the term "hat trick," or find out about such hockey stars as Toe Blake or Frank Mathers, or pick up some inside Varsity sports gossip, the new Weekly Sports Page is your meat.

In only its second week of publication by Phil Stone, former editor of Canadian Sports Digest, the new book is already creating some commotion among the local sportive fraternity. The first couple of issues have dealt mostly with hockey—players, trade tattle, and news items—all the way from THL to the NHL. But given a prominent play is "Varsity Views" by George MacFarlane, who also writes Speaking of Sport for The Varsity.

Each week, the magazine carries feature articles on top names in the hockey world (last week it was Ted Lindsay, Toe Blake, and Frank Mathers) as well as columns devoted to one or another of the many puck leagues on the continent. But the whole thing has an Ontario slant that makes it readable even if your own interest in hockey never progressed past the shinny stage.

Beside Varsity Views, perhaps the most salable column for Toronto fans is the "Life with the Leafs" by Globe and Mail hockey writer Jim Vipond, who spends most of his waking hours with the hockey Leafs from October to April.

All is not hockey however in the newest Toronto magazine enterprise. Phil Stone adds a two-page tit-bit column that ranges through everything but the long-neglected tiddly winks.

Samples:

"Puddinhead Jones, former Toronto third baseman, who moved up to the Philadelphia Phillies at the end of the season, batted .357 with the National Leaguers to virtually assure himself of a permanent spot up there.

"Boston's plans to have Milt Schmidt on the defence this season appear to have been postponed. Dit Clapper says he was unable to find anyone among his playing staff to replace Schmidt. So Ed Kryzanowski, ex-U of T defenceman, is getting a tryout with this team instead of being sent down for the season as originally planned."

The Weekly Sports Page is available only on newsstands at 15 cents per copy.

UC Drop Meds With 2-1 Win

U. C. had their second soccer victory yesterday afternoon in a 2-1 game against Meds.

The play was characterized by heated spirit more than anything else, but since both teams were more or less equal in their paucity the play was evenly distributed between both halves of the field most of the time and only one goal was scored in the first half, by Hilliard for Meds.

The first U. C. goal was a hotly-protested affair. Meds goalie Ross fumbled the ball and the next thing he knew he was ingloriously sprawled on the ground wrong side of the goal post. Meds were quite taken aback by the speed with which it happened and argued the point with referee Bill Babcock to no purpose.

During the course of play one of the Meds players had to be sent off the field for illegal arguing with the referee. He tried to come on to play in a plain white jersey and when sent off to put on a regulation college jersey he protested too much and in the wrong way. This was the first time that a player has had to be sent off in an interfaculty soccer game so far this year. With the similarity between the red and white and the black, red and white of the two opposing teams any fault in uniform made an already difficult refereeing task beyond the scope of one man.

It is to be hoped that the spirit (bad) of intramural soccer will not rise any higher and that if it does, offenders and disputes will be dealt with as strongly and firmly as they were by senior manager Bill Babcock in the trying position of referee.

Blues To Win Yates Cup Opine Athletic Heads

By EDWARD J. SOKOLOWSKI

The time is nearing when there will be much talk and chance taking with regard to the Senior Intercollegiate Rugby championship and the winning of the Yates Cup. The Western Mustangs are the holders of the cup at present and have been since 1939. According to various University of Toronto men, the Mustangs have come to the end of their hold on the Yates Cup.

Mac McCutcheon, Supervisor of Intramural Athletics, remarks: "Although I'm not a football expert, I think that the Varsity team has a better than an even chance of winning the championship. I base my opinion on the tremendous response the players have shown to the coaches, Bob Masterson, Jim Follwell, and Frank Williams. There is plenty of fight in the team and the players and coaches deserve praise for their excellent record."

"The Queen's game," continued Mr. McCutcheon, "will be an important one. We have to win that or else we're out altogether."

Warren Stevens, Director of Athletics, says: "Yes, we'll win, but I'll have to have odds. In winning the Intercollegiate championship we will have to win the next three games and that's winning five consecutive games. The team is in fine shape, but the Western Mustangs haven't been beaten in five years and I think the odds should be about 2 or 3 to 1."

Bob Masterson isn't making any statements with regard to the championship as, he says, "I'm at the moment worrying about the game this Saturday. We only take care of one game at a time and Queen's comes up next. We'll worry about taking this game, and then the next and next, (I hope)."

The set-up for the Blues chances of winning is that they must win the next two games in the schedule before they can force a playoff with the top team which natcherly is Western. The playoff will be a single sudden-death game.

Bill Bell, manager of the Senior Blues, is also confident that the team will win. The reason for making this statement is: "The players are on to Masterson's coaching and plays and they have them down near perfect as was seen at the two games with McGill. It will be a battle with Queen's this Saturday, and if the team plays as well as they did against McGill, we'll have no worries."

In answer to the question, "Will the Varsity Blues win the Intercollegiate title?" Frank Williams, assistant coach, says: "Sure". For the question Why? Frank says, "We've got the team and that's all it takes to win the title."

Jim Follwell, assistant coach, has no definite statement and all he says is, "I hope we'll win."

Pat Sheehan, assistant to the Ajax Athletic Director, remarks: "Queen's will be the team to beat. If they win that game they will have no trouble from then on."

I.M., Vic Ills Win In Boxla S.M.C. Lose

Vic seconds and Institutional Management were victorious in boxla battles at Hart House gym yesterday. Vic topped the St. Mike's seconds while Institutional Management smothered Wycliffe College by scores of 6-2 and 6-1 respectively.

In the first encounter Vic showed too much experience for the Mikemen. The scarlet and gold scored two markers to start the second stanza with a two goal lead which they broadened in the third period adding three goals to one for the double blue. Both squads tallied once in the last period.

Ault and Murray of Vic netted two apiece while Drewitt and G. Maynes contributed singletons. For St. Mike's Sabadasz notched a single in the third quarter as did McBride in the final canto.

Institutional Management showed lots of power and drive as they took a decisive victory from Wycliffe College. Bill Stewart was the big stick for the Managers with three goals to his credit while Bill Moore and John Hill netted one each. Wycliffe's lone marker was garnered by George Baker.

Speaking OF SPORT

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

Good news for the Blues. Latest report from the horse's mouth (nothing personal intended, Ian) is that Blue captain Ian Clark will be back in action before the season is over.

"Lover" ran into a shoulder injury in that fateful game against Queen's, and earlier medical reports had him sidelined for the rest of the season. Now it appears that the shoulder has responded well, and that Ian may have a chance to let his nails start growing again.

Queen's seems to be the jinx club of the league as far as injuries are concerned. In the game here against the Blues, the Gaels managed to sideline Wally London as well as Clark. And against Western those mean old Queensmen permanently benched Bob McFarlane and Bob Farley, besides slowing down Don McFarlane.

Here's another gem from the files:

The Giants had a line-crashing fullback who was heavy on brawn, but light in the brain department. One day, the Giants had the ball on the opponents' 20-yard line. The big fullback went crashing to the five-yard stripe. But there was a horn on the play and the Giants were penalized. Again, the fullback rammed through for a long gain. But again there was a horn and the Giants were penalized.

Just then the quarter ended. The referee picked up the ball, walked the length of the field and placed it on the two-yard line at the other end. As he did so, the fullback walked up to him and asked: "Hey, Ref, what was that penalty for?"

More About Athie

(N.B.—The characters in this are not fictitious and any resemblance to persons either living or dead is purely intentional.)

A coed dashes along the sidewalk outside the library and shouts,—

"Hey, Athie! Are you playing basketball tonight?"

"Oh, hi, Marg. Sure I'm playing."

"What are you doing for supper then?"

"It's a cinch I'm not going all the way home. Why? Where are you going to eat, Marg?"

"I dunno."

(Short, quiet silence!)

"Golly, Marg, don't you wish we could use Hart House?"

"What are you talking about now? Are you planning to eat at Hart House tonight?"

"Don't be crazy. I was just thinking what a soft time the men have while the 'weaker' sex gets all the rough deals. Did you know that any undergrad, male of course, can walk into Hart House and get a full meal with soup, dessert, beverage and the works for only 45 cents? Then, if he's playing lacrosse that night he just walks down the corridor, up a few stairs and he's there."

"Honestly?"

"Yah, no guff."

"You mean the men do that while we get soaked for pork and beans at Mac's or somewhere and then walk up to OCE at Bloor and Spadina through the black of night."

"- - - I gotta be where you are. CHLOOOEEE."

You're a positive scream, Athie, but I still can't get over what a soft deal the men get. Boy, when they start drawing up plans for that studnt union I'm going to be sure they include somewhere we can eat at night besides a couple of gyms for us in the same building — Oh-my-gosh, it's almost ten after, I CAN'T skip English again. 'Bye Athie, see you tonight!"

But Marg was already two bounds up the UC steps.

Softball

Vic I edged St. Mike's 4-2 in a very close game yesterday. It was 2-1 for the Double Blues at the end of the second but Vic came out on top with the aid of homers from Jean Myers and Anna Staples. Both outfields were on their toes for Barb Weatherhead, Vic, stopped three high flies and Laurie Bureau, St. Mike's, a hard slam of Vic's. St. Mike's hurler, Betty Jane Fraser, put her balls solidly across home plate.

In the opposite corner PHE I trounced PHE II 19-0. The losers' outfield was very weak while the winners displyaed a tight infield, hustling the oppositions' hits over to first for close outs. Marg Doyle pitched a good game while Gwen Smith showed up well behind the plate as well as at bat.

Basketball

U.C. Juniors potted basket after basket last night to down Vic Seniors B 39-6. The way U.C. forwards passed the ball to a teammate under the basket, who would pop it in, defeated the fighting efforts of the Vic guards. Eleanor Lever tallied 14 of the U.C. points and Carol Dunn got 16, while the U.C. guards, centred by Kay Hollis, kept the Vic attackers from getting in to shoot.

U.C. Freshies A defeated Vic Freshies A 21-9. At first the game was very close, Vic leading 6-4 at half-time, but in the last quarter the U.C. shooting improved and they pulled away to win. Pat Macdonald played a fast intercepting game for U.C., chalking up 10 points for U. C. while her guard teammates, sparked by Ann Gostling, kept the opposing forwards in a muddle. Dorothy Aitken scored six of Vic's points.

Physio A's snarpshooting gave them a big lead in the first quarter which they kept throughout for a 27-12 win over OT. The Physio forward line of Jean Cossar, Betty Powell and Phyl Wilks, were a strong, fast combination, piling up 21 points. Fast Kay McGill starred for OT, adding up seven of their points.

Three staunch Trinity men cheered on St. Hilda's Fr. to a 27-11 victory over PHE I. Saint's Jane Rogers displayed wonderful shooting, earning 16 points for her team.

The quick interception of her teammate Sally McConnell spiked the Saint's defence, while June Davidson starred on the Fizz Ed guard line.

Francois

Playing at Eaton Auditorium, Mr. Samson Francois quickly dispelled any suspicions of freakishness which may have preceded him through publicity stressing an unusually ornate hairdress. He commenced his program with two long Bach works, Chromatic Fantasy and Fuge and Prelude and Fuge in A minor, transcribed from the organ by Liszt. The former, example of a relatively formless medium for the classical composer, became in Mr. Francois' hands a panorama of brilliance, gentleness, pomposity and timidity. In the latter the artist gave the prelude with variations in volume and tone, similar to that expected from the registration and the shifting of manuals of the organist.

The Appassionata was not quite as successful; its romantic extravagances are a temptation to any pianist; Mr. F. succumbed. The final movement was played far too quickly.

Debussy's Hommage a Rambeau was graceful and dignified and his "Masques" provided the artist with an opportunity to unleash his phenomenal technique, sometimes to the point of boisterousness. The Chopin "Ballad No. 1 in G-minor" was a highly imaginative tale as revealed by the artist but the progression from highlight to highlight was often rough and the effect melodramatic. Technically, the tour de force was "Scherzo No. 2 in B flat minor", an exhausting task physically and spiritually, for the description "Scherzo" belies its widely contrasted moods. The rendition was brilliant in the extreme with never a loss of clarity.

On the whole, Mr. Francois' approach to his music was youthful but never immature. There seemed to be an inexhaustible supply of energy and high spirits combined with a gentleness and warmth that was almost feminine.

R. Harden

Percy Tacon

The Percy Tacon abstracts now in Hart House Art Gallery form one of the most curious exhibitions that I have ever seen. Curious because the painter has produced compositions of such different qualities. In some cases Tacon rides high taking the viewer with him; in others both painter and viewer come down with a thud. It is an exciting show.

In his oils Tacon lets loose a flood of colour which he rarely lets get out of control. Tacon's colour is usually pleasing and often quite weird, as in "Congo No. 2." in composition generally his oils are much superior to his attempts in other media, for here the results are apt to be tight and thin. In such pictures as "Blue Line" and "Textural" Tacon forsakes the verve and force that make his oils so attractive, for a close, niggling attack on his subject. The result is unpleasant.

The great proportion of Tacon's pictures causes astonishment but little else. When the question is asked what is the emotion behind them, the answere must be there is none, or none that is evident. In "Flying High" and "Twisting and Turning" Tacon manages to get through to the viewer, but in most of the other compositions whatever he saw or felt is lost in the medium.

I hope that the Art Committee will arrange to bring Tacon back for another exhibit. I found this one very stimulating and I also got the impressiion that Tacon was trying to tell me something, but what it was I don't know.

Feather Fair Today Noon Hour

Pro Wrestlers Will Highlight Big Tug-of-War

The weather has definitely promised to be good, all the local volcanoes are extinct, and the fire department will ward off any conflagration that threatens the "Red Feather Fair" opening at noon today on the front campus.

The Blue and White Band will be on hand, and their performance will make up for the lack of loudspeakers which are ruled out by the Caput.

To the music of the band, President Sidney Smith, Miss Red Feather, and "Whipper" Billy Watson will be escorted to the stands for the official opening. In the parade will be a number of old jalopies, including one of the finalists in the recent jalopy contest, the property of Bob Watson of Vic.

The president will introduce Miss Red Feather, and, when the cheering has died down Mr. D'arcy Leonard, the President of the Community Chest, will speak briefly to the students.

Highlight of the fair will be a tug-of-war between a picked team from PHE and the boys from "Skule". The anchor men for the teams will be "Whipper" Billy Watson, and his wrestling foe, Pat Flannigan. In the side-lines, the Blue and White girls will be taking bets on the outcome of the contest.

In competition with Hart House tuck shop, will be the Red Feather booths, where students will be able to purchase box-lunches, cokes, candy-floss, taffy apples, cider, and hot dogs.

Stationed about the campus, pretty taggers will offer their red feathers for sale during the day.

Aside from the well-stocked food booths, there will be gambling tables operated in the best monte carlo style by Trinity students. St. Michael's students are sponsoring a penny toss and a nail hammering contest, while the Physio Therapy group have devised an electric wishing well. The UC students have found a mystic from the Far East in their ranks who has consented to use the occult powers for the purpose of telling fortunes.

Taggers were sent to Ajax yesterday and returned with $105.77 to further swell the contributions from the University. At the Trinity "turtle race" yesterday, many of the people holding winning tickets refused to collect their wagers, so that Trinity was able to report a substantial profit.

"We hope that this year's effort will put us well ahead of the $10,000.00 record of last year," said Jane Hazard, Chairman of the Campus Red Feather Committee.

BLUES VOW VENGEANCE GAELS SET TO REPEAT

Student Poll On Free Love Ends in Draw

"Love without marriage is more moral than marriage without love", was upheld by the judges in a St. Hilda's debate on Tuesday but received a 50-50 split judgement in a student poll conducted yesterday by The Varsity. Students were asked if they agreed with the judges in upholding the motion.

An even number of women and men students were polled and results showed that opinion was divided according to sex.

Without exception all the women students questioned said free love was not to be condoned under any circumstances. Every man questioned said "it is a good thing." One girl said "I would prefer marriage without love to love without marriage but I would rather not be married at all than to be married without love." Doris Robins (O.T.) thought the whole thing was a silly idea. Others' opinions were "I think the judges misjudged", "In our society it would be impossible to introduce free love", "I think free love should be as expensive as possible".

The opinion of the men questioned favored the judges' decision. Ron Cameron, II Pass Vic, "I would like to meet the judges. They seem like very discerning people". Sure", another said, "I'll take the love, you keep the marriage".

Galloping Poll results:

"Do you agree that love without marriage is more moral than marriage without love?"

Yes	50%
No	50%
No opinion	0%

Dr. Gallopping stated that the results of this poll indicate that the morals of the country would remain at status quo—more or less.

Dean Johnson

Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, who has been been prevented by a crowded Toronto itinerary from making an address originally planned for Hart House today. Dr. Johnson has just returned from a six-month visit to Russia and Eastern European countries.

Canterbury Dean Cancels Speech Return Doubtful

The Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, has cancelled his address scheduled for 1 p. m. today at Hart House. The Dean, who arrived at Malton airport and journeyed by car to Hamilton to keep an engagement there, stated he could not make "extra appearances" and that owing to a delay at a fog bound London airport, he would only have time for "those originally scheduled".

Members of the Toronto Peace Council who are in charge of the Dean's Toronto itinerary said his tour had been planned on a rigid time schedule and that the tentatively arranged address at the University would have to be cancelled.

"We hope that the Dean may be able to address the undergraduates body on his way back next week," said Frank Rebick, vice-president of the U. of T. Humanist Club which was to have sponsored the appearance of Dr. Johnson on the campus. Rebick added, however, that he was "not at all sure" of this. "I doubt it very much," he said.

Invitations have been received by Dr. Johnson, often referred to as the "Red Dean of Canterbury", to address students at the Universities of Alberta and British Columbia during his visit to western Canada. The student attempt to bring the dean to the Alberta campus has been opposed by the University's President Robert Newton who told campus clubs Wednesday that he must give his personal approval to all outside speakers before they are allowed to address University audiences there.

At UBC, Don Lanskail, president of the United Nations Club, has been negotiating through the Council for Soviet Friendship to bring Dr. Johnson there to address students. He has received assurances that if the Dean can fit a visit to Vancouver into his schedule of lecture engagements in western American cities, he will speak to UBC undergraduates.

Pursue Third Win On Kingston Trip Injuries Rampant

By BRIAN LAND

Varsity Blues senior footballers will have an opportunity to make amends for an early season upset by Queen's when they cross cleats with the Gaels in Kingston's Richardson's Stadium tomorrow afternoon. Everything went wrong with the Toronto attack in that first Queen's game as the Blues gave away one touchdown and saw a last minute desperation play smeared in the mud. This time it should be different.

Injuries

Injuries pose the greatest problem to pushing the current Toronto win record to three games as line coach Jim Folwell sees his reserves running out. The loss of Cliff Beatty, who is benched with a knee injury as a result of last week's McGill game, leaves the team with only three middles—Art Hardman, Fraser Mustard, and Don Longmore. Longmore was brought up from the Intermediates and will play the remainder of the season with the Blues.

Ed Fisher also made the jump to the Seniors and saw action in last week's game at inside, joining Dave Copp, Ches Evans, Ed Fisher and Johnny Williams. Bill Lloyd is still benched because of the concussion he received in Montreal. Captain Ian Clark tried his injured shoulder in practice Wednesday, found it unfit, and will definitely not play.

In the backfield the injury story continues as Bill Danylchuk is nursing a charley-horse. As a result Bill may not start at his halfback position.

Beat Queen's

Thus Varsity will have two immediate aims. The first of course is to beat Queen's and the second is to come through the game relatively free of injuries. In the immediate background loom the Western Mustangs, the team which must be beaten if Varsity is to get a playoff shot at the Yates Cup.

Bruce Cummings, outstanding Varsity half has thrown no less than seven touchdown passes in league games this year and has begun the scoring in every contest with a T. D. toss. It is hoped that Bruce can get things started tomorrow with the usual send-off. He will have able resistance from Norn West who showed to advantage in the McGill rout.

Reception

The latest word from Queen's is that the Blues and their supporters will be assured of a warm reception despite the fact that the Gaels will be without the services of Al Lenard, captain and quarterback. Lenard is a product of Windsor. Awter playing for Hamilton Tigers for a year, he moved to Wildcats in 1941 and 1942, where he was twice awarded the Imperial Trophy as the most valuable player in the Senior O.R.F.U., and once selected for the All-Star team for all of Canada.

Elsewhere in the Intercollegiate league Western will receive the pass-happy McGill Redman at Little Memorial Stadium. On Saturday last Bob McFarlane became the fifth man on the team to be lost for the reminder of the season. McFarlane, leading point scorer in the league for the past two seasons received a broken collar bone early in the first quarter against Queen's. He joins Bob Farley, Vern Brown,

It Was Bound To Happen. It Did.

It was bound to happen sooner or later and yesterday it did.

For a few years a certain lecturer in second year honor economic theory has been using spaghetti and meat balls as the classic example of an inferior good which isn't bought when one's salary takes a jump. He keeps telling his eager-listening students, 200 strong, that his wife dishes up "good ol' spaghetti and meat balls" pretty often because, he says, his stipend is too small to permit a more expensive entree. When he gets that raise, the spaghetti and meat balls will go out the window.

Yesterday, awaiting him on the lectern of the Big Hall of the Economic Building, was a package two feet long and a foot wide wrapped in white tissue paper and beautifully tied up with a blue ribbon. After carefully undoing the ribbon and tossing out the pages from about 20 copies of the Toronto Star used for packing, what do you suppose he found at the bottom? Yes, a can of Libby's spaghetti and meat balls.

This Year Tells If War Coming Says R. G. Cavell

"If war can be avoided this year, it can be avoided for a number of years", stated Captain R. G. Cavell, in a speech delivered to the Occupational Therapy Literary Society last night.

Captain Cavell, Chairman of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs spoke on "Canada and the changing world." He expressed a desire that Canadians should understand the world situation better in the light of "who shall occupy the power vacuums of Germany, China, Korea, Malaya and Indo-China."

In China, because of the war lords and the Communists, the Americans have nothing on which to graft their help, according to Captain Cavell. He hoped that a middle of the road party could be established in that country.

Modern Eye Clinic Offers Examination To Students

The eyes have it, "it" being the most modern and complete eye clinic in Canada. This up-to-date clinic is the possession and pride of the College of Optometry of Ontario located at the corner of St. George and Sussex Streets.

White-smocked students examine patients in 12 clinic rooms furnished with the latest type equipment. In charge of each room is a third year student and just to keep the undergraduates on the beam a graduate demonstrator supervises every two or three rooms. In their refractions or eye examinations the students make at least 20 different tests to determine the condition of the patient's vision.

Patients are treated as gently as babies in this clinic. "Every consideration is shown our patients. They experience no pain or discomfort and unless some pathological condition is discovered, we use no drops," H. A. Stein, demonstrator in practical optometry, stressed. "In case of eye disease the patient is of course referred to a physician." Patients are referred to the college from hospital clinics and the Ontario Department of Welfare. U. of T. students may also have their eyes examined free of charge.

Upstairs in the college's main building is the mechanical laboratory where students receive practical experience in grinding and fitting into frames the lenses they have prescribed in the clinic rooms below. Here also all equipment is of the newest type cutting machines to roughly shape the lens; velvet smooth grinding stones to wear the lens edge to its final shape; diamond drills for boring the fine holes for frames; instruments for measuring and testing the proper alignment of axes of curvature all built and operated with micrometer precision.

Next door the mechanical laboratory is the department of visual training. In charge of Mr. C. Bobier, this department has met with considerable success in the field to which it has limited itself. Primarily concerned with cases of muscular inbalance and strabismus, known to the layman as crosseyes, this clinic uses a series of corrective treatments for these conditions.

Next door to the college's main building are the library and common rooms. Miss Phyllis Braund is in charge of the library and thinks that it is possibly one of the most complete of its kind in Canada. Miss Braund is a graduate of the college.

In fact, all staff members are graduates, for the college is faced with a situation where they must train their own instructors because

NFCUS Fumble

PART I

In his visit to this University a few days ago, Grant Livingstone issued a report on the conference held in Paris by the International Union of Students last summer.

Livingstone, who headed the Canadian delegation sent overseas by the National Federation of Canadian University Students to seek affiliation with IUS, asserted the failure of the NFCUS delegation to join IUS was based primarily on the refusal of the international student group to accept Canadian terms of affiliation.

Although the issues at stake were complex and the negotiations shrouded in a fog of conflicting opinions, the main cause of misunderstanding arose from the resolution of affiliation adopted by last year's NFCUS conference at Winnipeg. The resolution read in part: "That NFCUS join the IUS conditionally for a period of two years, conditions to be: 1. the clear definition of its legitimate political activities . . . and the total constitutional exclusion from it of all other political activities. If these conditions of affiliation have not been achieved at the end of the two-year period . . NFCUS hereby commits itself not merely to disaffiliate but rather to actively promote the formation of an alternative world student union . . . and NFCUS reserves the right to dis-affiliate without the required notice of one year."

In addition the NFCUS resolution smugly declares "that because of the NFCUS constitution which states that decisions of NFCUS cannot bind its constituent members, the decisions of the IUS cannot and shall not be binding in any way on NFCUS"!

That is the resolution that was carried overseas and expected to be found palatable by IUS!

It was framed in that manner, explained Livingstone, to give concrete reassurance to the majority who favoured international activities but feared joining IUS because of its Communist reputation and activities.

In his negotiations at Paris Livingstone interpreted the resolution to mean that the "conditions" were binding—not on IUS—but on NFCUS. The IUS Credentials Committee questioned his interpretation. The IUS Council moved that the next NFCUS conference be asked to confirm the interpretation—at which time affiliation would be granted.

We doubt very much whether any organization—be it communist-dominated or otherwise—could be expected to accept a group into membership based on a resolution such as that passed at the NFCUS conference—a resolution that threatens counter measures if its conditions are not met—and all this by a group seeking admission to the organization it castigates.

To say that the NFCUS resolution was ill-conceived and untactful, is putting it mildly.

The time for recrimination is past. In our next issue we will discuss the problem now facing NFCUS.

Toike Oike Takes Lashing

Pendemonium broke loose at the weekly Hart House debate last night when Harvey Jones, III S.P.S. arose from the floor of the house and shouted "Yea Skule!"

No reason was given for the shout. It was felt by debate officials that Jones, who could not be contacted, was suddenly struck with an outburst of enthusiasm and that he himself did not know what he was doing.

The debate, on the subject, "Should the government control the price of ice in Iceland?" went unfinished. The bedlam created by the shout of Yea Skule! occurred when Artsmen at the debate lost their heads and rushed Jones.

"This outburst of Skule spirit was entirely uncalled for," debates officials said, "it is a thing which is happening far too often on the campus."

Sessions of the Ontario Legislature were interrupted last Spring by shouts from the gallery of Challama, challama chee. Symphony concerts this Fall have been disdisturbed by shouts of Yea, Skule from the cheaper seats.

"This constant harp g upon the fact that they are students at the Skule of Practical Science must stop," President Kydney Myth said this morning. "It is usually quite easy to tell who is taking engineering without their ever opening their mouths."

Dr. William Hearthrug of the Ethics Department Department, deplored the Skule yell which expressed the sentiment that Skulemen "don't give a rap for anyone who doesn't give a rap for them.' "Entirely unethical," he said.

Reports from the University athletic office reveal that shouts of Yea Skule, and Toike Oike at intercollegiate rugby games are badly upsetting Artsmen playing for the Blues. "Drastic steps will be taken if this indiscriminate yelling continues," officials said.

Harry Pelvis, president of the Engineering Society, asked for comment this morning, said "Yea Skule."

Western Ducats Have All Gone; Students Wail

Twelve hundred tickets which went on sale yesterday morning for the Varsity-Western game next week-end were sold out within an hour and a half. The tickets looked after all but about 150 people who had been waiting in a line-up at Varsity Stadium. Three hundred additional tickets were sold at Ajax.

A lot of griping was heard on the campus yesterday and a harassed staff in the Athletic Office were kept busy explaining that tickets were all gone.

J. P. Loosemore, financial secretary of the University of Toronto Athletic Association, explained in an interview yesterday how tickets were sold for the game. "The biggest percentage of tickets goes to undergraduate students," he stated.

Mr. Loosemore said that students who want to go to football games have an opportunity to get their tickets in the fall when coupon books go on sale. Ten thousand books were printed for sale this fall, "and we were prepared to print more if necessary", he stated. The actual number of books sold was 7,348. In addition to this 1,556 tickets were set aside for the Western game. These were all sold today.

Of 19,484 tickets distributed for the Western game 8,904 were sold to students. The remainder were distributed as follows: Season ticket holders, 3,226; graduate organizations, 3,192; alumni federation, U. of T., 682 Blue and White Society, 306; University of Western Ontario students, 1,566; University of Western Ontario Alumni (Toronto), 544 and Ticket Agencies, 1,064.

Students were not the only ones disappointed and annoyed because they have not got tickets. The downtown ticket agencies complained because they would like to have more. The last game of the season is the one usually picked by graduates for reunions, and the Western Week-end is also Home Coming Week-end this year.

"We tried to make as fair a distribution of tickets as possible", said Mr. Loosemore. He suggested that the best way to avoid disappointment in future years is to buy a book of coupons when they go on sale in the fall.

India Association Chooses New Patron

V. P. N. Nayar, president of the Friends of India Association, announced that President Sidney Smith has consented to become patron of the association.

The constitution of the association states that its purpose is "to bring together those interested in India, and to procure accurate information regarding India and to place such information at the disposal of members and any others who may be interested."

Annual Photo Display To Be In Hart House

The second Canadian Inter-University Salon of Pictorial Photography will be sponsored by Hart House Camera Club. The Salon will be displayed in Hart House Art Gallery November 15 to November 21, and in the Public Library the following week.

This will be an opportunity for photographers in the University to display their work. Entries are expected from every Canadian University and all faculty members and students are eligible to submit up to four prints. These will be judged by prominent Canadian photographers. Accepted prints will be rated according to merit.

Closing date for entries is November 7. Prints should be turned in to the Hall Porter, Hart House, as soon as possible.

Don't look now boys, but there they are again! It's our own Marjory Dunn, posing prettily with Queen's drum majorette, Marjory MacGregor. Three weeks ago, the Golden Gaels carried home a victory; this week Varsity hopes to carry home the victory. Both Margies will be there to do their bit to help their teams, and as you can see they should be inspiration enough for any team.

Dr. Heller is Chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, Co-chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, an officer of the Zionist Organization of America and President of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. He is also professor of Musicology at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. He wrote the program-notes for the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra for 18 years and has many symphonic, choral, and chamber-music compositions to his credit.

Dr. Heller has been rabbi of the Isaac Wise Temple since 1920.

'Radio' Is Feature Of Career Parade

The third and last forum of Careers On Parade, sponsored by the Panhellenic Association, is to be presented in the Women's Union Theatre, Monday, Nov. 8, at 4.15 p.m. The topic for this final session is radio and its various aspects.

Chairman of the meeting is Mrs. Margaret Basset, of Don Bassett Productions. Participating guests include Alice Frick, of the CBC Drama Department, and one of the judges for the current Varsity Radio Script Contest; Kathleen Dale, in the radio advertising department of McLarens-Advertising Co.; Edna Slatter, business manager of the Academy of Radio Arts; and Claire Wallace, well-known commercial broadcaster.

Also at the forum will be a voice recording machine. All those who want to know what their voice really sounds like had better come along. It can be awfully surprising!

Just Millionaires Quite Possible Debaters Decide

A man can become rich honestly, it was decided in a debate at Loretto College last night. The resolution: "Resolved that a man can become rich honestly". Loretto College, upholding the affirmative, won the decision of the judges and the house, over St. Joseph's College.

Marg Kearns, II Loretto, upholding the affirmative that a man can become rich honestly, recalled the Biblical words stating that by the sweat of his brow man would earn his bread. "Prosperity and riches are the fruit of labor," Miss Kearns said. She stated that riches flow as a natural result of God's commandment to work for one's keep. Miss Betty Cormack, II Loretto, also supported the government side. "Honesty is the best policy," she said. Both pointed out that while many rich men have acquired their money dishonestly, it is still possible for men to become wealthy without breaking any laws, of God or man.

The negative of the resolution was supported by Helen Martel, II St. Joe's and Elaine Maloney, II St. Joe's. Miss Maloney bemoaned the doctor who "jacks his prices" for the wealthy patient and asked if that were justice. She also blamed clothing manufacturers for the new look saying that it was just another money-making idea at the expense of the modern woman. Miss Maloney said that it is "impossible for an honest man, a

Motion Blaming Liberals Defeated In Midday Debate

About 75 members of Hart House heard the Liberal party alternately praised and condemned in a noon-hour debate yesterday. A standing vote defeated the resolution "that in the opinion of this house as a potent political force the Liberal party is dead and embalmed." The vote was 36 to 10. A second standing vote, on the merits of the debate alone, also went to the opposition, 28 to 8.

Norman Chalmers, University College who led off for the government, set up a distinction between the ability to hold office and the possession of political force. He criticized the Liberal party for clinging to old ideas and said that its only forward steps were taken by men who really should be members of the C.C.F.

The first speaker for the opposition, G. H. Pearson, Trinity College, contended that any government which could consistently produce good men, and bring new ability into the cabinet, could not be considered dead. He pointed to recent by-elections as evidence of the force of Liberalism.

Martin Shubik, Graduate Studies, painted a picture of a "mouldering corpse of Liberalism lying on the neo-Gothic stone slabs of Ottawa." Liberalism in Canada had been dead for 30 years, he contented, and needed only to compare its program with that of the Labor Party in England to perceive the fact.

J. D. Graham, Trinity, who seconded the opposition, continued to cite examples of the effective working of the present dominion government and of its continuing influence on Canadian life.

The debate was the first of a series of noon-hour meetings sponsored by the Debates Committee this year to afford more practice in speaking to novices and experienced debaters.

Canadian Artist Sums Up Plight Of European Art

Abbey Bayefsky, a young Canadian painter who has recently returned from France, outlined the condition of artistic endeavours on the European continent to the Fine Art Club in Croft Chapter House on Wednesday night.

As a war artist in the Air Force, Mr. Bayefsky's portrayal of the horrors of Europe's concentration camps attracted the notice of the French government. On a post-war scholarship he surveyed the field of art in France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and Hungary.

The French school of painting today, Mr. Bayefsky felt, lacked the resilience and vitality necessary for its survival. "There is no spiritual happiness among any class and the energies of all Europe must be expended in procuring the necessities of day-to-day living," he said. "The airtsts of France are not supplying the needed spiritual incentive to regenerate their country. They are imitating the pre-war trends in painting. Since these trends were themselves degenerate, they cannot possibly form the basis of a vital school of painting in France today," Mr. Bayefsky stated.

Speaking of painting in France and in Europe generally, Mr. Bayefsky observed that there was a prevalent sensationalism that was static in purpose and sought only to imitate modern art. He felt art was not important as a medium for reflecting the social upheaval gripping Europe at the present time. The aspect was not so sombre in Italy. Here contemporary art appeared to be self-conscious about the old masters but Mr. Bayefsky was impressed, he said, with the high quality of industrial and furniture design.

Art in Europe, Mr. Bayefsky stated, was stagnant and unresponsive to the current forces of the society in which it exists. This lack of "social conscience," the young artist felt, relegated the artist to a back seat in Europe's present struggle out of a chasm of despair.

NO DUCATS TO MAYOR

Director-Producer of the U.C. Follies, Harry Rasky spitefully declared last night, "we won't send them, no we won't, not even one!" He was referring to the complimentary tickets usually sent Mayor McCallum for U.C.'s extravaganza. Rasky's usual smiling countenance was a cross between weary frustration and hurt annoyance.

He explained that his ire was being taken out on the city's chief magistrate because of the night hydro cut-offs which will necessitate a complete change in the script of the follies. Returning chameleon-like to his usual cheery self Rasky gave assurances that the show would go on.

Jax Freshmen Menaced With Early Rising

High praise greeted Art Chinery, the Social Convener of the Ajax Joint House Committee, as he delivered his report on the All-Residence Dance at a committee meeting in York Hall. Mr. M. McLachlin, the chairman, expressed the feeling that the dance was a howling success.

The morning lineups for breakfast came under fire. It was suggested that the ruling whereby all first year men must be in the Cafeteria before 8.15 or go without breakfast be enforced again. However, those in charge are reluctant to lay down the law as they realize that no one likes to be told what they may or may not do.

"Hey, wanna hot tip on the 1:30 lineup?" said the freshman, out of the corner of his mouth.

The soph drew his gown around him and threw a shifty look in the direction of the frosh. "Yeah," he said, "I got that one, too. Dirty Joe told me Number 3 was the cinch."

"Just so you know," said the frosh, and hurried off to the turtle races.

True to predictions, Number 3 turtle, jockeyed by Dave Fry, was the winner of the Trinity turtle classic. Pari-mutuel betting on the event netted the U of T Red Feather drive a contribution of $6, and the gowned students half an hour's unusual entertainment.

Turtle No. 2 under the tutelage of Rod Imrie, 5T1, is reported to have been an easy winner in a longer run off, say, a mile and an eighth, but the length of the Butterfly [illegible] was held, is unfortun[illegible] of feet.

Canadians' reading habits vary by size of communities. In larger cities we read more philosophy, in smaller communities more religion. In the big places people read about sociology and the arts; literature, history and travel are popular in smaller centres —Quick Canadian Facts.

ART - MUSIC - DRAMA

Gordon Jeffery

In Eaton Auditorium on Wednesday last, Gordon Jeffery, organist, played a low mass by Frescobaldi and The Ascension (four "symphonic meditations") by the contemporary Frenchman, Messiaen; then, with a string orchestra under the direction of Ernest White, a group of 'concerti' and 'sonati' by Handel, Mozart, and Breydert (a pupil of Hindemith). It is significant that there were no works on the program belonging to the nineteenth century romantic school.

Mr. Jeffery has a forthright, consistent and refreshing attitude toward his instrument and its music. He sees a fallacy in the lush conception of the organ as an instrument of romantic orchestral coloring and variety. He conceives of an instrument with a "singing tone" and a light voicing, an economical but brilliant instrument possessing clarity rather than extravagance. He achieved an approximation to this effect by means of careful and economical registration and an avoidance of broad, squashy tone color.

This type of playing conveys a blessing of linear clarity to earlier organ music which was written for just such instruments. It performs the same office for the contemporary idiom which shows an increasing tendency towards articulate line and economy of means.

Mr. Jeffery's playing, like his more technical conception, betrays a rejection of subjective excess. His climaxes of emotional tension are achieved by proportions within a limited scale and remain therefore a balanced and controlled part of the compositional form; they never obscure or infringe upon the music. This does not imply a cold detachment but rather a reliance on and expression of the music itself rather than the subjective monkey shines of the performer. The composer, after all, has written his pattern of expression into the music and the office of the performer is to present this pattern with his utmost economy and sympathy.

There is much more to be said about this perfectly delightful recital but space does not permit further elaboration. I should like to dance superlatives about the head of this conscientious and refreshing artist.

Lauritz Melchior

Melchior—"direct from Hollywood", the ad said—at Massey Hall was sold out last night. To be sure, the announcement "Melchior direct from Beyrout" could not have done the trick, but that Melchior was there, too (at least for one-fourth of the program) and what an exciting experience it was!

Now, if you choose to do so, you can easily find poetic justice working on behalf of art in this mixed offering. For the man who sang the Wagner group (Lohengrin's Farewell. The Steersman's Son from "The Flying Dutchman", Siegfield's Schmiedelid, and Sigmund's Winterstuerme) was the great heroic tenor—intense, resplendent, with the irresistible power that sweeps everything else from one's consciousness, and unreplaced as yet.

And the other Melchior, he of the Ave Maria and "luxury liner", turns out to be a baritonish shadow of things that one knows used to be. This is a harsh way of putting it, and not quite fair, because there were transitional items, such as the Weingartner song, the "Two Grenadiers", and some of the Scandinavian pieces.

Actually, one expects oneself to be quite indignant at such glaring contrasts. But I was not. Was this because the great Wagnerian group echoed through the remainder of the program? Partly, no doubt. Another reason was the compensating pleasure of analysis. There was

Student Life In Germany

By JOYCE GRIFFITHS

This is the third in a series of articles by Varsity students who attended the International Summer Seminar in Germany during the past summer. Joyce Griffiths is a graduate student in the department of Physics.

Through all the violence of the ast fifteen years, many phases of tudent life in Germany have re-ain unchanged. The opportunity o attend university is still reserv-d for the upper and middle class-s. Only two to four per cent of he students come from working lass homes. This has disadvant-ges and advantages. It is obvious-y quite undemocratic and for that eason a potential danger. This eans that students can afford to e full-time students. The friends e made at the seminar were mazed to find that so many of us ere working our way through col-ge. This was almost unheard of Germany, although now, under rave financial strain more and ore students are doing part-time obs. But suitable jobs are diffi-ult to find in Germany and be-des the student's time, even dur-g vacation from formal lectures, ust be almost completely devoted o his studies if he is to pass his aminations at the end of four ars. This he must do, or due to owded conditions he can have no econd chance.

Freedom

Their relationships with profes-ors is much more formal than urs. It is rare for a professor to ecome friendly with his students. While students seem to have less reedom in this way they are more ree than we to move from one niversity to another during their ndergraduate training. It is com-non practice, for example, for a lamburg student to go down to Bonn for one term to attend lec-ures under a famous specialist in is field. This exchange is made ossible by their examination sys-em. They do not write examina-ions at the end of each year as we o. Instead, they take one final xamination for their degree work t the end of four years at uni-ersity. Therefore, they work their ifferent courses into the general attern of their knowledge far bet-er than we do.

War Damage

The war, of course, has brought remendous changes to the life of he student. As in Canada, the umber of students on the campi as doubled or trebled but they ave an added difficulty. About alf of their buildings have been estroyed. Therefore, they have had to find accommodation where they can. For example, Kiel Uni-versity took over two ships in the harbour at the end of the war and used them for class rooms and dor-mitories. Now, they are using rooms in what was a factory—much like our Ajax. Reconstruction of buildings is progressing very slow-ly. On many campi, students are helping to clear the rubble and re-build. Often, they use the old rubble bricks, as material is very scarce. One of our Seminar stu-dents from Freiberg spent her en-tire first term at the university doing this.

Hunger

It is hard for us to realize just how badly hunger affects the stu-dents. Those who have suffered tell us that it is almost impossible to concentrate on anything but thoughts of food. We ate a meal with the Hamburg students in their menza and found the small dish of a sort of meatless stew quite in-adequate. We were amazed when they told us afterwards that this was a special meal subsidized by the Swedish Red Cross for those who were underweight. The lack of coal is serious too. The student hostess with whom I stayed one week-end in Hamburg told me that last winter they were only able to heat the kitchen of their home and this only to 40 degrees with the amount of coal at their disposal. Electricity is scarce and so are candles. Even if a student felt he could stay in his frigid room he would seldom have the lights to do so.

Perhaps the most serious short-age in German universities is books and laboratory equipment. For fif-teen years now the import of books has been strictly limited and their own printers cannot begin to meet the demand. The result is that students must spend valuable hours copying text books.

Currency

The recent currency reform which came into effect in Western Germany on June 21, did a great deal to stabilize the economy. But it struck a heavy blow to the stu-dents. University fees were one of the few items in Germany that were not inflated. Students were able to use their own or their par-ents' savings for their fees. Now, the currency reform has wiped away these savings. It has made it impossible also for students to re-ceive support from relatives in the eastern zone. This will mean that a great many will have to leave the universities. As there is a long waiting list of people waiting for admission into the Universities, it is unlikely that the number of stu-dents will decrease. However, this will further discriminate against the lower and middle income groups.

Despite these tremendous diffi-culties, we found that the students and staffs at the German Universi-ties are meeting the challenge to rebuild that which was good in German culture with a vigor and optimism uncommon in Germany to-day.

Modern Thinking Leaves Out Soul Prof. Owen Says

"Modern philosophy is hostile to Christianity and an encourage-ment to agnosticism," Professor Owen told the U.C. S.C.M. recent-ly. It assumes that only observ-able things can be considered real and that real events fit into a mechanistic series of cause and ef-fect. But observation as the cri-terion of reality excludes the exis-tence of spirit or soul in man and the deterministic concept rules out human free will and moral values.

Christian principles are present in Socrates' writings, Prof. Owen claimed. Socrates believed that to "know one's self" and to apply this knowledge to the world enabled one to know the nature of the univer-sal mind or, in modern terminology, the personality of God.

Hebrew philosophers believed that the will of man was the divine force and hence the highest kind of reality in personal being. Through the divine will, man is al-lied to God in a person-to-person relationship where God reveals his presence to man through an inter-mediary such as the Messiah or Christ.

Speaking OF Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

I understand Teddy Reeve went out on a limb again, and called Queen's over Varsity tomorrow. Reever has been so inconsistent in his forecasts this season, that every time he makes one everybody shakes in his boots.

Just to make certain that Teddy doesn't come up with another "bolt to the Blue", I'll shoot in a counteracting forecast. Tomorrow it'll be Queen's over Varsity by at least 17 points. One thing this column can't be accused of is inconsistency — the forecasts are always wrong.

Many an embryo sports columnist has vaulted to fame and fortune on the basis of an uncanny ability to forecast athletic events successfully. But a new era may be dawning. Anybody can forecast correctly; but have you even heard of anyone who called every game of a football season wrong?

The athletic association has had some publicity pictures taken of several of the Blues. Just wait until you see Moose Mustard in a typical pose. It's been suggested that the picture be sent to Johnny Metras, as an example of how the Blues feel about the final WESTERN GAME. Moose looks as if he just got out of bed and was preparing for his usual morning repast of raw meat.

John Shore is preparing himself for an unmerciful ribbing which is bound to come when the following information gets around. Of the nine men photographed Wednesday, Johnny was the only man who stopped the camera. And he stopped it cold. The picture wasn't even blurry. It just wasn't. I understand that Metras is placing a bill before the intercollegiate football union, trying to have Shore masked for the final game.

New Records Set In Ajax Harrier

Running over a gruelling three and one-quarter mile course, 175 enthusiasts, of whom 120 finished, competed yesterday in the annual Ajax Harrier. Held in perfect weather, this Harrier was considered to be the best ever held at Ajax. The course carried the boys all the way from the track north of the Rec Hall, around the whole academic area and back to the track.

Grey led all the way and showed the stout Engineers the way home in the fastest time ever recorded at Ajax—20 minutes flat.' In the last quarter, Grey was pushed hard by Per Berg and Tarasick, who were determined to finish in front for their residence, but managed to keep the lead.

The leaders in order of finishing were: Grey, (Res. 724) Per Berg, (Res. 730); Tarasick, (Res. 730); Wilkins, (Res. 724), and Miles (Res. 725).

The top residence was 724 with 38 points, with two men—Grey and Wilkins—placing for their team. This was without doubt the deciding factor in their win as residence 731 placed second with 35 points, accumulated through their large entry, of whom 35 men finished.

The first five residences were 724 (38 points), 731 (35 points), 725 (28 points), 730 (27 points), and 728 (11 points).

Letters To The Sports Editor

It is stated in an article yesterday that if Varsity wins every game scheduled they will be in the play-off with Western. At present Varsity has lost two games and Western is undefeated. If Western beats McGill this week-end, and Varsity beats Western next week-end, (after having beaten Queen's) then Western will have lost only one game, and Varsity two. Does this require a play-off? Or are Western the champions having won more games than any other team?

If the latter is the case, I think your article overlooked the important fact that for Varsity to play-off with Western, it will be necessary for McGill to beat Western this week-end. I would appreciate clarification of the manner of deciding the Intercollegiate rugby title.

Ed. note—

According to CIAU regulations, a playoff is necessary if the second place team beats the first place team in the regular schedule. A playoff also decides the Yates cupholder, if

1—there is a tie for first place.

2—if both games in the regular schedule between the leading team and the second team were ties.

3—if the second team had won both games of the regular schedule against the leading team.

In the event of a playoff it may be played on "neutral intercollegiate ground unless otherwise mutually agreed upon."

Hunting?

"Moose" Mustard demonstrates the offensive stance that rates him as the most feared one third of the right side of the Blues' wingline. Moose and his buddies are all set to avenge the loss inflicted upon them by the Gaels three weeks ago.

Dents Salt Group Title Subdue Forestry 19-12

By BRIAN LAND

Dents successfully surmounted the biggest obstacle standing between them and an undefeated season yesterday afternoon when they turned back Forestry 19-12 in a wide open grid thriller. The win was number four for the Red and Blue who had previously registered a 7-6 win over the woodchoppers.

The big break of the game came right after the opening kick-off when Forestry rolled up four first downs in advancing 77 yards on plunges by Austin, Collict and Masterson. The ball was snapped from the Dents eight yard line when quarterback Sheldon uncorked a wild toss to Masterson on an end sweep. Fleet Wes Moore charged through and picked up the bouncing ball to run 93 yards for a score. White converted to give Dents a 6-0 lead.

Moments later Masterson of Forestry intercepted a forward and went 50 yards; the men in green were forced to settle for a single at this point on Sheldon's kick. The same team marched for a TD early in the second quarter; Sheldon was again the payoff man, carrying the ball on a quarter sneak. The score remained tied when the convert went wide.

Dents retaliated when White hit Woolidge with a touchdown pass which went unconverted to set the score at 12-6 in favor of the Teeth-Pullers.

Just before half time Forestry was again on the march, this time by special air-mail delivery Austin to Collict. It remained for Sheldon to finish the job with a plunge through centre and an unconverted major which left the Dentsmen in possession of a single point lead as the half ended.

Singles by White and Sheldon were exchanged by the respective teams in the third quarter and at this point Ken Ryan of Dents took over with an offensive rushing display which ended only when he had crossed the woodsmen's line to give his team a substantial lead.

White added a final rouge as the Forestry line began to sag from the terrific strain of their second half drive.

Sid Sheldon scored all of Forestry's points but was ably assisted by Masterson, Austin and Collict with Tamosetis outstanding up front.

Ken Ryan, Gord Woolidge and Irv White sparked Dents with Art Lampe, Chuck Sivell and Wes Moore leading the front wall.

Trinity Wins 2-0 Over Vic Firsts

Yesterday afternoon Trinity firsts defeated Vic firsts for the second time in this soccer season by a score of 2-0.

The standard of play was high and both teams made it quite clear why they are in the first league. The play was fast moving from start to finish, and of that open variety which is so easy and pleasant to watch. A few minutes of spectating would have shown both teams as equal but over a long period of time it became evident that the Trinity team was the better, and they took a goal in each half without conceding any.

Top Place Aggies Clash With Blues For Playoff Spot

By BRUCE MACDONALD

Tomorrow morning in Varsity Stadium, the Intermediate Blues meet the O.A.C. Aggies in what may well be a deciding game in the Intermediate League. The unbeaten Aggies are in top place, but a win on Saturday by the second place Blues will assure them of a playoff spot against the O.A.C. team.

The Intermediate Blues have dropped only one game. They were defeated in Guelph by the Aggies 17-12 in their second game of the series. Western Colts are in third place with two points, having gained a single victory over McMaster.

The Varsity team has been placed in a rather unfortunate position by the loss of two middles, Harry Hyde and Don Longmore. Hyde suffered a broken cheek bone in the game last week, and coach Don Bark says that he will be sidelined for the rest of the season. Longmore has moved up to the senior squad for the game with Queen's.

However, Ted Gawinsky, formerly at end position with the seniors, will fill in at middle along with Sivell of the Intermediates. Bill Brewer will be back in his kicking and passing spot after a three-week layoff with a cut hand, and will give some assistance to Bob Garside who has been ably carrying the load in those departments.

This Intermediate Blue team has all the makings of a championship squad. All that is needed is a little co-operation on the part of other Varsity students. These Intermediate games are every bit as thrilling as the senior games, and the Blues have certainly demonstrated that they have what it takes to win a football game. Granted at all favourable weather, you can see as good football at these games as you can in any other leagues.

The place once again is Varsity Stadium, and the time is 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

The Varsity Intermediates will dress the following players: Line—Zimmerman, Kilpatrick, Davidson, Bell, Russell, Forge, Brown, Howson, Roberts, Errington, Graham, Scott, Gawinsky, Sivell, Kelly. Backfielder—Birkenshaw, McFadden, Lawson, Stevenson, Davis, Barbour, Garside, Ecclestone, Sinclair, Brewer.

SPORT IN SHORT

Football—
Dents 19; Forestry 12.
St. Mike's 10; Junior Meds 0.

Soccer—
Trinity 2; Vic (II) 0.

Lacrosse—
Meds (II) 11; Sr. SPS (II) 3.
For. B 2; Trinity 1.

Volleyball—
Inst. Man. beat Knox B 15-1, 15-9.

HOCKEY BLUES

Varsity hockey Blues will hold their first practice Monday afternoon. Time will be announced later.

Soccerites Meet OAC In Twin Bill

By BILL BABCOCK

This Saturday afternoon, the U of T. soccer teams will meet the Aggies in Guelph in a twin bill. The Intermediates will be gunning for their fourth straight shut-out having beaten Western once and MacMaster twice. The Seniors, after being trounced by McGill last week, in an exhibition game, are back to full strength again and will be on the hunt for another win.

Most of the players on the team were dissatisfied with their own performances in Montreal and feel that they could have done much better if the team had been with all its regulars, even thought the Intermediates brought up to strengthen the team, played hard and well.

Coach Barton has had the boys working hard all week, correcting their faults and priming them for the games on Saturday. Says he "In Montreal we were both unfortunate, and lacking in scoring punch; now that we are back to full power, I hope for a better result this time."

But let's look at the opposition. Guelph has beaten Western twice in the senior league, 4-1 and 4-3, while Varsity only succeeded in eeking out a close 2-1 decision. It will be a tough fight for those senior Blues, but you can bet your bottom dollar that they will be fighting all the way.

The Intermediate teams from the two colleges will be fairly evenly matched; but with such hard workers as Al Beckwith, Vic Quennell, and Glyn Williams, to mention a few, we pick the Toronto boys to win.

Defence Has Team Holding Hands

By BILL STOCKMAN

This fall has seen the revival of several plays that were favorites in the days of old-style football. With variations of the ancient "Statue of Liberty" play finding their way into the repertoire of many of the senior teams, it remained for the McMaster Rams to exhume the daddy of them all last Friday. Some of the "trimmings" were absent but it was unmistakably the "Tandem Buck". Make way for the "Flying Wedge"!

Our scout on duty at an eastern Ontario college (beginning with "Q") reports that the football aggregation of said college has been practicing a unique formation in which the centre snaps the ball into a huddle of eleven players who then scatter toward the enemy goal line. To combat this ingenious device, Varsity coach Bob Masterson has perfected a defence where the Varsity team lines up across the field and joins hands. Neat countering, eh!

With the interfaculty league past the half-way mark, performances to date are inclined to reveal that the finals will see St. Mike's A, Vic, or Sr. Meds still in action. Conceivably, Dents or Forestry could upset the form sheets but the sideline observers think that they lack the all-around punch. It will be a great series with Lew Barnes' well-drilled St. Mike's squad being favored to lift the Mulock Cup, now residing at Victoria College.

A premature poll of the Varsity Blues football squad has resulted in the selection of the following "all-opponents" team:

Ends—Curry (W), Turnbull (W).
Middles—Newman (M), Duck (W).
Insides—Jarvie (W), Porter (M).
Centre—Charters (Q).
Halfbacks—Parry (W), Hayes (M), Taylor (W).
Wingback—D. MacFarlane (W).
Quarterback—Arnott (W).

All those wishing to present arguments against the above selection will be received in the Blue Room of the Hart House Tuck Shop from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily.

For those who can't get down to Queen's for the Blues' game, don't miss the Intermediate game between Varsity and OAC on Saturday morning. Coaches Bark and Brown have a real ball club, guaranteed to provide tops in entertainment.

Here are the calls for week-end games with the appropriate odds if you wish to visit that alumnus in the cigar store with the wide brim and pointed shoes.

Western over McGill, 3-1.
Varsity over Queen's, 3-2.
Argos over Ottawa, 2-3.
Alouettes over Wildcats, 2-1.
Beaches over Tigers, 1-3 (ouch!)

ART — MUSIC and DRAMA

the joyous reassurance that great music can draw a great artist well above the actual condition of a once-immaculate and titanic voice. And there was also the pleasure of the fleeting understanding of the mystery of interpretative detachment that allows the great actor to count empty chairs in the theatre while stunning the audience as a dying Othello, an insight that brings one closer to the common denominator of sheer vitality which prevents a Melchior from generating embarrassment when he leads the audience in a sing-song as an encore.

The accompanist, Mr. Rachlin, fulfilled his strenuous task, especially in the Wagner group, with great tact and precision, and his two solo-groups were a source of satisfaction.

"Because of the rise of nationalism in Asia, the white men would never again be overlords", he stated.

In Europe the difficulties in dealing with Russia have resulted in formation of the Western Alliance. Captain Cavell felt that Canada could help democracy by continuing to support this alliance. As individuals he hoped that Canadians would become well informed in regard to the world situation.

Captain Cavell has spent a long number of years in India, Africa, and Europe; as a soldier, diplomat, and author. He is presently a business executive in Toronto.

ready-made instructors are not available.

Founded in 1925 as an outgrowth of a central technical school course, the course in optometry was originally a two year affair. In 1938 it was extended to a three year course and admission requirements were raised to senior matriculation or its equivalent with honors in Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry, prerequisites.

In its twenty-three years of its history the college has had only one dean, Dean J. C. Thompson, a master in Mathematics and Physics from the University of Toronto. Dean Thompson died in April of this year and Mr. E. J. Fisher has taken over administration duties of the college pending appointment of a successor to Dean Thompson.

Of a graduating class of eighty-four only three are girls. The scarcity of women students creates a hardship for the producer of the Ops annual Hart House show "The Spectacle". Ron Sclater, last year's "Spectacle" producer, explains that this hardship is surmounted by conscripting wives of the students into the cast.

The College of Optometry of Ontario is the only English-speaking college of its kind in Canada and its students come from every province in the Dominion and from points as far away as the British West Indies. Graduates return to their native provinces to practice and many set up in the United States.

The college is operated under a board appointed by the Provincial Government of Ontario. The chairman of the board is Doctor W. J. Dunlop who is also director of the University Extension Courses.

Jim Stephens and Bill Pillsworth on the sidelines. McFarlane had scored 88 points in his two years with the Mustangs and added four more this year. With two more seasons of eligibility big Bob can still become the first player in Western grid history to score more than 100 points. Western hope to have centre George Wearring back with the team after his absence.

Looking at McGill for a moment it may come as a surprise but the Redmen can still win the Yates Cup (theoretically at least). If they should win their two remaining games while Varsity loses at least one, the two would be tied for second place and since McGill theoretically beat Western a play-off would be needed. If this happens we might witness McGill winning the Yates Cup without playing the Blues again.

Thought for tomorrow:

Are we gonna' get the goal posts? All together now—Are we ever!

Margaret Howe, II Loretto, was speaker; Mary Warner, I Loretto, timekeeper. The judges were Ed McNeely, I Osgoode, Harold Richardson, II Osgoode, and John Askin, II Osgoode.

The debate went off quietly with very few interruptions on points of question or of order. Speakers became more vehement, however, when the discussion was opened to the house. Several members of the Senate club, official debating society of St. Michael's College, added their opinions to those already expressed.

COLE SCAN

Some men we know subscribe to the view that women should be struck regularly like gongs. Apparently, they feel that to maintain what they consider to be their inviolate masculine superiority, it is necessary to resort to physical violence. We are of the opinion, that it is never really necessary to go to such lengths to confirm man's obviously superior stature. In fact, we think that it is weakening, and a woman-like reaction, to resort to blows when a word will do. We can uphold the regular beating of women on only one ground. If it's true that they ring like gongs when struck, then, as a means of ready identification in otherwise confusing circumstances, it can't be beat. Surely, no two women ring alike when struck.

BLUES DEFEAT GAELS

R--R--Ruff

This is the bevy of beauty that almost succeeded in taking the minds of Varsity male fans off their team's 4-0 win over Gaels, Saturday. The Queen's cheer-leaders sported panties of red, blue and gold to give a rainbow effect to the otherwise murky weather each time they responded with cartwheels to the pleas of Queen's rooters.

Varsity's Points Toed By Cummings In Muddy 4-0 Win

Varsity and Queen's held their own mud-slinging campaign Saturday afternoon, and after it was all over, Varsity had a 4-0 win for their third straight shutout, a stranglehold on second place in the intercollegiate standings, several cubic yards of Kingston mud on their uniforms, and the goal-posts. And it was Bruce Cummings again that kicked Queen's downstairs into the cellar. He scored the four Varsity points, all in the first quarter, with a single and a 15-yard field goal.

Mud, Mud, Mud

Playing in ankle-deep mud that got worse as the game progressed, neither team was able to get its attack underway. Varsity splashed for nine first downs and Queen's four. Surprisingly, there were only eight fumbles in the game, but it wasn't because the ball didn't try. The referees constantly wiped it off with towels, and still it managed to flit coquettishly away from the players' fingers.

After the first five minutes the 12,000 fans used their programs to protect themselves from the rain. With or without them, you couldn't tell one player from another, as the mud coated their uniforms.

Typical Play

The players had as much trouble as a baby-sitter with a fractious kid staying vertical. A typical play was as follows; the ball is snapped, the player slithers two yards through the line and unable to keep his footing, doesn't. This was repeated again followed by a kick. Only four passes were completed in the game, two by each team, out of ten tries.

It took Varsity three minutes to hit the score column with Bruce Cummings hoofing the wet ball 40 yards for a single. Just a few minutes later he added the other three points on a dead-centre field goal. From there on most of the game was played near midfield. Queen's scared Varsity cheering section once as they marched down the field to the three yard line, but there the Varsity line tightened up and threw back the Queen's scoring overtures three times. Cummings quick-kicked out of danger.

Cummings' Kicking Tops

It was the same way at the other end. Several times the Blues swam into scoring territory only to get mired in the mud. Once they tried for an insurance field goal but the ball sailed into the crosspiece of the goal posts.

In spite of the loggy ball, Bruce Cummings was kicking for 50 yards steadily, and held the Gaels at bay all afternoon. Twice he quick-kicked over the head of the Queen's safety man. The kick-receivers were equally amazing, fumbling the punt only once, in spite of the greasy condition of the ball. Ted Toogood and Tommy Waldon were their usual driving selves but both had a little trouble navigating the Richardson Stadium harbour.

Al Lenard played with a guard over his cracked nose and kicked well, called expertly, and tossed a couple of deadly passes.

Bill Bell and Ross McKelvey were the best Queen's backfield mudders.

Choresteski, Toogood, Waldon, Cummings, Huycke, Volpe, Copp, and Shore all went as well as anyone possibly could, for Varsity.

Queen's painted their goal posts just before the game, but Varsity students returned at night to rip them down.

Big Preparations For Homecoming Well On the Way

Preparations for the Open House and Homecoming Weekend November 12, 13, and 14, largest-scale graduate-undergraduate event in the history of the University of Toronto in recent times, swing into their final week today.

All-Varsity Spirit Stressed

From the opening gun of the Pep Rally Friday night to the closing receptions Sunday afternoon, graduates and undergrads will be treated to a program of events new to the Varsity scene and calculated to let no one forget that All-Varsity spirit is an up-and-coming thing.

Ambitious Program Planned

Included in the list of "Firsts" are:

1. Culmination of the pep rally in Varsity Stadium by a snake dance down University Avenue to the University Avenue Armouries for a dance.
2. Saturday morning's float parade in which at least 16 college, faculty and campus clubs will vie for the Alumni Federation shield awarded to the best float.
3. The defeat of Western.
4. A decentralized on-the-campus dance Saturday night. One ticket will buy admission to dances at Hart House, Athletic Wing, C.O.T.C. drill hall, Burwash Hall and the U. C. Junior Common Room and West Hall.

To Hold Sunday Service

The theme of unity is carried over in the Sunday morning church service in Convocation Hall where Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, C.M.G., LL.D., President Emeritus, will be guest preacher, Dr. Smith will read the Scriptures and an undergraduate member of the Students' Christian Movement will lead prayers.

The principal objective of the weekend is to promote an All-Varsity spirit and give grads and undergrads a better appreciation of the university, Homecoming Chairman Joe Potts said.

Hope for Repeat Performance

The Blue and White Society, its sponsors, have already laid plans for next year's Homecoming. It is hoped by the society it will assume the proportions of an institution which will be among the top attractions of the year.

Potts urged all undergrads to invite their parents and graduate friends to Toronto for the weekend. "The program speaks for itself," he said.

LLP DISCUSSION GROUP

The L.L.P. discussion group will be on the topic, "Do Communists believe in free love?" and will be held in room 13, U.C. at one p.m.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY

Robert Gill will speak to Emmanuel, Mycliffe, Nursing O. T., Physio, Inst. Management, Pharmacy, Dents, Knox and Optemetry at the open meeting of the Dramatic Society at 7 p.m. at the Shool of Nursing Annex, 7 Queen's Park.

• COMING EVENTS •

Intn'l Variety Delights Crowd At Friday Hop

The first Varsity International Ball which drew a capacity crowd to Hart House, Friday night, shows promise of being an annual event to express Varsity's welcome to her student guests.

Variety was the feature of the floor show. A token sword-swallowing act was achieved by Michael Roth in the feat of swallowing ten razor blades and regurgitating them on what appeared to be a long silver string.

Albert Morrison, Toronto's lyric tenor, contributed a touch of American musical comedy at its best with hit songs from "Oklahoma". In Spanish style, Kirstie Heppin performed the Mexican Hat Dance and Russian Variations.

William Sametz, a Ukrainian dancer, added to his performance by explaining that his costume which might appear as a hastily collected conglomeration was in reality the dress of a practical mountaineer of his country. Even the soft slippers which he wore were replicas of those worn by his countrymen for climbing the rugged foothills of the Ukraine.

Proceeds of the ball will go to ISS.

Debate Registration Must Be In Today

Those interested in trying out for the debates with Osgoode and McGill are reminded that they must contact their representatives to the UTDU executive or sign the list in the SAC office before 4 p.m. this afternoon. Anyone who has not signed by then and would like to enter the trials should contact the Debates Commissioner, Miss Pat Cole.

The topic for the first round of try-outs will be "Resolved that in the present time, foreign policy is a matter of greater importance to the nation than domestic affairs." Topic for the second round will be "Resolved that our Civil liberties are more fiction than fact".

Entrants should come prepared to debate 5 minutes.

Students Jam Vic At Feather Frolic

Vic's Feather Frolic last Thursday night transformed the tranquil halls of Victoria College into a confusion of scarlet and gold streamers and show booths.

Climax of the evening was the big draw with Miss Toronto and Miss Beautiful Toronto drawing the winning tickets out of the waste-basket. Barbara Hilliard, III Vic, won the feature prize — the twenty-five dollar voucher from Eaton's. Two other Vic students, Bill McGillis, and Barbara Lillie were each winners of dinner at the Windsor Arms, a show at the Odeon and dancing at Vanity Fair or the Indigo Room. Winner of the booby prize—a ticket to Skule Nite —was James Byrne. Other prizes included tickets to Vic's production "The Man Who Came to Dinner", to the supper dance at the Royal York and to Jimmy Dorsey.

University Radio Series To Go On Air Thursday Playing Varsity Story

"The series of Varsity radio programs beginning next Thursday at 9 p.m. will be called 'The Varsity Story'," said Peter Dobell, Director of Radio Playhouse. Each program will begin with 45 seconds of "The Blue and White" recorded on CJBC transcription by the U. of T. Glee Club, under the direction of Hugh MacAdam, IV Music.

Dobell also announced that the deadline for "guide outlines" of radio scripts has been extended to Nov. 21. The deadline for all finished scripts is Dec. 15.

NFCUS Attitude Vague

Part II

Forced to reconsider its offer of affiliation with the International Union of Students last summer, the National Federation of Canadian University Students will have to re-examine its original resolution which called for affiliation on a conditional basis. In our last issue we tried to point out how ill-conceived that resolution was.

Members of NFCUS, when they meet in conference next month, will have to take a more definite stand on the question of IUS affiliation than they have done hitherto. Most members agree that international student affiliation offers many advantages to Canadian undergraduates—advantages recognized by Grant Livingstone, NFCUS delegate to last summer's IUS conference, who says in his report. "There are many activities of a practical nature in which NFCUS can engage in collaboration with IUS . . . for the interests of a world student community . . . including travel and exchange of students . . international sports which are major democratic activities without any ideological implications in which Canadian students could co-operate with students of Eastern European countries"

There are some Canadian universities, however, which are not anxious to support any organization reported to be dominated by communist influence. When NFCUS originally discussed affiliation eight universities—mainly from the Maritimes—opposed the idea. It is highly unlikely that these universities—which supported conditional affiliation—have changed their minds to the extent of supporting affiliation with no strings attached. And because of this internal disagreement the NFCUS conference this year will probably face an impasse on the IUS question.

If NFCUS really wishes to join IUS to work for a more harmonious international student relationship—and it should—it will have to stop shilly-shallying. It may be expedient to compromise its own members by adopting vague and non-commital resolutions but its approach will have to be more forthright if it is to expect co-operation with IUS.

Livingstone, in his recommendations to NFCUS, asks for re-affirmation of principles based on the Atlantic Charter. He calls for "faith in political democracy" and the "equal right of the individual to interpret truth for himself." The recommendations, while desirable in principle, are nothing but generalizations and are couched in the same innocuous terms as are making the UN security Council nothing but a debating forum—and a poor one at that.

If NFCUS wants affiliation it should ask for it in plain and direct terms. Once it is a member of IUS it can—and should—work with might and main to remove the political partisanship it deplores. But until it is a member of IUS, NFCUS can do nothing to change the undesirable features of the international student organization.

If this year's NFCUS conference realizes that, it will save itself a lot of uncessary discussion and dispute.

Tch, Tch

I have always been an advocate of motherhood. I don't think we could get along without it.

There are, however, some unpleasand by-products. One of these is the so-called motherly instinct, which in turn devolves into some rather uncomfortable habits. I am definitely not in favor of the clucking habit, best reproduced on paper as a sort of "tch, tch!"

This trait of motherly women (and men, too, if they happen to be motherly) reaches its most obnoxious peak in theatres. It is liable to strike at any time—during the destruction scene in the newsreel, the seduction portion of the feature, or the interruption period while you're finding your seat.

Suppose, for example, Moscow has just been destroyed by the atom bomb. The smoke and bits of Communist are just beginning to rise in the air, while most of the theatre audience sits in awed stupefacation. Suddenly, a rather plump, pleasant-looking middle aged woman off to the right raises her voice in mild reproach—"Tch, tch!" At once, an echoing chorus rustles through the building, and bedlam reigns. The sound is comparable to a hen yard at feeding time, or the jackpot at a game of postoffice.

What do you think they are accomplishing, I'm sure I don't know. But they seem to feel that something is expected of them. It is liable to happen at any time— all that is needed is some middle-aged prophet to get it started.

I wish I knew the cause of this "clucking instinct," but frankly, I'm baffled. If I were a psychologist I might be able to pass it off as a "thwarted hen drive," or a "chicken fixation," and write a series of psychoanalytic articles on the subject.

But since I am not, I'll just have to stifle an urge I've noticed creeping up on me in the theatre. It comes just after the clucking has begun and takes the form of an impulse to get up on the back of my seat, flap my wings, and crow. I realize, now, that this would be silly. Those women can't help themselves any more than a hen can; it's a racial characteristic.

Don't get the idea from all this that I'm trying to start a campaign to eliminate motherly women from our species. They're fine people when you're asleep, unconscious, or mentally at ceiling zero. But I do wish they'd clean up their speech a little.

For instance I find it increasingly difficult to carry on any sort of an intelligent conversation when I know beforehand exactly what the standard comeback is going to be. Even chance remarks about the weather are often greeted with that familiar clucking noise. Although they don't always know what you are talking about (sometimes even you don't), these women usually realize when it's time to get their oar in. For lack of something better they come crashing through with—"Tch, tch.'

I don't know if all this affects you the way it does me. But you'll notice that very few of the great women of history have been cluckers. They just don't inspire.

Often I fall to thinking about the problem—brooding, some people call it. I picture to myself the sort of mental process that produces as cluck. I see, in my mind's eye, a picture of a motherly brain which has just been shattered by the information that it might rain tomorrow. All the little brain cells are scurrying around in a great dither, waving their hands and tearing their hair, and murmuring to one another, "Oh, dear, dear, dear; oh, this is awful; oh, my, myy!" And as the brain relays the information from the ear through a switchboard and on down a trunkline to the mouth, each little neutral center adds its own chorus of wails. By and by, the message reaches the vocal chords.

At the same time, however, another part of the brain known (to me, anyway) as the "censor" has sent down a rush telegram saying. "Don't be silly, you can't make all that fuss about the weather."

So naturally, our poor woman doesn't know quite what to do. She solves it by translating the whole

Canterbury Dean Feels University Did Not Want Him

"The University of Toronto, I understand, was not too anxious for me to speak to its students," said the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, in an interview in Toronto Saturday.

The Dean, who recently spent 12 weeks in Eastern Europe, and who is now making a speaking tour of North American cities, told reporters he had been asked to speak at the English universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Manchester and London.

At Cambridge," he said, "I was sponsored by the United Nations Association." He remarked on "anti-Eastern sentiments" in western nations and on "distortion" in the Press of England and the U. S., and asked whether English universities were "generally so far ahead of those in Canada."

No University Addresses

Asked by reporters whether he expected to address audiences at any Canadian or United States universities, the Dean said he did not. He added, however, that he was "very happy" to hear reports that short notice may have been the reason behind the difficulty his sponsors, the U. of T. Humanist Club, experienced in obtaining a place for him to speak on the campus, and that students had been anxious to hear him.

Lack of time, the Dean explained, had been the cause of his cancellation of a scheduled address at Hart House Friday. A delay in plane take-off owing to fog in London, England, he said, was responsible for the tightening of his schedule.

No Immediate War

In reply to questions, the Dean dismissed the likelihood of immediate war, "unless there should be some disastrous accident, with regard to the German situation, for instance, which would precipitate a struggle".

"The Russians do not want war," he said. "I should be very much surprised if they did not have the atom bomb secret, but I think they are much more interested in peaceful applications of atomic energy than in its potentialities as a destructive force."

To Teach Latin Dances To University Students If SAC Gives Approval

Pending the approval of the SAC Wednesday, an organized class of Social Dancing will be started on the campus Monday, November 15, George Lewis, School of Graduate Studies, said Friday. Lewis, who has had considerable experience as a dancing instructor and has given several exhibitions of Latin-American dances at University functions, will be the instructor of the classes.

Lewis said the decision to organize the class resulted from numerous approaches made him by fraternities and individual students, who desired to become more proficient in the terpsichorean art. 'It is something which has never been tried on the campus before," he said.

The social dancing group will be sponsored by the Blue and White Society subject to the approval of the SAC, Lewis said.

Classes will be held in the Junior Common Room on Monday and Tuesday of each week between 8 and 10 p. m., and will be limited to 50 students each night. At present, Lewis said, there were more women students who wish to take the instruction than men. He hoped when the groups got under way to have an equal number of men and women for each class.

Instruction will be given in the fox trot, waltz, rumba, syncopated, (swing), samba and tango. Lewis said emphasis would be placed on the rumba and samba because of the increased popularity of Latin-American music in this country.

The cost for the lessons will be $3.00 for 10 hours of instruction.

Half a Century at U.C. DeChamp, Beard Stay On

The oblique rays of the watery November sun filtered slowly through the double windows into the study of Professor de Champ. But his flashing eyes and immaculate grey-blue suit contested the autumn touch of his magnificent white beard and stooped shoulders. He came to University College from Paris when he was 24 and stayed for 49 years as Professor of French. In his lapel he wears the purple rosette of the Legion of Honour.

"When I first came to Toronto in '96 Varsity Stadium and Trinity College were forest. I took a walk there the day I reported to my senior professor. He was just about to have a lecture and so told me to 'go for a walk' ".

"No Smoking"

"Toronto wasn't an improvement on Paris," he says. "In those days the wives of the staff did not like me to smoke cigarettes. They said it was foppish. But I smoked anyway." Even in New York he was forbidden to smoke in a cafe, but that was during the days of the hansom cab and cable car.

"In those days eight out of ten professors wore a beard. The president had one, and the chancellor, and the vice-chancellor, and the registrar. In France," went on the professor, "everyone wore a beard or whiskers as you call them, except waiters, actors and priests."

Outcry Saves Whiskers

One day word got around that the Professor was going to shave his beard. The phone rang until 11 p.m. with people, particularly co-eds, begging him, "Oh, Papa de Champ, please don't cut your beard." The down-town papers, including the "Mail and Empire," picked up the story but Professor de Champ had no comment. So they turned to the barber and "took poor man out of his shop and photographed him from all sides." The next time the professor visited the barber's, he saw the walls literally papered with cuts of the barber and captioned, "the only man allowed to trim the Professor's beard." Now his old barber is dead and the present barbers, he says, "have no respect for a beard."

Recalls Early Days

For a man who has passed the traditional three score and ten years, Professor de Champ has an excellent memory and sense of humour. There was no Hart House when he came, of course, just "an ugly gymnasium" and the men's residences were in the cloisters downstairs. The Junior Common Room was the dining hall. On Hallowe'en the students brought a cow from the pasture at the corner of Bloor and Avenue Road and put her in the tower over the dining room. They had a time teaching that cow to walk down stairs.

"One Sunday I was sitting in the Waverly Hotel having breakfast when I heard a clatter outside. Everyone flew to the window and shouted, 'A car, a car.' It was the first time a street car ran in Toronto on a Sunday. Later it became the thing to take a Sunday outing on the belt line, especially as it only cost five cents."

No Streets of Gold

Hoskin Avenue then was made of wooden blocks and the sidewalks were planks. "When you walked along, it gave you the sensation of walking on a keyboard."

At that time, the corner of King and Simcoe Streets offered Torontonians four different paths, Administration, Education, Salvation, and Damnation. These were represented by a government office, Upper Canada College, St. Andrew's Church, and a tavern.

Now, Professor de Champ, afflicted with rheumatism, continues his studies of Spanish and Russian, awaiting the time when he can return to his native France.

Parking Only On Inside Of Front Campus Road Commencing Wednesday

Commencing Wednesday, November 10th, and until further notice parking will be prohibited on the inside of the road around the Front Campus, the Superintendent's Office announced yesterday.

The problem of the parking of automobiles within the University grounds and its relation to the regulation of traffic has become a serious one. This problem is receiving careful study and consideration and it is hoped to make a definite announcement regarding further regulations in the very near future, the announcement said.

The co-operation of everyone is requested in observing this regulation and assisting in relief of this problem said the superintendent.

Brewer Sets Pace For Varsity Win; Deadlock For Lead

By BOB DNIEPER

Varsity's scrappy Little Blues yesterday showed a powerful O.A.C. aggregation just who was boss around the intermediate circuit. On a field softened and greased by an all night rain our Varsity seconds out-scatted the Aggies to win 16-7.

The Blue backfield, led by Galloping Bill Brewer, Bob Garside, and Greg McFadden, out-ran and out-passed the Aggie backs by a wide margin. Goomer Raitby, Bernie Brennan, and Tony Calverley played a solid plunging game for the OACers, but plunges don't gain as much ground as good passes.

Garside Scores

The two teams battled up and down the field for eighteen minutes of the first quarter without getting anywhere on the score sheet, although Varsity had a wonderful chance when they were ten yards out from the Aggies' goal line. With two minutes to go in the stanza Garside kicked a beauty seventy yards to the OAC fifteen. A quick kick by Toni Calverley was blocked and the Blues recovered. An end run and a plunge carried the ball to the six. With the aid of lovely blocking, Bob Garside pulled a perfect double reverse to go over for the initial touch. Al Stevenson made good the convert although it was partially blocked.

Five minutes on in the second quarter Tony Calverley kicked a forty-yard beauty over the Varsity line for a single. The Blues began to press, but a blocked kick on the Aggies 50 made it OAC first, and 10. A sharp pass to Raithby put him in the clear, but for some reason he stepped away out of touch even though there were no tacklers near him. But from the Varsity eleven Raithby went over to make it 6-5. The convert failed and the half ended.

Brewer Outruns Aggies

At two minutes of the second half Calverley again kicked for a single on a tackle by Doc. Savage. The Blues line began to give the backs decent support at this point, and the team drove strongly in spite of some heavy penalties and costly fumbles. From his own 50 Bill Brewer plunged and scooted past the whole Aggie team with a sweet bit of change of pace running for a touchdown. The convert failed, to put the Blues up 11-7.

Sinclair Majors

Aggies then pulled their way to the Varsity one-yard line, but the Blue line held for three downs with some powerful bulling of their own. A potential OAC march was nipped by Rich Howson on an interception and the Blues grabbed four quick first downs on wonderful running and passing by Brewer and Co. Hubie Sinclair went over from a yard out to end the scoring at 16-7.

Rich Howson's two timely pass interceptions kept the Redmen out of Carsity territory, and the game

Fair Successful Despite Threat Of Rainy Skies

Despite dark and rainy skies, a large crowd of students gathered on the front campus to greet Miss Red Feather and President Sidney Smith at the o'ficial opening of the Red Feather Fair on Friday.

In a parade led by the Blue and White band, the president, accompanied by May Murry (Miss Red Feather) and Jane Hazard, Chairman of the Campus Red Feather committee, rode in a bright-colored jalopy from Simcoe Hall around the campus to the stand where the opening ceremony was held.

The president's speech was abruptly ended by the loud crash of the "Skule" cannon, and the band broke into a lively march as the fair was opened. The crowds then fell back as "Whipper" Billy and his wrestling foe Pat Flannigan led the tug-of-war teams from SPS and PHE onto the field.

In the side-lines, the U. of T. cheerleaders acted as bookies, taking bets on the outcome of the contest. Since the outcome of the game was not certain, no one was able to collect his bet, and the entire proceeds have gone into the Red Feather Fund.

While the test of strength continued, there was a brisk business at the near-by hot-dog stand, and not far off the cider booth did a thriving trade with those who felt the need of something a little stronger to fortify themselves.

The PHE booth, which was selling popular brands of cigarettes at pre-war prices was sold out long before the fair was over.

Other features of the fair were the fortune teller's tent, the "Horror House", the penny toss, the "pinhead" machine and a nail hammering contest.

Unknown to many was the activity of a small group at the Red Feather headquarters set up in the West wing of University College. They were kept busy as the returns from the pretty taggers and the Faculty Of Music Rattle For Feather Fair Tonight

The Undergraduate Association of the Faculty of Music announced today that the draw for the 14 prizes in their Red Feather Raffle, will be made tonight. The reason for postponing the draw from Friday, was to allow for the sale of more tickets during the week-end and today.

Heavy rain, which swamped the Campus during the fair on Friday, and sent patrons and the music faculty's ticket-sellers scurrying for shelter disrupted the ticket sales. The committee decided that due to the value of the prizes donated gratis,—mostly by Campus organizations and advertisers in The Varsity, a further sale of tickets was justified.

The draw will be conducted by the Undergrad executive, scrutinized by faculty profs R. A. Rosevear and A. R. Johnston.

Prizes to be drawn for include books, valued $12.00, Varsity Book-Store; $10 credit on a men's or women's tailored suit, or $5.00 on a pair of men's or women's tailored slacks, Embassy Tailors; men's sport scarves, Stollery's; men's plaid necktie, Freedman's Clothiers; $5.00 credit for music, Gordon V. Thompson Ltd.; 3 prizes of recordings, from Heintzman's, Promenade Music Centre, and Varsity Record Bar; theatre tickets, Odeon Theatres; concert tickets, Massey Hall, and a one-week meal ticket, Wilson's Restaurant.

Book Review

The Portable Swift

The Portable Swift (MacMillan & Co., $2.75) does not possess the completeness of the Joyce volume, in which so much that has been hitherto unavailable is put together in one compact selection. It does present the whole of Gulliver's Travels, but for the rest of Swift's work is content with a sampling of letters, a fairly long section of the Journal to Stella, and a short chapter from each of Tale of a Tub and Battle of the Books. As such it is quite worthless for anyone with more than a passing interest in "the greatest satirist in our language". The publishers of this series are interested, obviously, in reprinting the great writers, past and present. It is unfortunate, then, that they are content with producing a scrap-book rather than a comprehensive volume.

It is important to stress this point, since in so many of their books the editors have taken liberties with texts which make them nothing more than a sampling of the author's work. The notable examples of this are the Hemingway, Lawrence, and in particular, the Faulkner volume. If Mr. Faulkner had intended his picture of the South to be built up of stray chapters from his novels he would, presumably, have written it that way. The editors of the Portables have taken upon themselves, with a good deal of presumption, the task of presenting what they think to be valuable. It is one more instance of the modern tendency to spoon-feed readers. In an anxiety to read only the high spots of an author's writing, the contemporary dilettante will often miss the essential core of its meaning. Which is all right if what is wanted is a mere speaking knowledge of the author in question.

Mr. Van Doren's introduction is adequate for the selection he has presented. At one point he states, "Swift might also have understood . . . that simple formulas would not explain him". Mr. Van Doren, too, has been content with simple formulas. He is a master of the paradox, that enemy of sincere literary criticism. A sample line from one of his thematic paragraphs reads: "Swift was a misanthropist, but he is famous for his friendships". This sentence structure is continued throughout and does make striking and easy reading. Its one defect is that it is meaningless, a freshman trick, carried over into what is presumably serious criticism. The biographical elements, however, are satisfactory and do give a good general summary of Swift's career. Van Doren sticks to facts and does not indulge in the trivia that made John O'Hara's infantile introduction to the F. Scott Fitzgerald's Portable yet another insult to that brilliant American writer.

The Swift Portable is not the worst of this series, but it does illustrate the faults that are prevalent throughout. If the editors would restrict themselves as do those of the Modern Library to whole works, what they would lose in superficial comprehensiveness they would make up in usefulness.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC WING

The Editor, The Varsity;

Dear Sir:

Today we received an S.A.C. questionnaire on the co-educational students' war memorial. We think the co-educational building is a fine thing. We're all for it!—But what happened to the women's athletic wing? The need for such has certainly not diminished. Take basketball for instance. There are 24 interfaculty teams in the girls' basketball league. With one gym and each team having one practice and one game a week, where does this leave "les femmes"? (You can't call L. M. a gym). Even O.C.E. (our one and only) isn't regulation for intercollegiate games.

Why is it that mostly residence girls play sports? It's either a game or a dinner for city girls! Enthusiasm is at such a low pitch that the coaches are lucky to snap up enough players for a team, regardless of ability. Before a barber shop and beauty parlor let's have women's athletic facilities—a swimming pool and a double gym at least!

The original poll was for a co-educational building with a women's athletic wing. Why ignored in the latest questionnaire?

Yours indignantly,

(Are we ever!)

NO CHILDREN ALLOWED

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear sir:

I had just finished writing my essay for the Apartment for Peggy contest, and to be perfectly sure that I had written it according to the rules, I phoned the SAC and here I received a bitter disappointment. I was informed that I was unable to qualify for the contest, it was another case of "no children allowed".

Thinking this somewhat of an injustice since the contest was advertised as open to all vets, I phoned the sponsor, Twentieth Century Fox. Here I was dramatically told of the grand prizes awaiting the lucky young couple, and informed that the contest was to help some young "G.I. Joe" and his wife who were really destitute, then in the same breath told the same story as above "no children allowed".

There's no doubt as to the generosity of the firms and independent donors who have made this contest possible, but it appears to me that the wrong group is being helped. I know of no business couple here at school whose combined earnings are not at least twice that of the married man with one child. Further, one has only to look in the Apartments or Rooms-to-Let column in the daily papers, as we do desperately every day, to see the nauseating phrase "business couples only." So in addition to being able to afford these apartments, the opportunities to obtain one are much greater to the business couple than to the couple blessed with an offspring. This may all sound like sour grapes to you but after living in one-and-a-half rooms for eighteen months, working at least twenty-four hours a week, over and above my course, to continue to live in this little palace, and then to be told that you don't qualify for a contest, whose aim is to help a really destitute young couple, well, wouldn't you feel a little bitter?

Marg Ireland

Miss Ireland is a purposeful young lady of 20 who made her Toronto debut at Eaton Auditorium on Saturday night. Her program would have startled a veteran but she played with a sense of assurance which belied her youth. The program opened with Beethoven's Sonata Op. 110 in A flat. Miss Ireland played it stripped of everything except the notes, and I found this lack of personality peculiarly disturbing. It was not until the last movement when the fuga opened with such startling clarity that I suddenly wished she had included some Bach on her program. Neither Miss Ireland nor I relaxed until she played Sonata No. 3 by Prokofieff, in which her strong rhythmic sense came to the force.

The second half of the program was given over entirely to Chopin. The slow movement of the B flat minor Sonata is still too lush and too long, but Miss Ireland made me like it and her. She refrained from the over-sentimentality which usually overtaxes one's credulity. Five Chopin etudes closed the program. I remember particularly the Op. 10 in E flat minor with its liquid chromatic accompaniment, and a refreshingly feminine rendition of the Op. 10 in F major.

Miss Ireland richly deserved two encores, Debussy's Reflets dans l'Eau which seemed like the freshness of youth thrilling to its first realization of sylvan beauty, and Chopin's Revolutionary Etude. (Thank you, Miss Ireland, for a most enjoyable evening.)

One-Act Plays

Saturday evening the University Drama Committee presented a group of one-act plays in Hart House Theatre. The College dramatic societies deserve a great deal of praise for so intelligent a choice of plays and the high quality of production.

St. Michael's offered "Still Stands the House", a grim agricultural drama which showed to advantage the acting abilities of Jane McNally, Mary Warriner, and Jim Hamelin. Trinity turned up with "The Wonder Hat", a pleasant but insignificant fantasy which the players were able to rescue by a spirited and gusty reading of what are surely the most insipid lines of the year. Bill Elliott was responsible both in his directorial and acting capacities for much of its success.

"Overlaid", a play by Robertson Davies, proved to be the high spot of the evening. The U.C. Players' Guild mobilized some of their best talent to do full justice to this biting satire on Canadian rural life. John Walker, as Pop, who is "overlaid" by the goodness of his hatchet-faced daughter, was in fine fettle. Edith Greenberg, as the "emotionally understimulated" daughter whose one goal in life is to have a commanding plot in the community cemetery, was excellent. Special mention should also be made of Eric House and Sheila Craig, whose voice caricatures of Milton Cross and Mrs. August Belmont, left all opera lovers breathless.

Your long-suffering reviewer was finally rewarded by an evening of lively plays well presented.

Leo Smith

There will be more pretentious recitals this season than that presented by Leo Smith, Saturday afternoon, at the Heliconian Club. But it is doubtful that any will be more thoroughly satisfying than this performance of compositions for the Viola da Gamba by Bach, and for voice and piano, and voices and Viola da Gamba by Mr. Smith.

While the replacement of the Viola da Gamba by the Violoncello in the modern orchestra is readily understandable, there is no denying the charm of the former, both as a solo instrument, and as an accompaniment to the voice. We were delighted by the quality and diversity of tone produced under Mr. Smith's bow, and were only occasionally disturbed by a tendency to roughness in the lower extreme of its range—a roughness we take to be characteristic of the instrument.

Three groups of songs for solo voice and piano were sung by

Blue Soccer Squads Split With O.A.C.

Harrier Squad Win By 20-35 Over Alfred U.

By DAVE BARR

Varsity intercollegiate Harrier Squad competing in the Alleghany mountains, defeated Alfred University on Saturday by a low five man score of 20-35.

Varsity's Gord Wilson climaxed his consistent scoring performance to break the tape in the record setting time of 19:03. The course was new to both teams, being laid out because of the muddy condition of the regular hilly version.

Gord was closely followed by team mate George Doull who finished in 19:66. Third place was captured by Dunc Green of Varsity in 19 18. George McMullan of Varsity took sixth position to finish ahead of Dave Barr, and Bud McCurry who placed eighth and ninth. In a fighting finish Don Wanless closed up to twelfth and Varsity's seventh man.

This was the team's second meet of the season, the first having been run the week previously at High Park against Buffalo State Teachers College and Niagara University. In this meet Varsity lost by a close 28-29 score to Buffalo. George Doull, the Forestry Superman captured individual honours by edging out Cook of Buffalo near the tape to win in the unconfirmed record time of 28:00.3. Varsity's first five were Doull, Wilson (S.P.S.), Green (U.C.), Barr, (S.P.S.), and McMullen (S.M.C.).

The Senior Interfaculty Harrier, run on the same day on a time basis with the Intercollegiate Squad was won by University College whose team consisted of Green, Gawinski, Flowers, Niblock and Denbeigh. Second place honors went to S.P.S., third to Ajax, fourth to Forestry and fifth to St. Mike's.

Shortly after the Senior Interfaculty meet Coach Hal Brown announced that the Senior Intercollegiate team would consist of Doull, Wilson, Green, McMullen and Barr. The Seniors will be competing for the Intercollegiate title against McGill and Queen's in Montreal this Saturday.

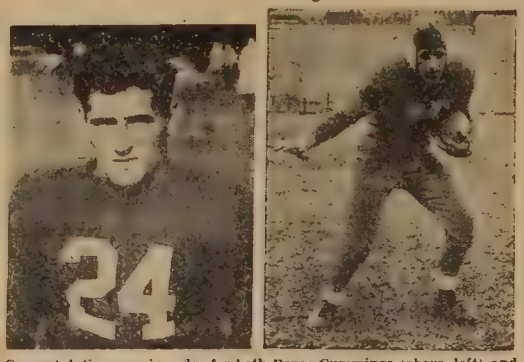
Afterthoughts

Rain or Mud Doesn't Stop Varsity Spirit

By STAN FILMORE

If rain and three inches of mud slowed down the plays at Richardson Memorial stadium last Saturday, it did nothing to dampen the spirit of the thousands in the stands. For a short time, two fans with more than the average amount of spirit, played an impromptu game in the end zone. These "men of tomorrow" passed, kicked, ran, and fell with all the zeal of the regular team — and accumulated just as much mud on themselves.

Did you see—the Queen's substitute late in the game who managed to keep his uniform so bright for three full plays? How quickly those Queen's Science men got around the goal posts at the end of the game. The last play of the game? The forlorn looking bandsman who had been ejected from his own hotel room several times by police, who thought he was a loiterer?



Did you know—that one Varsity man went to Kingston prepared to hack down the goal posts with a murderous looking machette and that he made good use of it? Joe Potts persuaded the moths to let him wear his cookskin coat to Queen's That the Blues came back without serious injuries, but students returning to the train sported ankles in casts, bandaged chins, and broken fingers?

Did you wonder—if all Queen's dances at one dollar a couple? If all the Queen's dances are held in the gymnasium? If the gymnasium always smells so much like a gymnasium?

Did you hear — that Queen's painted their goal posts with white lead to keep Varsity from touching them?

Did you realize — that enthusiastic Varsity-ites, with the aid of newspapers, downed those same goal posts at eight o'clock on Saturday night?

Without Mud They're Like This

Congratulations are in order for both Bruce Cummings (above, left) and Ted Toogood. Bruce kicked all four of the Varsity points in last Saturday's muddy gridiron duel at Richardson Stadium. A field goal and a single accounted for the Toronto total. In addition to playing a mighty fine game for the Blues, Ted is to be congratulated on other grounds. The star Varsity flying wing will take a bride today and The Varsity wishes to add their voice to a multitude of other friends to say, "Best of luck to you and the wife, Ted".

Gaels Paint Goal Posts To Stop Blue Attackers

By BILL STOCKMAN

One of the most brilliant moves in the history of goal post defending was uncovered after the game at Richardson Stadium on Saturday afternoon as Varsity beat Queen's 4-0. The multi-colored coats of some ardent students are mute testimony to the forethought employed by devlish men who painted their goal posts early Saturday morning.

The Queen's defenders were a little better organized than the Varsity attackers with the result that the goal posts escaped unscathed in the after-game melee. However, a few scurrilous Blue's men hid in the stands until the stadium was deserted, at which time they emerged under cover of approaching darkness to cart off their trophy—a six-foot hunk of cross bar.

One of the many little tussles that were taking place around the field was that of a Gael bandsman fighting desperately to avoid the removal of his kilts by eager Varsityites.

After five minutes of play, the muddy condition of the field made it almost impossible to tell one player from the next. Identification was so difficult that when a point was made it was necessary to look up on the score board to see which team had scored. As the boys walked off the field to the showers, the coaches were seen counting heads, making sure no one was missing in action. As a double-check, the officials raked the mud for two hours afterwards.

Orchids to Tommy Waldon for a well-played, well-called game. Greatly underrated, "Ike" always comes up with a fighting performance.

Roses to Teddy Toogood. He is getting married today. (Quiet skeptics).

SMC Blank Meds In Soccer Tilt

St. Mike's defeated Pre-Meds 3-0 in soccer on Friday for the second time this season.

Last time they won by default but this time the boot was very nearly on the other foot as the double blues were only playing nine men in the opening minutes of the game. Nevertheless they were able to hold off the attack until the rest of their men came on from labs and late classes and then they started their scoring.

Jerry Mathews' hard play was rewarded by a well-earned left-footed goal half way through the first half, which ended on a score of 1-0. In the second half, with Vic Quesneil doing the work of a good two men for the St. Mike's defence, the double blues pressed hard again and Andre Valere scored a goal. He soon followed this up with a successful penalty shot which put St. Mike's in a 3-0 lead which they held to the end.

SPORTSWOMAN

Softball

The finals between PHE I and Vic I begin tomorrow at one o'clock. The teams will battle it out in a best of three series of seven inning games.

Vic I ousted PHE II from the finals by a 11-10 win last Thursday. At the end of the third innings the score of this game stood at 10-1, Vic leading. With a great burst of enthusiasm the Fiz Edders ganged up on their opponents and brought the score up to a 10-10 tie in the first of the fourth. But in spite of this, they were unable to keep Vic from scoring the winning run.

Basketball

On Friday night at OCE, Vic Freshies B walked over UC Freshies B 27-7. UC played the whole game with only five players.

Physio B edged out St. Mike's B 13-10 in the second and last game on Friday.

Wednesday's Results

PHE III surged ahead in the last half to down St. Hilda's Jr-Srs.

UC Sophs defeated Vic Soph A 26-18.

St. Mike's A took PHE II for a 20-8 ride.

Vic Srs were beaten 19-13 byUC Srs.

The power cut-offs are going to throw the schedule into a turmoil. Watch your bulletin board today and future issues of The Varsity to see when the games affected will be played.

Don't forget that you play badminton at St. Paul's Anglican Church on Bloor Street every Tuesday and Wednesday from two until half-past four. Be sure to sign the book when you play, but don't worry, the SAC won't send you a bill, it's free. Bring your own birds.

WOMEN PLAY BOXLA

UC women will battle it out against St. Hilda's at one o'clock today in the third women's lacrosse game ever to be held on the campus.

The red and white team took the first two games 2-1 and 8-2 but the Trinity gals plan to draw on all their reserves and avenge their previous defeats.

This game on Trinity field at lunch hour should be an interesting struggle and disbelieving men will be goggling at the players from the sidelines.

Intermediates Win 2-1, Aggies Drop Seniors 1-0

By BILL BABCOCK

On the back campus at OAC on Saturday afternoon, the U of T soccerites won and lost. The Intermediates stretched their winning streak to 4 straight, with a 2-1 score, while the seniors lost 1-0.

Aggies took an early lead in the Intermediate game when Benney banged in a nice goal on which Ted Kersey had no chance. The Blues surged back and held Guelph in their own end 'til half time, but were unable to score. As the second half began, the Blues were rewarded when Glyn Williams returned a rebound into the Aggie net. The play went from end to end, and the superb playing of both goalies was all that kept the score down.

The most spectacular play of the afternoon was when Benney, the Guelph centre forward, was out in front racing for the goal with only Kersey to beat. Ted came out 30 yards from his net and made a terrific save as he snatched the ball from the Aggie player.

The Blues, led by Capt. Al Beckwith, fought back to the attack. They had many chances around the goal and finally scored. The whole forward line, five players, figured in this play, with Beckwith finally passing the ball to Williams who scored the winning goal of the game, his second.

Playing with only eleven men, the Toronto boys were very tired at the conclusion of regulation time. However, they were on the spot when needed and after a brief lapse in the opening moments of the game, they held the Aggies scoreless. This was the first time this season that the Intermediates have even been scored upon. If three stars are to be given we will pick Glyn Williams with his two goals, Ted Kersey who saved the day for the Blues on many occasions, in goals and Al Beckwith for his tireless work, most effectively done.

The senior game was equally as exciting, and although the Blues lost, they were the better of the two teams. Every member of the "eleven", worked hard and effectively all the time. Even though the Blues failed to score, they played their best game of the season. The veteran referees said its was the best soccer they had seen for many years.

Both teams attacked viciously throughout the whole game. The only score came for OAC when they were allowed a penalty shot, on an accidental hand-ball. Their centre, Jeff Lord, the hero of the Aggie camp, took the shot and drilled a beautiful, bullet-like one into the lower right-hand corner of the net. Newt Reed had little chance on the shot.

Playing with only eleven men and no substitutes, Varsity came back srtongly, after half-time and actually put the ball over the line, into the goal. However, the referee saw fit to disallow the goal. To add injury to insult, Adam Glass was badly hurt when he smashed into the goal-post. Another injury occurred when Neville Conyers was severely hurt in a high-sliding tackle, by one of the Aggie players.

Varsity had many scoring opportunities, but were unable to score. They surged all over the OAC team in the second half, and it was only the tricky wind, and the spectacular goal-tending of the Aggie goalie, which kept them off the score sheet. Brian Barton had two free kicks in front of the goal, and placed them right on. Both times the Aggie players were lucky astrous effects. The Blues had an enough to clear without any disexcellent defense and they cleared time and again, when the Aggies threatened. Jeff Lord, playing centre for the Guelph team, is acclaimed as one of the best in the Intercollegiate loop. Before the game Barton was worried about him, but when Ted Evans and Bill Peters took over he was not nearly as effective as he has been in the past. Evans was the best player on the field. Time and again he cleared the ball out of danger, around the Blues nets. The Toronto team functioned as a compact, efficient unit and but for bad luck, they would have won. They still have a chance to win the title, however, if they beat Western and Guelph in the next two week-ends.

WOMEN'S INTERCOLLEGIATE SWIMMING TEAM: At last, at last! After weeks of concentrated effort. Under the able guidance of Miss Baxter, our Blue and White team has been picked. The speedsters are: Marg Harrington, PHE, Phil Manning, St. Hilda's, Zaira Murray, UC, and Pam Perrin, Vic, with Ann Malcolm, St. Mike's, and Marion Mulloy, Vic, still competing for the last place or the sub and manager position on the team.

Marg Howson, PHE, and Maureen Martin, PHE, are diving while Peggy Quiggin, Vic, and Jackie Tobian, Art and Meds, are looking after style and ornamental, swimming.

There is a meet at Humberside Collegiate on Monday, November 15th, at 4 o'clock and the big meet at McGill is on December 4th.

RECREATIONAL SWIMMING: How many are interested in swimming just for fun? It can be done at the Lillian Massey pool and is open to all girls in PHE, Physio Therapy, Occupational Therapy and 1st year. Also other years, who have paid their athletic fees.

The times for these "splash parties" are: Mondays, 5-5:30, Wednesdays, 3-4, Thursday, 5-5:30. Swimming at noon on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1-2, is an experiment and the continuation of such a plan depends entirely on the interest shown.

For all these chances of really getting back into the water again, there will be a small charge of either 3 tickets for a $1.00, lasting for three swims, or $3.00 to the Bursar, to cover all year.

ORNAMENTAL CLUB: Miss Baxter has announced the beginning of an Ornamental Club, for all those interested in this phase of swimming. It is to be held on Mondays from 4:00-5:00, and will begin today at the Lillian Massey Pool.

ART — MUSIC and DRAMA

Myrtle Bruce-Brown, whose complete understanding of the character and intention of each son evidenced sincerity of expression. Richness of quality and really impeccable diction rendered insignificant a few minor flaws in production, and gave each song a presentation that must have gratified the composer-accompanist.

Unfortunately, there is not space to comment upon each of these songs, save to note their originality and commendable variety of form and style; nor can we do more than record our enjoyment of the group of songs which concluded the recital, and in which the beautifully—modulated voices of Myrtle Bruce-Brown, Robin Paterson, Anna McDonald and Harold Sallach, together with the Viola da Gamba accompaniment created a perfect blend and unusually fine tonal texture. Leo Smith is evidently as excellent a judge of singers as he is a cellist, a gambist and a composer.

WHAT EVERY YOUNG MAN AND young woman should know. A three hundred dollar Federal plan to subsidize air training has just been announced at Ottaka. This includes a grant of one hundred dollars to each approved pilot turned out by an approved air club or school. In other words you can register at Central Airways, Island Airport, and learn to fly at Ottawa's expense. Take your lessons, pay for them, get your license, get back the price by collecting one hundred dollars from Ottawa. Central Airways is just one nickel from the street-car at the foot of Bathurst. Phone WA 9374 for more on this. There is still time to get your license this year.

THERE'S A TEN PERCENT reduction for the U. of T. student on Society Brand Suits and Overcoats at Teasdall's Clothes Shop Ltd., 804 Yonge Street. Obviously it's not necessary to whoop it up above a whisper on this subject since a word or two is sufficient to turn the money-saving individual who is on the prowl for a suit that will win friends and influence people. A Society Brand label on suit or over-coat is a guarantee of the quality Look, and the ten percent price dive for school-men a gift-bonus of nice tody savings.

MEN . . . THERE'S NO FOOLING about quality at Dan McGee's, where those brogues you thought would be up in the 'teen' class are held down to two pri es, 7.85 and 8.45. Probably they do it by making these two prices general throughout the store, cutting down on the book-keeping detail, but the fact is shoes you want at any price are there at Dan M Gee's, and you'll get change from your ten. Worth a trip to the Arcade, the Yonge Street corner entrance, at 133 Yonge. Those shoes are shoes, dress as well as brogues, that will walk with you in foot comfort and good looks for a long, long time.

YOU HAVE FORTY-EIGHT chances of looking as beautiful as your mother thinks you are. Go to Polyfoto, Bloor at Balmuto, and let them get to work as only Polyfoto is equipped to work, to shoot you in every known facial expression as you sit apparently alone with your thoughts, with an about-to-meet-a-friend-eager-look or any other form of play-acting you care to assume. First forty-eight shots, just two dollars. You can have any number enlarged you like, at moderate charge.

RAN INTO THE TRAVERS FOX showrooms the other day and there was a customer with a problem figure or that was the way it looked to the naked eye. She wasn't old either, just there was too much of her in some places, and the suit she was wearing didn't level it off. Well, after one thing and another we glimpsed the lady on the way out and she was stately in a Travers Fox dress which was one of those wear-it-all-day jobs in basic black with the right buckle here and there. "Now there's a figure", we almost said, "we could use ourselves." And that's what a well-trained clothes expert can do under what might be called provocative conditions.

HERE'S AN INVITATION from the management of that new Evangeline Shop in the U of T district, namely at Bloor and Bay. They want you to make it your own, to provide you with a looking-post for what's new and what to pay for it. Drop in, try things on and there'll be no dirty looks if you go out without spending. The Evangeline idea is to be awfully pleasant, awfully efficient and to specialize in the kind of sales help that is not there to trap you into buying at all costs.

SOMEONE WE KNOW WAS rushing off to New York on an important business job, was going to have to attend meetings with executive-minded males and knew the importance of that magazine-cover look. She climbed the stairs to Gilbert Phillip's, over Madame Cluthe's, at 95 Bloor St. W, and in no time at all Gilbert got the idea, came forth with a replica of what she meant when she pawed the hair and said, "thus and so." Very quick, very clever and very simpatico is Gilbert Phillips.

THEY WERE HAVING FUN at Joan Rigby's during the first P.M. blackout. New and intimate lamps were spluttering away and all the customers were chatting together and it was more like a merry party than a shopping centre. Somebody quipped "All we need is a grate fire and some cocktails" and that's the atmosphere around Joan Rigby's these days. No doubt it helps that when people have been very happy in a purchase they come back and visit the place with added friendliness, but whatever it is, there's that thing called "personality" at 54 Bloor St. West.

THE WEATHER Cloudy and Mild

LXVIII, NO. 33 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Tuesday, November 9, 1948

Night Classes Not Affected By Power Cut

The evening power cuts will have little effect on the courses offered by the Department of University Extension, said W. J. Dunlop, director of the department, yesterday. Only two classes are affected by the cut offs: one in teaching, and one in advertising. These classes, originally scheduled to start at 7.30, have been moved back to 8:00.

Up to now seven buildings have been affected by the daily cuts and will be affected by the evening cuts as well. These buildings are University College, O.C.E., Hart House, Dentistry Building, Household Science Building, the Museum and the Economics Building. These buildings now have emergency lighting in the worst spots. This emergency lighting is produced by the university power plant which, however, is not capable of producing enough electricity to aid the entire university. They have a certain percentage of electricity supplied by the Hydro Electric Power Company. This is the method by which the Mechanical, Mining and Physics Buildings are lighted in the present cut-offs.

Park Outside Not Inside

A headline in yesterday's issue of THE VARSITY gave the erroneous impression that parking would only be permitted on the inside of the road about the Front Campus, while the story beneath this head stated it would be permitted.

Officials of the Superintendent's Office reiterated yesterday that the ruling was as announced in the story, "Commencing Wednesday, November 10, and until further notice, parking will be prohibited on the INSIDE of the road around the Front Campus."

Moves From Skule to Arts, Discovers Both Necessary

By PETE NEWMAN

Yes, I am in Pass Arts. Yes, I was in Engineering. No, I don't want to get married.

What is the difference between Arts and Engineering? What are the things that make Skuleman better than Artsmen? Or versa-vice? Why is there such a deep chasm between them?

Well, all things being equal, we'll start at as good a place as any—the begining.

A long, long time ago when Toronto was just another swamp. (This tradition, by the way, is still observed every Sunday) all men lived in a complete state of ignorance.

Knowledge first progressed when the Romans conquered the world so that they could build bridges and the Greeks looked at various aspects of various aspects to produce philosophy.

In "them thar days", and for the next few years, only Artsmen inhabited the campuses, while the engineer was an intergrated part of the army. How then was the venerable creed of Engineering born?

Contrary to public opinion it was not begun at Coventry by Lady Godiva and a white horse, neither was it begun by the wonderful invention of mixing water, hops, barley and water together to make beer.

It was started by the millwright of the last century who was an itinerant engineer and mechanic of high reputation. The advances made in science and technology during the past two hundred years have far exceeded those that had occurred in all preceding history. It is thus a new study compared with that of the liberal arts.

Of course it is impossible, and wrong to say which of the two studies is better; but it might do some good to clear up various misconceptions that exist between them.

The Artsman sees the Engineer as a completely uncultured being who, at the slightest provocation bursts out into a vigorous "Toike Oike." A being who is completely lost without his slide-rule, and is always trying to drink forty beers. Never quite sure if he made it the last time—he keeps trying.

The Engineer sees the Artsman as a person supersaturated with culture, and possessing an English accent. A person who walks around with his nose high in the air like a hunting dog on the trail. And whenever spoken to blinks stupidly through horn-rimmed glasses. In fact, has the unique personality of a dead fish.

These two impressions, although exaggerated, do exist in some measure. They are completely wrong. (Naturally.)

Is Engineering or Arts better? Is Day or Night better? Both are necessary, and neither can exist alone.

Leonardo da Vinci and Rozumniak are not the only two traditions that the two have in common. We are all part of the great U. of T.

Canterbury's Dean Definitely Coming For Thursday Talk

The Dean of Canterbury, the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, will address students of this University Thursday, Nov. 11. The Dean, who told reporters Saturday that he did not then intend to speak to student groups either in Canada or the U. S. during his tour of this continent, and who cancelled his previously scheduled address here Friday because of shortness of time, will make a special trip here Thursday from Montreal.

Need More Space

"Interest on the campus has been so tremendous that we have been trying to obtain a larger hall than the Hart House Debates Room," said Frank Rebick, vice-president of the Humanist Society which is sponsoring the Dean's appearance on the campus. The society, he said, hopes to obtain a place to which women could be admitted to hear the speaker. "Further announcements will be made as to the time and place of the Dean's address," said Rebick.

Visit Uncertain at First

Speaking Sunday night at Massey Hall, Dr. Johnson reiterated his earlier statement to the press that he had come to promote peace by encouraging a better understanding of Russia in the Western nations. Approximately 2,000 Torontonians who turned out to hear the Dean Sunday were turned away after the Hall was packed to the doors by those who came earlier to listen to Dr. Johnson's account of his recent 12-weeks' visit to Eastern Europe and his Russian tour in 1945.

Two reasons, Humanist Society officials reported, lay behind the Dean's cancellation of last week's visit to the University. A 24-hour delay in plane take-off in London because of fog, combined with another full day's hold up at immigration offices on his arrival in Canada forced the Dean's sponsors to tighten his schedule. At a press conference Saturday, however, Dr. Johnson remarked that he understood the University of Toronto was "not too anxious" for him to address its students. He said that his sponsors, the Humanist Society, had experienced some difficulty in obtaining a suitable hall for the intended visit last week.

No Objection to Speech

Warden Nicholas Ignatieff of Hart House, when interviewed last week, said he had granted the use of the Debates Room to the organization sponsoring the Dean "as a matter of course".

"Any speaker sufficiently well-versed in his subject to be capable of speaking to the students and of interesting them," he said, "may be permitted to do so in Hart House." It was reported that the Humanist Society was refused the use of Convocation Hall last Friday because the time they had chosen conflicted with lectures being given there.

V.C.F.

Rev. Robert Barr, M.A., will speak in the Vic Chapel at noon today, on "The Need of Repentance."

Students Needed For Postal Jobs In Holiday Rush

Applications for Christmas employment at the Post Office should be completed by the end of the week, according to information from the SAC employment office. Types of employment include letter carriers, sorters, and routers; all paid at the rate of 70c an hour.

Letter carriers will be hired for thirteen days beginning December 16. Three shifts of sorters will be employed for seven or eight days also beginning December 16. Routers will work on a night shift for eight days from December 19 to 28.

Both men and women will be hired as sorters; but men only will be given the positions of carriers and routers. Ex-servicemen with overseas time will be given preference in employment.

All applicants will be notified by mail sometime after the first of December.

No figures are available yet this year on the number of students registering or the number of jobs available. Last year 1,400 students were hired for Post Office employment.

University students should fill in applications at the SAC employment offices, not at the post office.

Greed for Money Make Rich Marry Says LPP Leader

Whether Communists do or do not believe in free love was discussed at a meeting of the L.P.P. Club in University College yesterday. No decisive conclusion was reached although the group did decide that men and women should be equal.

The leader of the group, Norman Endicott, III Philosophy, said that love could be placed in three categories: desire for money and securities, sex passion and the desire to work together for common good. He expressed the opinion that the present inequality of men and women meant that marriage in the wealthier classes is based on the first of these with a slight tempering of the second. The poorer classes, having no money are guided by the third.

That maternal care of the young is largely a myth, was one of the decisions of the group. State nurseries are more efficient than busy mothers, who if rich employ nurses or if poor send their children to play in the streets. The lot of women in our society can not be improved while difficulties are placed in the way of married women getting jobs.

The discussion group encountered difficulty in defining morality when the issue of prostitution arose. Members from the floor contributed queries as to the practicality of stamping out prostitution when venereal disease can be eradicated. Another voice objected to the use of the term "resorting to" when discussing prostitution.

Wycliffe Dedicates Organ To Late Music Enthusiast

A $6,500 pipe organ was dedicated to the memory of Professor J. Campbell McInnis in Wycliffe Chapel last night. The organ was the gift of Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Wycliffe College, James Nicholson, and was installed by friends of the late professor.

Professor McInnis was born in England. He will be remembered for initiating the St. Matthew Passion in Toronto, and his contribution to it in the role of Christus. A prominent baritone, he sang the role 40 times in Westminster Abbey and in other English churches. He was a graduate of the Royal College of Music, London, and had studied music in France, Germany and Italy.

The originator of the Hart House Sunday Evening Concerts, Professor McInnis to a singular degree opened to Canadian students a wider field of musical enjoyment. He gave the first and one-hundredth of these evening concerts. Sir Ernest MacMillan, Reginald Stuart and Healey Willan were among the students who participated in his early recitals known as the "Tuesday Nine O'Clocks." The "Songsters" which he conducted, provided the opportunity for student singers to become acquainted with the history and tradition behind the music of various countries. He was interested in English madrigal and folk singing. He favored the then new trend of voices blending in harmony.

Professor McInnis was a lecturer in reading and public speaking in Trinity and Wycliffe for 20 years before his death Feb. 10, 1945.

Much of last evenings program was devoted to the music of Bach and Brahms on which he was an authority The elegy of his close friend Healey Willan, was inspired by Prof. E. J. Pratt's "Brebeuf."

The service of dedication was conducted by Principal Ramsay Armitage and Professor B. W. Horan.

Rochester School Head To Address Graduation Of Royal Conservatory

Howard Hanson, Mus. O., F.A.A.R., LL.D, Litt D, Director of the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, will give the address at the annual Graduation Exercises of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto The exercises will be held in Convocation Hall, Nov. 11, at 8.15 p.m.

Composer, conductor and lecturer, Dr. Hanson is best known for his promotion of new works by American composers. He inaugurated the American Composers' Concerts and the Eastman School Festivals of American Music.

The program will include the presentation of Conservatory diplomas and medals by President Sidney E. Smith, the address by Dr. Hanson, and a performance of Bach's Cantata No. 140, by the Conservatory opera chorus and orchestra cond ucted by Ettore Mazzoleni, principal of the Conservatory.

Five Campus Rugby Dances Make Gala Saturday Night

"Varsity Homecoming dance fans will have their choice of five places to work off rugby week-end steam this Saturday night," John Paquette, homecoming dance convener, announced yesterday.

Unavoidably, the dance crowd will be split into two groups, he said, with 550 couples at the Royal York and the remainder on the campus.

The Royal York dance is a limited ticket sale at three dollars a couple. The de-centralized on-the-campus dance, at one dollar a couple, will be spread over the Athletic Wing of Hart House, the J.C.R. and West Hall in UC, Burwash Hall and the COTC drill hall.

Paquette pointed out that one ticket would bring admission to any and all of the campus dances and that an unlimited number of tickets were being sold but only to couples.

Entertainment will be timed so that people making the circuit of the campus dances will be able to see all the skits being presented.

"GANDER WEEK" ! !

Philadelphia — (Exchange)—Add to the list of college traditions the "Gander Week" of the Drexel Institute of Technology. During Gander Week it is legal for the girls to ask men for dates. "If you can't get your man with a gun get him Gander Week" is the slogan.

The week is climaxed by an informal dance, to which the girls ask the men, call for them, and treat them afterwards.

Is Free Speech a Menace?

Talk of world peace—a prime topic for discussion this memorial week—made a long neglected appearance in Toronto last week when the Very Reverend Hewlett Johnson spoke to an overflow crowd at Massey Hall Sunday night.

It was a thoughtful and serious group which heard the Dean of Canterbury call for greater understanding and tolerance between East and West. And although many listeners probably did not agree with the Dean's conception of "tolerance" they were eager and willing to hear what he had to say.

We have neither the time nor the space to discuss the validity of Dr. Johnson's remarks here—but the manner in which his proposed tour was greeted by some groups in this country hardly adds any lustre to the Canadian conception of tolerance.

Last year, when the dean's visa to the United States was refused by the State Department, many Canadians were indignant at America's official display of intolerance. Last week, however, Toronto groups—together with others in Southern Ontario—burst forth in self-righteous protest against the dean's appearance in Canada.

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, an organization roughly equivalent to the USA's Daughters of the American Revolution—and equally intolerant—called on the federal gov[illegible]nt to protect the good citizens of this country from the "subversive" doctrines espoused by the Dean of Canterbury. The Knights of Columbus were no less vigilant. The IODE, which prides itself on its British connection, might be surprised to learn that a soapbox in London's Hyde Park offers more freedom of expression than is found in IODE circles.

The president of the Canadian corps, in an unwarranted attack on Dean Johnson, added his bit to the principles of free speech, while Controller Balfour eagerly rushed to join the battle in his role of saviour against the evils of communism.

Others have joined the fray feeling, no doubt, that they, and they alone, are fighting the good fight in the battle of democracy against the red menace. Actually they are doing nothing but insulting the intelligence of the public by assuming that the average citizen is too stupid to hear a divergent point of view without succumbing to it.

The poor under-rated "average citizen" in the United States proved conclusively last week that he could think for himself when, exposed to a terrific barrage of Republican support by the daily press, he voted Harry Truman back into the White House for another four years. Is there any reason to believe that his Canadian counterpart is a less independent thinker?

The Dean of Canterbury will be visiting the campus in two days. If his address elicits as much interest as was shown Sunday when two thousand people were turned away, a large hall will be required.

And if so many students are anxious to hear the dean, the facilities should be made available.

Cows Lower Front First Says Prof

The agricultural world was shaken to its roots today by the announcement from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph that cows retire at night in exactly the opposite manner to horses.

"A cow", said Professor William Bullthrower, who made the dismovery, "lowers its front end first when retiring. Horses on the other hand go down posterior first".

The professor pointed out that he was greatly disturbed by a popular rumor which stated that he had got his information straight from the horse's mouth. "This is absolutely ridiculous", the professor said.

"It doesn't matter one way or the udder where I got my information," he said. "Now the world knows the truth and that is all I care about".

Repercussions to the announcement came rfom several places.

Fred Haybinder, president of the Ontario Farmers' Association, deplored the fuss being made over the announcement. "We farmers have known all along which end a horse or cow lowers first when retiring", he said. "In fact, anyone with a sense of observation would be aware of this fundamental fact".

The research director of the bovine division of the agricultural college, who did not wish to be quoted, said "It is only natural for cows to sit down front end first. Considering all the factors, they would be fools to sit down any other way".

Prof. Bullthrower said he intended to follow up his discovery with a study of the sitting methods of ostriches. "It is an entirely untapped field," he said.

Enthusiastic For ISS Plan Students Say

A snap poll taken Monday at the University of Toronto revealed complete approval of the Toronto ISS plan which will sponsor a group of German students studying in Canada.

Teach Democracy

Many felt that these students would return to Germany imbued with the spirit of democracy and anxious to teach their countrymen. Others, while not wishing to prohibit the students from studying here, thought their early Nazi learnings would prevent them from adopting our democratic ideals.

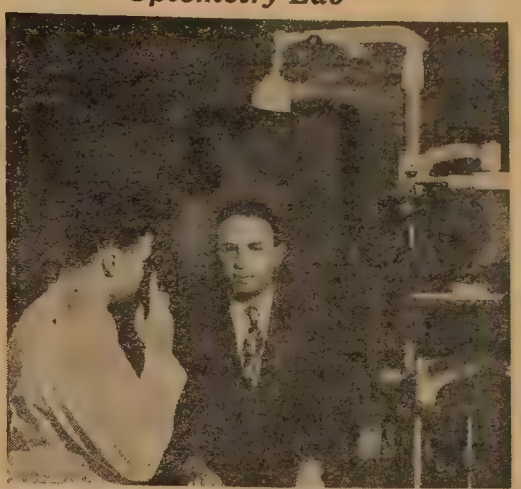
R. W. Bates, Grad Studies, gave as his opinion: "Certainly, I think a broader understanding among people is the only hope for the world." A similar opinion was expressed by Fleur Marsden, II UC: "I think it is a good idea which will foster international goodwill."

Selection Important

While in agreement with the general idea, Sabine Joffe, II School of Social Work, made the following qualification: "If the purpose is to educate these students for a democratic way of life, then success of the undertaking would depend largely on the selection of the students."

The fact that this plan would be mutually beneficial was mentioned by Norma Trickey, II Vic, and John Philips, I St. Mike's. They felt that in addition to promoting friendliness, we would be able to learn from these students.

Although he agreed that it would be a wonderful opportunity for these students, Gordon Allan, I Meds, was another one who qualified his approval. "Our first responsibility is to Canadians and since there has been so much talk about cutting down enrolment of Canadian students, I don't know about accepting others."



Arts Courses Best

A few students gave their ideas on what courses might be the best for the German students. P. E. Scheitzer, IV Vic, said "that better results might be obtained by enrolment in arts courses which will allow a study of democratic institutions, rather than an accumulation of technical knowledge."

Many students discussed the benefits of a Canadian education. Ruth Morrow, I Vic, thought "that they would have more of an opportunity to get ahead in their own country after studying here."

Disapproval of the plan was based on the fact that only a small group of Germans would be affected and that too much was being done to rehabilitate Germany while other nations were receiving practically no aid. In spite of these objections, the general belief was that living in a democracy was the best way for the German students to learn, understand and, best of all, adopt our democratic way of life.

Kaplan Calm; Rasky Gurgles As Follies Girls Dance On

When you think of directors, producers and such, you're inclined to imagine a dishevelled shirt-sleeved individual, waving a script and screaming "No! No! No!"

That's what we were looking for when we walked into a UC Follies' rehearsal the other day. We saw Susie Davidson playing the piano we heard Adele Bender singing; we watched Joyce Pratt dancing; we appraised pretty girls; we sighed at handsome men. But where, oh where, was that arm-waving, screaming director?

"Probably late," we thought, as we settled down to watch the undirected rehearsal.

Kaplan Comes

The music continued, the dancing continued, and suddenly there came the "No! No! No!"—without the waving and the screaming. This then was the director—soft-spoken, neatly-pressed, unruffled Hank Kaplan. But how could he be so calm?

"Just sit back and watch," we were told. We did.

Susie began to play; Adele began to sing; Joyce began to dance—and we knew why Hank looked so calm and pleased. Music that was different, a song that was different and a dance that was definitely new to campus shows. This was what we had been looking for for years.

We were watching the opening scene of the UC Follies being presented Friday and Saturday nights of this week in Hart House Theatre.

No miscues. No mistakes. No wonder Hank was calm. No wonder Hank was pleased. We began to feel that way ourselves.

"Would all the Follies be as good as this?" "Did all rehearsals go as smoothly?" Hank didn't know about ALL the Follies but he could guarantee the dance numbers, he said.

Rasky Runs In

At this point in the conversation, director-producer Harry K. Rasky burst into the scene and gurgled in his usual breathless fashion, "If you think this is anything you should see some of the other parts of the show."

"Our show is like nothing else ever done anywhere. I definitely think that people will be talking about it for weeks to come. Everybody will be there except the mayor; he couldn't get a ticket."

The Follies this year is celebrating its 25th birthday. This means that the show will be exactly 25 times better than its ever been before, claimed Rasky.

It is a revue type show consisting of 12 separate numbers. Each one is a complete in itself.

Said Rasky, "The show sounds so good I'm going to see it myself."

Mock Parliament Debate Thursday

No sign of a Liberal, Progressive-Conservative coalition will appear when the Grits and Tories lock horns Thursday night in the first Mock Parliament of the year over the Liberal resolution that, "This House approves the policy of the Liberal Party in Canada."

The Parliament will be held in St. Michael's College Brennan Hall at 8.00 p.m.

Any amendment to the resolution by the party in opposition, (Progressive-Conservative) must be handed to the Speaker, Myer Brody, before 7.00 p.m., Thursday night. Subamendments may be moved from the floor.

While the Mock Parliament is primarily a training ground for the members of the campus political clubs, every undergraduate of the university is free to participate in the debates on party platforms and party stands on particular issues.

The above ticket holders may pick up their prizes by presenting their ticket stubs at the Music Faculty Office, Room 103, Royal Conservatory of Music, College St. between 10 a.m. and 3.30 p.m. today or Wednesday.

To Form Anthropology Club For U of T Undergraduates

Plans will get under way this week for the formation of a new Anthropology Club on the campus, J. Bond, II year Anthropology, provisional chairman of the organizing committee, said yesterday.

A letter had been sent to the Caput last week asking for permission to organize the new club. On Saturday, the Caput gave its approval, he said.

"Since this is the first year there has been provision made in the university curriculum for an honors graduate in anthropology, a number of students in the course decided a club was essential," he said.

The new club would in no way interfere with the present Archaeology Club, Bond said. The interests of the two clubs were entirely different. Anthropology, he pointed out, was chiefly concerned with the history of the social, cultural and physical characteristics of those of most non-European peoples, whereas Archaeology was more concerned with excavations and the results which these excavations produced.

Elections for the executive of the new club will be held Wednesday, November 10, in Wymilwood.

Parkdale Collegiate Institute will hold the unveiling and dedication ceremonies for its memorial to the students of that school killed in World War II, on Wednesday, November 10, at 8.00 p.m., Principal L. C. Irvine said yesterday.

The memorial takes the form of triple panels: The first contains a picture and short biographical sketch of each of the 68 boys who lost their lives in World War II. The side panels contain the names of all the former Parkdalians who served in the armed forces.

Suggest Armament Further Alliances To Protect Canada

"We must recognize that there are situations today which could readily lead to war . . . Canada must provide adequate military defences for the protection of its people, and, under the possibility of possible aggression from the Russians, Canada should enter as soon as possible into agreement with like-minded nations . . ."

This note of warning was issued by President Smith, also President of the United Nations of Canada at the 23rd annual dinner of the Certified Public Accountants Association Friday night in the Royal York.

Dr. Smith was the guest speaker for the Association dinner and took this opportunity to talk about war and peace, "the stark question that faces mankind today."

Tracing the machinery of the United Nations which was started in 1945 and designed to "embody the high ideals of the old League of Nations and to provide improved means for their better attainment," President Smith said that it must be remembered as we pass judgement on the United Nations that "its establishment has not yet resulted in security for Canada and other nations. Yet we shudder to think what the situation would be today if there had not been such international machinery for negotiation. . ."

Going on to outline the lessons which have been learnt from this war and those which are being learnt every day at the UN discussions, President Smith said that in "domestic affairs, it has been learned that it is not sufficient to put a law on the statute book. The statute, to be effective, must have behind it the force of public opinion. So in international affairs, the Atlantic Charter and the Charter of the United Nations will avail little unless they give expression to the will for peace, order good government of the nationals of the high contracting parties . . . It is the duty of every Canadian to learn and to understand the rights and the obligations of Canada as a member of the United Nations. . ."

Speaking of the risk involved for Canada in participating into regional pacts Dr. Smith said that, "Canada's participation should not be dictated primarily by opposition to a Russian bloc or by adherence to a Western bloc . . .", but that her commitment should be backed up with political, economic and military preparedness. "In terms of our present scene in Canada," he went on to say, "that will involve heavy expenditures. Money will be negligible as compared with the cost of lives in a third world war".

Recorder Wanted For Hart House To Aid Debaters

The purchase of a recorder for use at Hart House debates was recommended Friday to the Finance Committee by the Board of Governors. "It is not certain whether we can afford this expense, and the purchase will depend on the decision of the Finance Committee," said Warden Ignatieff, "but usually the Committee passes the Stewards' recommendations."

"The recorder will prove an inestimable help to debaters", he continued, "because they will be able to hear exactly what mistakes they made and will be able to ascertain whether or not criticism of their speeches is justified."

At the last House debate a borrowed machine was hidden in the room and everything said by the debaters was recorded without their knowledge. "We thought," said the Warden, "that if they knew about it they would be more nervous than usual; when they heard their own voices played back and criticized they thought well of the idea."

The recorder will also be used for musical programs at Hart House, and any concerts or worthy speeches will be recorded, although the primary purpose of the recorder will be for criticism and improvement of the debaters and the Glee Club. Since the reels cost $4.50 each, no library of recordings is planned.

"We hope to have the thing in operation when Mr. Paul Martin attends the next debate on November 17", said Mr. Ignatieff.

HILLEL

Rabbi A. M. Kamerling will speak on "Organizing American Jewry," at 4 p.m. in room 64 of U.C. today.

Dr. James Heller, the first lecturer in the Hillel series will speak tonight at 8.30 in the Library Auditorium (College and St. George).

VCU Assembly Takes Stand Against Race Discrimination

A motion was put last night to the Victoria College Union by Steve Endicott, IV History, asking for support ofr the SAC's Anti-Discrimination Committee in its investigation of reported racial discrimination on the campus. Endicott also asked the Union to put on record its condemnation of any racial discrimination anywhere. The motion was passed by an unanimous vote.

Last night's meeting also issued a request to the Victoria SAC representatives that they ask the Council to forward a letter to the Board of Governors again asking them for some comment on last year's SAC fees brief.

The meeting proceeded with President Keith Davey's outline of the executive's plan for increasing Victoria's participation in undergraduate organizations and affairs. The distribution of Victoria College handbooks, he said, had been very well done.

Towards the close of the meeting, it was announced that election results gave the chairmanship of the VCU Assembly to Jan Meisel, a graduate of the college. The constitution demands that the chairman, as opposed to the president, who is an undergraduate, be a grad of not more than two years.

The report of Jim Nethercott, chairman of the committee, investigating the possibility of a Vic show this year, declared the impossibility of such a show. The Union, accordingly, set up a committee to look into next year's prospects for a show.

Discuss Possibilities Of Radio Federation

Saskatoon, Nov. 4—(CUP) — The possibilities of organizing a Canadian University Radio Federation were discussed at a recent convention of representatives from the four western universities in Vancouver.

The discussion revealed that the west is in advance of the east due to the fact that no such organization exists in eastern Canada, stated the University of Saskatchewan representative.

In explaining the great advances made by the University of British Columbia in the field of radio, the Saskatchewan delegate to the conference told of U.B.C.'s two completely modernized studios.

Feathers And Buttons

Last week the women of the campus went all out in an endeavour to aid the Red Feather Campaign. In particular the girls who tagged should be commended. The volunteers came from Trinity, Victoria and University College and they netted respectively $190, $105 and $549. To this amount was added by ten UC girls $105 from the Ajax drive. The scarlet and Gold maids, however, had been helping in the $600 goal of the Vic Frolic. Not to be forgotten were the Occupational Therapy girls who provided lunches outside Wycliffe and thus added $90 to the fund, while the Physio cooks made fudge 'that just melted in your mouth' and not only increased their contribution but gained laurels as the top cooks of the campus.

So much for the past. The women are planning future things for the forthcoming Home Week-end. Under the guidance of Ruth Mitchell the Regalia committee is all set to provide those Blue and White ribbons that you will wear at the game, while instituting the new 'Beat Western' buttons. They will be the rage as will the blue balloons which are to be released over the field on Saturday.

Radio Careers Demanding Say Women Script Writers

The Panhellenic-sponsored "Careers on Parade" held its last forum yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union. The leader was Mrs. Margaret Bassett of Don Bassett productions, and the topic was radio. Since radio is a pioneer field, there are many opportunities in it for career-minded women. Mrs. Bassett explained that in Canada radio stations are supported both by government, which aims at radio as an art, and commercial concerns which sponsor quiz shows, musical programs and serial features.

Mrs. Edna Slatter, business manager of the Academy of Radio Arts, gave the assembly a general picture of radio life "behind the scenes". "The urge to get into radio is a primary qualification. However, it is important to prepare for radio as a career, since radio has become a specific art." Mrs. Slatter emphasized especially the importance of objectiveness in the preparation for radio work.

Alice Frick, one of the two script editors in the CBC Drama Dept., enlarged on the writing and acting side of radio. Radio plays are written by free lance writers. Special broadcasts, such as those written for holidays, for drives like the Community Chest, for school programs, and as adaptations of stories, are commissioned by the department to the writers. Otherwise, all scripts are original, and are submitted independently to the readers of the department, who, after careful reading and grading, accept or reject them. Scripts which are not accepted are returned to the author with critical comments and advice. "However, you are not likely to earn a living as a script writer in Canada, just as people are not likely to earn a living here as writers of any kind," stated Miss Frick. Radio actions, she said, are also free lance. For this branch, dramatic experience on the stage and if possible drama school is a must.

Florence Craig, Claire Wallace, the noted broadcasters' right-hand woman, spoke next on commercial broadcasting. The difficulty in her work of news-reporter-script writer consists "not in getting into radio, but in staying in." In commercial broadcasting, since the show is paid for by a sponsor, you have to produce to make the program worth while.

Lastly, the selling end of radio got a boost from Kathleen Dale, of the Radio Advertsing Dept. of McLarens Advertising Co. She described the various methods of radio advertising, for example, through the well-known "jungle", and also showed how the sales promotion of a program is checked by means of charts and graphs.

At the conclusion of the forum, Mrs. Slatter produced a novelty in the form of a voice recording machine. Practically the entire audience flocked to the stage to attempt the experiment, but you're a better woman than I am if you recognized your voice as it was played back.

Eve, B.A.

By JANET HARBRON

It started with Eve and since Eve isn't around it's time someone else took up the fight. Then as now the chief purpose of women seems to have been that they were out to get their man. It's the prerogative of university women to get their man and that's why they take a degree. The men are complaining, so let's examine the question.

Foolish males. The female of the species merely by her attendance at this institute of higher learning has indicated that here are to be found the finest men for captivity. They scoff at us.

It would seem that these critical and cryptic gents have failed to realize that a wife adequately trained to meet daily problems is an asset to be added to the credit side of life's expense account. Need we list here the men of destiny who have been guided to the memorable heights of their careers by the skill of a subtle feminine hand.

Life seems to have been composed in such a way that people in every stratum are seeking the ultimate companion. Why should this sort of thing be restricted at the University of Toronto?

For women marriage is the prime career, generally the thing on which the stability of society is based.

Consider then the role of the little woman in home life. Very often the junior members of an intelligent and well adjusted family have parents who are college graduates. These parents may develop common interests outside the household routine and are able to guide the effusive energy of their offspring into satisfying channels.

Everyone is aware of the case of the father B.A., who not having demanded a diploma of his wife-to-be, later demands one for his children. How much happier is the mother who is capable of comprehending the experiences of her children at college!

But who knows—perhaps this is only of interest to Adam.

Keep Women Occupied

In Short

Women may look forward in the not too distant future to new and interesting designs which are being exhibited at the Toronto Art Gallery. The main feature of this show is the interesting designs which were worked out by young, up-and-coming Australian artists on heavy cotton and silk fabrics. The colours and ideas make a striking thing to see, some twenty-five pieces on exhibit for the coming week.

Our nominations for: man most exhausted by the week-end . . . "Coonskin" Potts, who was roaring around constantly stirring up spirit; most disgusted men . . . the two squiffed characters who carried on their private football game at the end of the field—wonder how they felt when they woke up Sunday and found all that mud on their clothes? Most disgruntled man . . . the eager little fellow who couldn't coax loud enough cheers to satisfy him—even when he picked up the megaphone and hollered at the Varsity cheering section "Yell, dammit, YELL!" .. ....

The football week-end atmosphere was there, eight cars crowded with singing, yelling, bridge-playing and smoking football fans. We added considerably to our selection of risque songs and yells. The new Varsity yell, "We've got a team", etc. was altered slightly by enthusiastic celebrants to "We've got a girl; she's got a brain; it doesn't show . . .

Alice Cooper Successful As Young Woman's Editor

By JANET HARBRON

The value to a woman of a Pass B.A. has for some time been a subject of much discussion on the campus. Well, here's the story of one University of Toronto graduate, who having applied her education to a series of varying fields, is at present the Women's Editor of the National Home Monthly, Miss Adele Cooper, University College, 1942.

After graduation Miss Cooper worked with the National Trust Company, later taking a job with the Social Department of the Toronto Daily Star. For four years she delved into the mysteries of the world of fashions, parties and receptions. This provided the training necessary to complement her undergraduate experience, teaching her that material had to be reported honestly, factually and without fabrication. The social department was considered by the reading public a fountain of wisdom on everything varying from love-life problems, to the type of flowers a bride should carry. According to Miss Cooper this isn't necessarily a glamorous life. It entails hard work, uncertainty regarding assignments and a schedule disastrous to social engagements.

Miss Cooper then worked in department store advertising. Her particular interest was home furnishings and while this may seem remote from the general field of journalism it assisted her in developing a creative outlook.

At present Miss Cooper is the young and charming Women's Editor of the National Home Monthly, a job which entails constant concern for the beauty, fashions and furnishings of our women, while writing a good deal of the material that goes on the women's pages.

One of the most exciting aspects of Miss Cooper's job is her trip to New York twice a year to far-in-advance fashion previews. This was a long-hoped-for ambition realized.

While factors for success in the field of journalism may not be the same for all of us Miss Cooper had some interesting suggestions.

It is vital to be interested in people and eager to know what they are doing. Summer jobs are of great significance because experience in many phases of life broadens one's understanding of others and increases our ability to accomplish while working with others.

Finally Miss Cooper suggested the importance of one's family as an aid rather than a hindrance along the path to success.

VIC'S CORNER

"The old order changeth, yielding place to new" this week in Vic's Corner, or to put it less poetically, the "feminine touch", so kindly publicized by Stan, takes over for this issue. But don't despair, fellows, we will try to restrain ourselves from flights of feminine fancy and give you the news you're looking for.

No one could possibly look for better news than that of the success of the Vic Feather Frolic, held last Thursday night. The college cleared over 600 dollars in support of the Red Feather fund, and all comers enjoyed a full evening of entertainment ranging from penny-tossing and fortune-telling to dancing in the co-ed room. A large bouquet on behalf of us all to Harry Green, who directed the affair, and from Harry many thanks to all those who helped to make it a success.

It is hoped that the tumult and the shouting that has been recently besieging the ears of certain members of the VCU will die with the news that 650 more student handbooks have just been received, and will be given out in the halls Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week. There is no cause for concern, as enough handbooks for everyone have been ordered, but they are coming in lots of 400, which explains the periodic shortages. Only have patience, and you will get yours.

V is for Victory, also Victoria, and the two have been synonymous this year as far as inter-faculty football is concerned. The Scarlet and Gold play two games this week, with Meds Tuesday and Friday with their old friends, the boys from the little red Skulehouse. Vic will be in the play-offs regardless of the outcome of these two games, but of course, we want to see them win both anyway. And we mean that SEE literally. Let's have good crowds out for these games, and so that our cheering may be strong as well as earnest, let's keep together in one place and give our cheerleaders a real response.

Here we insert a plug for women's rights, and remind you that it's not only men who occupy the sports limelight at Vic this week. The girls' softball team, so ably coached these past three years by Harry Boyd, plays off against PHE for the championship. The games will take place on Trinity field today, tomorrow, and Thursday at one p.m. Good luck to you, girls, and may the best team win—but then we're probably biased.

Everybody's doing it! What? Why, going to see "The Man Who Came to Dinner", the fall production of sented next week in the Hart House Theatre. The tickets have been selling like coal-oil lamps, and two of the three nights are sold out. If you are lucky enough to get a ticket, bone up on your Emily Post, and come to dinner with "The Man Who Came to Dinner" November 15, 16, or 17.

The time is getting ever shorter, girls, between now and that date of dates, that dance of distinction, the Vic Informal. A good plan might be to provide yourself with a number of those eye-catching little blotters advertising the affair. Then when a likely-looking prospect sits next to you in the library or in English class, you could flourish one nonchalantly in the air while wiping a suddenly leaky pen. Oh, well, it was a thought . . . .

Diss and Data department: Before the last shout of "Hold" that line" or "We want a touchdown" fades from the air the hockey season is getting under way. Practices start this week, and all who are interested are requested to watch the bulletin boards for further announcements. All members of the final year expecting to graduate in the spring must fill out and hand in their biography cards to the VCU office by November 11 if they want to leave their footprints in the sands of Torontonensis. And by the way, subscriptions for the above-mentioned publication will be sold in the halls this week

Wanted: A director for the Vic At-Home floor show. Qualifications: Previous experience in directing such a show. It will be one-half hour in length, and the director will be completely in charge. See Jim Nethercott about this.

Life around college this time of year seems to be nothing but week-ends and the intervals between. No sooner do we recover from the ordeal of travelling to Kingston and back by excursion train (was it worth it?) than we are confronted with what promises to be the biggest of all—the Homecoming Week-end and the game with Western. The way the bets are flying, somebody must be going to make some money on the deal, but whether you win or lose the Blue and White Society is prepared to guarantee you a week-end full of enjoyment. One of Vic's contributions to festivities is a dance to be held at Burwash Saturday night. Watch for further notice of events, and don't forget that parents are cordially invited to attend all of them. And now, so that we all can get in shape for this most gala of week-ends, and maybe even get a couple of those essays written, we shall wind up this column for now with a toast to Susan B. Anthony! —By Helen

Fizz Ed Favoured In Softball Finals

The first game of the women's softball finals takes place today at one o'clock on Trinity Field. PHE I and Vic. I, who have survived the playoffs, are the contesting teams. PHE I won the championship last year after a close series with Vic. I. They lost the first 25-9 but came back in the last two games to win 15-7 and 16-3 and take the championship from Vic. who had held it for several years.

This year, PHE have won all their games except one which they lost to Vic I, 13-7. They easily downed UC I, which was in League I along with PHE and Vic firsts, to the tune of 21-0 and 9-1, but this same UC team was able to defeat Vic I, 7-5.

Vic I, which ran second to PHE I in the first league, defeated both UC and PHE once and was, in turn, beaten once by each of these two teams. They had a hard struggle to win their play-off games but succeeded in edging St. Mike's 4-2 and then PHE II 11-10.

The finals consist of a best-of-three series and all games will be seven innings, unlike all the other games of the season which lasted for only three or four innings.

As Vic I have been the only team to defeat PHE I this year, the battle for the intramural championship should prove exciting. If both teams play the way they have been, spectators will see some top-notch ball today and tomorrow.

Soccer Match Skulemen Win

Yesterday afternoon Senior S.P.S. pushed their soccer successes ahead when they defeated Meds 1-0.

It was the ideal day for soccer, cold enough to make the ground as dry as a bone and keep even linesmen wide awake and rarin' to move. The ball was perfectly dry and light enough to lift without being a prey to the slightest wind and the Skule forwards made very good use of their heads.

Some of their short passing movements were well up amongst the best the front campus has seen this year but their defence was not up to this standard and 'though beautiful to behold little materialized from their efforts. At half-time the score was equal at 0-0. Halfway through the second half the inside S.P.S. forwards made a concerted charge, the goalie fumbled their shot and Comria drove in the only goal of the game.

St Hilda's Gals Downed By Profs

St. Hilda's challenged their profs to a softball game. The faculty accepted their challenge and the game was played yesterday at lunch hour.

Trinity field resounded to cries of

"Plato, Aristotle, Kant,
But Faculty shall and can."

and could they ever! In two innings the faculty trimmed the Saints soundly. The women held their own for the first inning with two home runs to the faculty's three. Then the profs really started swinging. Aided by the registrar and bursar, both in 'civies', they piled up nine more points to win 12-2.

Vic Seconds Edge Meds

Vic seconds edged the Meds thirds lacrosse club by a narrow 3-2 margin in a four o'clock session at Hart House gym yesterday. The game featured some heavy checking, most of it high, with a low number of shots on goal.

Jack Courtemarche sparked the Vic aggregation, accounting for two of the winner's total. G. Maynes netted the remaining score for Vic while Griff Pearson and Smith were the marksmen for the doctors.

Vic led off with the first score of the contest by Courtemarche and Pearson retaliated to knot the score in the first stanza. Courtemarche encored and Maynes added a single to make the half time score 3-1 for Vic. Smith counted the last score in the final period to make the full time 3-2 count.

Foresters Chop Jr. Meds In Wide Open Grid Tilt

Forestry defeated Junior Meds in an Intramural game yesterday by a score of 16-0. Featuring a snappy passing attack and some wide-open plunging, the treemen outplayed the Meds throughout the game. The winners were sparked by the passing of John Prendergast and the broken field running of their halves, and in spite of the fact that they had only four substitutes, held the Meds out of pay-off territory while piling up three majors.

The game was marked by numerous interceptions and fumbles by both teams, although no points were scored off sloppy ball handling. At one point the ball changed hands in every play for eight consecutive plays through pass interceptions and fumbles.

The first score came in the second quarter after McKeon kicked to the Meds deadline, which was returned by Meds and picked up on the Meds three yard line by a mob of Forestry players. Collict went over on the next play, and McKeon converted. Forestry scored another major in the second stanza when John Prendergast threw a forty yard pass to Cuff, who went over easily. This touchdown was not converted.

Sparked by the fine play of Dan Jones, Meds began to press in the second half, but failed to score. Going over centre on a plunge, Collict ran through the whole Meds team for thirty yards to score another one for the foresters. As the touchdown was not converted, this ended the scoring for the game.

Meds turned loose a long passing attack, but the Forestry defence knocked them all down. The Medical men did get to the Foresters' seven yard line, later in the game, but were thrown back and almost scored upon themselves. Martyn, McKee, and Dan Jones played will for the losers.

The score is very surprising considering the few Forestry substitutions and the fact that several men were playing for the first time with the team. The hefty Forestry line played solidly, opening up truck-sized holes for their backs and breaking up the Meds' plays before they got started.

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

Queen's supporters pulled the piece de resistance Saturday by painting the goalposts just before the game. The trick is so simple that it's remarkable that it hasn't been done before. Moreover, nobody noticed the fact until the wee small hours, because no Varsity man got close enough to find out.

To say that the defence of the posts was well organized is putting it mildly. Ten deep the Gaelmen stood, with arms locked, daring the small Varsity force to attempt a break-through. Undoubtedly the sea of mud discouraged many of the post-snatchers, but there was a small group of carefree, clothes-unconscious, warm-stomached souls who tried to break that barrier of bodies. They didn't get past the first line of defence.

Certain thoughtful, mechanically minded Varsity students are wondering about ways and means of wiring the Stadium posts for the Western game (and I don't mean clothesline). The results would be priceless. Two thousand Purple and White fans go streaming onto the field at the end of the game. Nobody bothers to stop them—they gloat at the obvious inadequacies of the U of T undergraduate body. That first hand touches one of the uprights—and crackle! another brush-cut for the Western campus.

Congratulations are in order for Ted Toogood, who did some matrimonial broken-field running last night. Needless to say some of the remarks that are being passed concerning what this plunge will do to Ted's football ability, are unprintable.

I guess marriage is all right unless one takes it too seriously. Take Varsity end Bill Stockman for example. One of William's greatest claims to fame is the fact that he shot a game of snooker with the boys just a couple of hours before the fateful hour. And what's more, he won.

Tricolor Fan Hat Is Newest Craze

Montreal, Nov. 5.—(CUP—Specially-designed Tricolor Fan Hats have been adopted as the symbol for the Queen's football week-end in Montreal Nov. 12-14.

The beanies are formed of red and blue triangles and are topped off by two golden propellors, emphasizing the red-gold-blue theme of the tricolor.

We would suggest banana peels for the Western game here next week. If the team runs into any difficulty, a few well-planted slippery peels should do a world of good. If the field isn't already slippery, that is.

Skule's First Win, Edge UC-PHE 2-1

By HAL HOLDEN

Senior School footballers gained their first win of the Intramural season yesterday, edging UC/PHE 2-1 in a closely fought contest on the Back Campus. Jack Trist was the Skule hero as he gave SPS their only victory in five starts with a towering 60 yard kick at the deadline to break a 1-1 stalemate.

Meds Beat UC By 4-3 Count Varga Stars

Meds seconds eked out a tight 4-3 decision over the UC/PHE seconds in a rugged checking lacrosse fracas held at Hart House gym in yesterday's noon hour. Al Varga netted the winning counter with only thirty-five seconds remaining in the contest.

Jim Sterling sank the first goal of the game to set the PHE squad one ahead at the end of the first quarter. Meds made a fighting comeback in the second stanza with Al Varga and John McIlraith notching singles while Jack Carson of the Combines tallied to even the count at two apiece at the half.

Meds again got the drop on the Combines when Harry Harley potted the only score of the period giving the Red and Black a single goal edge going into the last canto.

Jack Carson delivered the mail for the Muscle Men to knot the count near the three-minute mark. The tie was broken in thrilling fashion as Al Varga let go with a sizzling fifty-foot shot which nicked the lower left hand corner of the net with seconds left.

Carson and Al Varga ended on top of the scoring heap with two apiece while McIlraith, Harley and Sterling added singles. Bob Larose played a particularly hard checking game for the Combines.

Neither team racked up much yardage along the ground or in the air and play for most of the game was around midfield. The most newsworthy feature of an unexciting game was the pass defense of both sides. Interceptions were a dime a dozen and usually came in bunches. As soon as one side got possession of the ball through an interception they wasted no time in calling a pass play so they could throw the ball right back where they got it.

Shortly after the opening whistle Bud Powell put SPS out in front with an attempted placement which fell underneath the crossbar and bounced between two UC defenders to the deadline.

Play see-sawed back and forth from then until the last play of the half. Hank Henshall hit Mastronardi with a pass at the SPS 25 yard line and from there Art Anderson tied up the ball game with a singleton on the last play of the half.

After an exchange of interceptions in the first few minutes of the third quarter Trist came through with his game-winning kick. The Skule line held off the charging Combines nobly and Trist took all the time he needed to get away his long punt.

UC threatened in the fourth quarter when Henshall and Johnny Kuzmochka combined on two passes which moved the ball to the School 40 yard line. While their mates and coach groaned on the sidelines the Red and White crew threw away two more passes and possession of the ball, passing up a try for the tieing point.

Besides Trist, Bud Powell showed up well in the Skule backfield with Brent Rowe and Norm Firth performing ably on the line. For the Three indignant third year women wrote a letter to the Editor which appeared in yesterday's paper. They deplored the fact that in the questionnaire on the proposed memorial building beauty parlors and barbara shops are considered but there is no mention of any athletic facilities for women.

It's obvious to everyone that more facilities or, should we say just some facilities, ought to be available for women's sports. There is no place where a woman undergrad can go for a swim when she feels like it, unless you consider the over-sized bath tub at Lillian Massey which is available for a total of five hours a week. Even this is something new for until this year there was just no such thing as recreational swimming.

The Women's Athletic Association has to rent a gym at St. Paul's so that the women can play badminton and has to pay for the use of the OCE gym for basketball.

It seems that there isn't even enough room for the 'weaker sex' out of doors. The baseball rep carefully arranged for the use of the stadium and Trinity Field beforehand but many times the games had to be cancelled because the men usurped the field. One Friday when four teams were trying to play, there was a track meet in the stadium, the Blues were practicing on Trinity field, the Trinity football team were tackling one another in the outfield of one diamond, some men were throwing a softball around and two men's softball teams were playing on the other diamond.

On top of the lack of playing space of all kinds there isn't even a place for the players to change let alone have a shower. When Jessie McCormack, softball rep for the university, went to the Trinity Bursar to arrange for the use of the Trinity field for the games he asked her hesitantly, "But . . ah . . the girls won't change their clothes out on the field, will they?"

To get back to the point, why haven't they included women's athletic facilities in the proposed memorial building? The answer is very simple. The general expansion project of the university includes a women's athletic building. At present no exact plans have been made but doubtless it will include gyms, lockers and a swimming pool. The co-educational memorial building is, as the name suggests, a building to be used by the men and women together and is a project entirely separate from the proposed women's building.

'Ace' Bailey Holds First Practice For All Blues Hockey Hopefuls

Over fifty stalwart hockey hopefuls turned up at the Varsity Arena last night for the first practice of the season. Both the senior and intermediate teams will be picked from these practices so all those interested are urged to turn out tomorrow at five o'clock.

A major problem for the present is concerned with the goal-tending department. Both squads are on the lookout for good twine tenders and to date only three contenders have arisen for these positions.

There are at least nine holdovers from last year's championship aggregation. Among these are listed, Bob Ecclestone, Wilf Digby and Bob Larose of the defence corps.

On the attack will be such stellar performers of last year as Harry ("Oily") Boyd, Bill Spence, Bob Henry, Jerry Larmer and Cec Turcotte. Cec intends to switch from wing to centre spot this year. On hand also will be Bill Prince who alternated at netminding duties last year with Don Saunders.

From the Intermediates, Red Waldron and Dan McDougall, who were brought up last year have returned as have Bob Cooper, Hugh Smythe, Griff Pearson and Rocky Howson. Paul Kavanaugh is out along with Tom McKillop and Don Wright all former Junior "B" performers.

Along with Prince in the goal-tending picture are Hutzulak from the Intermediates and Bates from Ajax.

Ace Bailey of NHL fame is back again as coach of the big Blues with Ian Macintosh filling the managerial spot. Jack Life will do the coaching for the Intermediate squad.

At this point, the Beef-of-the-Week, has been open since last Wednesday and we have absolutely no beefs to report. We can only conclude from this that the undergraduate body of the University of Toronto is a remarkably contented group of students. However, in the event that there is an isolated beef tucked away somewhere on the campus, we would like to announce that the Beef-of-the-Week will remain open for the remainder of this week. Remember, that any beef used in this column will be entitled to a Ten Dollar Credit at Cole's, to be used as the winner sees fit. Address all beefs to Cole's, 726 Yonge St., or drop them off at the S.A.C. office, Hart House, or U. C. Basement.

Last Chance Wednesday For Summer Training

Students interested in summer employment or training with the R.C.A.F. are reminded that applications must be fully completed and filed with Professor T. R. Loudon, Room 24 Electrical Building or H. L. Hutchison, Room 321, School of Hygiene, by Wednesday, Nov. 10.

Summer aircrew training is available for men in all Faculties and Schools (other than Dentistry) who are due to graduate not earlier than 1952, and have reached their 18th but not their 22nd birthday by May, 1949. In case of Army, Navy, or Air Force veterans, this age limit is extended by the number of years of their service during World War II.

Summer technical employment is available for ex-aircrew members of the RCAF or RAF who are enrolled in Mathematics, Physics, Honor or Applied Science, or Medicine, and whose age at graduation less their number of years of service in the RCAF or RAF does not exceed 27. For this technical employment plan, candidates must be graduating in 1950 or 1951, though Meds expecting to graduate in 1952 may be considered.

E. Kash-G. Kraus

The Sunday Evening Concert at Hart House featuring Greta Kraus and Eugene Kash was one of those singular occasions when you have the persistent feeling of coming face to face with perfectionism in art. The program consisted of 17th century violin and harpsichord sonatas of Senaille, Loeillet, Louis Aubert Le Fils (I'd never heard of them either), Corelli and Bach. It turned out to be more than a showing of museum-pieces by a pair of loving curators. It was living, communicable music performed with a consummate artistry, the like of which I expect never to experience again.

While this dithyrambic mood is upon me I might as well report that the unvarying rapport between the two artists was incredible. It was something more than the integrated teamwork resulting from sufficient rehearsal. The matching of tone, the niceties of balance and the concerted feeling for rubato were a constant delight. In the Andante movement in the Bach, for instance, the trilling was articulated as on one instrument.

It was at this point that I fell to thinking of the pianists who render Bach largely unintelligible, and their numbers are legion, through an injudicious enthusiasm for the damper pedal. To listen to the Bach playing of Miss Kraus, with its incisive horizontal lines, is to become unsure as to whether all things considered, the invention of the piano was A Good Thing.

The Linden Tree

J. B. Priestley's drawing-room sermon on the efforts of an aging history professor in a small English university to persuade his family and the university authorities that he was still needed by his post-war scholarship students was given its Canadian premiere by the Trinity Players in Hart House last night. The play, with its provocative theme, presented a challenge which this group took up with obvious enthusiasm, and the spareness of the audience did not prevent them from conveying that enthusiasm to the house.

Underneath the personal conflict, Mr. Priestley has, of course, a message which, I regret, keeps bubbling over in the form of long, virtuous monologues which take a lot of the punch out of the emotional tenor of the piece, and gave me, at least, the feeling that Mr. Priestley was not quite so sure that my intelligence was to be relied upon.

Mrs. Moore is to be commended on giving pace to a play which tended to sag at the high spots and particular credit goes to Don Glen whose sympathetic portrayal of Professor Linden was convincing and natural. Marylo Wishart, as the professor's youngest daughter, displayed a charming exuberance that was in delightful contrast to the scholarly wisdom of her father. Robin Taylor and Margaret Bronson gave intelligent and sustained interpretations to the roles of the two older offspring.

Beat Western State Badges Sold by Coeds

Joe Potts, chairman of the University of Toronto's Blue and White Society, said yesterday that "Beat Western" buttons will be sold at various places on the campus by blazer-clad coeds.

Beat Western

The buttons are to be sold in conjunction with the U. of T. colors to the Varsityites from now until Saturday morning. On Saturday coeds as well as covering the campus, will be situated in the enclosure and on the approaches to the stadium on the student side. The combined ribbon and button will sell for 25c.

In addition to the button sale there will be posters distributed around the campus by the Blue and White Society. These posters are plain placards with the words "Beat Western" printed on them.

Two Dances

In addition to the "Beat Western" campaign, the Blue and White Society is sponsoring the football dances held on the campus and the one held at the Royal York Hotel.

The dances on the campus will be a "roam-around" affair with dances being held at six buildings simultaneously. When a person buys a ticket (for the price of $1.00), he is entitled to attend dances in every building. There is one condition, however, placed on the attendance of the dances—when one enters Hart House his ticket will be stamped and the person cannot be readmitted once he has left the building.

Teams, cheerleaders, and bands from both universities have been invited to attend the Hart House dance. Dances will also be held in the J.C.R., West Hall of U.C., Burwash Hall, Drill Hall and the Occupational Therapy huts. Orchestras and canned music will provide dance music.

Dance Tickets

The tickets for the campus dances go on sale today at 2 p.m. Students may obtain tickets from vantage points listed in tomorrow's Varsity. The various intermissions will be staggered to allow every one to attend the entertainment provided by the bands of the University of Toronto and the University of Western Ontario. The dances on the campus are scheduled to start at 8:30 p.m.

The big dance at the Royal York Hotel is also sponsored by the Blue and White Society. Admission for the 550 couples to this dance is $3.00 per couple.

VIC CCF CLUB

Professor G.M.A. Grube will address the Vic CCF Club this afternoon on the subject of "CCF National First Term Program". Mr. Grube has been a member of the CCF National Council since 1943, and attended the convention in Winnipeg this August as a representative of the Council.

TICKET WINNERS

Ballet For Beauties

Looking very starry-eyed are Joy Winch, Midge Geary, and Shirley Ash, only three of the 53 girls in the U.C. Follies, which will be presented three times nightly in Hart House on Nov. 12 and 13. Tickets are still on sale for "Rasky's Folly".

Describe Job of Producer For Student Radio Lecture

In the first lecture on radio production in the three-fold series on radio, Mr. Andrew Allan, who directs "Stage 49", described the duties and attributes of a producer-director. The producer-director functions in three ways — at the desk, in rehearsal, and in the show. As well as being creative, the producer-director must be a business man. He has to arrange all the technical and business sides of the production as well as conduct the casting, sound effects and music.

At rehearsal, very definite plans must be followed. The first should cover only the general meaning of the script. Mr. Allan warned potential directors not to attempt too much, too fast in rehearsals. At the first mike rehearsal, sound effects are tried out, and all mechanical difficulties, such as mike position, are cleared up. Following this are the "woodshed", "timer", and dress rehearsals.

On the air, the duty of the producer-director is to conduct the show. He has to make people listen. The medium of sound, through which radio operates should be completely understood in order to get a good effect, Mr. Allan pointed out that while lack of vision is a liability in radio insofar as the audience is easily distracted, there is an advantage in the emotional power afforded. He used as an example of this is the number of fantasies produced which would be impossible on the stage.

Among the personal qualifications which Mr. Allan pointed out were sense of leadership, executive ability, good taste, ability to work against pressure, and self-discipline. Acting and stage experience, although not essential, are useful in gauging audience reaction. To be able to deal intelligently with technical sides of production, the production-director should serve an apprenticeship in various phases of radio. In fact, "radio production is the synthesis of all the skills that go into radio," said Mr. Allan.

As well as the lectures on radio production by Mr. Allan, the series includes lectures by Mavor Moore on radio acting and by Lister Sinclair on script writing.

Unity For Community American Jews' Goal, Rabbi Informs Hillel

The creation of unity by the foundation of a well-knit Jewish community life in America was stressed by Rabbi A. M. Kammerling speaking to a group of Hillel students yesterday. A culture within a political structure was seen as the political ideal.

The need of a representative body led to the creation of the American-Jewish Committee in 1906. It was weak in that it was not representative since prominent Jewish men had been asked to be the spokesmen. The new individualist Jews deeply resented this fact.

The American Jewish Congress planned on a representative basis to uphold Jewish rights did not question the degree of religion of its members. Its underlying premise is that American-Jewish problems are also the problems of the larger American unit and as such demand active policies. It conflicts with the policy of quietism favored by the American-Jewish Committee.

Rabbi Kammerling reiterated the question currently debated on the advisability of dissolving existing Zionist groups to make way for a strong unified structure.

Entries For Float Parade Assure 'Homecoming' Color

Sixteen entries for the Float Parade, one of the events scheduled for this week's Home Coming Weekend, had been received by the parade committee yesterday, D. L. Gold, Chairman of the Committee said.

The entries have been received from fifteen faculties and colleges and one from the Commerce Club.

The floats will be assembled Friday night in downtown Toronto in preparation for the parade at 10 a.m. Saturday. The parade route runs from Devonshire Place east on Bloor to Yonge, down Yonge to College, across College to the Wallberg Memorial Building and north to a reviewing stand in front of Hart House.

FALL CONVOCATION

More than 400 successful students will receive degrees at the University of Toronto's fall Convocation in Convocation Hall this Friday evening.

In the absence of the Chancellor, degrees will be conferred by the President, Dr. Sidney E. Smith. Dr. W. R. Taylor, Principal of University College, will address the graduates.

University Clubs Will Support Talk By Dean Johnson

The U.C. Literary and Athletic Society, the U. C. Women's Undergraduate Association, and The Student Christian Movement, decided yesterday afternoon to support the Humanist Club in sponsoring an address by the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, at the University of Toronto.

Student Opportunity

"Although our organizations do not necessarily subscribe to the views of the Dean, we feel that the students of the University should have the opportunity to hear the opinions of so important and controversial a figure," said executive officers of the bodies concerned.

"The dean's address will be given on Thursday, November 11, and these groups are approaching the University authorities to obtain the largest accommodation available," Ralph Campbell, President of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society, said.

Students Meet Dean

Students who wish to meet the clergyman personally may do so if they meet him when he entrains at the Union Station Thursday, a speaker for the Humanist club, said last night.

A talk before students of George Williams' College in Montreal, was cancelled yesterday when the college refused the use of a hall. Another lecture, scheduled for McGill University today has been cancelled for the same reason.

Weekend Visitors Inspect Campus, Aided By Radios

Parents of undergrads who find themselves in unfamiliar surroundings and alumni with short memories will have the answers to their questions about the university at their fingertips this weekend when five walkie-talkie radios in touch with a central information bureau will be available on the campus.

Operated by C.O.T.C. personnel, the two-way radios will also help keep order in Saturday morning's float parade, Murray Rosenburgh, Homecoming touring and information chairman, said in announcing the introduction of the walkie-talkies.

Central information bureau will be the Old Observatory in front of Hart House, starting Friday noon, Rosenburgh said. On Sunday 50 coeds in Varsity jackets and wearing blue and white arm bands will be on hand there to guide visitors through the University.

Hart House, the Dental Building and the University Library will be opened for Sunday afternoon sightseers and plans are on the way for the opening of other buildings.

An information table will also be set up in the lower Concourse of Union Station Friday night to greet incoming alumni, Rosenburgh said.

TICKETS TO HAMLET

The entire allotment of tickets for a special Hamlet performance were sold out in a few minutes and were insufficient to take care of a fraction of the student demand. As a result, arrangements are being completed with the J. Arthur Rank organization for additional performances at reduced rates. Details will be announced in The Varsity later this week.

Canadian Parliamentarians To Address U of T Students

A Youth Conference on Parliament, sponsored by the Hansard Society of Canada, will be held in Convocation Hall, Nov. 13, at 10.00 a.m., it was announced yesterday. "Four of the ablest and liveliest parliamentarians" in Canada will take part in the panel, an official of the society said. Half-hour talks in the morning session will be given respectively by Paul Martin, John Diefenbaker, Agnes McPhail and J. F. Poulliot, on the subjects "The Government Side of the House," "The Opposition—Basis of our Freedom," "Women in Parliament—Why Aren't There More?" and "A Quebec Member at Ottawa." In the afternoon the speakers will join in a Round-Table to answer questions.

The society has approached the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation with a view to having the sessions recorded for educational purposes, and for possible broadcast later, so that students who submit good questions may hear these later over the air. Officials are of the opinion that students will get a lively and interesting view of how Parliament works, which they could not obtain even by visiting the House of Commons.

Tickets, which cost twenty-five cents, may be obtained at the S.A.C. office in Hart House.

DEBATING TRIALS

The University of Toronto Debating Union will hold tryouts for the Intercollegiate Debating team on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week at 1:15 p.m. in Room 9, Trinity College, Pat Cole, Debates Commissioner said yesterday.

The resolution for debate in the tryouts will be "In the present time foreign policy is of greater importance to the nation than domestic affairs."

Regina Rotary Club Offers Scholarships For Post-Grad Work

The Regina Rotary Club is granting a number of scholarships to students in their final year at the University of Toronto and who intend doing post graduate work in some other country, it was announced yesterday.

Students, who wish to make application for the scholarships must meet the following requirements: He must be registered in the final year of his course and a student of outstanding merit, he must have some knowledge of the language of the country in which he intends taking post graduate work.

And students from Saskatchewan attending the University of Toronto who wish to apply for this scholarship are asked to leave their names in the Student's Administrative Office with a transcription of their academic record and other facts concerning their university career. These applications will then be forwarded to the Committee of Award. Those who have obtained the scholarships will be notified.

Worth Hearing

The Youth Conference on Parliament being held in Convocation Hall Saturday is a welcome development in an organization that originated in this country only last spring—the Hansard Society of Canada.

The Hansard Society was originally conceived in Britain in 1944 by Commander Stephen King-Hall who realized that no society existed in Britain—or in the whole world—to promote the study of parliamentary institutions. "There were societies for everything else, from auctioneering to zoology, but none for this central institution of our free society" he explained.

The idea has since been carried to Belgium, France, and Italy where sister-societies are now functioning.

A non-party and non-profit making organization, the Hansard Society is designed to spread interest and information about parliament—an institution about which too many people are only vaguely aware. The society recognizes the need for enthusiastic democratic effort and calls for "the development of positive action to strengthen and energize our parliamentary institutions."

Similar Youth Conferences have been held in England where interest in Parliament has been greatly stimulated. At the last conference in London, Prime Minister Attlee attended and the BBC recorded the session.

The conference on Saturday includes four of the most interesting parliamentarians in the country. It should prove of interest to many students.

ART - MUSIC and DRAMA

Japhet

Guess what Japhet is about. That's right—sex. Its characters use the occasional word over the first 250 and act before a very attractive set, which automatically puts it in the comedy category known as "sophisticated." At least it doesn't purport to be anything else and there aren't any sugar-coated messages. True love rears its ugly head once or twice but no one pays it much attention, and there's a bit of talk about big and little people but that turns out to be just another come-on.

Japhet is a meek little Briton whose psychiatrist has sent him to America to lose his inhibitions or bust. Sin and virtue wage war in the parlor before the eyes of a properly shocked Presbyterian maid, but sin is triumphant, striking from unsuspected quarters (the Presbyterian maid carries the victory). Ernest Truex is Japhet and whiskey-voiced Vicki Cummings handles a cynical running commentary on the surrounding eccentrics and bromides. Both are excellent.

Moral-seekers won't find one for the digging, but they might find an unintentional commentary on the times. It ought to do well on Broadway—it has all the right ingredients.

Jim Dickinson.

Medsmen Kick 4 Singles In First Loss For Vic

By GORD PLAXTON

Meds 4-0 win over Vic yesterday afternoon on the Back Campus, was the Scarlet and Gold's first loss of the Interfaculty football season in five games.

Plunging and kicking were emphasized by both teams, during the play, with the result that the game lacked excitement, and was not too interesting. The Med's line played a sterling game, and came out fighting mad, to show Vic's line a thing or two about blocking. Med's backfield had the edge over Vic's halfbacks, mostly due to a stronger line, which broke through to make holes for Med's plunges.

Med's halfbacks kicked four singles, for the only scoring of the game. The first score came early in the first quarter, when Al Varga kicked from Vic's 30 yard line, Lorne Lodge receiving and not quite reaching safety.

In the third quarter, on a third down kick, by Varga again, Med's scored their second point. Again in the third, Jim Smith booted another single, when the attempted field goal missed its mark. The final point came in the last quarter, on a kick by Bill Cochrane.

The last few minutes proved more interesting, as both sides tried trial plays, and applied the pressure.

Meds stars were: Jim Smith, Black Mike Cecutti and Wilf Anderson.

Vic stars were: Harry Damp, Lorne Lodge, Stew Howard.

Emmanuel Drops Knox 2-0 UC and Forestry Tie 1-1

By MILES KENNEDY

Yesterday was a double-header for soccer enthusiasts with Emmanuel beating Knox 2-0 and U.C. and Forestry tying at 1-1.

Both games were sufficiently even to be interesting though there was no real doubt that Emmanuel were better than Knox. The game started on an even trend but after five minutes of play Emmanuel took the ball away to the Knox half and kept it there fairly consistently until the half-itme whistle blew on a scoreless game. Surprisingly enough although the play was more even in the second half with Knox seeing as much of the ball as their opponents McLelland nodded a goal in for Emmanuel after a melee around the Knox goal-mouth and teammate Vanstone followed with another goal from the head after a further five minutes of play.

Play was hard throughout but good and clean despite the refereeing which was a little erratic. One outstanding feature of the game was the hard, accurate throwing-in of Emmanuel skipper Jim Seunarine. Both these teams deserve particular credit for their excellent turn-out for, although small in numbers, they had a better supply of reserves than their bigger brethren who were playing on the adjoining field.

Play between U. C. and Forestry was hard, too, but Bill Babcock had the refereeing well in hand and a good standard of clean play was maintained throughout the game. From the start it could have been anybody's game—and it was. Both teams did their scoring in the first half and then, although the battle continued as fierce as ever, the goals were kept free. The Forestry goal went to Maynard while Beverley took the honors for U. C., who seem to be fated always to draw or lose but only very rarely to win.

SIGMA ALPHA MU
Anniversary Ball

Got an essay due early next week? A lab report that just has to be in on Monday? A book review your professor has been screaming for for two weeks? . . . And counting on this week-end to get it all done? . . . All we've got to say is that you'd better draw up a new schedule . . . but quick! . . . 'cause any way you look at it, you're not going to have a minute to spare. It's the Follies week-end, the Beat-Western week-end and the Homecoming week-end, all crammed into three hectic, hilarious days.

Here's a brief peek of what's ahead for UC'ers. . . . Friday afternoon at four o'clock in the J.C.R. a Western team of debaters will take the negative side of a motion, "Resolved that intercollegiate sports are detrimental to the best interests of university life." A U.C. debating team will uphold the affirmative. Friday night is Follies Night and we know you won't be missing the show and dance in Hart House. Maybe if you have late show tickets you'll be able to take a quick trip to the Pep Rally, that starts off Homecoming week-end, before you go to the Follies.

Saturday morning there will be a float parade containing the two Varsity bands, maybe Western's band, and at least 16 floats of campus colleges, faculties and organizations, which will pass President Smith's reviewing stand on the front campus about 11 o'clock. The Alumni Federation shield will be awarded the best float which will tour Varsity Stadium in the afternoon at game time. We've heard all about UC's float. You'll like it. And we've no doubt the judges will too. But before you can go out to watch the parade, you've something else to do. If you're free Saturday morning, here's a plea for you to turn up at the J.C.R. at nine o'clock to help decorate the J.C.R. and West Hall for the dances that night.

And if you haven't heard already, then we're not going to tell you that Varsity is going to beat Western in the at o'noon.

Saturday night will see the U of T campus in the most festive mood of its history. There'll be dancing in two gyms in Hart House, the Drill Hall, Burwash Hall, the J.C.R. and West Hall. For only a dollar, a couple may attend all these in a round-robin tour during the evening. UC is on the lookout for entertainment for its two dances. Tickets will be available in UC. . . . If you missed the Follies Friday, you'll want to catch an early show Saturday before the dance. . . . There'll be the regular rugby dance at the Royal York too.

Convocation Hall will be the scene Sunday morning of a united church service. Sunday afternoon from four to six, a Homecoming Reception for UC alumni and alumnae and undergrads with parents who are visiting the campus, will be held in Croft Chapter House.

The Blue and White Society has done a terrific job in arranging the Homecoming week-end but credit for much of UC's share in its success, should go to Ann Wilson, Joyce Adams, Don Evans, Dave Rose and Dave Webster.

Mention of the Follies was made above. You learned how popular the UC show is, when you saw the long lineup last week-end the first day of ticket sales. You'll know why it's popular when you see it. Everyone's working hard to make it the best Follies yet. . . . Take, for instance, Michael Hornyansky, Buzz Thomas and Mary Alice Burton, who are writing the skits, and Eric House, who along with Mike, is directing them.

"Amalgamation" was a word on everyone's tongue last week both before and after that historic joint open meeting. It's a word you'll be hearing a lot more of before the year is out. . . . The students at the meeting made it clear that amalgamation of their two governing bodies is what they want.

At the last Open Lit meeting, a five-man committee of Don Evans, Gary Clarke, Dunc Green, Bob Sutherland and Keith Moles, was appointed to consider ways and means by which the Open Lit might be made more representative of student opinion. This committee is holding an open meeting tomorrow at one p.m. in Room 44E to hear suggestions and proposed changes. These should be presented in the form of briefs.

Of things-to-come. . . . The Music Club's first Record Hour of the year takes place today at 4.30 in the Long Common Room of the Union. Gray Knapp will be the commentator. . . . Tomorrow is a day of opportunity for UC women. The works of five Toronto women artists, Yvonne McKague Housser, Rody Kenny Courtice, Paraskeva Clark, B. Cogill Haworth and Isabel McLaughlin, will be on exhibit in the Women's Theatre at 7.45 p.m. Mr. Sidney Key, curator of the Art Gallery, and lecturer in the Fine Art Department here, will chair a round-table discussion led by the artists. Prior to the exhibit, the women will be entertained at dinner in Whitney Hall. . . . "Topaze" — you're seeing it everywhere. Has it set you wondering? It's La Societe Francaise's annual play being presented this year on November 20 in Hart House.

See you here next week, but in the meantime remember "we've got a team, we've gotta fight, we're gotta win".

P.S.—Ever see so many beautiful women as our Follies girls on the front campus yesterday?

St. Mike's Win Fifth Tilt In 12-1 Football Victory

By JOHN KENNEDY

St. Mike's "A" Rugby showed again last night that they are gunning for a spot in the Mulock Cup playoffs by defeating Trinity 12-1. They looked pretty smooth in winning their fifth straight game. The first quarter featured some redhot kicking by both Rodgers of Trinity and Kelly of St. Mike's.

Bill Kelly drew first blood with a 55-yard punt that loosened the shingles of U.C.'s staid old roof. Trinity momentarily thought that they had a major score after Rod Whitehead recovered a blocked kick and raced 80 yards to the St. Mike's goal line. However, there was an obvious Trinity off-side on the play.

The Buttery boys tied things up in the next period on a kick that landed far behind the Saint's deadline. Rodgers was responsible for this effort. Both teams were able to keep themselves out of danger by virtue of the really good kicking of Kelly and Rodgers. The half ended on a sensational note when Dick Brown with great blocking heaved a 50 yard pass that Lorne McIntyre took on the Trinity no yard line. Eddie Brennan had little trouble in getting the extra point from placement.

Rick Gaunt opened things up for the red and black in the third quarter with nice passes to Lawson and Rod Whitehead, but they bogged down when O'Hara recovered a pass fumble and brought the Collegians out of danger. Bill Kelly then hit for 15 followed by Gerry Washington and Tony Adams and Rog Knollmeyer who took the ball to the Trinity five where Jim Coghlan lugged it over. The Trinity line smothered the convert atteppt.

The Double Blue's line was bolstered throughout by Phil O'Hara Timmins and Bud Brennan. Bill Kelly led the stellar backfield of Brown, Washington, James and McIntyre. For Trinity, Don Campbell, Rod Whitehead and Gaunt were half line standouts with Lawson Hunt and Leuty doing the heavy duty along the front wall.

Vic Tops PHE By One Point In Girls' Ball

In the first of the finals in the women's basketball yesterday noon on Trinity Field, Vic 1 edged PHE 1 with a score of 15-13. These two teams are the only ones left to battle it out for the basketball championship which is presented to top team in the interfaculty leagues. The best of three games is the determining factor in declaring the winners. Yesterday, Vic gained a toe hold on the championship and the sport fans are guaranteed a tight, exciting game at noon today at Trinity field when these fighting women meet for a second time.

Both teams played well, with Vic gaining four points in their first inning. However, PHE tightened up in the second and third inning to bring their total points only one behind their determined opponents. But Vic surged ahead to finally win a well-played game.

Special mention goes to Marg Doyle of the Physed team who pitched a good game and was up on her toes stopping grounders and catching flies. Anna Staples and Allison Jefferies of the Vic team played very good games as catcher and shortstop respectively.

COLE SLAW
We went to Casa Loma on Sunday, to get a close-up look at one of the continent's more famous architectural freaks. The most fascinating gadget we remember is the shower in the master's quarters that has no less than six faucets. Knowing the trouble that we have with the conventional two faucets, we wonder what manner of man Sir Henry Pellatt was, who could successfully manipulate six at one time. We found one clue when we were informed of the fantastic fortune the place cost to build, and of Sir Henry's many financial interests. Obviously, he was what is fancifully referred to as a financial octopus, and after thinking about that shower for a while, we've come to the conclusion that in reference to him the term was literally true.

Makes Extra Trip, Dean Coming Here For Friday's Talk

Very Rev. Hewlett Johnston, Dean of Canterbury, will speak at the University of Toronto tomorrow, Frank Rebick, vice-president of the Humanist Club, said yesterday. He will arrive by train from Montreal at 7 a.m., Friday, and will speak at the University at 10 a.m.

The "Red Dean" plans to give an hour-long address and will answer questions from 11 a.m. until 12 noon, when he will leave for Malton airport to return to Montreal.

He would be taking the train from Montreal, Dean Johnston announced, to ensure getting here in case bad weather should prevent air travel.

The dean's address to McGill students in Montreal was heard by only a limited number of his audience, Tuesday, when somebody cut the loudspeaker wires before his arrival.

Members of the McGill S.C.M. had installed a public address system in order that the address might be heard by groups in rooms and halls on each floor, as they had no large assembly room. Only those on the main floor could hear Dean Johnston.

The speaker told the students that he felt "a dash of spice of illegality" about Tuesday's meeting. "It could be I am addressing a body of very valiant McGill rebels."

Discussions for a lasting peace, said the Dean, would ultimately begin on the basis of the six points made by Henry Wallace, unsuccessful candidate for the United States presidency.

The Students' Administrative Council, at its meeting last night, backed the sponsors of the Dean by endorsing his appearance on the campus. The Council will also assist in finding suitable facilities for his address.

First Instalment Of Varsity Story On CJBC Tonight

A cast of well-known Hart House actors, the University Glee Club and a combined CJBC—U. of T. production staff will pool their talents to present the first part of a dramatized version of Morley Callaghan's "Varsity Story", at 9 p.m. tonight.

"I hope that the 15,000 undergraduates and other Ontario citizens will dial CJBC's 860 to catch the first show of the university broadcasting season," said Paul Fauteux, SAC Radio Commissioner.

Tonight's presentation will be produced and directed by Ross McLean of the CBC. The adaptation was done by Oscar Helina, IV SPS. Ron Grant, I Pass, will be the announcer.

The first instalment of "The Varsity Story" depicts the influence of the University on the central character, "Tyndall", played by Bill Hutt, Trinity. John Walker,-Grad. Student, will be the narrator.

"Phyllis Halem" will be played by Trinity's Robin Taylor. The part of "Gail" will be played by Marg. Bronson, Trinity. The two professors will be played by Bob Shepherd, UC, and Don Davis, III UC. Eric House, III UC, will play the part of "Hicks".

Mel Breen, Gra. Student, is student producer. The supporting cast includes Sheila Craig, UC, John Howe, UC, and Edith Green, UC.

Masterson and Metras On Pep Rally Program

Friday night's pre-Western game pep rally will be carried over CJBC and a network of Ontario stations in a half-hour broadcast, beginning at 9.30, Keith Davey, rally chairman, announced today.

The broadcast will be devoted to interviews with Coaches Masterson and Metras, a show directed by Norm Jewison, and Varsity yells. Preceding the radio show will be skits, songs, the burning of a Western effigy, and a lavish display of fireworks will brighten up the evening.

The rally will begin on the back campus at 8.15 p.m. following a march by the Blue and White Band from the Drill Hall along Bloor and down Devonshire Place. Davey said that those at the rally must sit on the ground for all to see the show properly and requested everyone to bring a blanket.

"The show will go on, rain or not," Davey said.

U.C. SINGERS

The U.C. Singers will meet at 5 p.m. today in the Women's Union Theatre.

McGill, Nov. 19—(CUP) — Bob Guill, President of McGill SEC, apologized formally to a meeting of more than 2,000 students, for his action in cancelling a talk by Dean Johnson, scheduled for Tuesday. All lectures were cancelled by the Vice-Principal, in order that the student body might attend the meeting.

A two hour debate culminated in a complete victory for a bill accepting the apology of Guill and re-affirming its faith in him as the proper leader of the student body.

A further resolution which read "Resolved that this society deplore the action and reaffirm the fundamental student right to hear prominent speakers of all political beliefs," was passed.

The student body went on record as saying they unalterably opposed every tenet of communist doctrine

Grube Discusses CCF Convention

Social security and social planning were keynotes of an address given by Professor George Grube to the Victoria College CCF Club yesterday. Professor Grube outlined and analysed various aspects of the CCF's national first term program, adopted at the Winnipeg convention last August. The speaker explained how different viewpoints were reconciled and synthesized in the final draft.

Speaking of socialization, Mr. Grube pointed out that the CCF could not undertake an adequate program of social security without control of the country's "key" industries sufficiently strong to permit long-term economic planning.

The fact that the CCF recognizes this principle is, he said, "the essential difference between the CCF and the Liberal Party."

Asks Formal Reply To '47 Fees Brief SAC Decries Delay

A letter asking for an official reply to last year's fees brief will be sent to the Board of Governors of the University as a result of last night's meeting of the Students' Administrative Council.

Verbal Reply

The move came after E. A. Macdonald, SAC secretary-treasurer, reported a verbal reply from President Sidney Smith, indicating a reply to the fees brief had been held up because of unavoidable circumstances.

The brief in question was submitted to the Board of Governors last January after students had protested the increase in tuition fees made last year.

President Smith was reported to have said that ratification of the university budget had been held up since last summer because of the provincial election. The Minister of Education had been away in England during the summer and was unavailable later because of the national PC convention.

Council members felt that since the SAC had gone through the proper channels and used the proper procedure in submitting the brief, an official reply — in writing — should be received from the Board of Governors.

"I think a verbal reply is totally unsatisfactory" said UC representative J. Potts. "It looks like we're getting the run-around." Potts suggested a committee be formed to press the matter.

A suggestion to send a copy of the fees brief to the provincial government was turned down and Council decided a letter to the Board of Governors would be the most practical immediate step.

HMS Ajax Crest To Be Presented At Service Today

The British Admiralty has sent a bronze crest from the H.M.S. Ajax to be presented to the Ajax division of the University of Toronto at today's Memorial Day Service. Services are to be held at King's Road lawn at Ajax, and at the Soldier's Tower, University of Toronto, at 10.40 a.m.

The formal service at Toronto will be opened by Dr. H. J. Cody, and at Ajax by President Sidney Smith. Dean C. R. Young, of the Faculty of Applied Science, is in charge of the arrangements for the special presentation at Ajax.

A carillon recital will be given by J. L. Richardson from the Soldier's Tower both before and after the service.

At 11.00 a.m. after the Last Post has been sounded, a period of two minutes silence will be observed, followed by the Reveille and the placing of the wreaths.

The service will be closed by the singing of the National Anthem and the Benediction.

I.S.S.

There will be a meeting of the I.S.S. Social Committee at 5 p.m. in the Women's Union.

And Some Came Back

They did not come back to a land fit for heroes, because they were not heroes. They did not come back to a country which honored them, because they knew they had gained no honor. They did not come back expecting gratitude, because they knew they had little for which to be grateful. They had failed, and they knew it. They had set out to do a great thing. They had given all that a man could give; "Greater love than this hath no man." — and they knew it had been in vain.

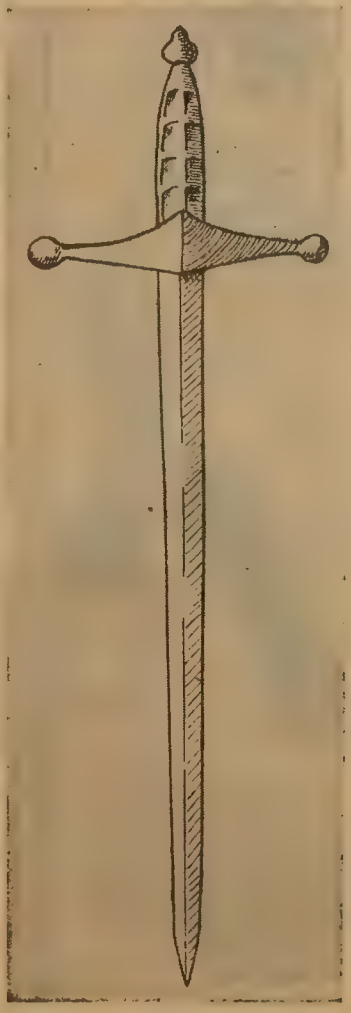
They knew the world was no better than it had been when they marched away. They knew there was no room for charity toward their fellow men in a world still reeking with hatred. They knew the world had only stopped for breath before it was ready to plunge itself into another vortex of terror. They knew that the pious platitudes said over the graves of their dead fellows were made in honor of the deeds they had done — and not in shame for what had happened.

And they knew that they and their children would march out again to the same thing. They knew that all they had known would be forgotten as the leaders of society converted those hideous years into something great and glorious — a golden calf wherein to worship their own pomposity.

They saw around them grouped the bureaucrats crying in holy horror. "The foe once more dares to ask that some of my self-righteousness be diluted. Rise up ye gallant men and fight" they shout to all the mob.

"We will win" they scream. "Have we not the greatest weapons on our side? Is not God on our side?"

Dear God, what sacrileges have been perpetrated in Your name before the altar of Mars!



. . . O, if you send our children out to war,

. . . If we should see that gut-quaking, soul-shattering fear written on their faces as they face death,

. . . If we must pick their mangled bodies from the mud, and hold their torn bodies to our hearts,

. . . If we shall see them straggling home again —hopeless men, defeated men, desperate men, old, old men of nearly thirty.

We will curse those who will have sent them out, for if there be a Hell, its darkest corner is not deep enough for what they shall deserve.

If Ye Break Faith...

Editorial

Please . . . . .

It is raining and that is somehow appropriate when one starts to write about Remembrance Day. Although we suspect that the people to whom this editorial is really addressed are much too busy to read it, and although we suppose that the heads of the two most powerful governments on earth wouldn't pay much attention to what a few students have to say. Anyway, there's something we'd like to tell them.

A lot of us around here don't need a special day to remember things that are pretty hard to forget. Things that the people who declare the wars, and arrange the remembrance ceremonies never saw. Like the half-trained kid who stepped on a Schu mine his first day in the line, and then lay there under a blood-stained blanket watching his eighteen years of life ooze away from the smashed-up mess where his feet had been. Or the farm girl who had her baby in a stable in the hills of Reggio Emilia while the nebelwerfer across the river knocked tiles down in her face from the battered roof, and a couple of scared Canadian boys tried to help her bear the son of a German soldier who might have been firing the shells. It didn't matter about the baby being illegitimate after all, though. Both of them were killed about two hours later.

This Remembrance Day will no doubt run according to form. But please, gentlemen, on all the platforms in all the countries of all the world, don't tell us about the men who "gave their lives". As far as anybody knows who was in on the thing, nobody gave his life. Most of them died reluctantly, clinging to life as long as they could, and fighting back the pain. Some of them were cursing when they died, and others were mercifully deadened to both the physical pain and the spiritual hopelessness by the drugs that modern science has given us to help the victims of modern science to die quietly, without making too much fuss.

And, gentlemen, don't tell us that the world is still in danger, and that you know that those of us who are left will make sure that the dead didn't die in vain.

If the world is still in danger, gentlemen, it's your fault. Yes, yours. The fault of all the men who continue to demand that their personal views shall be defended by war. The fault of the stupid, bumbling Baldwins and Chamberlains and Trumans and Mackenzie Kings and all the Babbitts who mutter about freedom. And the fault of the Stalins and Vishinskys and Molotovs and all their followers who also talk about freedom.

Neither side is willing to give an inch on what it considers to be essential points. Neither side has the faintest conception of what goes on in the minds of the other. And neither side apparently cares.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union are engaged in the greatest expansion in history. Both are convinced — or rather, both sets of leaders are convinced — that unless their system prevails, the world is doomed. The Russians are working through parties established in every country trying to get the rest of the world to follow their line. And the Americans are holding up a glittering

T.S.O. Concert

The program presented by the T. S. Orchestra in its second conscription concert this year featured works by Handel, Schumann, Brahms and the Canadian composer, Dorothy Cadzow. Homogeneous programs like the present one are still too rarely played by our orchestras. Unfortunately, the unity of a program is usually sacrificed to the rigidity of radio time limits although I see no reason why radio could not adjust its time in deference to well-built programmes.

The championship of Canadian music—the next concert features a Brott suite—is to be interpreted, I hope, as a regular habit. In her Northwestern Sketches Miss Cadzow, an Alberta-born composer, paints two contrasting impressions of Canadian landscape. "Across the Prairie Grass" and "Cow Town" are both interestingly scored. I wish there were more composers like Miss Cadzow who realized the need to present their ideas in a way that makes listening easy.

Ida Krehm's performance of the poetic piano concerto by Schumann tended towards the dreaminess of Eusebius rather than the energy of Florestan. Her tone was beautiful but one wished for greater metrical decision. If the combined effort of pianist and orchestra impressed me with occasional lack of vitality, I have to admit that most seats in Massey Hall inspire me with the illusion that I am getting deaf. Only in the last two movements of the Brahms symphony in E. minor did I have the impression of proper intensity. Sir Ernest MacMillan and the orchestra gave a dynamic performance of this great narrative symphony. The scherzo and chaconne in particular were played with remarkable vigour and precision.

—H. Kallmann.

SAC At A Glance

The Students' Administrative Council at its meeting last night:

Heard a letter from the Humanist Club asking the SAC to co-sponsor the appearance of Dean Hewlett Johnson on the campus. The council moved an endorsement of the Dean's appearance and to lend its assistance in seeking facilities for his address.

Referred a letter from the LPP Club calling for remedial action regarding alleged racial discrimination in University College.

Moved that a letter be sent to the Board of Governors requesting an official reply to last fees brief.

Referred to the Publications Committee a complaint of the Faculty of Music that coverage of the Red Feather concert in The Varsity was inadequate.

Set up a committee to investigate the possibility of establishing a book store to be used as a book exchange centre on the campus.

Turned down a recommendation of the Radio Committee that it be solely responsible for radio activities on the campus, thus leaving the Public Relations Committee free to seek its own radio publicity.

Moved a resolution "to discontinue its investigation of the alleged discrimination by Miss Ferguson, Dean of Whitney Hall, because of insufficient evidence" after a session in camera.

Elected SAC representative Calvert of School of Architecture as chairman of the Ex-Service Committee.

golden bait in one hand and a red bogey in the other, trying to get the rest of the world to follow their line.

In Eastern Europe, the descendants of Mendelssohn are listening to proletarian music, whatever that is, and throwing overboard their own cultures for a standardized product made in Moscow. In Western Europe the descendants of Jean-Jaques Rousseau and Victor Hugo are chewing gum, listening to be-bop, and forming chambers of commerce.

Does it not occur to you, the members of the two new master races that are competing for the tattered mantle of the Herrenvolk, that the rest of us might like just to be let alone? That, just possibly, the world could get along if both of you would realize that you have no divinely appointed mission to rule? That, also just possibly, the average American or Russian would rather stay home on the farm than "give his life" for intolerance?

Right now, instead of trying to halt expansion, both the United States and Russia seem mainly occupied with trying to fix the blame for the situation on each other. And the longer this keeps up, the harder it will be to stop the expansion. Why not admit that you're both to blame? And then start some negotiations in which the words "fault", "blame", "right" and "wrong" shall be barred in favor of "peace" and "practicability"?

At least, gentlemen, if you get down from your platforms at 11:02 a.m. to hurry back to power politics, don't expect us to like it, or you.

Donate Annual Award To Varsity Reporter

A $100.00 annual award for distinguished reporting on The Varsity has been granted by the Board of Governors of the University, an official said yesterday.

The Board of Governors announced that more than $400.00 had been received from various donors to establish a fund in memory of Miss Anita Freedman, young honor graduate of University College who died last year. The $100.00 annual award will be taken from this fund.

Miss Freedman joined the reporting staff of The Globe and Mail after graduation.

Intermediates Play Final Game Today

Dents Boot To 12-0 Win White Star

By BOB JONES

Dentistry's football team stretched its Group IV unbeaten streak to five games yesterday afternoon when it blanked the cellar-dwelling St. Mike's B's 12-0. The game was played before a small crowd on a field that was slippery enough to ensure the usual interfaculty quota of vital fumbles.

The winners utilized the solid blocking of their wingline to build up an early lead on kicking plays and these added to the Double Blue's inability to capitalize on their frequent breaks proved to be the winning factors for the Dentists. Most potent individualist in the winning cause was backfielder White who used assorted methods to boot seven points and passed for the game's lone major.

It was not until the second quarter, that Dents posted a score and they did so by virtue of a 25 yard drop-kick from White's cleats.

White Singles

Dents resumed their scoring early in the second when White booted a single to put his team ahead 4-0. At that point the game's complexion was drastically changed by a pair of Irish first downs and the recovery of a dropped kick by Jones on the Dent 10 yard line. On the very next play St. Mike's missed a glorious opportunity to pull ahead when Jones missed a slightly deflected pass from Belmont behind the scoring line.

At that stage the Double Blue attack fizzled and a fumble recovery combined with a strong ground attack put the Dentistry team in position for White to kick a placement early in the last quarter.

Mednick Majors

The Irish rally failed to materialize and Dents took advantage of a first down in their opponents' half of the field to throw a pass for the game's sole touch. White tossed the ball to Mednick who eluded several would-be tacklers for the score.

Skinner proved to be the defensive sparkplug in the hard-charging, cigarette-smoking Dentistry line while White handled the offensive chores quite capably. Burke-Gaffney, McLaughlin and McRae were in there fighting hard for a losing cause.

Cheese It.. The Copp

Johnny Metras and his Western Mustangs can start ordering their crying towels now for after the Saturday game. Dave Copp, stalwart Varsity inside, will lead the Blue linemen in smashing the Mustangs all over the Varsity Stadium. Playing his second season for the Blues, Copp has been turning in solid performances in every game and will be doing his best with the rest of the Blues to brand the Mustangs with their first loss in 28 games

Third Spot Western Colts Will Play Host To Varsity Seconds

By BRUCE MACDONALD

The Intermediate Blues hope to set a shining example for their older brothers when they meet the Western Colts today at 2.15 p.m. in London. Fresh from a 16-7 win over the powerful OAC Aggies last Saturday, the Intermediates are determined to show Western who is boss.

A win today will assure the Blues of at least a tie for the first place slot in the intermediate loop. If OAC defeats McMaster this week-end, they will have the same number of points as a win over the Colts will give Varsity.

Injury Free

The Intermediates are relatively free from injuries for this game, and such stalwarts as Adam Zimmerman, Hugh Forge, Bill Brewer, and Bob Garside will be in top shape for the contest. The team is a bit shorthanded at the middle position, but coach Don Bark feels that he will be able to get around this difficulty without too much trouble.

This Intermediate squad has really been showing championship form in its last few games. A passing attack that was instrumental in downing McMaster 59-0 has been polished up for today's game. With Bill Brewer back to help out in the punting department, the Blues hope to kick the Colts right out the other end of the stadium.

When game time rolls around this afternoon, the Intermediates will all be in there fighting to make their last game of the season a victorious one.

Predictions

Can We Beat Western Coaches Are Divided

By STAN FILLMORE

Varsity Senior Blues stand a fair chance of beating the Western Mustangs in the final scheduled intercollegiate game of the 1948 football season, if the opinions of the four intercollegiate coaches are any indication.

Bob Masterson, coach of the Blues, is confident that his boys will defeat Western. "If I wasn't sure we would win, I would call off the game. I expect to win and the boys expect to win. Our chances of victory are very good. If the field is wet it will be to our advantage because Western depends more on a fast backfield. But a rain during the game will definitely be to our disadvantage. It would prevent our boys passing attack from being totally effective."

Tindall Says

By long-distance telephone from Kingston, Frank Tindall, coach of the Queen's Gaels told The Varsity, "I think Varsity's chances are very good. At least 50-50. Masterson has a very well-balanced team. Danylchuck and Toogood are two excellent men and Bruce Cummings is an all round man—tops in passing and kicking". Tindall said that he believed that Varsity was the only team in the intercollegiate league that approximated Western in all departments and that the only place Western might have a slight edge in is speed in the backfield.

"I'd like to see Varsity beat Western" Tindall said, "you have a fine bunch of fellows on the team and they certainly deserve the honor of being the first team to beat Western".

Stevens Dittos

Warren Stevens, Director of Athletics at Varsity said "Varsity stands a good chance to whip Western. The Blues' performance in the last three games definitely shows they have improved considerably over their opening style". Mr. Stevens attributed this improvement to the fact that the Blues employ a complicated offensive system that took a couple of weeks to perfect".

"Our boys are in the right frame of mind for this key game of the season, and although they will be meeting another top team I would give the Blues a definite edge," Stevens said.

"Close" Says Obeck

From Montreal, Vic Obeck, McGill coach, said "I think it will be a close game. As long as Western has fellows like Parry who's good for distance if let loose, it is hard to tell what will happen. But if the field is dry and other conditions are right, I definitely favor Varsity over Western".

Johnny Metras, Western Mustang coach, told The Varsity by telephone-to-far-away-places that he felt like any coach does on the approach of a crucial game. (All coaches will know what Mr. Metras means—others will just have to guess!)

Is Limb Pretty?

"Western is in a peculiar position in that we have won all of our games so far and all eyes are turned on us to see who will be the first team to beat us" Metras said. "We play the game on Saturday and forget the one next week till it comes time to play it".

Asked if he would like to make a prediction on the outcome of the game, Metras told The Varsity to "Ask Bob Masterson, I wouldn't climb out on a limb like that even if she was pretty!"

SPORT IN SHORT

Football

UC IX beat Dent. (B), 15-8, 3-15, 15-13.

SPORTSWOMAN

Softball

Yesterday's playoff game between PHE I and Vic I was cancelled on account of rain. The game will be played today at 1 o'clock (weatherman permitting) on Trinity Field. Vic won the first game of this best-of-three series 15-14.

Basketball

Crammed into LM gym last night, Meds downed St. Hilda's Sophs 30-19. The Saint's had ample tries at the basket but could not make their shots count. Fighting Joyce Atkinson sank four points for the losers while her teammate Dodie Jones added up eight. Darting little Beth McCree played an outstanding game for Meds piling up 18 points. Jumping Ruth Alison intercepted many of the Saint's passes and Betty Line racked up eight points for the winners.

PHE III swamped Vic Seniors 38-10 in a very one-sided game. Gwen Smith and Jacey Steele piled up most of the points for the winners, who led by a wide margin throughout the game.

Volleyball

The president of women's volleyball, Alice Entwistle, PHE III, stated yesterday the following facts about volleyball for the coming season.

The schedule will include approximately 15 teams and these will be divided into three leagues according to the experience and ability of the players. Practices will begin immediately after the Christmas holidays, and the third week in January will see the first league games. All scheduled games will be played at Lillian Massey gym.

There is no award for the volleyball winners but glory, which was gained by the Physio team last year.

It is not certain yet whether there will be an intercollegiate team picked or not, however there is always a chance, so watch for further news on the subject.

There will be classes for those wishing to ref or coach volleyball starting today at 4.30 in L. M. gym All faculties are welcome.

Speaking Of Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

Vic Obeck, McGill football coach, really started a rhubarb with his blast at Western fandom.

Vic undoubtedly will never take back what he said about the Purple and White followers, but he's probably none too happy about the wide-spread publicity given his deathless quotes.

Coaches in general, and football coaches in particular, are well-known for sounding off after a bitter defeat. Usually the press shows sufficient discretion to await the cooling off process, before the quotes are published. Then if the quotes still go — let the chips fall where they may.

Now, if McGill had beaten Western, and Obeck sounded off, then people would be inclined to believe that there was just cause for the vocal blast.

The attack was directed mostly at certain Western students who shouted insults in the direction of the McGill players — insults which involved aspersions on the racial and religious histories of certain team-members.

London has always been noted for a very partisan—even fanatic student body. But, since time immemorial loyal fans have used every means possible to get the goat of the opposition, and it appears that while the London fans may not have bothered the McGill players to any great extent, they certainly managed to get under the skin of the McGill coach.

For some time now, Varsity fans have taken the name of Rozumniak very much in vain — but I can't recall any blast from Queen's concerning Varsity's fans showing racial prejudice.

Maybe Obeck should hire a student psychologist to examine his statements to the press, before he holds any further press conferences.

The Editor, The Varsity.
Dear Sir:

We wish to commend The Varsity for yesterday's editorial and for the manner in which it has handled its information concerning the proposed visit to the University of Toronto of the Dean of Canterbury.

There is, however, in The Varsity of Nov. 8th, the following statement, which is inaccurate and creates a wrong impression: "It was reported that the Humanist Society was refused the use of Convocation Hall last Friday because the time they had chosen conflicted with lectures being given there."

In this there are two errors:

1. The Humanist Club did not ask only for the use of Convocation Hall, but for any other suitable accommodation which could hold a large number of students. We were told that no other accommodation under the jurisdiction of the superintendent's office was available.

2. The club didn't choose a specific hour but stated that any hour during the day or evening (i.e. from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.) would be satisfactory. Although we indicated that certain hours were more desirable, e.g. 1 p.m. and 4 p.m., we stipulated our willingness to hold the meeting at any other hour. This was made quite explicit and was understood by those concerned.

Yours truly,
A. Noble IV U.C.
F. Rebick IV U.C.

In the issue of Nov. 4, it was clearly indicated that other accommodation sought by the Humanist Club had been refused. The Varsity, when obtaining the story was unaware that the Humanist Club had requested any satisfactory hour—a point that completely alters the vadidity of the excuse offered by the Superintendent's office.—Ed.

The Gallup poll is still, theoretically, a good idea. We have reason to doubt, however, that it will ever again achieve the international prominence that it did prior to a recent event we could mention. We approached Thomas E. Dewey, he was the Republican candidate, if you can recall, for a statement, and this is what he said: "As far as I'm concerned, the Gallup Poll would have been most precise had the voters gone Republican as predicted. This is just another instance of the electorate not supporting the will of the people. Dr. Gallup has, is and always will be a loyal Republican, whose public opinion polls are invariably a mirror of his, oops, I mean the people's honest opinion." The last we heard, Dr. Gallup was earnestly engaged in discovering just where the American people went wrong.

"Most College Students are Worthy, Obedient — and STUPID!"

THAT'S THE considered opinion of Arthur Lower, Queen's famed historian and writer.

He says further: The great mass of students literally can't read, can't write, can't speak . . . They can barely put words together to form a sentence that means anything . . . Instructors are timid and afraid to throw out the unfit . . . Administrations, harassed by competition, let standards drop to keep enrollment up, and hand out degrees to students who just aren't educated.

In Maclean's Magazine, out today, Arthur Lower gives some plain blunt talk on "higher" education for every student in the land to read and digest. It's for you too, professor! Read "Does Our Education Educate?" — in November 15 Maclean's.

And in the same issue read "New Crop in the Campus" — Pierre Berton's brilliant size-up of McGill's "Joe College" — 1948 model.

SPIRIT SWEEPS CAMPUS AS ALUMNI CONGREGATE

Invincibles Meet Blues For Finale

By BOB JONES

The Rodeo arrives on the campus tomorrow!

At approximately 2.15 p.m., no less than 12 untamed mavericks will be turned loose at one time on the Varsity Stadium gridiron to rare and snort in accepted wild animal fashion. At the same time the stands will disgorge an equal number of blue-clad buckaroos who enter the same arena with the express purpose of corralling the thundering herd of Mustangs.

Undefeated

Yes, this week-end witnesses the arrival of the high-stepping University of Western Ontario Mustangs, who lope into town on the crest of a 27 game undefeated streak to do battle with the Varsity Blues. It will mark the initial 1948 local appearance of the Western squad although the Intercollegiate champs recorded a win over U of T in the first game of the season at London.

The score in the two teams' previous encounter was 24-6 for the wrong side but a good deal of playing time had been spent since that fateful October week-end. It's just possible that recent developments may add up to the conclusion that Western is riding for a fall.

Blues Improving

First and foremost, the Blues have tucked away three wins as well as another loss since the first game and in so doing have smoothed the rough edges in all departments. They demonstrated that their offensive is second to none in the games against McGill and that they can muck it when necessary as at Kingston last week-end.

Injuries have hit the Mustangs in vulnerable positions during the last few games and key players Bob McFarlane, Bob Farley and Vern Brown will be absent from the line-up tomorrow afternoon. On the other hand, Varsity may be at full strength for the first time this season if lineman Clark and Beatty are considered fit enough to dress. The Purple's Choice, Johnny Metras, summed up the situation on the CFRB Quarterback's Club Tuesday when he said, "What's the use of cryin'; Bob'll have 12 men on the field, we'll have 12 men out there and that's all there is to it."

Mudders?

The impression that Varsity, as underdogs, wish a wet field to slow down the Western speed-boys is an erroneous one. Coach Masterson realizes that if the field is sloppy it will be of equal disadvantage to both squads but rain during the game would be a bad tack. No matter how it turns out, though, the Blues' coach is confident of his charges' ability to win and intimated on the Quarterback's Club Tuesday that anyone placing a wager on the game's outcome would do well to back the home squad.

Defence Strengthened

Varsity's downfall in their first Western encounter was accelerated in great measure by the passing attack sparked by Jack Perry and the outside wings. One of these ends, George Turnbull, is a doubtful starter and Perry will receive little or no relief in the aerial department since Bob McFarlane will not be playing. In addition, the Toronto pass defence has been considerably sharpened by the specialized defence roles undertaken of late by Volpe and Huycke.

All in all, it promises to be a glorious and enjoyable week-end provided the students uphold the honour of the Blue and White by a successful defence in the goal-posts, especially after Varsity wins.

Captain Slater, ex-Varsity band master will conduct the Varsity band at half time.

PRESIDENT'S WELCOME

On behalf of your Alma Mater, I put out a special doormat coloured blue and white. Emblazoned thereon in strands of gold is the old but ever new word "WELCOME". As you enter your mother's house, you will see a brisk fire on the hearth. Around it you will feel the cheerful glow of old friendships and recapture the genial warmth of the family circle. You will hear yet another chapter in the Varsity story: of how in one year your Alma Mater served some 9,000 ex-service students, over twenty-five per cent of the total ex-service University population of Canada; of how students, staff, administration, and graduates have joined together to meet and to solve the problems of these difficult, but exciting, years. You will observe many changes in the University, but you would not have it otherwise. One cannot step twice in the same river: the current flows on. Likewise in a University — it cannot stand still. It must go ahead, or it will retreat. We believe that you will agree that the institution is progressing in ways that are designed to match its programmes to the needs of a new day. With humility and with pride, we find in your careers examples of service to Canada worthy of the highest ideals of the University. No higher praise could be accorded to you. May the home-coming make even clearer to you the fact that you are still members of the University, and that your Alma Mater deserves and needs your interest, your support, and your affection.

First Homecoming Welcomes Visitors To Varsity Campus

From all indications, a wave of all-Varsity spirit unequalled since the Centennial of 1927 will sweep over the University of Toronto campus this week-end when Toronto's 16,000 undergraduates welcome their parents and an expected 5,000 alumni to the university for the Homecoming and Open House.

Organization

More than 300 undergrads have been working since October first to make the week-end a success. Heading the organization is the Homecoming Committee whose twelve members represent eight different faculties and colleges.

Sponsoring Varsity's first Homecoming and Open House is the Blue and White Society, an undergrad organization formed last spring to promote an all-university spirit. Its membership, each of the eleven members comes from a different college or faculty, typifies the all-university theme which cuts across faculty and college lines.

History

The history of the Homecoming goes back to last April when the S.A.C. approved the idea in principle but made no definite plans. At its first meeting this fall, on October 29, it accepted a proposal submitted by Blue and White chairman Joe Potts calling for an All-Varsity reunion without registration.

Full support was obtained the same evening from the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association. With the approval of President Smith a few days later, Operation Homecoming began to pick up steam.

Letters of invitation were sent out to the 8,000 members of the Alumni Association offering them the opportunity to buy tickets for the Varsity-Western game. Alumni organizations were urged to hold their reunions in conjunction with the week-end.

Blue and White

The Blue and White Society, whose members comprise the larger part of the Homecoming committee, is only a year old. It had its beginning last January when three Varsity enthusiasts, Bob Carley (UC), Jake Morgan (Victoria) and Bill McDonald (S.P.S.) organized after-hockey game dances on their own hook.

Before the end of the year, this nucleus had become the Blue and Dean Johnson At Trinity 10 A.M.

At ten o'clock this morning, the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, will speak to the students of this University in Strachan Hall, Trinity College.

Early this morning, the Dean was met at Union Station by representatives of the campus organizations sponsoring his visit here, and later breakfasted with Warden Nicholas Ignatieff at Hart House.

The Warden, who was the first U. of T. official to offer facilities for Dr. Johnson's address, will be chairman of the meeting in Strachan Hall. The speaker will be introduced by Professor C. A. Ashley of the Department of Commerce. Mr. Ignatieff's offer of the Debates' Room in Hart House was declined by sponsors yesterday after permission was given by Provost R.S.K. Seeley of Trinity College for use of Strachan Hall. Capacity of the Hall, estimated at 500, is greater than that of the Debates Room, and Trinity's auditorium has the added advantage of permitting the presence of women students. A loud-speaker has been installed in the College quadrangle so that any students who cannot be accomodated in the Hall may hear the Dean's address.

Following a question period after his talk, Dr. Johnson will leave for New York to continue his North American speaking tour. His sponsors at the U. of T. are the Humanist Club, the U. C. Lit. and Women's Undergraduate Association, the Student Christian Movement and the Canterbury Club. Membership cards for the Humanist Club may be obtained after the meeting.

Last Varsity Homecoming During U. of T. Centenary

Back in the days before most of our parents were parents, Varsity celebrated its last big homecoming. The occasion was the Centenary Celebration in October 1927 when the University of Toronto observed its one hundredth birthday.

"It is increasingly evident that the centenary of a great Canadian institution has attracted world-wide interest. Two hundred and twenty-five delegates and notables from universities and learned societies in almost every country of the World will attend", The Varsity of the time states.

Impressive Parade

Ceremonies were opened with an "impressive parade that was honored by the presence of the Cabinet of the Province of Ontario, the Mayor and Board of Control of the City of Toronto". Forty gay and colorful floats were entered by the various colleges and faculties—U. C. leading all other colleges in industriousness by sporting no less than five floats. Stretching along city streets for more than two miles the parade stopped "the wheels of commerce in Toronto's business section from 12.30 to about 2.00 o'clock," The Varsity states.

Friday night of the weekend saw "The Dance of the Century" in Hart House. Five of Toronto's name bands provided "scintallating rhythms" for the hundreds of revellers present. Although opened for eight years, Hart House was apparently still a mare to most undergraduates for The Varsity carried a full column of instructions and directions for those who planned to attend.

Students were detailed exactly as to which door to enter and which doors were beaut used as exit, where to park cars and the route traffic was to follow; where checking facilities were to be provided and where ladies and their escorts should meet; the precise location of the five rooms in which the dancing was to take place.

Royal Message

An extra feature of the Centenary Celebration was a special convocation which was opened by a message of greeting from the King. Degrees were awarded to many notables in Canadian public life; Vincent Massey and Stephen Leacock, were among those honored.

On Saturday, Varsity and McGill fought it out in Varsity Stadium. That was in the days when McGill was winning the occasional game from their Blue adversary. The score of the game was 12-6 in favor of McGill.

Divine service was held on Sunday morning in Varsity Arena which had been specially decorated and fitted for meetings held during the weekend.

Throughout the weekend "grad-

One Ticket Admits Couple To Five Dances On Campus

Everyone advertises a 'dance as 'the dance of the year', but Saturday night the University of Toronto is setting a new record. It is sponsoring the six 'dances of the year' all at once. Five of these affairs will be on campus and ticket for $1.00 a couple will allow each couple to go to all of them. The sixth will be held in the Royal York Hotel, tickets $3.00 a couple. No stag tickets will be sold and all dances start at 8.30 p. m.

At Hart House there will be dancing in both rinks to the Modernaires in the Big Gym and to Len Duke's Orch. in the Little Gym. In UC, couples can dance to the music of Fred Evis in the West Hall and to recordings in the JCR. Boyd Valleau will play in the Drill Hall and Burwash Hall will feature Jim MacDonald's Orch. The all-on-one tickets for all these dances can be purchased today, at the dances and at the information booth.

A separate $3.00 ticket enables the couple to dance to The Starlighters in the Royal York. If a total capacity attendance there will be 1,000 couples at these six dances.

Information

A Homecoming and Open House information and touring service will be provided from Friday noon until Sunday night, Murray Rosenburgh, information chairman, announced last night.

With headquarters in the old Observatory in front of Hart House, fifty information girls will be available for Sunday afternoon tours. These will be aided by five walkie-talkies spread over the campus, in constant touch with the central information bureau.

A directory of incoming alumni will be kept at the Observatory as an extra service, Rosenburgh said. Saturday night dance tickets and copies of The Varsity may also be obtained there.

Special telephone service has also been set up at the Observatory. The number is Midway 6256.

Welcome Grads

Tonight will mark the beginning of the "homecoming week-end"—a week-end in which graduates and undergraduates alike will join in paying tribute to the University—and to its football team.

In a university such as this, with its system of federated colleges and separate alumni organizations, it is difficult to form a solid, unified alumni group. Occasions when former graduates can take part in university affairs on a university level are too few and far between. Too often the college alumni groups wend their separate ways to the detriment of an all-university spirit.

This week-end a large number of former graduates will return to the campus. Old memories will be renewed as graduates will recall familiar sights and sounds common in the days when the campus was an important part of their lives.

It has been a long time since organized groups of graduates have returned to the University—not since 1927. In that year the University was celebrating its 100th anniversary and the highest dignitaries in the land, including Prime Minister King, the Provincial Cabinet, and a host of graduates, assembled to pay tribute to the University.

Tomorrow morning, other graduates will arrive. The Varsity adds its welcome to them—and hopes their week-end will be made complete by a Varsity win over Western tomorrow afternoon.

Keep Pep Rally Confined

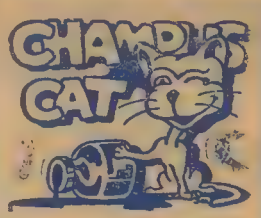
Typical of student enthusiasm everywhere, tonight's pep rally, held at a time when football interest has reached a climax, will probably whip a lot of undergraduates into a frenzied expression of college spirit.

Pep rallys—so long as they remain pep rallys—may be a good thing. No doubt many students feel they are highly desirable. They are, more or less a traditional student activity, they stimulate college spirit, they are colourful, and the general public look on them with amused tolerance.

But when pep rallys get out of band and become nothing but milling mobs bent on creating only damage and inconvenience to citizens, they cease to be amusing.

There is no reason why a pep rally must force itself on the public or why it cannot create the desired effect without disrupting traffic, barging through public places, and creating general confusion. Such antics are juvenile, they do not reflect any credit on the student body or the University.

Students would be well advised to confine tonight's pep rally to the campus. A repetition of the conduct prevalent at previous pep rallys could easily result in a ban on such activities. And it would be absolutely justified.



COLLEGE BEAUTY CONTESTS—

May they continue until the Judgment Day! Everyone likes to look at co-eds who have a little more of this and a little less of that. And in Canada's colleges, it's natural to look to Player's Cigarettes for fresh, cool smoking.

Cat Celebrates Twenty-Fifth Birthday

Last October 5 the Champus Cat celebrated its 25th birthday. It was born in the issue of Oct. 5 of The Varsity of 1923, the offspring of a tired type-setter and a former column called the Campus Chat.

Duncan Halliday, Arts '24 and now Photo Editor of the Globe and Mail, drew the original Cat and was in charge of the column in its maiden year. His drawing was replaced several years later by the one presently being used.

To show that things really haven't changed so much since 1925, we reprint here parts of Champus Cat columns of that year:

If The Truth Were Told

Answers to the time-honored question found in Freshmen's essays—

"Why I came to College?"

"Because I didn't know what to do next when I left school".

"Because Dad said I had to."

"Because I wanted to play football."

"Because I'm a pretty clever fellow and I thought if I took the Political Science course I might be Premier when I graduated."

"Because I know a fellow who had a year here once and he told me he had had a whale of a time."

"I'm only telling this in confidence, but it was because Alice did."

Things We All Believe

"That Quebec's attitude towards the liquor question is the only one for Ontario to come too."

"That Ontario will never come to it."

"That this lengthening of skirts is a shame."

"Unless they get long enough to cover those Russian boots."

"That the meals in the Great Hall are rotten."

"That the meals in the Great Hall are fine."

"That all co-eds come to college to have a good time."

Western vs Varsity

Joan Thrasher, Western, and Marjorie Dun, Varsity, the sweethearts of the two schools will lead their respective bands onto the green sward of Varsity Stadium prior to the opening of hostilities which begin at 2:15 Saturday afternoon. These two high-stepping beauties will display their baton-twirling ability prior to the game and during the half-time intermission. Joan will have the assistance of four other drum majorettes to entertain the spectators while our "Marjie" will rely on her famous jive baton-twirling routine.

Rally Air-borne; CJBC Broadcasts From Back Campus

This is it! The fever is on! The greatest pep rally in Varsity's history is but a few hours away. The confusion gets underway about 8:30, and an expected crowd of 7,000 hysterical students will be on hand.

The fire department has OK'd a mammoth bonfire, newsreel cameramen will be grinding for most of the evening and the proceedings will be broadcasted over CJBC at 9:30 p.m.

Among the sport's celebrities who will be there are: Coach Bob Masterson, Varsity's captain Ian Clark, Joe Krol and Ted Morris of Argo fame, Sports writer Ted Reeve and his sidekick Bobby Porter (None other). The sweetheart of the campus, (our gal Margie), will strut her stuff with the Blue and White Band ably assisting her.

Beauty Here

Mr. Toronto and Miss Beautiful Toronto have promised to come if the police will supply a police escort.

Keith Davey gathered together (2) Norm Jewison, Don Harron, Pat Suddick, and Brydan and McMillan who will provide entertainment of local design. The famous quartet from Dentantics will give out with a couple of harmonious numbers. Johnny Metras and Western's ace backfielder will be late arriving due to a work out on the eve of this history-making football classic, but will be there for sure.

Snake Dance

The pay-off comes after a gigantic, breath taking display of pyrotechnics at ten o'clock. Yes, a colossal snakedance led by Margie, the cheerleaders and the Blue and White Band which will begin on the back campus, stumble and stagger along Toronto's 'maindrags' and end up at Mutual Street Arena, where if you are still in one piece and have a quarter in your pocket you may dance till the wee hours of the morning.

Come on Varsity this is what you have been waiting for; a chance to show everyone that regardless of our size we still have a school spirit!

Oldest Graduate Reminisces Over Varsity In 1874

By RON STAINTON

The oldest living graduate of the University of Toronto is Sir Allen Aylesworth, 94, a graduate of the class of '74.

Sir Allen remembers when Toronto was a small town with horse-drawn carriages moving sedately through the tree-shaded lanes that were once Toronto's streets.

He lived at 70 Bond Street during his college career, and recalls the long walk beneath the trees along Yonge Street to the college gates which stood at the corner of College and Yonge. There was a lane from the gates to the top of the rise by Taddle Pond. Across the bridge stood the old University College building.

Speaking of the most valuable part of university life, Sir Allen said stoutly that "More important than all the studies and all the examinations are the valuable friendships made in residence life.

Advises Cramming

"Another thing I could never understand" said Sir Allen, "was the repeated advice given by the professors, that students should never cram for their exams. I believe that cramming is the greatest element of success, and when I was a student, I crammed with all my might. It was good experience too," said the old gentleman, "for I found it invaluable in my legal career when all the facts and arguments of my legal cases had to be learned the night before the trial."

After graduation in 1874, Sir Allen was awarded the Prince of Wales prizes consisting of two gold medals, one for Mathematics and the other for Metaphysics. He took his M.A. and then became a legal apprentice. In 1878 he was called to the bar.

By 1900 he had given up his practice. "As Minister of Justice", said Sir Allen, "I felt that it would be quite proper to appear in courts before the judges I had appointed myself."

Firm Grit

Asked about his politics, he said "I am a 'grit' because I was born that way!"

Sir Allen does not plan to attend today's Homecoming celebration. He tells of the last reunion he attended in 1899 to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his graduation.

"We had a big blow-out on the yacht of Tom Blackstock, K.C. There was a champagne bottle at each plate," he said "... and if I remember correctly we each furnished our bottle. There were only seven members of the class left out of the original 26. We agreed to meet again in 25 years," said Sir Allen, "but when that time came I was alone ... and I have been ever since."

Knighted

Sir Allen was knighted for his work on the tribunal set up at The Hague to settle the Maritime and Fishing dispute.

At home, he is surrounded by the pictures of his wife and son, his old friends—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mackenzie King and many others and as he spoke his face tinged with pleasant memories and sad regrets for those he has lost.

Former President Rev. Canon Cody Sunday Speaker

An all-University church service in Convocation Hall will be held Sunday morning, Nov. 14, as an important part of the Homecoming Week-end program. The Blue and White Society is to be assisted by the S.C.M. in arranging this service.

The Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, former President and now President Emeritus of the University, will be the speaker. A University College graduate, Canon Cody was for years the rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church. Refusing an offer of an Australian bishopric, he took the post of Minister of Education in the Ontario Provincial Cabinet. From that position he was appointed President of the University of Toronto. After his retirement, Canon Cody was named Chancellor, a position he held until last year when he became President Emeritus.

President Sidney Smith will read the Scripture, while the service will be conducted by Bob Munro, IV UC, associate president of the S.C.M.

The choir will be composed of members of the Hart House and the Victoria College Glee Clubs. Mrs. Jean Newton of Bloor Street United Church will be organist.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Professor Griff Taylor has the answer to studying in the dark. He used this device in the Antarctic. It can be made at home. A wax taper is put into a piece of seal blubber. Blubber may be obtained from any stray seal. A member of the History Department has suggested that a hickory nut will give the same effect. All that is needed is a pet seal or a bushel of nuts.

Night Life On The Campus Unaffected By Power Cuts

Night life on the campus continues to function in spite of the evening power cuts. So far the 45 minute cut has not proved a great inconvenience, although it has necessitated some re-arrangement of meetings and events.

In Hart House, all evening functions now begin at 8:00 p. m. to avoid the cuts. Emergency power supplied to the Great Hall Cafeteria runs the dishwasher, the only piece of equipment in the kitchens which is so powered. As long as undergraduates can finish eating their evening meals by five minutes to seven, it is possible for the Great Hall staff to clean up and get things into the kitchen before the power goes off.

Evening classes being held by the Department of University Extension are unaffected by the evening cuts since the classes begin at 8.00 p. m. Two classes originally scheduled to begin at 7.30 have been moved ahead to 8.00.

Hart House Theatre will not be seriously inconvenienced by the cuts because most shows do not begin until 8.30. This gives cast and stage crew three-quarters of an hour to prepare for a show between the time the power comes on and curtain time. Certain shows, like the U. C. Follies which was scheduled to begin early in the evening, have had to set their opening times ahead.

A casual poll of students shows that most will not find the power cuts interfering with their studying. Either they do not study at all or do not begin working until after the power is on again. One sad engineer, however, said that he thought he'd better go back to the bush. "I haven't anything to do when the power is off, so I take a little nap. Then I fall asleep, and don't get any work done at all," he said.

The University Library has not been affected by the evening cuts since it is supplied with emergency lighting by the University power plant.

The Varsity offices, which were dark during Monday's and Tuesday's evening cuts, are to be lighted by special lamps.

Graduating Students Have Fall Convocation Ceremony This Evening

Today at 8.15 p.m. in Convocation Hall approximately 400 graduating U. of T. students will participate in the Fall Convocation. The ritual of this graduation assembly was originally drafted by the College Council of King's College at York (now Toronto) in 1844 and is in form reminiscent of similar ceremonies in the universities of Medieval Europe.

University officials have estimated the 1,800 seats will be available for relatives and friends of the graduating class. Space will be available for any students who would like to get a preview of the ceremony in which some day they too may be the principal participants.

UC Players Guild Will Show Three One-Act Dramas

University College Players Guild are presenting an evening of three one-act plays Wednesday, November 17, in the Women's Union Theatre. The plays are all student directed and acted.

"Suppressed Desires", by Susan Gaspell, directed by William Gagnon, is a witty comedy of a women, obsessed by the idea the psychoanalysis can cure all the evils of the world. She has succeeded in breaking up one home by the revelation of hitherto unknown suppressed desires and almost wrecks her own married life and that of her sister. Loretta Proctor plays the woman and John Howe her husband, whose only suppressed desire is for a little peace.

"The Monkey's Paw", by W. W. Jacobs, is a supernatural melodrama. The White family, portrayed by Chris Kirkoff, Pat Orange and John Golding, are given a monkey's paw which entitled them to three wishes. The play is directed by Alvin Shaw.

William Saroyan's famous one-act drama, "Hello Out There", pictures the frustration of a chance at happiness come too late. A boy is put in prison, and finds there his chance for salvation, but loses it through the actions of a petty mind which refuses to believe the shameful truth. Ted Follows, of "Skin of Our Teeth" fame, plays the boy, and Joyce Bockneck, his girl. John Howe is directing the play.

ART - MUSIC - DRAMA

Opera Quartet

The fiery song of Italy was grandly displayed Wednesday night by the Italian Opera Quartet in operatic arias by their country's justly-famous composers. Individually and ensemble their emotional effuseness and lack of inhibition were memorable in this age of restraint.

Certainly the Italian tradition of singing is not lost: the transcendental "bell canto" voice control and variation of tone were possessed by all four of the group. Particularly good was the duet "Parla sian soli" (Rigoletto) by Lina Aimaro, coloratura, and Mino Cavallo, baritone. They united sensitive clarity with majestic grandeur to synthesize a most perfect expression of beauty.

Mary Styme

If Scarlatti Sonatta is to rise above pleasant prettiness to sparkling animation unusual pianistic ability is required. Mary Styme in her concert last night possessed the delicacy but lacked the necessary rythmic vitality.

Her rendition of the Bach "Capriccio" was competent. A slow dignified melody however requires more subtle variation in the volume of the notes than she expressed, if a flowing melodic line is to be produced. Her contrapuntal outlines moreover lacked the clear distinction of tonal colors which make Bach architectural patterns clear to the listener.

Miss Styme fortunately became more interesting as her program proceeded. The delicate decorations and warm charming melody of the Allegro and the noble tone and dramatic dignity of the Largo of Chopin's B Minor Sonatta were beautifully rendered. But the same over-dependance on finger action in passage-work which spoiled the Scarlatti restrained her freedom and vigor in parts of the brilliant finale.

In the "Bachianas Brasileiras" of Villa Lobos Miss Styme's amazing ability to develop sonorous floods of tone was convincingly demon-

Name Plaque Of Cruiser Ajax Ajax Presented

In a short but impressive ceremony, Ajax veterans and students stood before the Flag at half-mast in silent remembrance for those who gave their lives for freedom in two World Wars.

After the sounding of the Last Post and lowering of the flag to half-mast, the assembled throng observed two minutes silence. The flag was then raised to full-mast as Reveille was sounded.

Wreaths were then laid at the foot of the flag-pole by the assembled dignitaries.

President Smith placed one for the University while for the Alumni Association, a wreath was placed by Mr. White. The wreath from the Faculty was placed by Dean C. R. Young, and for the Engineering Society by Dr. Holden. Mr. Turner placed the wreath from the S.A.C., and Mr. M. McLachlan for the Joint House Committee. The Chapel Committee wreath was placed by Mr. T. Day.

Present at the ceremony was a Guard of Honor made up of COTC students under the command of Capt. Harry Webster. Also present were representatives of the Navy, Air Force and the U. S. Army.

After the Memorial service, President Sidney Smith accepted for the University the name plaque of the cruiser "Ajax" from the British Admiralty's representative Lt. A. Brown. The President gave a brief resume of the history of the Ajax, which was one of the cruisers that engaged the German pocket-battleship Graf Spee at the famous Battle of the River Plate.

JUNIOR COMMON ROOM

We had a few drinks with an acquaintance of ours the other night, and after covering the topics of conversation usually covered on such occasions, the talk got around to the subject of drinking and driving. This subject was dear to the heart of our companion, who kept insisting in a voice that grew louder by the instant, that he could drive far better after a few drinks than he could when cold sober. We insisted gently that this was a delusion shared in common by most drunk drivers now sitting it out behind barred windows, but this argument only served to bring about a practical demonstration of the validity of his claims. When we got into a car there was a long moment of hesitation. "Y'got the keys?" he asked. "Key? What key?" "Your car, isn't it?" "No," I said, "it isn't." "No? Then who's is it? My license is cancelled. Mustn't drive." When we got out, there was no doubt in our mind that we'd won the argument.

Speaking OF Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

Ah!! yes!! the pep rally to end all pep rallies is on the books for the Back Campus tonight. The drums are beating and the flags are flying for this the last SCHEDULED football week-end of the intercollegiate season.

Under the heading of "Students meet the most interesting celebrities", the Blue and White Society has gone all-out to provide the best in entertainment, for what promises to be one of the greatest demonstrations in the history of Canadian intercollegiate sport.

Tops in the entertainment field will be a provincial hookup of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation stations, which will send the "new look" of post-war college football spirit to various points of Ontario.

The half-hour show will be emceed by Dave Price, a well-known CBC special-events announcer. Included in the show will be Dr. Bothwell, President of the Alumni Federation, Dean Russell, representing the University, Gordon Gwynne-Timothy, President of the Blue and White Society, Warren Stevens, Athletic Director, Varsity Coach Bob Masterson, Ian Clark, Captain of the Blues, and a Varsity great of past years, Laddie Cassels. Also a possible speaker is Joe Krol, who goes without introduction.

That lineup is just for the broadcast. Over and above these hearties, will be Teddy Reeve, Bobby Porter and Teddy Morris if you like your football celebrities en masse.

For the pulchritudinous-minded male students—and who isn't? — Miss Toronto, Diddy Ferriman, and Miss Beautiful Toronto, Betty Jane Pike will be turning on the charms.

And still more—Norm Jewison has organized a routine that is strictly top stuff—Jack Pearse, Ron Brydon, Keith McMillan and Garth McDowell will be on hand with more laugh-inspiring material. And last but not least of the live entertainment—I've been assured they're alive to that great quartet of international and Dentanics renown —"The Drill-house Dandies". The "Dandies" will give their own inimitable rendition of that old favorite so close to the hearts of all of us, "Cigerettes, Whuskey, and wild, wild women".

Word is getting around that unless you want to be considered a square from you know where, you'll hunt up clothes for the gala affair.

Colts Blast Intermediates 20-8

Shown at left is Pete O'Neill, Western tailback star who will be in attendance at tomorrow's football jamboree. Pete kicks and passes with equal prowess and will be the object of much attention for the Blues' defensive backfield.

Brian Barton, captain of the senior intercollegiate Blues soccer aggregation, is pictured above. He will lead his squad against the Western seniors tomorrow on the front campus. The soccer intermediates will form the other half of the double bill as they play the Western Intermediates at the same location.

OAC Are Sole Leaders Varsity In Second Spot

By BRUCE MacDONALD

London, Nov. 11 (Staff) —Western Colts eased Varsity out of a tie for first place in the intermediate intercollegiate football standing when they stomped to a 20-8 win over the Blues here today. It was only the second loss of the season for the Blues and will leave them in second place in the final standings—if OAC can beat the winless McMaster squad Saturday.

Hampered by a high wind, ace Varsity passers Bill Brewer and Bob Garside weren't able to fire their usual strikes into teammates' hands. They threw 11 between them; two were completed and three intercepted. Western had only slightly more luck. They tossed 11 with four completions and three interceptions.

The teams battled on an even-steven basis in the first quarter with Varsity pushing all the way to the Western 10 yard strip, only to lose the ball on failure to make yards.

Bill LaRochelle, one of Canada's Olympic team who won the 220 low hurdles in the senior intercollegiate meet, raced 45 yards to open the scoring for Western in the second quarter. Near the end of the quarter, Vincent added another major for the Colts, after a 65 yard Western drive.

Coaches Don Bark and Al Brown must have made a few comments at half time. The Blues came out roaring and made their biggest march of the game only to have it stopped by a pass interception.

Western added another counter which stemmed from a forty-yard pass which LaRochelle converted into a major when he went through the line on the next play.

Brewer kicked a single for Varsity's first point. Adam Zimmerman recovered a Colt fumble and laterallled to Gregg McFadden who went over standing up. Stevenson made the convert. A Colt pass reached the 2 yard line and Vincent scored from that point. Brewer kicked the last Varsity point, a lofty boot from his own 53 to end the scoring.

In the statistics department . . . Western made 251 yards on ground gains while Varsity made 118. The Colts rolled up 17 first downs to the Blues' 10.

VARSITY—Flying wing, Garside; halves, Ecclestone, Barbour, McFadden; quarter, Sinclair; snap, Scott; insides, Brown, Roberts; middles, Forge, Zimmerman; outsides, Russell, Kennedy; alternates—Kilpatrick, Beatty, Davison, Longmore, Birkenshaw, Brewer, Stevenson, Lawson, Howson, Sivell, Errington and Graham.

PHE Women Lace Vic 18-3 In Ball Tilt

PHE I showed great baseball prowess in the second game of the finals yesterday, when they brought 18 runs across the plate to Vic I's 3. This gives each team a win in the best two out of three series. On Tuesday, 1 p.m., at Trinity field, the champs will be decided for the 1948 season—if it doesn't rain.

Fizz Ed's whole team was on their toes, infield and outfield, and really connecting when up to bat. Jessie McCormack, pinch-hitter for Marg Doyle, out on injury, really hurled the balls across fast, with no walks, and fanning four. Fern Watson on first stood out well, making no errors. Only one homer hit the outfield and that was slammed by Jane Macklin, PHE's third baseman.

Bel Barker, third base, was the outstanding player for Vic. She picked off four infield flies, two being right in the midst of the crowd. Out in centre Jean Myers copped two beautiful flies.

Tickets Aren't Necessary For Western-Blue Soccer

By BILL BABCOCK

Western hits town on Saturday, to play football and soccer. Tickets are as scarce as hen's teeth for the football game, but you don't need any tickets to come to the front campus any time in the morning after eleven and watch the U. of T. soccerites beat Western, not once, but twice!

The Intermediates will be there with all their stalwarts, including Norm Paterson at centre half, a staunch player who has perhaps been somewhat neglected in the publicity department. Also there will be that curly-haired lad from the land of the wee people, Bill Leach, a very steady played. Of course, it takes a team to beat a team, and every member on the squad is as important as the next. If you want to see a real fighting squad, these Intermediates are the boys to watch.

It would be well to mention here that the Intermediates have only been scored upon once this year, at OAC. They have in the meantime scored 10 goals, three of these against the Western II's. After their experience of playing together this season, they should better that total considerably this weekend.

The Seniors are in somewhat of a more precarious position, since they must win both of their remaining games to win the title. Besides this, they must score two more goals against OAC next week, than the Guelph team do against them, in order to win. A feat such as this would be hard enough with a full squad which has worked together all season; but with the injuries sustained last week at Guelph the Blues are without the services of several of their better players.

Coach Barton has remedied this situation by bringing in a new face, Mesfin Abebe from Ajax is being brought in to take over at left wing. He is a fast, clever ball handler and has a good shot. These two factors make up for his diminutive size and he will be an asset to the squad. Otherwise, the players will be the same as those who played at OAC, with such stalwarts as Critchley, Thompson and Peters on the defensive and Colvin, Glass and Barber, on the forward line.

Beat Western. Beat Western. Beat Western.

"We Have The Team" Frank Williams States

Frank Williams, assistant coach of the Varsity Blues, is confident that Varsity will beat Western, force a play-off, and emerge victorious in the Yates Cup final. Why? Frank so confident? He says: "We've got the team and that's all it takes." Frank is well qualified to make this statement considering the fact that he has molded the strong front wall of the Varsity team into the smooth-running outfit that has held opposition to eight points while scoring eighty-four points since their last loss at the hands of Western.

Torn ligaments in his leg ended Frank's short but colorful career as a football player. His stellar play as centre on the Varsity teams of 1946-47 and his football brains led to his appointment of assistant coach early last month. During summer camp, Frank was acting assistant coach and began to whip the line into the shape that has caused the opposition so much worry on the gridiron.

Frank, born and raised in Fort Erie where he received letters in track and football, came to St. Andrew's College where he received the school letter in football. After his secondary education was complete he went to Tulane University on an athletic scholarship. A year later he returned to Toronto because of threat of war in the U. S. After a season with the Argonauts, Frank enlisted in the navy where he played football during his years of service. After his service Frank came to the University of Toronto, where he played center for two seasons with the Blues.

Harrier Tests On For Both Squads

Both the Varsity senior and intermediate harrier teams will compete in intercollegiate contests on the weekend. The seniors journey to Montreal while the intermediates will play host in High Park today at three o'clock.

In Montreal the seniors will tackle Queen's, and McGill and the Toronto squad will consist of Doull, Barr, Wilson, McMullen and Green.

At home the seconds will face opposition from OAC, Western and McMaster. The intermediates will feature Wanless, Flowers, Niblock, McCurry and Denbeigh.

Coach Harold Brown will be looking for repetition of the double win which the Blue teams brought back from the last meet.

See-Saw Soccer As Mikemen, Vic Held Scoreless

The fourth division place in the soccer playoffs will go to the winner of the St. Mike's-Dents game as a result of a scoreless tie between St. Mike's and Vic second yesterday afternoon.

The first half was pretty even though the game started with Vic slightly on top but by half time the double true had the game better in hand. The second half grew rougher and rougher and the rougher it got the more St. Mike's assumed the lead until they were pressing hard at the final whistle. There were several free kicks given against them for foul barging.

Ex Sports Editor Writes Memorial On Pete Campbell

The following is contributed by Dr. Smirle Lawson, Supervising Coroner for Ontario. Dr. Lawson himself was an outstanding halfback of the 1910 version of the Varsity Blues, as well as Sports Ed. of The Varsity.

By SMIRLE LAWSON

Peter Campbell played quarterback for Varsity on the 1910, second team. He played quarter-back on the Champion Varsity first team in 1911. He was captain of the Varsity team in 1912, and played on the first team in 1913.

In the fall of 1914 he joined the 48th Highlanders as a lieutenant and went overseas. He was wounded in the first battle of Ypres and received the Military Cross for bravery.

He was the greatest quarter-back in Canadian football history. His speed and accuracy in getting the ball into play was too much for opposing teams and very often he made terrific gains before the opposing teams could organize it's defence.

As captain of the Varsity 1912 team he was loved by every player on the team. They knew that he gave everything he had to win and that he expected the same from his players.

On his return from World War I, he was one of the founders of the Maple Leaf hockey team and later took over the Maple Leaf Baseball team and made a great success of it.

He was a very astute business man and was manager of the Financial Advertising Department of the Globe and Mail.

The test of a man's character is whether he surmounts his difficulties and not that he succumbs to them. Peter Campbell had difficulties like all human beings but he surmounted them all. He gave his fellow beings the hand of fellowship—the tear in sorrow, and in these homely symbols he was truly a great Canadian.

The wealth of a nation is not in its money bags, but in the character of its people. Peter Campbell made his beloved land, Canada, a better place in which to live. His friends were legion.

He is gone to the great Country from whose bourne no traveller returns, but to live in the hearts of those we leave behind is not to die. Peter Gordon Campbell is gone. I do not understand but this I know—that as he turned and waved his hand I saw the sunset glow.

THE MIGHTY ARE FALLEN WESTERN DEFEATED 23-8

Blues Corral Mustangs With Smashing Triumph To End Winning Streak

By HANK WESTCOTT, SPORTS EDITOR

The Blues looked more like champions than the Mustangs Saturday afternoon in Varsity Stadium as they smashed to a 23-8 win over Western to force a playoff for the title and the Yates Cup. The victory—the fourth in a row for the Blues—snapped Western's winning skein at a record 27 and threw the London fans, usually so joyous, into complete dejection. The playoff will be held at Varsity next Saturday.

The Blues treated Western like just another team to be beaten on their path to the Yates Cup on Saturday, and after the first few minutes settled down to the "wait for a break and make it good" football that has made them the terror of the league since their third game.

Cummings, Waldon and Danylchuk were the scoring guns for the Blues who performed before the near record 20,000 fans that loaded the air with their roared approval. But the backfielders had the best blocking of the season in front of them as the Varsity line ripped through the highly rated Western line for most of the game. On defence the Blues were the toughest opposition the Mustangs have seen since the war as Fisher, Clarke, Mutard, Copp, Stockman, Gray, McMillan, Lawson, provided a front wall that was just that.

If Ted Toogood's example is typical, I suggest that all football players immediately pick up a bride. Toogood who was married last Monday played the best game of his career sneaking, and hurling himself, past the Western tacklers on kick runbacks like they were ordinary players. He carried the ball on all but two of Varsity's 16 runbacks, and a couple of times dipsy-doodled through the Mustang line for large gains.

Waldon, Cummings Are Payoff Boys

But the payoff boys were Cummings and Waldon who have paced the team all season. Cummings tossed a touchdown pass to Bill Danylchuk, scored two himself, kicked a single, and his long quick kick plus a pass by Huycke and one by himself set up the second touchdown. Waldon ripped through almost non-existant holes for impressive gains nearly every time he carried the ball—which was often.

Western got their biggest break of the game after only a minute when Huycke fumbled a snap behind their goal line. Wardle and Volpe both dived for the loose ball with Volpe winning for a safety touch and two points instead of a major. After that Western didn't take any advantage of the wind at their backs and Varsity was pressing by the end of the quarter.

Danylchuk Gets First

It took only two plays in the second term for Cummings to uncork a long floater to Bill Danylchuk who somersaulted over the goal line for the first major for Varsity. Cummings kicked the convert.

Within five minutes Varsity had another with Waldon sifting over standing up and Cummings again converting. At the nine minute mark of the same period it was 17-2 when the Varsity line surged forward to stop a Bob Phibbs' kick. John Shore, a backfielder turned snap who returned to plunging chores a couple of times Saturday, chased the ball to the three yard stripe and Cummings went over on the first try. The convert was wide.

Mustangs Come Back

What Johnny Metras told the Mustangs at half time must have been interesting. The Londoners came out fighting on four consecutive first downs they were on the Varsity seven on long plunges by Don McFarlane, Blake Taylor, Doug Gray and Bob Bear. Instead of staying on the ground they tossed a third down pass that went awry and it was Varsity's ball on their 25.

Only a few minutes later the Mustangs made another thrust, and this time they went over with Taylor getting the Western plaudits. Gray converted.

That was the last time Western

Social Security Is Debate Topic

One of the principal trends in government during the past fifteen years—widespread social security measures—will be debated in Hart House on Wednesday night at 8 p. m. The honorary visitor will be the Hon. Paul Martin, minister of national health and welfare.

The formal topic has been chosen to leave room for discussion of all phases of social security work by the federal government: "That the social security program of the federal government commends itself to the members of this house".

The wording covers hospital grants, family allowances, pensions, and all the other measures introduced by the government since it has taken office.

The resolution will be introduced by G. H. Pearson, III Trinity, and J. O. Paquette, IV St. Michael's. It will be opposed by M. K. Hicks, IV Trinity, and J. Houlihan, III University College. As usual, the honorary visitor will speak some time during the debate from the floor.

Mr. Martin is no stranger to Hart House debates. Twice president of the University Liberal Association while a student at Toronto, he has consistently followed the path he set for himself as an undergraduate. He was one of the men nominated for the leadership of the Liberal party at last summer's convention, but withdrew his name.

As a member of the cabinet, he is closely concerned with the working of government legislation on unemployment insurance, family allowances, and old-age pensions. It has been under his supervision that the federal government has made the largest grants to the provinces in the history of Canada for hospital construction, training of doctors and nurses, and other public health measures.

AIR RAID

The latest thing in propaganda dissemination appeared on the campus Friday when a low-flying aircraft "bombed" Varsity with pamphlets advertising the Pep Rally (and a local book store). One person at least seems to have been influenced—he was seen collecting huge quantities of the leaflets. He has been identified by usually reliable sources as — a grounds-keeper.

Province Blamed For Power Cuts By Noon Debate

Hart House debaters condemned the provincial government's handling of the Ontario hydro problem at a Friday noon debate, passing by a vote of 20 to 10, a motion "that in the opinion of this House the power policy of the present Ontario Government shows lack of foresight, and contempt for the needs of the people of the province".

Speaking for the affirmative Harvey Hay, IV Vic, and Norm Endicott, III Vic, held that the Conservative government had needlessly held up construction of the Des Joachims power project for three years.

Al Lawrence, III Vic, and Ian MacMillan, II Vic, argued that the shortage stemmed from the regime of Premier Hepburn and an "act of God". They pointed out that in 1938, Premier Hepburn, and in 1940, Dr. Hogg of the H.E.P.C., had stated that there were sufficient power resources developed.

Speaker of the House was M. Hicks, IV Trinity.

Four M.P.'s Tell Conference About Phases Political Life

Four members of Parliament described various phases of political life to more than 1,500 students of high schools and colleges at the Youth Conference on Parliament in Convocation Hall on Saturday.

Jean Francois Pouliot, Ind.-Lib., Temiscouata, urged youth to go into politics. "As a Canadian, I am ashamed that Canada is not given the importance in the world that she deserves," he said. "Who are the Big Five" he asked "and what would they have done without the help of Canada and the other countries?"

"Women are more interested in the welfare of mankind than in force, power and superiority," said Agnes McPhail, C.C.F., East York. For this reason she felt that there should be more women in the Canadian government.

"The majority of folk over 21 who take the trouble to vote get the

Forestry Display Wins Float Prize In Flashy Parade

Varsity spirit went mobile on Saturday morning as beauty and the beast shared honors with the death of the corraled Western Mustangs in a gala float parade to mark Homecoming Weekend.

"This is tangible evidence that the University is a spirited unit," said President Sidney Smith in presenting the winning plaque to Bill Hilborn, Forestry, for the replica of the homelife of a forester somewhere in the Canadian wilds. President Smith gave special mention to Commerce and Finance whose float depicted a complacent business man surrounded by a bodyguard in top hat and tails distributing sheafs of money to the crowd.

Disdain for Western's superior attitude was shown in most of the floats with Knox offering a free burial complete with mourners and grave diggers.

The University brass and pipe bands were supplemented by a musical combo atop Skule's massive crane giving out with the Engineers' song. Medicine offered 24-hour delivery service with a special outpatients' department offering the utmost in privacy.

Long after the floats had parted company, there still stood in the middle of the front campus a tombstone inscribed "In Memoriam. J. P. Metras, Esq., and his Western Mustangs. May they rest in pieces."

TICKET SALE

Tickets for the football game Saturday will be on sale Tuesday at the south door of the arena from 10.00 a.m.-6.00 p.m. and at the Ajax athletic office from 12.00-2.00 p.m. The student section will be sold to coupon book holders on a reserve seat basis at 50 cents reduction from the face value of the ticket. Sections Q, R and S will be sold at $1.00 per ticket and the balance of the student section at 50 cents. Any tickets not picked up at that time will be put on sale to the student body at large on Wednesday. (See advertisement on page 7.)

Congratulations

Varsity Blues made the homecoming week-end a sensational success when they marched to their 23-8 win over the mighty Western Mustangs Saturday afternoon. It was no ordinary team that represented Varsity Saturday. It couldn't be to stop a team that had been undefeated in intercollegiate play since before the war, that had won 27 straight games to set a new intercollegiate record, and that had been well on their way to tieing another college mark—four straight championships. It was a Varsity team that was superior to the Mustangs in fight, finesse, and on the basis of Saturday's play, in ability. John Metras' only comment after the game was that "next week it will be different." If the Blues play the way they did Saturday, even that statement will bear revision.

Student Auditorium Needed

Universities—often touted as places where freedom of expression is prized above all else—have fallen from that lofty estate recently.

The current tour of the Dean of Canterbury is a case in point. The dean consented to address a student group at McGill but was turned down coldly. Not to be outdone, the University of Alberta and the University of Saskatchewan made it plain that any attempt to have Dr. Johnson speak to their students would be nipped in the bud.

So far, the University of Toronto is the only university which can congratulate itself on its adherence to free principles.

But even so, the difficulties encountered by student organizations in finding a suitable hall for the dean proved that some faculty heads looked with little favour on the idea. The timid souls who feared the dean's appearance would set off a riot hampered the efforts of students seeking facilities for the address.

But the difficulties pointed up one thing. That the need for a student union—with an auditorium where students could hear guest speakers—is great. There is no reason why student groups must come, hat in hand, to overcrowded colleges or faculties seeking permission to hold meetings.

A student union auditorium—built for students—would accommodate any speaker sponsored by a student group. It would eliminate the necessity of imposing upon—or seeking approval from—any college or faculty head whose decision might be guided by his opinion of the speaker.

Houndog Harmone

Hormone lay writhing on the floor, bound hand and foot and gagged. "Ooomph perph ermph", he said and kicked in hate at his nearest captor. Then, unnoticed, he leapt silently to his feet and inched along the wall toward the doorway.

The chief was strenuously arguing with the society about ways and means of punishing their captive. "Let's switch his liver for his kidney, or kidneys, as the case may be," he said. "We've never tried that before, you know".

Houndog's blood coagulated in his already-hardened arteries. "What a horrible coincidence!" he gasped.

And it certainly was. In his youth Hormone had won a prize in a contest sponsored by the makers of Carter's Little Livers. And he had won first prize for a very good reason.

No Kidneys

HE HAD TWO LIVERS AND NO KIDNEYS! No kidneys at all, if you can imagine that. The discovery of this fact had amazed medical science at the time and to have it unearthed by the A.A.V. Society would mean the end of the master sleuth.

Never before had such a subject been so nearly in their grasp. The detective shuddered and crept on toward the door. The heated argument continued. "Really, old fellow," one exclaimed, "it's only natural to switch kidneys for liver"

"No", said another, "I must agree with Herman. It should be the other way around, liver for kidneys". By this time Houndog had reached the door. Just as he slipped around the corner the chief exclaimed, "Well then it's liver for kidneys, 13 to 11".

Bounding like a kangaroo, the detective shot up the corridor and out a door at the end. His pursuers were not far behind.

Revived by the cool night air to his usual craftiness, Hormone glanced around him. Behind him lay the Medical Building and directly in front was the University Library.

With a start Houndog again came to his senses, (for they had consistently refused to come to him) and bounded through the front door of the library. His pursuers were hot on his trail as he hurled himself up the stairs to the upper hallway.

Red Dean Declares Two Alternatives Face Humanity

Addressing a capacity crowd of over six hundred students in Strachan Hall, and an overflow of approximately 800 gathered in Trinity Quadrangle Friday, Dean Hewlett Johnson declared that humanity was faced with two alternatives war or peace.

War With Russia

"At present we are rapidly proceeding towards the former alternative of war with Russia," he said. This he hoped would never come to pass. "It is wiser to continue discussions, no matter how stupid they are, rather than force the world into another war," the Dean said.

The struggle must be for peace, for world brotherhood and world security he said. In this struggle each nation must give its contribution.

The Dean said he was certain Russia did not want war. He had travelled over the countries of Eastern Europe and had seen nothing but people engaged in reconstruction from the ravages of World War II. "Would a nation which had suffered the ravages of war that Russia has want war? 70,000 villages wrecked. 30,000 of its populace made homeless. 17 of its cities desolated. You ask whether Russia seeks war? Think in terms of that," he said.

Long War

Dean Johnson then outlined what a future war would be. It would not be a pushbutton war nor would it end quickly he said. It would be the longest and bloodiest war in all history. Therefore we must expend every effort to attain peace, the Dean said.

In the question period which followed his address, Dean Johnson was asked why, if conditions in Russia were so rosy, were so many people leaving the Rusian dominated areas. He said that many people will leave any country after a radical change if they can take their money bags with them. When asked why the Russian continued to press for possession of Berlin, he said the Russian claimed the Western powers had split the country by using their own currency, releasing the Nazis, building up the Rhur industry and making Hamburg their own capital. All this was being done to build a bulkwark against Russia, he said.

Given Ovation

At the conclusion of the question

Fall Convocation Graduates 400; Hear Dr. Taylor

"You must believe in something greater than just yourself" 400 graduates were told by Dr. W. R. Taylor, Principal of University College, at the University of Toronto Fall Convocation last Friday.

As a result of knowledge acquired at university, graduates had expanded the range of their interests and had come into a measure of confidence in their own ability to tackle problems, the speaker declared. Graduates were now "on guard against half-truths and could distinguish between fact and fancy, principle and propaganda."

Poise Needed

The sum of negotiable knowledge acquired had not been "impressive in dimension" but graduates had now a "certain fitness and poise with which to meet the problems of life," Dr. Taylor said. Graduates also knew how the "contemporary pattern of things came to be and how to assess it" adding that they had at least been "emancipated from the gropings of ignorance."

In these times when an old order of society is dying and the new one is still powerless to be born a very heavy responsibility has been put on the shoulders of the scholar and the man of education, the speaker declared. In the confusion of crisis "we are witnessing a collapse of morals and a degeneration of values" and this situation is aggravated by persons who hold the credentials of education but who can best be described as "pseudo-intellectuals."

The speaker held that moral authority was greatly needed and that society could rightfully expect that this should come in large measure from university trained men and women.

Concluding, Dr. Taylor said that it is not enough for graduates to leave the university as masters of learning and of skills but "you must confront your world with a positive credo to which you subscribe."

Western Debaters Beaten Say UC Speakers 'Jealous'

Despite spirited opposition from a University of Western Ontario debating team, the UC Debating Parliament last Friday afternoon upheld by a vote of 12 to 9 the resolution that "Intercollegiate Sports are Detrimental to the Best Interests of University Life".

Speaking for the Government, Ernie Steele held that "the value of sports is incontestable but we deplore the present trend of specialization with more and more spectators and less and less participation." He compared organized football spectacles with the gladiatorial hysteria in the spectators, but which contributed to the decline of Roman society.

Bill Shipman of Western pointed out that intercollegiate sports were such a desirable part of our University Life that teams had been sent over to the more academically-minded European Universities to teach them such games as cricket, soccer, and football, and to show them how the games should be played. Intercollegiate sports, he said, tend to unite Universities, the RAH RAH and the glamour attracting students and holding their loyalty, so that the faculty has a larger audience upon which to shed the light of knowledge.

Jack Geller of the Government spoke of the frustration experienced by the large number of mediocre athletes at the University, who, unable to make the first team, must either forego sports entirely or play upon some minor team, beneath the notice of the staff of the athletic department, who, dazzled by the gate receipts of the intercollegiate games, squander very little equipment or coaching upon the commercially unexploitable rank and file. Geller expressed the view of the government that true school spirit would be more effectively fostered if everyone on the campus was encouraged to play on one of a large number of small teams rather than sitting up nights, computing betting cards on the big games while studies suffered.

Western's Jim Bernath accused the government of discrediting intercollegiate sports because Toronto found the Western Football team so invincible. He urged them not to give up the ship, as, however, he said, "someday Western will lose." Referring to the large gate receipts of the intercollegiate fixtures, he made the statement (hotly contested by the government) that the money was used to pay for other sports, and so the whole arrangement was very satisfactory, especially since the spectators were treated to a display of beautiful legs and swivel hips as well as football.

Youthful Politico Gives Philisophy Of C.C.F. Party

Canada must take a position midway between Russia and the United States in an attempt to maintain peace, stated Reid Scott, M.P.P., in outlining the philosophy of the C.C.F. party, Friday evening. His address, given in the Economics building, was the second in a series on the theme "Youth in Politics" sponsored by the Workers' Educational Association.

Scott stressed the need for Canada to be strong economically and united politically to maintain a middle position between the two militant giants.

Canada, if she continues to be a political hodge-podge, cannot take the lead in any kind of movement.

Control of Canadian natural resources could be used to prevent the United States from interfering with the formation of a socialist government, Scott said.

Need for bringing together socialist countries who have something in common and therefore are more compatible, the speaker maintained, was the practical need rather than forming a western union.

He favored aid to Europe on the basis of rebuilding the continent's economy as a unit. To be effective, the undertaking must have no strings attached. The countries of Europe mistrust the Marshall plan, Scott said, because of their fear of becoming obligated to the U.S., thereby jeopardizing their own interests.

Graduate of Toronto, Fisher Appointed Dean Of Optometry College

Edward J. Fisher, M.A., has been appointed dean of the Ontario College of Optometry to succeed the late Dean J. G. Thompson, Dr. W. E. Dunlop, chairman of the Board of Governors in Optometry announced recently.

Dean Fisher, a native of Winnipeg, graduated from the College of Optometry in 1934. For several years a lecturer on the staff of the College of Optometry, the new dean received his B.A. in 1946, and his M.A. in Psychology in 1948, both at the University of Toronto.

Today's Music Hanson Talk Topic

The graduating exercises of the Royal Conservatory of Music on Thursday night included an address by Dr. Howard Hanson, Director of the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester.

Introduced by Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Dr. Hanson spoke about "Music of today and Musicians of Tomorrow." He outlined the differences and the added responsibilities between the contemporary musicians and those of a century ago, emphasizing that "a social consciousness, sincerity and simplicity" should be the main considerations of the modern composer.

President Sidney Smith and Sir Ernest MacMillan presented the diplomas to the graduating class, while Ettore Mazoleni awarded the winners of the Silver Medals.

Following the presentations, Bach's Cantata No. 140 "Sleepers, Wake!" was performed by the Opera School of the Conservatory.

Full Round Of Activities Holds Homecoming Crowds

If the Pep Rally Friday night, the Float Parade Saturday morning, the game and score Saturday afternoon, the dances and receptions, the crowd at the church service Sunday can be taken as any criterion of a good Homecoming, Varsity had one.

Despite threatening rain and a muddy field an estimated crowd of over 7,500 graduates and students turned out on the back campus Friday night to cheer, at the Blue and White Society's Beat Western Pep Rally.

For two hours the crowd stood and sang "The Blue and White" to the accompaniment of the Varsity Band; laughed at skits by Norm Jewison, Don Harron and Bud Priestman. The rally proceedings were broadcast over a network of Ontario stations between 9.30 and 10.00 p.m. During the broadcast the announcers interviewed Ted Morris of the Toronto Argonauts and Bob Masterson, coach of the "We-Beat-Western Varsity Blues."

During the Rally, a colorful display of fireworks lit the sky over the back campus, and the heat from a burning Western Mustang effigy warmed a few chilled bodies.

Saturday morning rain again, but spirits were still undampened. At. 10.00 a.m. the big parade got rolling and wound its way around via Bloor St., down Yonge, across College and up past the Wallberg Memorial building to Convocation Hall. Here it stopped for a breathing spell and a few more rousing Varsity cheers. Then on again around the road circling the front campus over to Hart House past the reviewing stand, where the floats continued past University College.

Forestry won the silver plaque for the best float, but none of the faculties or societies who contributed floats need to be ashamed of their efforts. It was a "bang up affair"; to coin a phrase of some

Communist Europe Discussion Topic At IRC Meeting

"Life in Communist-Controlled Europe" is the topic of the International Relations Club meeting this Wednesday when four University of Toronto students will tell what they saw as they travelled in Eastern Europe this summer.

Among the speakers will be Warren Goldring, Chairman of Toronto I.S.S. who was in Germany at the International Summer Seminar and who afterwards travelled in Czechoslovakia and Poland. Myer Brody, President of The Humanist Club, another speaker, was in Czechoslovakia at the time of Benes' death and was an eyewitness to the tense political situation which followed.

Presenting a perhaps somewhat different view of conditions will be Steve Endicott, President of the U. of T. L.P.P. Club, and John Anderson, National Chairman of the Student Christian Movement, who were in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland with the Beaver Brigade and have only recently returned.

The meeting is at 4.15 p.m. in the South Hall of Emmanuel College. Non-members welcome.

U.C. Follies

What made the U.C. Follies so likeable was a pleasant, casualness and lack of pretentiousness hiding the tremendous amount of teamwork that must have gone into its preparation by the large number of people involved. Thus the more ambitious items, such as the dance scenes, and the "family" numbers like the "Temptation" skit met on terms of equality to leave the impression of a pleasing whole. It can be truthfully said, then, that Producer H. Rasky solved the formidable problem of accommodating satire, political and domestic, beauty, and the dark beast of serious reflection "frustration" under one roof.

Greatly responsible for the smooth flow was the musical score enthusiastically presented by Bob Cringan's appropriately casinoesque orchestra. Dance Director H. Kaplan did some very stimulating experimenting with lighting, decoration, gauze curtains and an able chorus and achieved a veritable triumph in "Abstraction in Motion". The solo work was so nearly even and satisfactory that any singling out would be criminal. It would be a doubtful compliment to sum up by calling the show near-professional because that would fail to account for that certain undefinable freshness and verve borne of a voluntary assembly of much talent with just the right amount of organizational compactness. Next year's creators and performers of the "Follies" have a job on their hands if they wish to hit again just the right note in intelligent and really entertaining entertainment.

E. M. Oppenheimer.

Gounod's "Romeo"

Charles L. Wagner's touring opera company offered a well-mounted and well-directed performance of Gounod's Romeo and Juliet, Friday evening. Walter Ducloux set excellent tempi and maintained a satisfactory balance between orchestra and singers. The chorus was always alert and accurate, resisted all temptations to sag in the unaccompanied prologue, and considerably heightened the intensity of the duel scene.

The acting of the principals was reasonably good though some were inclined to over-indulge in the right-arm semaphoring that seems to be standard acting technique with opera singers. The voice of Jean Carlton, Juliet, is not outstanding but her work was intelligent and charming, and she was particularly successful in projecting Juliet's change of mood in Act I. Her voice, however, did not blend well with Romeo's, and the duet of Act II "Ah, Ne Fuis Pas Encore", was disappointing. Louis Roney seems to have concentrated upon his upper tones, and, when permitted to sing them with full voice, produces quite a thrilling effect; nevertheless, his Romeo was uneven and lacked subtlety. The sentence of exile, however, in Act III seemed to bring out the best in him, for he improved considerably thereafter.

The best singing was undoubtedly that of William Wilderman as a rich-toned, noble Friar Lawrence. For such a voice, we would sell our soul to M. Gounod's own Mephistopheles. William Shriner was also in excellent voice, and sang Mercutio with verve and brilliance; Jean Rifino, a lithe and mischevous Stephano, was delightful. Finally, Miss Carlton and Mr. Roney died very prettily indeed, and we were almost, though not quite, convinced that the world was well lost for love.

Gordon G. L. Brooks.

Milne's "Mr Pim"

A. A. Milne's comedy "Mr. Pim Passes By" was presented on Saturday by a competent cast of the University Extension Players' Club under the direction of W. Currie and produced by G. Bettson. The play was admirably suited to the space limitations imposed by the small stage of the Women's Union and the choice of vehicle rates congratulations. The excellence of the production rested in the casting; all looked their typical roles. The looked good to Metras. In the fourth period Varsity added a Cummings touchdown John Shore set up the major when he intercepted a Davidson pass and scooted to the Western two. He took one crack at the line and then Cummings swept around the end for the touchdown.

Jack Parry played the first half before being knocked out by a Danylchuk tackle. But Doug Gray took over his position and looked better than Parry. Don McFarlane was impressive in the third quarter, and Turnbull, playing his first game after being injured, was hurt again.

Ian Clarke, captain of the Blues who played his first game in weeks after a shoulder dislocation had it hurt again.

for about half an hour after the game. Defeat is hard to get used to after ten years.

Crowd reaction ran the gamut Saturday as Varsity supporters took an "Oh no not again" attitude after that early Western safety touch. Came the second quarter and "O. K. Blues let's do it again" prevailed. The third quarter theme was "hold that line" as the Mustangs counted their only major of the afternoon. "London Bridge has fallen down" swept the stands near the end as delirious Varsity fans prepared to celebrate victory.

Like everybody else, we're completely in the dark about the Hydro situation, but we've been wondering about the possible legal complications that might grow out of it. If, for instance, we should fall down the stairs during the lights out period, can we successfully sue the Provincial Government for creating such a hazardous situation? Or, are our chances better if we name Mr. Drew personally for compensation for our black-out bruises? We're not particularly concerned about who we sue, but we'd sure like to sue someone. For the past ten days our shins have been so bludgeoned about that they have literally begun to bark.

Harriers Retain Crown Oust Queen's and McGill

Montreal — (Special)—Varsity Harriers retained the Senior Intercollegiate Championship in Montreal on Saturday against Queen's and McGill. Toronto runners placed 1, 2, 3 and 6 for 12 points. Queen's was second with 28 points and McGill third with 48 points.

Varsity's star miler and three-miler, George Doull edged out team mate Gord Wilson to set a record over the new course, covering the 5.3 miles in 29:44.8 minutes. Toronto's inseparable trio, Doull, Wilson, and Dunc Green paced the field, as in previous meets The race started and finished at Molson's Stadium and was run over a rugged course which was slightly soaked by a rainfall which continued throughout the race and later plagued the Queen's-McGill football game.

Varsity's five-man team took the lead for the first two miles of the course, which wound up Mount Royal. The course then flattened out for a half mile and swung downward for the last three miles on a long slight grade to the Jacques Cartier monument and back to the Stadium.

The Intermediate Intercollegiate Harrier which was held at High Park in Toronto on Friday was won by the OAC team of Smiley, Arbic, Schweitzer and Costen, who placed 1, 3, 6, 7 for 17 points. Varsity took second place with 26 points, Western third with 38 points, and McMaster fourth with 60 points.

Smiley of OAC covered the wet 5-mile, 110 foot course in 29:26.4 minutes, edging out Pete Niblock of Varsity to repeat his winning performance of last year.

Pete Niblock ran an outstanding race to capture second place in 29:29 minutes. Second Varsity man was Bud McCurry who ran well to finish in fifth place. Following from Toronto were Don Wanless, (eighth), Denbeigh, (eleventh), and Flowers, (fourteenth).

Blue Piglet Is At Game, No Black Cat

By BRIAN LAND

Did we beat Western? Did we ever!

The Western Band put on a great performance Saturday, playing most of the well known college marching songs and twice saluting the Toronto section with the "Blue and White". However they picked the wrong tune to play at half-time when they came up with the "Bye Bye Blues".

That little pig that was released before game time by Western students as a token of their esteem for Hogtown, set the London lads back some twelve dollars. Anything for a laugh.

Friends of Johnny Metras insisted the reason Western lost was because Johnny had failed to find a black cat. It seems that ever since he played with St. Mike's back in 1933 when they upset the highly touted Sarnia Imperials, that Metras has always sought out a black feline on the eve of the game as a good luck charm. That night before the Sarnia game Johnny wandered around until two-thirty before he found the necessary dark kitty.

Both coaches refused to think about next Saturday's game. Masterson and company were plenty content to enjoy this win without looking too far ahead. Metras spent an hour or more giving solace to the newly tamed Mustangs.

The Western dressing room was barred to all comers, press included,

Vic Defeat SPS In Grid Tilt 7-0 Winning Group 1

By HAL HOLDEN

Vic's well-drilled football team clinched first place in Group I with a 7-0 Intramural win over Sr. SPS Friday afternoon on the back campus. Remaining game of the schedule is slated for Wednesday afternoon when UC/PHE take on Sr. Meds. The only thing to be decided by this game will be the occupant of the cellar spot. A UC victory would lift them into third place, one point ahead of School.

The Schoolmen were on a par with their arch-rivals in the first half but wound up on the short end of a 1-0 count. It was not until the fourth quarter that Vic was able to crack the Engineer's defense for a major score. Schoolman Jack Trist waged a kicking duel with Harry Damp and Keith Sumner as neither team came really close to getting a touchdown in the first two periods. Both teams were gaining good yardage rushing but bogged down in sight of pay dirt.

Vic's first score came with four minutes to play in the second quarter. Jim Kilgour plucked a Skule aerial out of the air at the SPS 30 yard stripe and on the next play Manager Ralph, in the game because the Scarlet and Gold were short of backs, swept around the end, on one of his several long gains, to the School ten. Vic decided to make sure of one point and Keith Sumner booted to the deadline on first down.

The spirited Skulemen almost made that bit of strategy look bad as twice before the half ended they punted close to the Vic goal-line and only the absence of a crucial bounce and a long roll robbed them of a score.

The Vic touch was scored on a very neat play which started out as an end run to the right with Harry Damp getting the ball and fading back to quickly turn and let go a floater to Stew Howard, lonesome and unguarded in the end zone at the other corner of the field. Jim Little converted.

Damp's kicking and Tom Dryden's plunging featured the Vic attack with Jim Kilgour and Bill Sherwood regularly piling up Skule ball carriers.

"Big George" McCreery plunged well for the losers and Johnny Ward also carried a lot of mail. Norm Firth played his usual dependable game at centre secondary while Howard Kerr came through with some jarring tackles for the Engineers.

Senior Blues Win by Two Intermediates Net Five

The senior and intermediate soccer teams had little trouble with Western on Saturday holding both teams scoreless. The Seniors won 2-0, Intermediates 5-0. There was no scoring during the first half of the senior game, although Varsity pressed hard and had many opportunities, but the difficult cross-wind helped to keep the ball out of the Western net. The second half was different for Jim Wotherspoon kicked the opening counter of the game. Play went from end to end as both teams threatened several times. Then, when a big Western back flattened Mesfin Abebe, the Blues were awarded a penalty kick. Brian Barton took the kick and landed it neatly into the topmost corner of the net by a shot on which the Western goalkeeper had no chance. Wotherspoon and Abebe, playing their first game for the Blues, were two of the best players on the field although Abebe did not crash the scoresheet, he came close on several occasions and all during the game he made beautiful crosses to the centre from his left wing spot. Barton said that the boys played well all the way and it was only their current jinx which kept them from upping their score.

The Intermediates in their game gained their fourth shutout of the season and their fifth straight win. They jumped into an early lead when they scored after only a couple minutes of play, Al Beckwith coming through with a beautiful goal. Only a few minutes later, Bill Brewer of rugby fame took a lay-up pass from the centre and went into the clear to bang home another goal. The half ended 2-0 with Western threatening toward the end.

Shortly after the second half opened, Babcock playing at centre for his first game this year, was lucky enough to get his foot in the way of the ball and place it in the Western goal. He also counted his second goal, the fourth of the game, after about ten minutes. Hugh Delfosse ended the scoring when he banged in a rebound at an almost impossible angle. Glyn Williams, Howie Plewman and Vic Quesnell deserve special credit for their untiring efforts. Chris Kean played part of both games although he was injured in the first part of play in the intermediate game.

AFTERTHOUGHT

The Western Gazette is planning to publish its regular Tuesday issue wit' a one inch black band surrounding the front page. However, they still maintain that next week's paper will be a Victory issue.

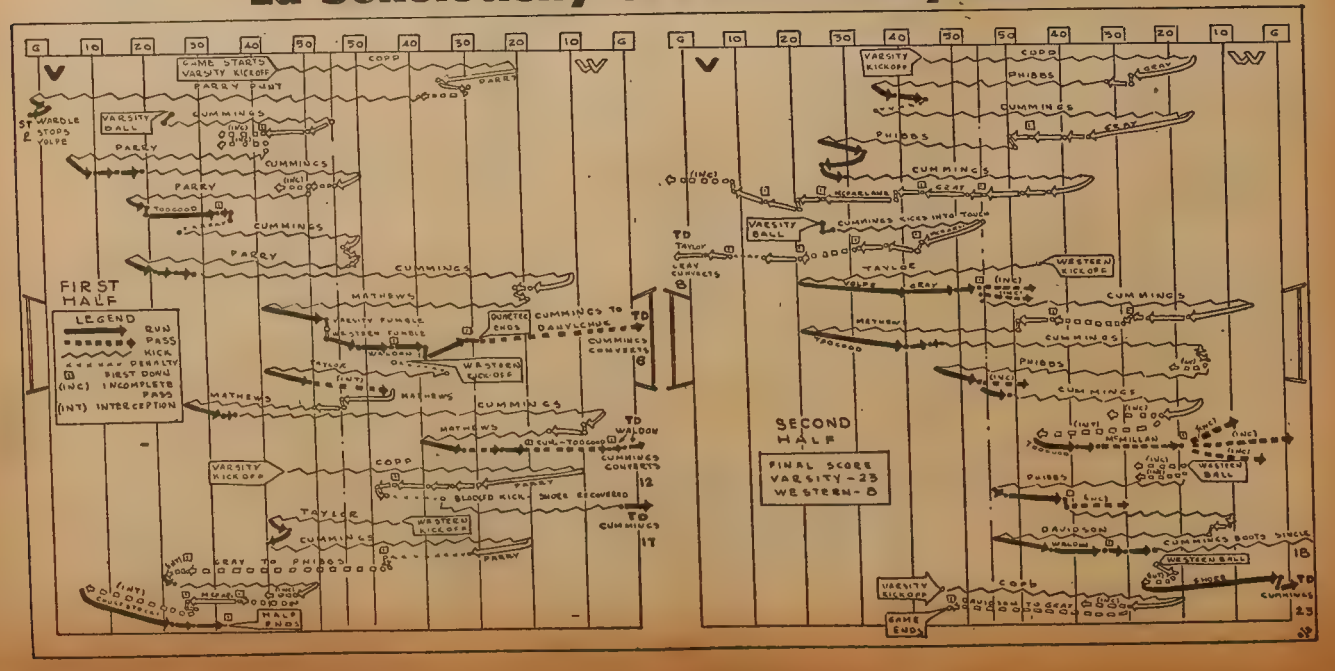
Queen's Drop McGill 10 to 7 For 2nd Win

Montreal—Sparked by stellar line play, Queen's defeated the Redmen 10-7 here Saturday to revenge their defeat at the hands of McGill earlier in the season. After a flash of power early in the game when they netted their only touchdown of the game, McGill was completely outclassed by Queen's. It was the second win of the season for Queen's.

Only three plays after the kick-off, the Redmen scored on a run around end by Valois that fooled the whole Tricolor team. However, a McGill fumble later in the quarter, put Queen's in a scoring position, and Huntley carried the ball over on a drive through centre.

Early in the second quarter, McKelvey hoofed a perfect field goal from the McGill 18 yard line to send Queen's ahead 9-7. Another attempted convert by the Tricolor failed to split the posts, but was good for a one point rouge. Repeated tries by McGill to crack the solid Queen's line were unsuccessful.

Murray Hayes made his first appearance for the Redmen in the final quarter, and in spite of an injured shoulder he made substantial gains along the ground. Despite his efforts the game ended as two desperate McGill passes went wild.



Box Score:

1st. Quarter
1	McGill—touchdown (Valois)
2	McGill—convert (Robillard)
3	Queen's—touchdown (Huntley)
4	Queen's—convert (Lenard)
5	McGill—rouge (Heron)
2nd Quarter
6	Queen's—placement (McKelvey)
7	Queen's—rough (Lenard)

AFTERTHOUGHT

Anyone who says Varsity has no spirit is either plain stubborn or just deaf and blind. The terrific pitch worked up this weekend for the pep rally and snake dance, for the Homecoming parade, and for the game will take a lot of beating in any league.

sort of government they want," said Hughes Cleaver, Lib.

Discussing the role of the opposition, John Diefenbaker, Prog.-Con., Lake Centre, said the opposition's duty was to support the government when it needed support and create in the public an aroused feeling on the issues being decided.

Following the Dean's speech, Nicholas Ignatieff, Warden of Hart House and chairman of the meeting said he could now understand why a prominent member of the university staff had told him that the trouble with the Dean was he was so sincere and idealistic he didn't believe there were crooks in the world.

Permission to hold the meeting in Trinity was granted by Provost R. S. K. Seeley. The Deans' visit was sponsored by the Humanist Club, UC Literary Association, UC Women's Undergraduate Association, the Student Christian Movement and the Canterbury Club.

onlookers. Oh yes, and we mustn't forget that last but not least was the music supplied for the parade by the Blue and White and Varsity Pipe bands.

Saturday night dances, five of them, were crowded. There are rumors that the floors in the Occupational Therapy huts were sagging under the strain.

Sunday morning the Church service in Convocation Hall was packed to capacity. Canon Cody, President Emeritus of the University delivered the sermon. President Sidney Smith read the lesson. The Hart House and Victoria College Glee Clubs led the singing during the service.

Four thousand graduates were in attendance at the game and well over that number were here for the entire week-end. From all reports they went home a happy crowd.

benign and vague Mr. Pim was well handled by I. Goring. His portrayal was realistic and he achieved his humorous effects by emphasizing the questionable mental capacity of the little gentleman. His makeup was especially successful. The ingenue part was taken by Barbara Ward who deserves congratulations on a charming and breezy performance. Her arty beau had a certain amount of dash in F. Chapman's portrayal. H. Chapman's country squire looked his part, but sometimes found it difficult to give it variety. Freda Burke was extremely convincing as his wife and injected more than a fair share of laughs into the play. The support given by Mary Davis and Irene Wilson as Lady and Maid was substantial. The pace was buoyant, the dry humor enjoyable.

Mantley Directs Vic's Production Of Smash Comedy

The fast-moving comedy, "The Man Who Came to Dinner" will be presented in Hart House Theatre, tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday by Victoria College Dramatic Society.

The play is being directed by John Mantley, a Vic. grad. and past president of the Vic. Drama Society. He was director of the Central Ontario entry in the Dominion Drama Festival.

Stafford Lawrence, an experienced summer stock player, will play the title role of Sheridan Whiteside. Maggie is played by Phyllis Walters, star of last year's production of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

The supporting cast includes Beth Robinson, Liz Lane, Phoebe Templeton, Mike Roberts and Ben Foreman.

Octopuses, mummy cases, penguins, ants and wheel-chairs pop up in unsuspected places in this veritable menagerie.

NEW DRAMA GROUP PLANS TWO PLAYS

A new drama society has been formed from the "All Others" group, including School of Nursing, Emmanuel, Occupational and Physical Therapy, Institutional Management, Knox, Pharmacy, Dentistry, and Optometry. Speaker at the first open meeting last Monday was Robert Gill, director of Hart House Theatre.

The Society plans to introduce the idea of Theatre-in-Round early in December as a vehicle for two one-act plays to be directed by Henry Kaplan, U.C. graduate.

Airmail Voting Picks Graduates To Enter Senate

Sixty-eight representatives of the University of Toronto graduate body officially became members of the University of Toronto Senate Friday evening when results of an "airmail election" were announced Saturday.

Usually most members go in by acclamation in elections which are held every four years. But this year, the graduates' growing interest in University affairs was reflected in contests in eight divisions: University College, Victoria College, Medicine, Dentistry, Engineering, Forestry, Architecture and the Pass Course for Teachers.

Uunder the direction of A. B. Fennell, the Registrar, 31,416 ballots went to graduates scattered all over the globe.

Ellen Gairdner Chosen Fraternity Sweetheart

Ellen Gairdner, III U.C., Blue and White cheerleader for the last three years, was chosen Lambda Chi Alpha's sweetheart and was presented with a bouquet of white roses and ribbon of office in a post-game ceremony in front of the fraternity house, Saturday afternoon.

"I'm overwhelmed at the honor," said Miss Gairdner as Drum Majorette Marjorie Dunn unveiled her name.

Master - of - ceremonies William McCarthy, III U.C., called Margie to the stage and presented her with a bouquet of red roses in appreciation of her services as drum majorette and each of the cheer leaders was given a gardenia corsage.

Margie, to the tune of the same name, swivelled her way through a tricky routine that brought cheers from the mass of students thronging St. George St.

Bandleader Bob Cringan accepted the thanks of the fraternity on behalf of the band.

Scholarships To Be Set Up For Students

Over $16,000.00 has been received from various donors for the establishment of scholarships, endowments and bursaries in the various faculties, the Board of Governor announced yesterday.

Some of the donations and bequests reported by the Board of Governors include a net income from 30 per cent of the residue of the estate of the late Allan F. S. Robertson. This will finance the Allan Robertson scholarships in the University of Toronto Schools for students intending to study medicine at Varsity. It will also be used for the Allan Robertson Research Fund for scientific research in any of the sciences, but preferably for cancer study.

Faculty of Music

The sum of $10,000 was received from Mrs. W. E. Corlett to endow the William Edward Corlett Memorial Scholarship in the Faculty of Music.

A bequest under the will of the late Elizabeth Robertson Hendry of $1,500.00 is to be added to the William John Hendry Scholarship in Obstetrics and Gynaecology already established. The total sum is to be used for a Memorial Scholarship in memory of Dr. William B. Hendry, Dr. William John Hendry and Surgeon-Lieut. George A. Hendry. The scholarship is to be awarded to a student of the final year in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology.

P.H.E. Training Course

The Margaret Eaton School Alumnae Association has donated $100.00 for two bursaries of $50.00 each to enable two students in the School of Physical and Health Education to attend the Counsellor Training Course at Camp Tanamakoon in September.

The sum of $100.00 was also received for a Phi Delta Epsilon Medical Fraternity bursary. This is the first of three donations of similar amount for a student to be selected by the Head of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology.

Mathematics Books

The total value of the William Lowell Putnam Mathematical Competition Funds is now $1,784.49 and includes $300 being the second prize won by the U. of T. team in the mathematical competition. The money will be used to purchase mathematical books.

Included among the other donations are $1,201 to cover the Brunner, Mond Canada Sales, Ltd., Fellowship in soil mechanics; four books by French speaking Swiss authors as prizes from the Minister of Switzerland in Canada; $1,500 from E. R. Squibb and Sons of Canada, Ltd., to support the Research Fund in Anaesthesia; $1,250 from Canadian Industries Limited to cover the CIL Fellowship for 1948-49.

Twenty medals valued at $2,000 were given by Mrs. Henry G. Acres. Mrs. Acres also donated $664 to establish a Perpetuity Fund which will provide medals from 1968 on.

The Winners!

Varsity Coeds of Nineties Almost Immune to Football

By NAN McKENZIE

Back in 1891, one of Varsity's 13 co-eds clutched her books tightly to her chest, held up her head courageously and braved the hazard of crossing the practice field of the University of Toronto's Rugby Blues.

Today, Varsity's rugby team holds a prominent place in every gal's heart, in 1891, its existence was acknowledged in three very negative ways:

Experiencing discomfort on crossing the field when the team was getting its muscles into shape,

Being vaguely aware of the cheering that came in the open residence window when a game was in progress,

Feeling a detached sort of satisfaction when Varsity came through with a win.

The little octogenarian who dug down into her memories of 57 years ago to bring these astonishing facts to light is Miss Clarebelle Platt. Miss Platt has had an 11-year teaching career in Smerna, Turkey, that included a midnight flight with Armenian, Turkish and continental students from their burning and plundered American College to a scholastic haven in Athens where the college took new roots. Finishing this relation of her career years, she gave a polite, little old-lady laugh and said, "I'm afraid that Varsity's rugby team never made any difference in my life."

Co-ed attendance at rugby games was something that did not come into consideration until 1922. Before that, the girls kept their fingers crossed all week whenever the phone rang, hoping it was a date for the Saturday afternoon game.

If you weren't asked, remenisced Miss A. E. Parks, S.A.C. Associate-Secretary, you just weren't in the social swim.

Girls going unescorted to a game was almost as rigid a taboo as a co-ed entering Hart House. Then in 1922, 400 seats were set aside for the girls who wanted to go and yet had no escorts.

It was years later before a woman could sit any place in the stadium without bringing social reproach upon herself.

A side note on the growth of spirit at rugby games is the acute embarrassment felt by all when an inebriate was seen reeling about the old gridiron. Today, somehow, the half-time shenanigans fall just a little flat without the traditional tipsy gypsy to be laughed at and sympathetically led away.

Times change, huh?

New Promotions Announced Here By Pres. Smith

Three promotions and one new appointment in the Department of Mathematics at University of Toronto have been announced by Dr. Sidney Smith, U. of T. President.

The new appointee is A. E. Schild who becomes assistant professor. Dr. Schild graduated at the head of his class in Applied Mathematics in 1943. He was a teaching Fellow at the University of Toronto for three years and obtained his Ph. D. in 1946. Dr. Schild has published a considerable body of work on Tensor Calculus and Relativity and is joint author with Professor Synge of a book on Tensor Calculus, now going through the University of Toronto Press, which will be one of the volumes of the Mathematical Expositions Series. One of the chapters in this book is given over to Dr. Schild's own work.

Dr. Smith said that associate professors N. E. Sheppard, H. S. M. Coxeter and Leopold Infeld had been promoted to professors.

Osgoode Meets Varsity In First Debate Today

The University Debating Union will present its first outside debate against Osgoode Hall tonight at 8:00 in Victoria College Alumni Hall. Upholding the affirmative of the resolution, "That there is a definite need for a bill of rights" will be Wally Framm, IV U.C. and Dave Quigley, III St. Mike's. The negative will be presented by William Summerville and John Leif of Osgoode.

Debaters Vote To Uphold Privileges Of Free Speech

The St. Hilda's College Literary Society defeated the motion that "Communism should be outlawed from Canada" by a 48-9 vote from the house and the decision of the judges last night.

Donna Haley and Pat Marlow, speaking for the Government, stressed the importance of education. People have to be educated to democracy if it is to be successful. It failed in Germany and Japan because the people did not understand it. If communism is permitted in Canada it may influence the minds of our youth and endanger democracy. Miss Haley pointed out that we have just passed through one war of ideologies and seem hastening toward another. Are we to sit back or should we take action to preserve our society? "Shall we allow free speech and free action to a group who wish to abolish free speech and free action? The only answer to this paradox is in a limitation of free speech in order to preserve it."

Barbara Annis and Pauline Home put across the opposition's platform in two parts the ideal of freedom and the practical effects of outlawing Communism. Miss Annis quoted freely from John Stewart Mill. Freedom of speech is the most fundamental of our freedoms. Democracy is based on conflicting opinions. In the "free market of ideas" we test and prove our beliefs. Miss Home pointed out that if we begin with outlawing communism we will soon be arresting anyone who disagrees with the status quo. "Communism is a religion for the dissatisfied." We must fight it on the material plane, by providing equal opportunities for all. We must also fight it on the spiritual plane by providing a superior system.

Set Up Endowment, Propose To Honor Retiring Premier

Plans for a scholarship endowment in the name of W. L. Mackenzie King are being completed by friends of the retiring prime minister. It will be the first scholarship in Mr. King's name and the first for master of arts in external affairs at the University of Toronto which is believed to be the only Canadian university with a special division for external relations.

Became Prime Minister

It was at Varsity in 1893 that Mr. King won an Edward Blake scholarship in arts and law. His first duty in external and home relations began more than 50 years ago when he received a government commission to inquire into methods of carrying out government contracts in Canada and Europe. From then on his interest grew and in 1921 became prime minister and minister to external affairs and held the latter post until two years ago. His activities in this capacity are well known especially those associated with the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A spokesman for the endowment committee said that the scholarship would probably be for $1,000 and would be available next fall although it is not yet decided whether it will be awarded on a regular annual basis.

Qualifications

It is open to students who are Canadian by birth and who hold a Bachelor of Arts degree from any Canadian university, in the pass, general or honor courses provided they include in their undergraduate studies at least two of geography, political science, economics and history over a period of at least two years. They must also be reasonably proficient in a second language.

The inter-departmental committee on international relations who will make the award will take into account not only academic standing but also personality, initiative, and impressions created at first meeting. The committee may select a candidate who is a Canadian of British birth if circumstances make such a choice desirable. The student must command the respect of those with whom he works. Consideration will be given to the record and variety of summer employment as well as of leadership during college years. The candidate should be worthy to represent Canada to those living beyond its borders.

The scholarship is designed primarily to encourage research in Canadian external relations and to secure through extended investigation an understanding of the questions arising from the growth of participation in the field of external affairs.

VIC MARRIED STUDENTS

The Vic Married Students' Club will meet today at 1 p.m. in Room 18 to discuss future social events as well as regular business.

Skule To Auction Queen's Goalpost And UWO Coeds

A meeting to discuss last minute details for today's School Auction was held yesterday by Jim Roddy, III Engineering, Pat Suddick, Tom Medland and Jim Walker, all of IV Engineering, in the new Mechanical Building. The auction will take place at 1.30 this afternoon, after firing of the School Cannon. The event is a tradition as old as School itself, and this year will be in celebration of the Engineering Society's 59th Annual School Dinner

Suddick, who will be Master of Ceremonies at the sale, will auction off such articles as: the Western gravestone from the centre campus (made at Ajax), a couple of Western co-eds, and a large hunk of Queen's goal posts. The Engineering Society has extended the welcome sign to all campus students, and has announced that Vic will be allowed to send a representative. It is rumored Keith Davey will be out of town during the occasion.

The auction always precedes the School Dinner, scheduled this year for Wednesday night. The dinner will be one School event of the year regarded by officials of the Engineering Society as a very special one. This year's graduating class from SPS will be the first to include ex-members of the Ajax student body; at the same time, this is the last year Ajax will be functioning.

Tickets for the dinner have already been sold out.

VICTORY WEEKEND

The Blue and White Society announced that they have almost completed their plans for the coming greater and sweeter Victory Weekend.

Last weekend was tremendous; the Blue and White promise the next will be colossal.

Their plans include the biggest All-Varsity dance ever attempted. Other plans will be announced later.

Tickets For Western Game Will Be Sold This Morning

Students who have coupon books for the three scheduled intercollegiate rugby games will be given priority in obtaining tickets on sale today for Saturday's playoff game, J. P. Loosemore said last night.

Loosemore, Financial Secretary of the U of T. Athletic Association, stated, "The student section will be sold to coupon book holders on a reserved seat basis at a 50c reduction from the face value of the ticket. Sections Q, R and S will be sold at $1.00 per ticket and the balance of the student section at 50c. Athletic membership card and Coupon No. 6 must be presented when purchasing tickets."

Regulation of prices for the playoff is not a matter decided by U of T. Athletic officials exclusively. The setting of the cost of tickets at $1.00 is the decision of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, since the proceeds from the game must be split four ways, one-third to Western, one-third to Varsity, and one-sixth each to McGill and Queen's.

Before the decision was reached, Western Athletic representatives recommend that the tickets be sold at the standard price of $2.00. Queen's suggested a 25 cent drop, McGill a 50 cent reduction. Varsity athletic officials cast their vote for a flat vote rate of 50 cents. A compromise was reached on the basis of the McGill proposal. All seats will be reserved.

NOONDAY RECITALS

The first of this year's lunch-hour recitals will be held at Hart House today. The time will be one-thirty as usual but this year the recitals are to be held in the music room instead of the East Common Room.

Education For All

In spite of the growing realization that a university education need not be confined to a small segment of the population, there still seem to be some prominent educators who are filled with dismay at the thought of making higher learning available to all.

It is difficult to understand the logic of people like B. K. Sandwell, editor of Saturday Night, who, earlier this year deplored the increasing interest in college education on the part of the working class. Mr. Sandwell felt the tendency was dangerous because it would leave few people satisfied to carry out the traditional role of labour in our society, including the more unpleasant manual tasks. He neglected to explain what yardstick should be applied to close the doors of the university to one group while leaving them open to another.

It is probable that the role of the university has been confused because it has been associated too exclusively with undergraduate training. The undergraduate is not the sole heir of the tradition of university education. Research, post-graduate studies, adult education, and popular education are also part of a university's responsibility. Adult education and popular education, involving instruction after normal working hours, aim to increase the intellectual curiosity of individuals and groups, and they should raise the general cultural level of those groups.

Adding to the confusion is the tendency of some universities to teach subjects that need not belong to universities. Specific industrial processes or business systems can be better learned on the job than in a university. Some American colleges, with degree courses in bridge-playing and social dancing, indicate the extremes to which some universities can go.

It is difficult to draw the line between academic and non-academic studies, and as a result some universities have greatly overstepped that line. Unfortunately some educators have used such extreme examples to level attacks against courses in practical science and commerce and finance—courses which have been, and are quite properly, taught on a university level.

President Norman Mackenzie of the University of British Columbia, writing in the United Church Observer, September 15th, said, "To talk of limiting enrolment in a growing economy that is increasingly convinced that higher education is worthwhile—is futile. To try to keep higher education from being vocational in the sense of training those who take it for jobs, is equally futile.

We should therefore concentrate on humanizing and liberalizing vocational training and/or giving our students an understanding of our culture, of leisure, and of the society they live in and will live in."

Inasmuch as universities provide a basis for the art of living, both vocationally and culturally, it is impossible to deny higher education to any particular group in our society.

There's A Cow In the Meadow

Today the popular song holds an important position in our society. No one interested in current affairs can overlook this fact.

For this reason, The Varsity brings you a review of several new songs which are rapidly climbing the Hit Parade. Words for the songs treated today may be found in the January issue of "Hit Parader".

"Underneath the Arches", written especially for the Dr. Schoales Foot Clinic and performed in a recent musical by a midget, has skyrocketed to great popularity despite a rather flat start. Its rise can be compared favorably with that of another new hit—"Down Among the Sheltering Palms".

"Rhendezvous with a Rose" has an esthetic theme which will appeal to lovers of beauty and which gives the whole song a pleasant odor (if a song can be said to have an odor, and some can).

Four lines particularly strike the heart of the sensitive person—

"We'll stroll along together,
With the moon for a light,
And then I'll hold you close to my heart
And whisper that we'll never part".

"There a Barber in the Harbour at Palermo" poses the problem of why doesn't someone pull him out. Its popularity is also severely restricted by the present price of haircuts.

"I've Got You Under My Skin" is making a determined effort to rise to the top again. It is being aided in its campaign for publicity by the rise in attacks of "elevator itch", a disease found among grain elevator workers in which grain dust gets beneath the surface of the skin and causes considerable discomfort.

"The Curse of an Aching Heart" has an appealingly sad note but will not be welcomed by sufferers from heartburn.

"Mississippi Mud" is a little thick to wade through the first time but if one does, get through it several times, one will find that it slides along fairly smoothly. One line stands out as fascinating to lovers of the strange and new "It's a treat to beat your feet on the Mississippi mud".

"You Call Everybody Darlin'" is, from one point of view, a gay tune, but thinking students will realize that it will have little long-range popularity.

"I Don't Want to Meet Any More People, Because I'm Satisfied With You" displays an anti-social attitude which should be condemned as all too prevalent today.

"There's a Cow in the Meadow", written by a young farm boy, has a theme entirely new to popular songs. The younger generation should appreciate this love for animals. The story of a love not returned is traced with a delicate, yet child-like touch which can be noted in the following lines—

There's a cow in the meadow,
With a stream drifting by.
And carved upon that cow I see
"I love you till I die".

Apparently his love is not reciprocated for further on he writes—

"But further on down lovers' lane
A silhouette I see.
I know that you are kissing someone else

Unfortunately for the farm lad, a little bull has crept into the picture.

Bishop Neill Mission Head Speaks Today

Bishop Stephen Neill, assistant to the Archbishop of Canterbury and Chief Missioner of the U of T Christian Mission, will speak at a meeting in Sheridan Hall, Wycliffe College, at 5 p.m. today.

Preliminary Visit

Bishop Neill, who is to be in charge of the Mission when it opens officially in January, is in Toronto to address the Canadian Council of Churches and the executive meetings of the Church of England in Canada, and will be entertained today at a luncheon to which presidents of the various student governments have been invited. At 4:15, all students at present engaged in work for the Mission or who would like to do so are invited to an informal tea in Wycliffe College where they will have an opportunity to discuss the Mission with the Bishop. His address at 5 o'clock will be open to all students.

Will Meet Committee

Bishop Neill, who is a member of the executive of the World Council of Churches which met at Amsterdam last summer, has conducted similar missions at universities in England. He will meet with the executive committee in charge of the Mission and the general committee in the Simcoe Hall Senate Chamber this evening. The chairman of this meeting will be Chief Justice McRuer.

Lost, Strayed, Or Stolen One Flag

Western dignity was not all that was lost Saturday afternoon.

On adding up the flags on top of Varsity Stadium after the game, it was noted that there is now one less than were flying during the game.

The wind was very strong but . . .

Athletic Director Warren Stevens has issued an appeal for the return of the flag.

Had this flag been of ordinary quality there would be little or no fuss about its loss. But the flag is one of four hand-made flags donated by Mrs. Stuart Forbes, wife of the retired Athletic Manager of McGill.

Mr. Stevens assures that no action will be taken against the souvenior hunters. Moreover, he wishes to personally congratulate those students with sufficient ingenuity to engineer such a feat.

"Get Under It"

Mummies, Dinosaurs, Birds Attract Crowds At Museum

"Morbid" a truly applicable word, was used by a museum official to describe the minds of Torontonians when visiting the museum on a Sunday afternoon. The cause of the announcement was the general popularity of the mummies. Crowds of curious museum visitors ask for the "dummies", a mistake comparable to none according to the guards.

These mummies have their own exhibit room and, in one case, the actual body is shown. The mummy room was the reason that one guard left his job and the museum in the middle of the night. The nerve-wracking effect created by the cracking of dry cases and pedestals in the winter, the bulky ghostly shapes of Chinese buddhas, and the skeletons of dinosaurs is enough to make anyone shudder. "If you can take it for a week you can take it for life," claims one of the guards employed by the museum for sixteen years. Another guard claims it's all in the mind; nothing has really disturbed him during his fourteen years at the museum—not even the teacher who asks where the gall stones are, or the small boy who says that the totem in the stair was carved when it was a twig and grew to be a totem pole.

These guards are well qualified to judge the everyday happenings of the museum and each has his own particular interest. One says that he enjoys the reaction of the students who come to view the mummies and the Chinese dragons.

Mr. Bailey, bird cataloguer, showed The Varsity the seventy-five thousand birds from all over the world which comprise the finest research collection in Canada and one of the finest in North America. One hundred and fifty cabinets are used to store these birds, which vary from the albatross of Ancient Mariner fame, the biggest bird in the world which has a wing spread of 12 feet, to the birds of Paradise, the most spectacular. The latter are unbelievably beautiful. These birds are now impossible to get because of the ban on their export. The Toronto museum has the best collection of passenger pigeons in the world. They number 108. There is one drawback, however, the stuffed birds are crowded and need a new wing.

The basement of the museum is more directly connected with the university. It houses the theatre and restaurant.

The Royal Ontario Museum is only a stone's throw from any point on the campus. Students should drop in to see it sometime.

Pick Your Favorite Varsity Footballer In Student Ballot

Something new is about to be added to Varsity football traditions. After considerable discussion it has been decided to conduct a student poll to determine the most popular senior intercollegiate football player on the Varsity team.

Season Trophy Award

The winner is to receive suitable recognition in the form of a handsome trophy. The award is to be an annual affair and will be presented after the conclusion of the season next week.

The Varsity will be the donor of the new cup whose recipient will literally be "the people's choice." Ballot forms will appear on page 8 of The Varsity this week and must be filled out and dropped in one of the boxes to be distributed around the campus. Ballots will be taken in the Varsity Office in the basement of U.C. today, and boxes will be placed in the Athletic Office, both SAC offices and the Economics Building tomorrow.

Masterson Pleased

Bob Masterson appeared to be pleased with the idea, which although new to Varsity has operated in many of the colleges below the border for years. This system of student ballotting takes the game right back where it belongs . . in the hands of the students.

The idea has been born; the trophy has a donor; the rest is up to you readers. Remember this is your chance to thank your favourite Blue for giving up every night to practice, and performing for your enjoyment every Saturday afternoon since away back in September.

Whom do you consider your favorite player on the Big Blues?

Letter Exchange Promoted by ISS In Latest Drive

A three-day drive in December will begin a program for correspondence between students of the University of Toronto and students of foreign countries, the Correspondence Committee of ISS decided at a meeting last week. During the drive it is hoped that information desks can be set up in the various colleges and faculties, at which application forms will be available.

Although emphasis will be placed on correspondence with European students, the program will be world-wide in scope. The purpose of this scheme is to promote better understanding between Canadian and foreign students.

Fifteen letters have already been received from students in Germany, Holland, Belgium, Poland, and New Zealand, according to Dieter Dahlke, II Vic, chairman of the committee.

Students will be able to specify the country with whose undergraduates they desire to correspond. The Toronto Committee will have direct contact with students of foreign countries, otherwise addresses will be received through the head office at Geneva.

Recruit Canadian Students For Civil Service Careers

University students contemplating a career in the Federal Public Service will have an opportunity to discuss the subject with examiners of the Civil Service Commission when they visit the University from Wednesday November 17th to Saturday, November 20th.

The Commission is sending out recruiting teams to the major Canadian colleges and Universities for the purpose of acquainting the faculties and students with all aspects of Civil Service employment.

Coupled with this is a plan that may help to stem the stream of skilled Canadians to the United States. Three officials, including Dr. O. E. Ault, Director of Personnel Selection with the Commission, are to visit several major American Universities where Canadian students are in attendance. It is hoped that discussion with these students will encourage a greater percentage of them to seek their careers in Canada—and particularly in the Civil Service.

The Commission hopes that these positive recruitment steps will encourage a greater percentage of the better university students to consider government employment. The experience of two previous tours in Canada lends encouragement to this view.

This year some 225 newly graduated men and women have accepted continuing employment in the Public Service while 1,000 undergraduates found employment during the summer months. It is hoped that a percentage of the latter will be offered continuing employment following their graduation.

This field of employment embraces virtually every specialization in the physical and social sciences along with the various specialists in scientific agriculture.

One Sap's Sketch Book

Goodbye Mr. Chips . . That Will Be All Gentlemen

By LIN AHA

He wasn't Professor anything then. He was the Honor Boy, the prodigy, the bright kid, the fellow who knew the answers. Not that Jones (we'll just call him Jones) was an eccentric, the genius with the outward marks of one. Jones was just one of those better mentally equipped lads, ahead of his course, a cinch. There was no doubt, almost no competition about that. The average university student goes along to get the education he has to, pay his fee at the box-office of Civilization, buck a tide that is not insurmountable, but certainly a challenge, . . . satisfied to make the grade, happy about a sup or two, lucky to get away without repeating an entire year.

In the latter regard, Jones was different . . . superior. The sort of thing that puzzled his fellow students was the one that Jones could understand without an obvious effort. Writing a final was like writing a letter home. It was no good meeting Jones outside the examination room and expecting any of the consolation that comes from exchanging remarks like "Tough paper, eh?" "They're trying to wipe us out this year!" and, the inevitable "But then, if enough of us fail, they'll jack the marks up." You could depend on it, there would be no "jacking up" if half the class were Jones.

It all happened in the smoothest order for Jones. Bachelor's Degree, Scholarship, Master's Degree. Then Jones was back to his Alma Mater. Lecturer, assistant professor, full professor. From the very start Jones awed and silenced his classes into respect, the kind of respect that is paid in a back bench whisper, "That guy knows his stuff."

Jones' lectures were always attended by all of his own class and half of everybodoy else's . . . room packed to the eaves. But a man like that has a right to be abstruse.

Students remembered Jones but not in the affectionate way they remembered Smith for example. Smith was an affable homespun fellow whose grasp of things was firm but not spectacular. Smith had struggled up, sweated on the treadmill. His knowledge was not too profound, but hard won. He couldn't answer many questions with offhand facility. He could be stumped—and often was, by the greenest undergraduates. But between Smith and the benches there was a bond, the bond that exists between ordinary men.

It wasn't that Jones didn't give you the "dope", or deliberately jeered at your simplicity. It was his belittling mockery! The way he answered your question, and, at the same time, made you feel foolish asking it. It was his maddening certainty. Perhaps it was unintended. Perhaps, with his intelligence, he had a right to.

Then something happened. It is hard to say where the transition began when Jones' great spotlight began to dim. That year Jones was still smug, still self-certain, offhanded; but now and then he seemed to be less sure of his guiding light. He didn't seem to be on the peak of his mountain, seeing all with the ken of a god. Still quite high, but not at the peak.

The following year Jones laughter grew self-effacing. He wasn't like Jones anymore. He was apologetic. His lectures were filled with long paranthetic paragraphs of self-vindication. He commanded no awe from the benches. Jones talked too much. The hard factual challenges that filled his lectures before, now came far apart and then passed unnoticed in the muffled disgruntlement of the class. When the lecture was over there was none of the good deep satisfaction he used to feel. There was only a hollowness. He would stand at the table and watch the students file, out without casting a glance There was no more wine-ups or students to ask questions, to get another clue. He would stand there and one thought it would have made the years worth while if one single student stepped out of the mad evacuation to say reverently, "Sir, I'm not quite sure I understand" They weren't the same students. The others had gone, and, from these he could expect no gratitude, for what he had given of himself before. He was the continunity, not they. They were the separate waves of and unending flood and

Jones was standing there. His light was out. Somewhere in the night the advancement of learning had left Jones behind, emptied and hollow. Then there was that last lecture. It was a bitter stand. The room was filled with inattention, mumbling, spurts of derisive laughter, embarrassing spaces, at least, thirty.

Jones said, "That will be all, gentlemen . . . ."

He didn't come in the next day. A brash, hard, brick-and-mortar type came up instead, said, "I'm taking over Prof. Jones' lectures" and hit the blackboard with the "works."

"I gless they've let old Jones out to pasture" [illegible] remarked. Someone [illegible]

WOMEN'S PAGE

Women In The SAC, In Art, And At Games

Paper Chases, Canoe Trips, Hockey Ex-Hobbies Of SAC's Miss Parkes

Can I Help You?

Lost something? Ordering a blazer or a ring? Want a job at Christmas? Need some place to live? Wondering what team won the volleyball championship last year?

The place to go is the Women's Student Administrative Council in the UC basement where Miss Parkes is always ready and willing to help you.

Miss A. E. M. Parkes, the Associate Secretary of the SAC and the Secretary Treasurer of the Women's Athletic Association, is a Varsity grad herself. During her undergraduate career, Miss Parkes was active in many fields. She was on the executive committee of her class and a member of the UC basketball, tennis, hockey and swimming teams. For her enthusiastic participation in these sports, she was awarded the equivalent of our Junior T, the highest honor then given for achievements at sports. Until 1915 Miss Parkes recalls, paper chases were held every Saturday morning during the fall. Those held by St. Hilda's were especially popular for it meant following up the ravines to their former site out on Queen's St. Oyster stew was usually served after these chases.

Another amusing thing Miss Parkes recalls is that it was in 1916 that the St. Hildians finally broke down and wore bloomers for basketball! Miss Parkes was the "Women's Reporting Editor" of The Varsity in 1916 and remembers with pride that she was one of the women who managed the first edition of The Varsity to be put out entirely by women. Her editorial in that issue was on the University's need for a women's building, a need which has never been satisfied.

After she graduated from "moderns" here, Miss Parkes took a secretarial course at Columbia and worked for a year as the academic secretary of a school just outside New York. In January of 1920, she answered the SAC's ad for a secretary, obtained the position, and still has it.

Here's a record that few can challenge. Miss Parkes has not missed one Varsity Intercollegiate Football game since 1922, unless you can consider one game in McGill in '45 to which few students went as there was no organized trip and tickets were not on sale here for the game.

The tribute paid to Miss Parkes (who, incidentally, just gave up going on long canoe trips two years ago) by her secretary Edith Annis is one that would be echoed by anyone who knows her. Her secretary, who sees her every day throughout the day and at the times of greatest strain, says that she is a diplomatic, understanding and congenial person to work with and added "I think anyone who works with her or knows her feels the same way."

The secret of how Miss Parkes manages to remember a hundred and one things at once, and yet know all about each and keep them all straight, seems to lie in her philosophy. She loves her work and enjoys it tremendously. She finds it interesting and stimulating. As she herself said, "It may be mad but it keeps you young."

After Lectures

An interesting extracurricular activity took place last week under the sponsorship of Miss Ferguson and the UC resident women, when four of the five women, whose paintings were on exhibition there, met for a discussion period in the Union Theatre. Mrs. Rody Kenny Courtice, Miss McLaughlin, Mrs. Housser, and Mrs. Clark all participated answering many questions from the floor and explaining different ideas, often by illustrating from their own works.

In particular the question concerning what was imitation art and what true art drew diverse ideas from the participants although they agreed that practice was the best means of acquiring judgment in this field.

Mrs. Courtice explained also that there was many advantages to be gained from students attending different schools of study. Miss McLaughlin and Mrs. Clark attempted to discuss the idea of continued and broken line. Miss McLaughlin maintained, illustrating from her painting, that you should be able to make a complete circle without a break while Mrs. Clark preferred the broken line which also broke the thought.

Mrs. Housser explained her interesting design which originally stemmed from hearing Mozart's music one day. She had also been interested in working with the metal aluminum and felt this would be the best time to experiment.

All the members regretted the absence of Mrs. Haworth whose characteristically strong stroke in her paintings caused many questions.

By MARGOT MURRAY and PAULA ZUMSTEIN

Get your fur-lined boots and parkas ready, girls. It's the biggest game of the year, but you won't enjoy it if you sacrifice comfort for beauty. Were you too cold to cheer last Saturday? Were you depressed by the low Western score? Because alumnae spectators found that the old Varsity cheering spirit wasn't up to par. The cold blustering north wind sweeping down the stadium blowing the blue and white balloons high in the sky pierced the hearts of the most rabid Varsity fans and apparently froze those from Western.

Perhaps you were one of those who hobbled around to the campus dances on numb feet last week-end. In fact maybe even your victory was frozen on your face. Take a tip from that sage, Ye Olde Experience, and dress to the teeth, in furs and rugs, that is, as you tramp around the campus next Saturday.

Maybe your new ankle-length ballerina isn't made to go with boots and mittens but it's so easy to slip in and out of them. And besides those new boots are made especially short to accommodate the new look. Did you notice the new fashions in furs that those smart, not to speak of lucky people had on Saturday or aren't those green lights in your eyes? The rippling backs and full sleeves as well as those deep collars make beautiful coats.

Read the advance weather notices and telephone the meteorological office, consult the nearest astronomer (and astrologer too) but do find out what is in store for the coming week-end. Don't just follow the Blues .. . it might snow yet.

Look To New Careers

Crossfire

S.A.C.

By JANET HARBRON

Students Administrative Council — just words — perhaps to many people but it's interesting to discover that the organization is an all-encompassing aspect of campus life.

It is composed of the presidents, elected heads, or elected representatives of each faculty, college, and school making up the University. The chief unifying force in campus life, it exists to give the maximum service to the student body while not conflicting with the various undergraduate organizations.

The council supports an office in Hart House, the women's office and the Varsity offices in University College. Torontonensis office on St. George Street and yet another centre at Ajax.

Three publications of the council The Varsity, Torontonensis, and the Students' Handbook would be enough to swamp a lesser group, but the S.A.C. also organizes the U. of T. symphony orchestra, the choir, the band and cheerleaders.

Inter-university relationships are of concern to our students organization. Did you know that each student pays six cents to the National Federation of University Students, and that last year the S.A.C. as a whole paid on the order of 1,500 dollars into NFCUS in the interest of inter-university understanding.

There are in addition two major services which the council has undertaken aiding students to come to Varsity and then in many cases enabling them to stay here once they are enrolled. These are the Housing Service and the loan fund established from a surplus accumulated of S.A.C. funds. The fund is available to undergrads in their final two years at college with repayment required one year after graduation.

Finally as we are about to leave our ivory the council extends further guidance to the garduating class in the form of an extremely efficient employment service.

Coeds Find Enlightenment At Autumn Career Forums

By ANNE BURTON

What's in a career? That's what we wanted to find out when we went to the three Panhellenic-sponsored career forums that took place in the past month. And we found out a lot—not only about careers, but also about the career women who are on the job.

The three forums of Careers On Parade, presented in the Women's Union Theatre on October 25, November 1, and November 8 respectively, attempted to "gen" up Varsity gals on the opportunities awaiting them in the great big world outside. There we found out how we, armed with our shiny new sheepskins, can get into or get ahead in public relations, publicity work, publishing, movies, fashion editing, teaching, librarianship, and all fields of radio.

The purpose of Careers On Parade was more than to acquaint women undergrads with a variety of possible professions. They aimed at bringing the distaff side of all the faculties together, and at uniting them in a major common interest. And in addition to mapping out jobs for prospective B.A.'s, they also showed the gals just what career women are like. And if personality-plus, sparkleness and willingness to work are the requirements for a successful career, the forum speakers are "in" hands down!

Conducting the first forum was Joyce Tedman, a bright spot in the publicity business. Participating guests were Kay Mathers, of Clarke Irwin Publishing; Ruth Wells, from the Department of Travel and Publicity, Ontario Government; Zoe Trotter, of industrial relations; Pauline McGibbon, associated with the National Film Board; and Mildred Spicer, assistant fashion editor of Chatelaine.

The lineup for the second forum included the well-known radio commentator, writer, traveller, and cooking expert, Kate Aitken as chairwoman, with Eileen Weber, of the U. of T. Library School, and Maude Standing, a member of the staff of North Toronto Collegiate, as guest speakers.

At the third and last forum, Mrs. Margaret Bassett of Don Bassett Productions directed the talk on radio. Assisting her were Mrs. Emma Slatter, business manager of the Academy of Radio Arts; Alice Frick, script editor of the C.B.C. Drama Department; Florence Craig, assistant to the famous commercial broadcaster, Clair Wallace; and Kathleen Dale, of the Radio Advertising Department of McLaren's Advertising Company. The most essential points in any career woman's make-up were emphasized very strongly by all the speakers: interest, intelligence, sincerity, enthusiasm, willingness, and plenty of drive.

In the novelty department Careers On Parade pulled a few tricks out of their bag when they ended the first forum with a pantomime of right-and-wrong office fashions for the tall and short girl. The big surprise at the third forum was a voice-recording machine, through which most of the audience heard how their voices really sound.

So we did find out what's in a career, and we were impressed. Our only problem now is the toughie of deciding just which career to get into. They all sound so interesting that, like typical women, we can't make up our mind!

P.S.—For those gals who missed Careers On Parade this year: stick around till Fall '49 for next year's edition!

The opening work was of a very demanding sort, necessitating rapid changes of registration and infused with closely-knit chords combined with delicate scale runs for right hand. The Adagio and Allegro although technically of the same calibre were different in both tone and rhythm. The Fugue in G minor, short as it is, is almost brusque in appeal; yet, to quote Mr. Silvester, "It contains tunefulness, vital rhythm and spontaneity". The Whitlock was a taste of the modern.

Kenneth Davis.

VIC'S CORNER

Like the Western Mustangs, Varsity's Homecoming Weekend is finished for '48, but unlike the Purple and White crew, the weekend's tremendous success ensures continuing triumphs in the future. Vic's contribution to the success was notable, and all thanks are due those in charge of the Burwash frolic, the tastefully decorated mobile cemetery of the morning's float parade, and R. Henry Watson, who kindly placed his mechanical miracle at the convenience of all pretty girls who didn't like cars. We understand Keith Davey and Doug Love were also connected with the Weekend.

Men Are Coming To Dinner from all over the campus this week as Vic's Dramatic Society stages the famous Kaufman-Hart comedy of the guest who outstayed his welcome by several years more than the customary 12 oz. Last night's show made a great hit with those spectators who relished the inclusion of several passages customarily dropped from T.O. productions.

Subscriptions to the 1948-49 version of Torontonensis are being offered in Vic Hall this week, between the hours of 10-2. For a record of undergraduate activity, Heather McCallum and Bill Young have signified their desire to recommend this.

Lord Calvert will be sorry to hear this one. Contrary to some of its publicity, the Vic Informal has never featured Distinction, instead concentrates on Romance. The "Dance of Distinction" tag is reserved for the Victoria At-Home, to be held January 11th and 12th.

In connection with the above, "anyone who has any time would be welcomed to the Vic Basement to help with decorations!" (James Nethercott). All this, apparently, is quite Informal . . . and tickets, you are reminded, are now on sale at $1.25 per couple, supply limited.

Lastly, we have a V. I. C. (she translates it as Very Important Correction, followed by an exclamation point) from Mary Lou Kilgour of the Liberal Arts Club. Says Mary Lou: "The Vic handbook has one item that needs correcting. Sir Osbert Sitwell, who is coming to Hart House Theatre on Tuesday, January 4, will appear under the auspices of Here and Now magazine, not, as announced, the Vic Liberal Arts Club. Paul Arthur is in charge of arrangements." It would seem some eager publicist didn't know his Left from his Right Hand.

And today Stan is back, will take over his regular beat in next Tuesday's issue.

Man Who Came To Dinner

Having just emerged from what can best be described as a pedestrian performance of "The Man" I'm wondering why the attributes of a college cast—enthusiasm, energy, freshness—should be applied to a play in which none of them finds full use. When the play is the sophisticated treatment of a sophisticated theme, assurance, experience and casualness are the things without which—small conviction. There can be no compromise; no bowdlerization of the naughtier lines, no dash and hurrah will do. The play is all of a piece and that piece is the essence of a civilization foreign to the undergrad.

To Director Mantley goes chief credit of whatever fun the audience had last night. His sensitive intrepretation enabled him to create stage business in the mode. His suggestions of gesture and comment were integrated and sure. Before tonight he will have said something to the cast about the pace. Staff Lawrence's "Whiteside" though somewhat gulpily delivered achieved an ease the moment he forgot how funny the lines had sounded in rehearsal. Phyllis Walter gave us near-conviction as Maggie. There are bits and pieces which gave us entertaining moments. But we left the theatre with the weary sense that Vic had chosen its vehicle not with reference to its actors but to its expenses.

Mel Breen.

M. Learning

In a varied and difficult violin recital program at Trinity last Sunday Miss Learning, surprisingly enough, gave her best performances in Mozart and Handel, displaying throughout a full-bodied tone with a brilliant, yet controlled technique. Double stopping was excellent in the cadenza and in "Wings of Song" but intonation was faulty in the octave work of "Ave Maria". The plaintive muted melody of the Swan provided pleasing contrast to the massive reconance of the Korngold tour de force. Apparently striving for masculinity, the artist presented rich sonorities in legato sections, but tended towards harshness in bravura passages by playing too close to the bridge. Her decisive virility was most effective in Fiocco's Allegro and Korngold's Hornpipe; however, in Schubert and Mendelssohn one could have wished for less surging and more singing.

Maturity will undoubtedly fulfill the conspicuous promise of the young violinist and bring in its train more ease in execution and greater variety of expression.

G. R. B. Hodgson.

Organ Recital

Monday afternoon Mr. Frederick Silvester played the second in a series of four organ recitals in Convocation Hall. The program was as follows: Concert Overture in C minor by Alfred Hollins; Adagio and Allegro from Trio-Sonata No. 5, and the "Little" Fugue in G minor of Bach; the late Percy Whitlock's "Carol"; Scherzo from 5th Sonata by Guilmant; Scherzo from 4th Symphony by Widor, and Healey Willan's Introduction, Passacaglia and Fugue.

Blue and White Band Rehearsal 5 p.m. Thurs., at the Drill Hall.

We listened to an adaptation of Wuthering Heights on Stage '49 Sunday night, and the lump is just now beginning to leave our throat.. Mr. Andrew Allen and his capable cast more than fulfilled the reputation they have for being at the forefront of radio drama.. With the grasp that Wuthering Heights places on the imagination it is the sort of story that lends itself admirably to the radio medium. Miss Emily Bronte must have known that something like radio was coming along when she wrote her memorable tale. For our part, we're still wandering the moors, and with the wind crying us down with its endless complaint, we've grown hoarse shouting for "Cathy . . . Cathy . . . Cathy . . ."

FLOWERS FROM HOME

The Editor, The Varsity:

It is fitting, I think, that some one should express appreciation for the stand taken by The Varsity, and by several student representatives and students' clubs, and by the Warden of Hart House, in intervening to vindicate liberty of speech within the democratic confines of the University. Moral courage is manifested rarely enough these days. When men and women face the accusing winds of prejudice and stand up for the rights of men, they deserve applause.

Probably more students became rebels against the opinions of the time and went to hear the Red Dean, simply because of the publicity arising out of the efforts in certain quarters to deny him any hearing. One is tempted, perhaps, to lament that I.O.D.E. petitioned Ottawa in vain to save us, their fellow citizens, from the distress of examining a different point of view, or that Toronto University did not silently heed the fresh precedent of "free but censored" speech established at some fellow universities. But there are worthier griefs to lament.

The address of Dr. Johnson was refreshing, to say the least. It reminded some of us that the world of human beings does not entirely stop Mr. Churchill's Iron Curtain. It did not convince everyone that the Soviet Union is God's answer to Hell on earth. But the Dean did not intend that, either. "There are things I abhor in the Soviet policy . . . " Yet his allusion to Charles in England recalled that the fairest age of England did not flourish without a preceding time of stern tyranny.

Dr. Johnson drew a perspective. He showed that there is more than one self-righteous side to the dominant political issues. And he indicated how not only a second but also a third viewpoint is possible; one that passes above partisan limits, to a level of common and reasonable humanity.

Such a third view is surely the only one allowable today. In it culminates all religion and philosophy: only world brotherhood can make life possible or tolerable in our day.

The Dean is an idealist. But the "realists" have done horrid things to the men, and they would drive men by their logic to the very furnace-gates of Hell.

It will not hurt students too much to listen to an idealistic humanitarian. Students have enough mercenary realism to discount most of the idealism anyway.

Again, therefore, may I say thanks for the stand taken in favor of intellectual freedom. That is one of the more hopeful omens in a day of increasingly remorseless purgation of independent thought. It is well to speak out now. A little farther, and it would be too late; when all thoughtful protest had been stifled and all of us herded like wooly sheep into the abattoirs of hatred and despair.

Arthur Thompson, III Sociology.

FLOWERS FROM McGILL

The Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir:

Allow me as a student of McGill University to compliment your entire University on its manifestation of a spirit that is not only democratic but also worthy of an institution of higher learning.

I refer to your invitation of the Dean of Canterbury to address students on your campus after we here have so shamefully turned him away.

There is among the McGill students a minority which would gladly welcome the opportunity of hearing the Dean but, unfortunately, our voices are drowned by the clamor of an intolerant majority, and of the city press which goes a long way toward moulding student opinion on the McGill campus.

You have shown us that you have not only a better football team, but also a true university spirit, something which is far more essential.

A Student,
McGill University

St. Mike's Complete Regular Schedule Undefeated Sink Ajax Team 21 to 0

The Jr. S.P.S. team was defeated by the powerful St. Mikes squad in the game played yesterday at Ajax. The fast St. Mike's backfield took full advantage of the weak Ajax line to roll up an impressive score 21 to 0.

1st Quarter

Receiving the kick, St. Mike's fought their way up to the Ajax zone where Fullerton recovered the ball from Ajax on a blocked kick and raced across the line for the first touchdown.

2nd Quarter

No points were scored but St. Mike's were able to make some impressive gains by charging through the weak Ajax line and blocking their kicks. During this quarter there was a short fight on the Ajax 25 yard line.

3rd Quarter

On the receiving end of a forward pass, Kelly of St. Mike's tore across the Jax line for the second major of the game. McLennan of Ajax broke up the convert with a charge through the S.M. line. A long pass to Kelly of St. Mike's carried his team to the Ajax 10 yd. line where McIntyre drove across for the third touchdown. Brennan converted.

4th Quarter

Brown of St. Mike's intercepted a forward pass and dodged his way to the Ajax 15 yd. line. From here Neil carried the mail for the final touch over the Engineer's line in a wide end run. St. Mike's failed to make the convert. The game ended with Ajax deep in their own territory.

Without a doubt, the outstanding defence player for Ajax was Burley who time and again drove across the St. Mike line to break up their off-tackle plays. Julie Hanson, the outstanding Ajax backfielder who suffered a leg injury a few games ago, was badly missed by the team.

St. Mike's will be the team to watch in the coming play-offs.

Cold Weather Just Incites Sailors To More Activity

To you yachts men frustrated during the winter months the U of T sailing club issues an invitation to its first meeting in Wymilwood, tonight at 8:00.

Bill Gooderham and Paul McLaughlan who represent Canada in the olympics will give their popular talk on their experiences in Great Britain this summer at 8:45. However those who are interested in the club's activities or in an informal talk on sailing preparatory to the lecture, will be welcome from 8:00 on.

You don't have to own a boat, be a mate or be an expert sailor to work with the sailing club, the only requirement is an enthusiasm for sailing, say club officials.

Earlier in the fall the university participates in several sailing Regattas held here and in the States. This brand new campus activity has been sponsored by the recently formed U of T sailing club.

During the several meetings held last year, on these lines interest was shown in everything from lectures on aerodynamics to chalk talks on parts of the boat and sailing terms, and even just sitting in groups and exchanging experiences.

SPORTSWOMAN

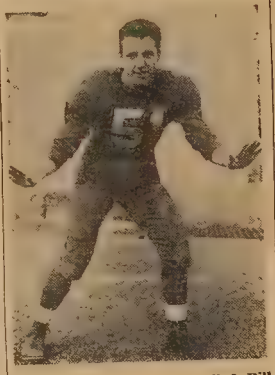
PHE III led all the way, through a fast and comparatively rough game of basketball last night to trample the UC Srs. 29-12. Neither team showed their usual standard of play, with the exception of Gwen Smith and Jane Cloke who tallied 12 PHE points.

The St. Hilda's Junior team took the Vic Sr. A's in the second game at OCE last night, 37-20. The Vic guard line was too short and consequently the play was monopolized by their tall opponents. Stars for the Saints were Pat Cockburn and Jane Mathews, while Marion Irwin was Vic's best player on the floor.

In one of the fastest games of the year, UC Jrs. completely routed the Vic Sr. B team with a score of 41-12, at LM. UC passed the ball up and down the floor with amazing rapidity, and made most of their shots on the basket count. Carol Dunn shone for the UC team, scoring twenty-four of their points. Her teammates Rosanna Kelly and Eleanor Lever also played well.

The UC Freshie B team defeated the Vic B team with a score of 17-16 in a close-fought game. Ross Creelman of UC and Jane Reddick of Vic scored most of the points for their teams.

FOOTBALL COACHES



Will all interfaculty football coaches leave their all star selections in THE VARSITY office or in the Athletic Office today.

Ajax Soccer Team Blank Vic Firsts

The Ajax soccer team continued its winning ways with a close but decisive victory over the Vic I squad in the game played yesterday at Ajax.

The only goal scored in the 1-0 game was by Regabert of Ajax. The teams were fairly evenly balanced with Ajax making the most of their breaks.

This Is ONE End

There's one Blue who's called Bill Stockman,
At end he's a veritable rockman,
He's made one t.d. this year,
Is happily married, we hear,
For the next game our advice is "Block, man!"

Noon Vic-PHE Tilt Final Title Playoff In Girls' Softball

The game played at one o'clock today on Trinity field will decide the women's softball champions for 1948. Vic. I won the first game of the best-of-three series 15-13.

Last year, too, PHE I and Vic. I were the two teams fighting it out in the finals. The Fizz Edders lost the first game (25-9) as they did this year but in the last two games they downed their rivals 15-7 and 16-3 to take the championship from the Vic team, which had held it for several years.

Varsity Women Win Swim Meet At Humberside

The Women's Intercollegiate swimming team came out well on top in their first attempt at competition, yesterday, with Humberside. The meet was held in the Collegiate pool.

In the single races for speed, Ann Malcolm, St. Mike's, won the free style, and Pam Perrin, Vic, led the breast stroke, while the back stroke was taken by Helen Geddis of Humberside.

Next on the program was style swimming, which was won by Jean McCaig of Humberside, with Jackie Tobian, Art and Meds, second. The free style relay team of Ann Malcom, St. Mike's, Jackie Tobian, Marion Mulloy, Vic, and Phil Manning, St. Hilda's, took the event for Varsity.

A demonstration of synchronized swimming, to the tune of "Jealousy" was put on by Jackie Tobian and Peggy Quiggin, Vic. Ornamental swimming was paced by Peggy Quiggin, with Joan Fryer and Lois Poole of Humberside, second and third.

Pam Perrin edged Helen Geddis of Humberside, to win the medley swimming race which consisted of one length each of free style, breast and back strokes. The medley relay team of Zaira Murray, UC, Phil Manning, St. Hildas, and Pam Perrin, Vic, came in first, even though Humberside had two teams entered in this event.

What proved to be the biggest handicap was the fact that there were no lights on the pool for most of the meet. Thus spectators had difficulty keeping track of the swimmers, as they "swished" back and forth in the dark waters.

'Should Be Fun Next Week'—Metras

By BRIAN LAND

A big vote of thanks is in order for the tremendous job done, and done well, by the Blue and White Society. This one weekend has been in preparation since early September and all having a hand in it deserve a pat on the back for a great show.

Jack Parry took the loss plenty hard. Not so much because Western had been toppled but because he was unable to get back into the game to do anything about it. He suffered a second quarter elbow injury when tackled on running back a kick.

Bill Wardle, Western's left end played a magnificent game for the Mustangs. Wardle was forced to do double duty as George Turbull aggravated an injury and was forced to the sidelines after a brief turn on the field.

Moose Mustard's blocking on Parry's kick plus Captain Ian Clark's presence fired the Blue wing-line in that second quarter drive. Oddly enough Western scored three of its T.D.s in the second quarter of the first Varsity-Mustang game in London.

For the benefit of the grads, seven lads donned handle-bar moustaches striped sweaters and long pantaloons to give their version of a gay nineties' cheer leaders.

Young John Metras, age 8, wasn't able to be at the game because of a cold. His condition will not be improved any by the Mustang defeat according to Mrs. Metras.

Why don't those mental giants who must throw smoke bombs wait until the game is over. Most people would prefer to watch the band demonstrations than gaze at a smoke screen.

Captain John Slatter, who conducted the Varsity band the first time the "Blue and White" was ever played took the baton from Bob Cringan at half-time to play for the grads.

Mrs. Metras is a very keen Western fan and according to John showed the strain of the 27 game unbeaten streak more than the team did. Saturday night saw the Metrases at the R.Y.H. football dance enjoying themselves as much as any of the student crowd. "Should be a lot of fun next week", mused John.

Asked by the Western Gazette what he felt was wrong with Western, Bob Masterson answered: "Well nothing, we just outplayed them", which sums up the game very nicely.

Western fans appeared to be relieved to some extent by the fact that it was Varsity and not McGill which had snapped their streak. There is plenty of hard feeling existing between the Redmen and Mustangs arising out of charges of "imports" and counter-charges of racial discrimination.

George Wearring, back in the game after a three week lay-off, was used sparingly. He is still handicapped by a broken finger. George, who towers 6'5", was replaced by Reg Ort who is a mere 6'2".

St. Mike's Clinch Playoff Spot

The league four place in the soccer play-offs goes to St. Mike's as a result of their 3-1 win over Dents yesterday.

Until within a few minutes of the end of the first half there was no score but then Dewey knocked in a lucky goal for St. Mike's. The goal keeper and a full back both slipped to let in a slow trickle of a ball. But within a minute and a half Aggett had netted an equally lucky goal for the Dents. Nothing further happened before the half-time whistle.

In the second half the game continued as fast and keenly contested as ever but the double blue were able to get in a couple of very nice goals from the feet of Andre Valere and a very near miss or two. Tommy Kane, the St. Mike's goalie had no holiday however and redeemed his good name with a beautiful save five minutes before the end. The goal of the Dents was the first game goal through the double blue net this season for both the Dents goals in the first tussle of the season were off penalties.

Speaking Of Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

My! My! this bandwagon's getting crowded. Soon won't be able to find room for a typewriter.

Western fans will have to excuse us if we persist in some healthy gloating after that debacle of last Saturday. It isn't every day that an era comes to a close. There's a movement on the campus to have Bob Masterson officially acclaimed "The man who mangled the Metras myth". When the credit is being distributed for the supposed upset, the giant portion must be given to Big Bob. In one year he's ruined the cloud of invincibility that has hung about the shoulders of the Mustangs.

Ask Bob where the credit should go and he'll immediately refer you to the players, not one—not three, or eight players, but all the players. This club will go down in history as a team without the slightest semblance of dissension.

JOHN SHORE

But if you want to plug one player, John Shore is perhaps the player most worthy of the worthy. Shore may go down in intercollegiate history as the man who, in spite of being the best snap in the league, won't be found on any all-star teams. If you want to gloat over the innadequacies of the all-star selectors, you'll never have a better opportunity.

The "experts" have a bad habit of choosing all-stars on the basis of the number of times the players' names appear in the public print—and some even have the nerve to try to choose them without even making an appearance at the games. One local scribe moaned after Saturday's game, "Who the?—ever heard of Shore?"—See what I mean?

While few of the all-star teams have appeared yet, I can assure you that they are already chosen, and that unless some rapid last-minute changes are made, the name of John Shore won't appear on the "dream team's" roster. By the way, I wonder how Mr. Woodrow feels these days.

Visiting Bishop Warns of Dangers Of Satisfied Faith

arxism; overemphasis on scientific planning, and the ssertion of modern psychology that it can explain away eligious phenomena were enumerated by Bishop Stephen eill yesterday as "among the direct challenges to the sur- ival of Christianity".

Complacent Faith

Speaking in Sheridan Hall, Wy- iffe College, before a group of stu- nts and faculty members inter- ted in the sponsoring of the Uni- rsity Christian Mission next Jan- ary, Bishop Neill stressed the dan- r to the Christian religion of nlosophies of materialism which, e said, denied all the things a hristian believes, as well as the revalence of a feeling of security hich leads to a complacent instead f an active faith.

"The purpose of the Mission at he University," he said "is to look o the foundations of the faith of is students. What we are trying o deal with here and in other sim- lar movements," he continued, "is onventional, almost unthinking ad- erence to religion."

Lazy Christians

The Bishop declared that people ould be better off without any re- igious beliefs at all than in such situation. The Mission here ould, he hoped, blast the faith of he lazy Christian in an attempt to ubstitute a stronger belief. Its ther purpose, he said, was to trengthen the adherence and wills f those who are already convinced f the validity of the Christian re- ligion.

The Bishop was introduced by Dean Heflinger. In outlining the purpose of this preliminary visit of Bishop Neill to the campus, the Dean spoke of the coming 5-day Mission to be held Jan. 16 to 20. The Bishop will be assisted in con- ducting the Mission by 12 or 15 other churchmen all of whom have had experience in similar move- ments at Canadian and American Universities. The Bishop himself recently took charge of a Christian Mission at Oxford.

World Council

Leaving Cambridge University, Bishop Neill started his missionary career at the Union Christian Col- lege, Alwaye, Pravan core, a Col- lege under Indian auspices. He re- turned to Cambridge as Chaplain of Trinity College. The assistant to the present Archbishop of Canter- bury, he is on the staff of the World Council of Churches at Gen- eva. Having recently returned from a trip of the Eastern Christian Churches in India, Japan and the Philippines.

Strange as it seems he has no di- rect connection with Dr. Hewlitt Johnson. "Personally I don't agree with the Dean, but I think that it is most important that he be per- mitted both to hold and to express his views.

Western Game Refugee Coed Auctioned by SPS At Annual Proceedings

"Step just a little closer, ladies and gents. Cast your eyes over this superb collection of invaluable ar- ticles being offered here this after- noon. What am I bid for this lovely co-ed from Western who was stranded here after last week's game?"

Collector's items of inestimable worth were offered to discerning students yesterday noon at Skule's annual Auction. Emcee'd by Pat Suddick, proceedings got under- way with selections by the S.P.S. Little Jazz group, the same that wowed Toronto last Saturday in the Homecoming parade.

Over a beer keg auction table passed the rights to the five foot section of Queen's goal post brought to Varsity by the Engineers. "A 'specimen' donated by a friend in Meds" found no takers.

The "lovely co-ed from Western" was an auburn-haired beauty with ——ah——the biggest——ah—— well, she was the most buxom girl seen around Varsity for many years.

Two painters gave a practical demonstration of their craft be- fore being auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Liberally sprinkled throughout the show were Skule jokes and selections from the band.

The Engineers Auction is the yearly prelude to the Skule dinner being held tonight in the banquet room of the Royal York Hotel.

Display Of Handicrafts At Sunday Open House

Occupational Therapy graduates, undergraduates, friends, and parents were welcomed at an Open House, Sunday afternoon at 6 Devonshire Place. Receiving guests were Miss H. LeVesconte, Honorary President of the Undergrad Association, Miss Mary Wonnacott, President, and Miss Ruth Comfort, Vice-President of the Association.

A display of handicrafts and art done by the students and a photo exhibit of O.T.'s at work was a main attraction for the graduates and friends.

Health Minister

The Hon. Paul Martin, min- ister of national health and welfare, will be the honorary visitor at tonight's Hart House debate, the resolution: "That the social security program of the federal government com- mends itself to the members of this house". Four student speakers will make prepared speeches of 10 minutes each, and the debate will then be open to the floor.

NFCUS Committee To Probe Prices Of College Texts

A committee to investigate the price of textbooks on the Toronto campus was formed at the meet- ing of the Toronto NFCUS Com- mittee held yesterday afternoon in the Medical Board Room. The committee will attempt to ascer- tain why textbook prices vary in different stores in the city, and will also contact other universities to see what is being done to bring the prices of texts down.

The problem of inadequate pub- licity being given the question sur- rounding the International Union of Students was discussed. Some members of the committee felt that publicity given IUS-NFCUS rela- tions in The Varsity during the past few weeks has not stressed the positive achievements of IUS. A resolution that "NFCUS ensure more adequate publicity promoting IUS be given to the students" was passed.

The whole question of IUS, what it is, its aims, and whether or not NFCUS should affiliate, will be discussed in an open meeting next week. The meeting will be open to all students interested and will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 23 at 4 p.m., in the Medical Board Room.

A committee was formed to draw up a list of questions to be placed on the agenda of the NFCUS Na- tional Conference, to be held in Montreal during the coming Christ- mas holiday.

Chairman George Wilkes report- ed on the recent ISS Conference at Ajax and said that NFCUS will have the responsibility of conduct- ing a seminar of Canadian stu- dents to be held on the Isle d'Or- leans in Quebec next summer.

Moral Problems To Be Discussed By English Canon

"Destroy or Fulfill", will be the topic of Rev. Canon Quinton Warner of London when he speaks at 5 p. m., Thursday in U.C. in a meeting sponsored by the Varsity Christian Fellowship.

An ordained minister of the Church of England, Canon Warner has been officially appointed by the Bishop of Huron for work in personal counselling and commun- ity evangelism. Through his pres- ent work as co-worker with a group of medical specialists, including paediatricians and psychiatrists in the Shute Foundation clinic in Lon- don, and also through the results of years of labor in Alcoholics An- onymous, of which he is the only member who has not been an al- coholic, Mr. Warner has discovered that the basic problems of person- ality are moral or spiritual.

His fellow workers in the medical profession have called on him for assistance, realizing that many of their case problems, including men- tal disorders, call for spiritual help. Often the psychiatrist's work was limited to that of analysis, whereas Canon Warner's task was one of synthesis. He has found that through the personal commitment of their lives to Jesus Christ, many of his patients have found inte- grated personalities. Through re- stored harmony with God, they have achieved harmony both with themselves and with their fellow men.

Will Introduce Frosh At Law School Revue

The annual School of Law Re- vue tomorrow night in Mulloney's Art Gallery is causing much ex- citement in campus legal circles this week. Hank Bradley is in charge of this year's show. He ex- plained that the revue is the dance of the Law Club with the purpose of initiating the frosh to the life of a lawyer out of court.

Bradley added, "The plans are al- most complete," he said, "what with prizes, a floor show, and Mulloney's Dew it should be a gala occasion." Jack Gardiner con- tributed that the dance will start at 8.30 p.m. and due to the high cost of bow ties will be informal.

The motion before the house will be "Resolved that the social secur- ity program of the federal govern- ment commends itself to the mem- bers of this house."

Repeat Expected

"I feel confident, regardless of the calibre of the speaker that has been filled in at the last minute, that Liberal minded men on this campus will support this resolution in the same manner that the men and women upheld the Liberal Party's program by a sweeping ma- jority against all parties in opposi- tion at last Thursday's Mock Par- liament," Potts said. At that time the house supported the motion with a vote of 60 to 32.

Speaking for the Opposition, Mel Hicks said: "We feel that the social security program of the govern- ment is pitifully inadequate in the light of the recognized need for a more comprehensive health insur- ance scheme and increased old age pensions. The government has a $500,000,000 surplus, which ought to be devoted to these ends."

Paul Martin

The honorary visitor will be the Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of Na- tional Health and Welfare. Mr. Martin is also speaking this af- ternoon at 4 p.m. before a meeting of the University of Toronto Lib- eral Association in the Women's Union theatre.

The resolution will be introduced by G. H. Pearson, III Trinity, and Joe Potts. Opposing the motion will be M. K. Hicks, IV Trinity, and J. Hoolihan, III U.C.

The formal topic was chosen to leave room for discussion on all phases of the federal government's social security program. The word- ing of the motion covers hospital grants, family allowance, and all other measures introduced by the government since it took office.

Varsity Grad

Mr. Martin is no stranger to cam- pus circles. A graduate of St. Michael's College, he was twice president of the University of To- ronto Liberal Association while an undergraduate. At this summer's convention of the Liberal party, Mr. Martin was one of those nominated for party leadership. He withdrew his name from the convention be- fore the first ballot.

In the new federal cabinet an- nounced Monday, Mr. Martin re- tains his position as Minister of National Health. As member of the cabinet, he is closely concerned with the working of the govern- ment legislation on unemployment insurance, family allowances, and old age pensions. He is one of the six youngest members of the Fed- eral Cabinet and represents a south western Ontario constituency in the House.

Norm Lillos Happy Winner Of "Apartment For Peggy"

Norm M. Lillos, first year Op- tometry in the winner of the "Apartment for Peggy" contest sponsored by 20th Century Fox in co-operation with the Student's Administrative Council, the board of judges announced yesterday.

Norm and his wife Marge, who is expecting sometime in March, are the winner of a completely re- decorated and completely furnish- ed room with kitchenette. The apartment was decorated and fur- nished by various firms around To- ronto and two months' rent is al- ready paid for the room by an- other donor.

When contacted late last night, Norm said, "My wife and I are thrilled with our luck. We can hardly believe it. I had no idea when entering the contest that I would stand a chance to win. I've never won a contest before and just entered this one with a hunch. We have been to see the apartment and it's wonderful. The room is completely furnished and the fur- niture is . . . well, it's super."

The contest was started in con- nection with the 20th Century Fox picture "Apartment for Peggy" in which a veteran student and his wife Peggy win a similar apart- ment to the one by Norm and his wife. From the very beginning the contest attracted donations from some dozen firms in and around Toronto till finally the value of all the donations totalled close to $2,000.

The couple both hail from Van- couver and are now living in cramped quarters in Toronto. Norm's war record, as given in his essay, was so impressive that a DVA rep- resentative on the board of judges felt he had to double-check it with the files. It was all true.

The latest donation came in last night. A free weekend at G. V. Mc- Manus' Cariboo Lodge in Halli- burton.

Director Of Maccabees Commends British Jewry

"British Jewry is better organized than any other Jewish community in the world," said Rabbi Ephraim F. Einhorn, in an address in U.C. on Monday afternoon. The Rabbi has just arrived in Canada from England to become the Rabbi of the Goel Tzadec Synagogue.

In the course of his work, Rabbi Einhorn has travelled widely in the Mediterrean lands of Palestine and Greece and has also an extensive knowledge of Switzerland. This was gathered as a member of the British delegation to the World Jewish Congress held there. The Rabbi acts as the national organiz- er of the World Congress. The Rabbi is also the director of the Maccabees, a Jewish youth or- ganization. He feels that this is an important work and described the movement.

Later in his address, Rabbi Ein- horn outlined a theory explaining the main reasons which led Oliver Cromwell to petition Parliament to permit the return of the Jews to England. The Cromwell regime was composed of religious enthu- siasts. The Rabbi argues that both Cromwell and Parliament believed that the coming of the Messiah would be delayed until the destiny of the Jews to spread to all corners of the earth was fulfilled.

The Rabbi also had an interest- ing note to make on Benjamin Dis- raeli. His father, Issac d'Israel, had declined the wardenship of a synagogue and had embraced Christianity. Except for this, Queen Victoria might never have been Empress of India and the Suez Canal might not have been dug

Debate Worth Hearing

Too often in the past, student criticism of government policy has been nothing more than grumbling discontent over the heady fumes of Tuck Shop coffee.

Too often students have missed opportunities to hear government leaders defend their policies in open campus debates. In view of the volume of criticism generally directed at the federal government, it is suprising that more people do not take advantage of opportunities to hear explanations of government policy from the men responsible for formulating those policies.

Tonight, in Hart House, the Honourable Paul Martin will speak in support of the resolution: "That the social security program of the federal government commends itself to the members of this House." The topic is one that should concern many students on the campus.

It will be the first address to a student group by a member of the Federal cabinet since the change-over in government leadership on Monday, and, as such, should prove significant.

If any student has any criticism of government social security measures to offer, he should be at tonight's debate.

Ajax Debaters Win Sr. Skule Motion Defeated

Before a small crowd in Hart House Ajax Music Room last night, the Jr. S.P.S. debating team of Heinz Felberg and Chris Patten carried the motion "resolved that Ajax is the best beginning of every engineer."

The Sr. S.P.S. team was made up of Les Bongard and Len Ravbitts. Among the points brought up was the fact that at Ajax, one is free from the demoralizing effect of both Artsmen and women, especially the women. The opposition stated that at Ajax the students were limited academically and never get the opportunity to see how Artsmen behave, which is an education in itself.

Olivier's Hamlet

Nothing so hopeless as an attempt at actually reviewing Olivier's Hamlet in the available space will be made. You do not measure the earth's circumference with a yard rule. This Hamlet is an enterprise of awesome magnitude in space and in time. Elsinore, more than a geographic point, is a vague mass of heights and distances, a true splinter of infinity, just as the terrifying silences lengthen the two and one half hour reel into an age. And not against, but within such expanse moves the dreadful conflict in black and white, life-sized, yet never without gigantic shadows produced by the concentrated spotlight of compelling intelligence.

The questions, Why this or that cut or addition, Why this gesture or that phrase emphasized? can safely be left to the time when the intensity of the impact may have lessened. I, for one, hope that such a time is far removed.

Radio Notes

This is really chiefly an excuse to remind readers of Gluck's "Orpheus" on Wednesday Night this week, which will bring comfort to those who, like the writer, were unable to attend the singe stage performance last year. After the admitted Edinburgh Festival debacle Wednesday night, last week, made up with a performance of Menotti's "Telephone" a great service to the unhappy many to whom a trip to New York is a dream beyond the tall financial fence. Granted, Menotti's prescription will not cure opera's ills but it fills a niche quite handsomely and it is good to know that somebody thinks of filling niches.

While writing memos, we are facing the second half of "Varsity Story" as produced by the University Radio group Thursday night. The first half sounded quite successful to these ears. The production had certainly more coherence and better preparation than most of last year's efforts. If the total impression was not unlike that derived from the better kind of soap opera (Hammond organ and all), we are inclined to blame Callaghan and bow to radio for focussing so neatly.

FORESTERS DRUB ST. MIKE'S "B"

By BOB JONES

In a game that meant nothing to the group standings, Forestry drubbed St. Mike's B's 16-2 yesterday afternoon. By losing their fifth game the Saints cemented their hold on the group cellar position while Forestry finished the season with a won 4 lost 2 record.

The game started in the nature of a rout as Forestry racked up two touchdowns within the first five minutes of play. They received the kickoff and marched up the field behind stellar line-blocking which came to a halt only when Sheldon, fleet woodsmen's quarterback, had crossed the line for an unconverted major. Two minutes later the same team had returned to the attack and again drove from midfield to score. This time Masterson fed Cuff a lateral for the TD which again went unconverted.

At this point the Foresters' attack stalled and St. Mike's took advantage of the lapse in the second quarter to score a point on Red O'Heeney's prodigious punt which bounced behind the opposition goal line. Aside from this, there was no semblance of a rally on behalf of the Double Blue for the remainder of the first half.

The Irish forsook their futile passing attack early in the third stanza and were rewarded by some fine gains along the ground which set the stage for O'Heeney to uncork another long hoof for his team's second point.

UC, it's this way...

Outside a cold, biting wind whistled across the empty campus, here and there swirling a few dead leaves. Wisps of mist rose from the ground toward the bleak sky. Inside UC everything was just as bleak—it was cut-off time again.

Huddled in the corners were groups of undergrads trying to keep warm and study by the light of cigarettes. And then it happened—INVASION! Through the halls of UC trembling voices and chilled hearts carried the message along like a bush fire. . . . A SKULEMAN had entered UC!!!

Everywhere undergrads asked themselves, "Was Skule to become affiliated with UC? Was this the work of the Dragon? Did it want to get to classes that badly? Was the skule cannon to guard the rotunda? Was the hydro situation so bad that Skule needed the light of higher education to see?

No one knew the answers — no one that is, except B.O. McSliderule, the one who had caused all the trouble by coming to UC.

Frantic historians searched their records for a precedent. Frantic psychologists searched for a reason. But all in vain. For weeks, the eminent psychoanalyst, Dr. Blotter, and his staff, the Inkspots, interrogated B.O. but all he could say was "Toike Oike" — the screech of the South African boar. (Ed. note: The South African boar (or bore) is an uneducated type of bore who has not yet reached the level of saying "Oink! Oink!") Finally in desperation, they applied to the English Department to use basic English on B.O. After weeks of unstinted effort, the English Department issued the following statement: "After our application of basic English to B.O. McSliderule, this department feels that another 100 years of research is needed before we can find a method of teaching basic English to others of McSliderule's type. We recommend that B.O. McSliderule be placed in the Lifebuoy Sanitarium for Incurable Sliderule Addicts. (Ed. note: One thing the English Department did discover, using sign language, was the meaning of the initials B.O. They stand for barbecued onions.)

In desperation, Dr. Blotter and his staff turned to the Maths Department for advice. Said Professor Euler, "There is no doubt about it. The boy is suffering from calculus-on-the-brain, an incurable disease. I recommend that he be placed in a locked room and left to his wild jabbering and idiotic senseless singing until he bores himself to death. I believe that such a procedure is followed at the University of Timbuctu."

At last Dr. Blotter knew what to do! He would immediately advise that such a student be dismissed from the college on the grounds that he would be a disrupting influence upon all branches of knowledge since he fitted into no human category. This was immediately done. B.O. McSliderule was dismissed from UC and returned to his red palatial mansion at the southern end of the campus, there to lounge amidst the blissful blur of "Toike Oike!"

UC went back to normal just in time for the series of spring cut-offs. Maybe now UC functions will be blessed by the absence of degrading shouts of "Toike Oike!" If not, appropriate trapezes, teething rings and cages will be used as standard parts of UC functions so that the uninvited guests may amuse themselves.

Ed. note: This column was contributed.

Of-things-to-come: This Saturday evening in Hart House Theatre La Societe Francaise will present "Topaze" by Marcel Pagnol, a modern 20th century play which has gained wide popularity in France. It is a clever satire of French life, with its traditions and institutions being presented in a cynical but fairly humorous fashion. It is the story of Topaze's transformation from an honest law-abiding school teacher to an unscrupulous and scheming racketeer. Coached by Castel-Benac and his mistress Suzy, Topaze soon becomes so thoroughly corrupted himself that he appropriates not only his benefactor's business but that of his mistress as well. The attack of immorality frequently levelled at the play is unfounded. The author attempts to present the true facts behind not only French society, but society the world over. . . . John Walker, Barbara Chandler and Douglas Ney head the cast of 14. . . . Tickets for the performance are available in the UC rotunda and Hart House box office. . . . A week from today there's an open meeting of the W.U.A. for all women of the college. It will be one of vital importance to W.U.A. members for there will be a discussion of the proposed amalgamation of the two student governing bodies. There will be a speaker from Vic telling in what form union took place in that college and what it has meant to the women. . . . Another important item on the meeting's agenda will be the nomination of a representative to the Students Administrative Council who, when elected, will attend S.A.C. meetings with present rep Jane Hazard to "learn the ropes" before taking over official duties next year. Your S.A.C. rep is the voice of UC women in university affairs so be thinking hard before nominations next week.

THIS WRITER was not too busy watching Columbia fink the Navy at Baker Field last Saturday on the Isle of Manhattan to notice that there was a strong similarity of styles worn by the girls at the game to those shown at the F. J. Watt Sportswear Shop at our own Park Plaza corner. Fact is many of those New York girls might have walked right out of Watt's front door, and we couldn't help jotting down a mental notation to the effect that Toronto is right up in front with the best sportswear shops in the world. Watts have a good collection of woollen dresses this season as well as the classic outerwear and knitwear you've learned to expect.

Dents Thump Jr. Meds 8-1 End Unbeaten

By BRIAN LAND

A sluggish Dentistry football team yesterday lazed their way to an 8-1 win over Meds seconds in the final game of Group III. The victory was the sixth straight for Dents who have gone through the season unbeaten. McKee's single in the last quarter for Meds was the team's first point in five games.

Dents scored a safety touch on the third play of the game as McKee was downed behind his own line by Hori and McMillan. Meds came back strongly as Freeland blocked a kick which the medicos recovered only to have the Dents' line tighten and hold.

Skinner broke through early in the second quarter to block a Meds punt which team-mate Charlie Sivell recovered. A White to Gallagher pass was good for 35 yards. Mednick went around the end for six and Cudmore carried over for the game's only touchdown which White converted.

Meds opened up with a second half passing attack which proved to be their most effective weapon. McKee hit Watt with a 30 yarder and then carried through centre himself for 20 more to the Dentistry 10 yard line. Here their attack bogged down chiefly because of some unimaginative signal calling and failure of the line to hold.

A Dawson to McKee pass again put Meds in scoring position from where McKee was able to hoist his single. This is the first point that Meds have scored in twenty three quarters of scoreless football.

Action May Prevent War—Woodside

Raps Russian Warlike Acts Since V.J. Day

"I do not believe that another Great War is inevitable, providing we take the necessary action to prevent it", Wilson Woodside said last night at the 59th annual Skule dinner.

Speaking on the subject "Compliments to Uncle Joe" Mr. Woodside said, "I can honestly say I have warned people that the situation, we are now facing, would occur. From 1944 I have warned what to expect from Uncle Joe."

Mr. Woodside said that Russia had let her best chance slip if she had wanted to wage war. "The Soviets had the strength before 1948 if their war was to be a success, for now the West is re-arming, developing the atom bomb, and forcing a peace-time draft."

"The important question", he said, "is why the Soviet had not struck when the time was right before 1948". At the beginning of this year the Western Union was still on paper, the Marshall Plan was only just launched, and the western division in Germany was at a low ebb.

Soviet Cold War

"While we argue, the Soviets have been waging war . . . a cold war. They took the strategic countries, Czechoslovakia, and strengthened their position in central Europe."

"Make no mistake about it, the Soviet wants Germany. Lenin said it was an important link to the Western World and Stalin, who is somewhat unoriginal, echoed this sentiment."

Favorite Tactic of Soviet

"My conviction is that the Soviets have been trying to open negotiations since the close of the foreign ministers' conference. You may say this is a funny way to go about it . . . the Berlin blockade. But this is the dictators' method of applying the whip". This is the favorite tactic of the Soviet Mr. Woodside claimed. He cited the example of the Russian news release, of the American ambassador's confidential interview in which he said the West wanted to open peace negotiations. "Since this was a confidential interview it placed the Big Four in the embarrassing position of having to deny it. This forced negotiations on Soviet terms.

"In a dictator's mind, concessions are a sign of weakness", said Mr. Woodside.

Russian Weaknesses

"To balance the analysis of Russian strength, we must also examine their weaknesses." According to latest figures Mr. Woodside said, seven million men were lost by Russia. Women are in large part working the farms and 5-8 of the crop is being taken off by old fashioned methods such as the scythe and sickle. A Lithuanian woman reaching Scandinavia recently from Russia reported that every railway station was still flat, no towns or villages rebuilt, and the only new buildings were barracks, he asserted.

Half the locomotives and rolling stock of their railways were lost, he said. Drew Middleton, American newsman, touring Russia three years after the German evacuation, said the countryside looked as if the Germans had been gone only three days, he added.

Steel industry in Russia is a bottleneck, Woodside said. Methods of industry are rough. Russia has no equivalent to our large electrical and radio firms, he explained.

"Few people believe we could invade, conquer, and administer the vast reaches of Russia," Woodside said. Perhaps the Russian people would welcome relief from their communist leaders, but this could never be accomplished by an atom bomb war, he averred.

Mr. MacLeod will speak to an open meeting at one o'clock in West Hall, U.C., on the question, "The Atlantic Pact or the Atlantic Charter?" MacLeod, L.P.P. leader in the Ontario Legislature, has always been one of the sharpest critics of the Drew government. He will be leaving for Europe next week to participate in an international delegation to ask that Franco be refused admission into the United Nations.

Toss Rotten Eggs Splash Sour Milk In Trinity Fight

Withstanding a barrage of smoke bombs, firecrackers, rotten eggs and stink bombs, Trinity sophomores prevented a determined horde of freshmen from entering the College with a cake presented to them by St. Hilda's freshies in the annual cake fight yesterday.

Both sides donned bathing caps, football helmets, pyjamas, mackintoshes, camouflage suits and gas masks for the rigors of the tussle.

The Sophs fought off the Freshman assault with hoses, rotten eggs, slops and sour milk. Victorious, they donned their gowns and left the Freshmen to clean the walk and walls.

All years received cakes from the corresponding years at St. Hilda's at the Athletic dinner in the evening and Sophs received a special victory cake.

Gov't. Social Service Plan Best In World Says Martin Supporting Liberal Policy

States Liberalism Is True Balance For Modern Need

"Only Liberalism affords the proper balance between security and freedom," the Hon. Paul Martin, national minister of health and welfare, told an open meeting of the U. of T. Liberal Association yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union.

"If we are to meet the challenges of today, we must move forward, not recklessly or aimlessly, but in the light of conditions of the time and the character of the country," Mr. Martin said, appealing to his listeners to rededicate themselves to the basic Liberal principle of respects for the rights of the individual human being.

Outlines Program

The health minister, twice president of the Liberal club during his undergraduate days at Toronto outlined the Liberal program for social security as an example of the party's application of the principle of respect for individual rights to administration of the country.

"There are four steps to this program," he said, "old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, family allowances and a national health plan. The first three of these have been carried out and the fourth is in the process of being passed by the legislature."

Condemns Other Measures

Mr. Martin condemned both the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. attitudes to social security. "The Conservatives cannot claim one social measure as their own," he said, "while the C.C.F. proposes measures which would cost so much that the economy would be thrown into chaos."

The health minister also attacked the C.C.F. as "a far different

No Politics Involved Here

It happened last week at the Library Committee's auction sale. Auctioneers claimed that it was an accident and nothing political was involved. They sold two books together. One was a book written by a young lawyer; the other was entitled "An Old Man's Folly". The lawyer's name—George Drew.

"Forget City Life Stick To Farm," Says Pres. Smith

President Sidney Smith appealed to all young farmers to forget "the unwarranted glamor of the city" and to stick to the soil, in an address last night to the Kiwanis Club.

Speaking to a hundred junior farmers of York County who were guests of the Toronto Downtown Kiwanis Club, Dr. Smith said numerous lessons could be learned on the farm, and farm people must daily deal with the realities of life, and not the superficialities.

"There is a strength-giving discipline in the farm home which often is not found in the city home," he said.

"In the city, where men and women are moved by external forces to look, think and act alike, the individual fears to be alone with himself".

Close Vote Comes After Hot Debate On Taxing Rights

"The "Canadian Government Social Security Plan is the most comprehensive in the world", said Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare last night at the Hart House debate. Mr. Martin outlined the plan of the Liberal government for encouraging more effective provincial social security measures, with subsidies and assistance in the fields ranging from improving mental hospitals to treatment for arthritis.

Special Reference

The minister made special reference to old age pensions, agreeing with the opposition that the present pension of $38.75 a month at the most is inadequate. But he pointed out that the federal government is restricted by the constitution from direct legislation in this field, and the two largest provinces are quick to resent an infringment upon their rights.

Many Jobs Filled

Mr. G. A. H. Pearson, III Trinity College, defending the resolution "that the Social Security Program of the Federal Government commends itself to the members of this House," stated that notwithstanding obstruction by the two largest provinces, and retrogressive tax legislation, the present Liberal government has implemented such an effective national employment service that from January 1946 to November 1947, one and a half million jobs have been filled.

Prof. Albert Rose of the Faculty of Social Work, however, said that the present high level of employment is due to circumstances rather than the existence of any government program, but that the yet unanswered problem is future employment. He went on to say that constitutional amendment, rather than conciliation should solve the problem of Ontario and Quebec.

Voting Is Test

Joe Potts, IV U.C., pointed out that the true test of the Liberal Party social security program is in the polls and that the Progressive Conservatives have had ten leaders and been in office twice while the Liberals have had two leaders and been returned to power ten times. There is a young, able, technically qualified Minister of Housing in the new Liberal Cabinet who will do much to improve the present lamentable lack of adequate housing space. . . . cries from the floor "When?"

"Give the boy time, he's only been in office two days," said Potts.

Martin Shubik, Graduate Studies, supported the government, saying the social security program of the federal government was very commendable, "in fact, for a Liberal government, it is magnificent. The Liberal government is old, Mr. King is gone, some of the members are assuming the aspect of gargoyles, but for the good of the people we must support this commendable trend. It is the swan song of a dying party, a broken plank stolen from the C.C.F.," he said.

No Interest

Student apathy, unfortunately, is quite a permanent feature of this or any other campus. No worse, to be sure, than the apathy shown off the campus, it is still a problem generally forgotten in the enthusiasm that temporarily greets each new student fad or campaign.

There is probably no place where this apathy makes itself more evident than in the discussion of government, be it federal, provincial, municipal, or even student government.

Two years ago it was student government. A small group was alarmed because it felt student government on the campus could not function properly without a general student assembly, a directly democratic group in which each and every undergraduate could make his vocal contribution to student administrative affairs. Committees were formed. Draft constitutions were drawn up. Editorials and letters to the editor were almost as thick as whereases. It was obvious to a few that if this campus didn't get student government within a few months, democracy would wither on the vine; and . . . well, nobody was quite sure, but it would be pretty bad.

During all this, the bulk of the student body sailed blithely on, serenely unaware — and caring less — that the democratic structure of its council wasn't all it was cracked up to be.

At a joint meeting of the '47-'48 and '48-'49 councils last March a committee was set up to report on, among other things, "the establishment of a representative student parliament." The committee, which was to have met last summer, never did meet. But no one seemed unduly alarmed.

The fact that hardly anyone seemed to care, in itself, reflected the general apathy concerning student affairs. Setting up a student assembly is a sound idea — on paper. But attempting to get a semblance of proper representation from a group of sixteen thousand, on a first-come-first-served basis, is something that few would advocate.

Some will argue that student interest can best be stimulated by active participation in student government. If past experience is any indication, it seems unlikely. The empty chairs surrounding the Student Administrative Council table every other Wednesday night are still gathering dust and offer mute testimony to the lack of interest in council affairs. The Council meetings, open to any student, have attracted few in the past except for the odd person with a specific axe to grind.

We can only assume the chairs are empty for one of two reasons. Either students feel they are kept completely informed through The Varsity . . . or else they don't particularly care. Although we would be flattered by the former assumption, we are more inclined to accept the latter.

As long as those chairs continue to remain empty we have little reason to believe a general student assembly would evoke much greater enthusiasm.

ART — MUSIC and DRAMA

Man And Superman

Schizophrenia in an artistic work seems a debatable attribute, but it is a subject for philosophers not reviewers to discuss. The reason for mentioning it is that Maurice Evans' production of "Man and Superman" at the Royal Alexandra appears to possess this quality.

Shaw's text indicates that John Tanner (Maurice Evans) is a superior individual and contrasts as the Superman to the play's other characters. They are members of the conventional English middle-class (Canadian upper-class) and in Evans' company act with Wildean glibness and uniformity. But Maurice Evans seems miscast as the Superior Englishman. His emotional emoting is overdone, and instead of being the best member of the class ridiculed, he declasses himself entirely. Instead of being the spire to the cathedral, he is "Sweeney Among the Nightingales."

Ann Whitefield (Frances Rowe) was superlatively played. Her voice modulation and stage technique were polished, as were those of the whole cast. Even though Mr. Evans' performance is dubious, the company under his direction is very good.

Brailovsky

Alexander Brailovsky is certainly one of the most perplexing and controversial figures on the concert stage, possessed of a staggering technique; there is nevertheless something about his playing which keeps him relegated to the second rank of virtuosi, albeit at their head. Two charges can be legitimately brought against him, I think. Exhibit A is an annoying tendency to excessive rubato. Then there is a calculated monotony, sounds void of meaning or mere life. When this fluent aridity finds a proper vehicle for its expression —as it did in the Debussy "Poissons d'or" or the Liszt "Fountains at the Villa D'Este"—then it is eminently effective. But I never want to hear the Chopin "E-flat Waltz" played that way again, not by anybody.

In all fairness one would have to

Written Law Superfluous, Say Debaters

By a vote of 20-13 a government resolution calling for a written Bill of Rights was defeated Tuesday night when embryo lawyers from Osgoode Hall met the University of Toronto Debating Union in Victoria's Alumni Hall.

Wally Fram, III U.C., first speaker for the government said, "A written Bill of Rights is essential to protect the fundamental rights of Canadian citizens. It will provide personal liberty, freedom of communication, and freedom of worship for our people. The Magna Carta, Habaeus Corpus Act, and the Bill of Rights which the British governments have passed do not protect the fundamental rights of Canadian citizens." He claimed that freedom of speech is restricted by the criminal code which prohibits concrete objections to the government in power. By-laws have been passed prohibiting press distribution if the presses criticize existing laws or political views.

Bill Impossible

Joseph Lie , III Osgoode, first speaker of the opposition, stated, "Because of inter-provincial differences, the government could not draw up a Bill of Rights which would be applicable to the entirety of Canada. Since the bill would have to be a joint effort between the federal and provincial governments such differences would make the drawing up of such a bill impossible. The safeguard of British liberty is in the hands of the people. If they are not satisfied with the existing laws let them amend them to their own benefit which is their privilege in a democratic government." He also stated that a Bill of Rights made so extensive as to give complete freedom to all people would lay Canada wide open to all subversive activities. Thus a complete Bill of Rights would be the disaster of democracy.

Rights Violated

Dave Quigley, III St. Michael's, second speaker for the government, said that the prosecution of Jehovah's Witnesses, the prohibiting of Japanese - Canadians from travelling without escort, the police brutality of last year in Toronto all violated the rights of common people and definitely needed a Bill of Rights to protect these rights.

William Somerville, III Osgoode, second speaker for the opposition claimed that there is no magic in a Bill of Rights. "It is just a codification of existing unwritten law which is unnecessary because the average person respects these unwritten laws."

Following the speakers was a heated open discussion from the floor. The main point brought up by this discussion was that the codification of a Bill of Rights could be repealed by a vote. Therefore, we would be at a disadvantage by having to start all over again on the question of a Bill of Rights.

Dalhousie SAC Bans Newspaper

Halifax, Nov. 16.—(CUP) — The students' council of Dalhousie University has ordered the recall and destruction of one edition of the Dalhousie Gazette, student newspaper.

The suppressed edition, called the Halifax Wail, was a parody on the Halifax Mail. Half an hour after the paper began distribution on October 23, the president of the students' council ordered the recall of all printed copies.

The council based its objection to the issue upon several controversial articles, which they felt would jeopardize hopes of obtaining from university authorities the long-sought full responsible student government.

The blackmarket is now bootlegging copies of the paper.

Varsity Spirit Hits Peak Western Tries To Recoup

"Varsityites wearing complacent smiles should visit the Western Campus this week," Keith Davey of the Blue and White Society, said yesterday. Western had a "Trample Toronto" pep rally Tuesday night and have another planned for this evening.

"This is definitely no time for Varsity spirit to fall on its face," Davey said, announcing that a Friday night pep rally would be held in Varsity Stadium.

Friday night's rally is scheduled to begin at 9.15, with students sitting in the south bowl. If the rains come, the covered stands will be used. At 10.30 a snake dance led by the Band, will wend its way to Mutual Street Arena for a dance. Paper tags, 7,500 of them, with the words, "O. K. Blues, Let's do it Again" superimposed on a big blue "T", will be handed out free at the rally.

"The doors at Mutual Street Arena will open at 11.15," Davey said. Tickets will be 25 cents a person.

Dance Route

Route for the snake dance is as follows: stadium to Hoskin, around the crescent to Wellesley, south on Bay, east on College, south on Yonge, east on Gerrard, south on Church and east on Bird. Dance tickets will be sold on the campus by co-eds today.

A thousand blue balloons will be distributed free at the game Saturday afternoon, Regalia chairman Ruth Mitchell announced. It is hoped to have them released at the first Blues' touchdown.

Eight dance halls will be opened on the campus Saturday night to accommodate post-game celebrants. Hart House Upper and Lower gyms, with Bob Cringan and Benny Louis and their orchestras, will be available, plus the services of the tuck shop.

Oy McLean and his boys will play in U.C.'s West Hall, with canned music in the J.C.R. The Modernaires will be featured at the Drill Hall, and Jim McDonald at Burwash Hall.

Transcribed dance music will also be featured at Trinity's Buttery and at the Occupational and Physical Therapy huts at 6 Devonshire Place.

Ticket Sale

Tickets at a dollar a couple went on sale yesterday morning at the S.A.C. offices in Hart House, U.C. and Ajax.

Other moves by the Blue and White Society, still in the embryo stage, include the showing of movies of last week's game in Hart House Theatre and persuading Eaton's to dress Santa Claus in their Saturday morning parade in blue and White.

Bob Potts, chairman of the Blue and White, pointed out that all profits from the sale of buttons, ribbons, dance tickets, etc., by the society, go into a Blue and White fund to be used by the Society for future activities.

Civil Service Men Seek Undergrads For Bureau Jobs

Officials from the Canadian civil service are visiting the campus this week to provide information and distribute application forms to students interested in permanent and summer employment in various government departments, including the fields of administration, engineering, science, and mathematics.

Mr. J. W. Harcourt and Mr. F. B. Young of the civil service are interviewing applicants in the Arts courses. While certain positions are available only to graduates of courses such as Commerce and Finance, Political Economy, Mathematics, and Law, there are jobs offered to students in nearly all arts courses. Interested students should sign for appointments in the Secretary's Office of the Economic Building. Times available include Thursday evening and Saturday morning.

Science and engineering students are being interviewed by Mr. R. B. Code for positions in various government departments, and in the National Research Council. Mr. Code will be available Thursday and Saturday at the Mining Building.

Pamphlets outlining complete opportunities for students in all courses may be obtained free at the Toronto Office of the Civil Service Commission.

Veterans will be entitled to preference in all civil service employment.

Eastern Europeans Fight Communism Says ISS Visitor

Criticism was levelled yesterday by Warren Goldring, IV UC, at the administration of communist-controlled countries in Eastern Europe. Goldring, who visited Poland and Czechoslovakia after last summer's ISS conference, with two members of the Beaver Brigade, Steve Endicott and John Anderson, were the speakers at an open forum held in Emanuel College.

Strongest-Communist-Canadian

Myer Brody, who was to have been a fourth speaker at the International Relations Club-sponsored forum, was unable, because of illness, to attend.

"The strongest communist I met while I was in Czechoslovakia, I am ashamed to say, was a Canadian," said Goldring. He maintained that "nine out of ten" of the people he encountered were anti-communist. Goldring quoted a Czechoslovakian student of economics who claimed that he was obliged to believe the contents of certain prescribed text-books and that his country "did not know the meaning of freedom today."

His group of three Canadians and two Americans, Goldring said, were thoroughly searched as they entered the Eastern European countries and, on one occasion, had their photographic films taken from them. He said he believed that Poland, comparatively, had made the most complete recovery of any of the war-damaged countries. Answering a question from the audience, Goldring said he was inclined to attribute this situation to the wholehearted desire of the populace to recover from the extreme state of debasement into which they had been plunged by the war, the presence of coal reserves and foreign exchange facilities, and a widespread belief in the Marxist doctrines of government control, as opposed to the feudalistic system to which the Poles had been subject in the past.

John Anderson, who was the first speaker at the forum, maintained that popular democracy had flourished in the eastern zone after the defeat of the Nazis together with "that of a right-wing closely associated with them." In the economic sphere, he declared, co-operation of the people in a planned economy was making it possible for the government to concentrate on lifting the educational and cultural level of the population.

"Social unity," he said, "brings with it a cultural renaissance."

Steve Endicott spoke of whole peoples working hard to reconstruct a war-damaged civilization and to raise their own standard of living. He referred to increased consumption of staple foods which was bringing their use up to pre-war levels, and the fall of prices to as low as 30 per cent of what they had been, as significant milestones of economic progress in the countries of Eastern Europe.

"Everywhere we went," declared Endicott, "we found enthusiasm for the new order.

U of T Delegates Formulate Policy For IRC Meeting

Four general themes will be emphasized by the International Relations Club delegates to the Middle Atlantic regional conference of I.R.C. clubs at State College, Penna., this weekend. Dr. W. A. Riddell, International Relations professor, sat in on a policy meeting at Trinity last night to advise the delegates.

It was agreed by all the delegates that Canada's position as an independent nation with a positive policy should be made clear. This tied in with the decision to point out that the United States-Russian conflict could only be solved by taking into account the positions of the other nations instead of considering only the two major powers.

The other two themes bring out the role the medium powers such as Canada and Australia play in the U. N. in developing compromise positions. Canada's position in supplementing the U. N. with security pacts such as the North Atlantic Defense Alliance will also be presented by reference to speeches by the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State.

Three specific topics are on the agenda dealing with U.S.-Russian relations within the U. N., U.S.-Russian economic relations and reconciliation of the divergent atomic energy views.

Dr. Riddell suggested that the delegation meet the Americans on their own ground and talk up Canada's views. He pointed out that "saving face" was an essential ingredient of compromise.

CAMSI Meeting at Varsity Will Discuss Internes' Pay

The 11th annual conference of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes, also known as CAMSI, is beginning today at this University and will run through till Sunday.

The Honorary President, Dean J. A. MacFarlane, and Mr. L. A. Bunker, President of the Medical Society will address the opening session where the delegates from the Universities of Dalhousie, Halifax, Ottawa, McGill, Queen's, Toronto, Western Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta, U. of Montreal and Laval will be present.

Slated for discussion are such matters as Summer Medical Employment, Interne Placement schemes, and the controversial subject of Interne remuneration.

A dinner Friday evening will have as guest, Professor N. B. VanWyck of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology who will speak on "The Problems of Medical Education."

During the conference period, the first annual CAMSI art exhibit will be staged at the Royal Ontario Museum. This exhibit consists of oils, watercolors, and photographs contributed by Canadian medical students.

Writer-Sailor Will Speak Here

First Commander William Sclater will speak at Friday's meeting of the Medical Arts and Letters Club, to be held in Wymilwood at 8 p.m. His topic will be: "Canada and Naval Power."

Commander Sclater is an author as well as a sailor. He has served in both the navy and the merchant service and has circumnavigated the globe three and a half times.

During World War II he served on the H.M.C.S. Haida throughout her first commission when she created a new world's record for enemy ships sunk and damaged in one three and a half month period in 1944.

Commander Sclater is the author of the book "Haida," which received the Governor General's award for creative non-fiction in 1947.

Rope

Any undergraduate planning on murdering his bedfellow, or any other fellow he might be friendly with, for the joy of killing him should drop in at the Imperial Theatre this week. Alfred Hitchcock is giving lessons free, by means of his latest chew - your - finger - nails-as-you-watch movie—Rope.

Now, let it be understood that this is not the type of picture to see if want to lean back and relax. Tension is the thing to mention. The star of the picture is Mr. Hitchcock and his peeking - around - corners camera. Left over from Spellbound is the technique of the closeup on the closeup. You may remember the camera looking at the milk. In "Rope", he does the same thing with the back of a black suit.

The master of suspense thinks nothing of confusing the camera lens with the eyes of James Stewart. We understand he used moveable walls to do this. Most Hitchcockian is the fact that the complete picture takes place in the same place. The picture lasts 90 minutes and what you get for the price of admission is 90 minutes of film action.

The story is about a couple of students who think it is a good idea to bump off their best friend just to see how it strikes one's liver. They hang him with a rope and then dump him in a chest. They invite his parents and girl friend to come and eat lunch on the dead man's chest. This is where the fat-man takes over. What he does to your stomach shouldn't happen to an expectant father.

The only trouble with Rope is the ending. The philosophy is oversimplified, even for the over-simple audience and the good guys win.

mention stunning performances of the G Minor Ballad and the Schumann C-Major Fantasia, and to admit that only one extant pianist, Horowitz, can play the Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6 faster or more accurately than Brailovsky does. But on today I do not admire his playing more than on Monday, or even understand, what extraordinary thought processes must lead him to his affectations.

U.C. Players

Last night members of the U.C. Players' Guild convincingly demonstrated their talents in an interesting dramatic melange of three one-act plays: W. W. Jacob's durable "Monkey's Paw," "Suppressed Desires" by Susan Glaspell, and Saroyan's "Hello, Out There."

To be sure, nothing heightens so much as incongruity; three plays as unlike as these, straddling distinctive dramatic levels as they do, render contrast inevitable. Certainly stark variety refreshes. Happily this was an instance of variety for variety's sake.

Performances in each vehicle were at a level of competence that made the virtue of variety simply superfluous, pleasant but not particularly necessary.

While relative merits mean little, the Saroyan will, posibly, have left the deepest impression. Given excellent direction, the cast made his unsettled philosophy admirably palatable. Sentimentality is often the thin edge of the wedge of sincere conviction; Saroyan markets sentiment, and his grosser emotions can fester his drama. However "Hello, Out There" was treated honestly but firmly; even his phil-

The Padre's Pastoral

By ROBERT M. BARR, Knox Presbyterian Church

First and last, the Christian faith is a love story. The failure to realize this has been the cause of many misconceptions and misunderstandings both inside and outside of the church. Primarily the Gospel is neither a system of ethics nor a political philosophy. When Paul wrote of the fruit of the spirit, which after all is the ultimate evidence of the reality of the faith at work, he enumerated a group of imponderables, qualities of the soul, things that can never be tabulated in an annual report: such things as love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-discipline.

The central affirmation of the Christian faith is that God is love—that He is and always has been in love with this world of men and women. Take this keystone from the Bible story and the whole thing falls to pieces. Apart from the fact of love, the story of the birth, earthly ministry, death, resurrection and return of Jesus simply does not make sense. Apart from love, it was never meant to make sense. God's love towards man had to manifest itself in the only way that man could appreciate and experience it, namely through personality. The onus is on the one who loves, to find ways and means of conveying his love to the object of that love. Outside of personal manifestation, even human love is a cold philosophical abstraction masquerading under the name of love. Love in its essence is illogical, full of surprises, and does the most amazing things.

The Bible is a book of love letters. Critics point to its discrepancies, its appalling chronology. To meet this criticism of unbelievers, innumerable efforts have been made by theologians and others to try to give the New Testament in particular some sort of chronological order. But where are the love letters which, to the eye of the uninitiated are not rich in so-called discrepancies? And where is the one who, in writing a love letter is to be hampered either by grammar or chronology? Love, because it is love, will never fit itself into human logic.

According to human reasoning there should have come into this world 2,000 years ago an antichrist, for so-called civilization was moving in that direction. But since in and behind all the baffling shadows of the universe there was and is this Heart of love, there came into the world the Christ. Love will never admit defeat as it moves toward the object of its love. John tells us that Jesus, "having loved His own which were in the world, loved them unto the end." This does not mean that we are not to bring our intellect into the Christian life; we must bring our intellect into it. What it does mean, however, is that our intellect will never take us in. Mere reasoning never takes anyone into the experience of love. We fall into love and our intellect goes with us into that new world of love.

When the Christian faith is seen in this, its true light, it immediately reaches down to the deepest of all human needs, the longing to be loved with a love that is understanding, satisfying and permanent; a love that calls forth a return of love. For love, even human love, can be understood and appreciated only in the measure to which it is responded to. When we discover that the love of God manifested in Jesus is seeking us, and when we respond to that love, then the rest will follow. The Apostle John summed it up thus:

"Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.

He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love.

In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent His only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through Him.

Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." —(1 John 4:7-10) osophy came through unharmed.

The two other plays were quite as successfully handled. Traditionalists might have found the presentation of "The Monkey's Paw" not as suspenseful as anticipated. Material was treated forcefully throughout; the approach was competent and the handling certain. Especially pleasing was the diction in all three casts. The three directors, Alvin Shaw, John Howe and William Gagnon, are to be commended, and Bob Sutherland is to be congratulated on the excellently expressive staging.

THE PUN IS MIGHTIER . . .

Heard after last Saturday's game:

"Like the cheerleaders say, I guess our team is Toogood."

"Yeah, it's a Cummings young team."

"It Shore is."

"It's starting to set the Waldon fire, too."

Statistics unfortunately prove that more men than women end up in mental institutions. To us, this fact is not particularly startling, considering woman as we know her today. On one hand she demands equality with men, and on the other, she expects a chivalrous deference and preferential treatment for no other reason than that she is woman. When she is treated as an equal, man is no gentleman; when regarded as woman, the gentleman obviously is attempting to weaken her position as an equal. Faced with this latter-day quandary, and forced to live with it, it's no great wonder that man occupies an undeserved first place in these statistics. The one conclusion that is inescapable, is that man never ends up in, but is inevitably driven into, mental institutions.

VIC ASSEMBLY

There will be an open meeting of the Vic Assembly today at 1.30. Purpose is the ratification of four amendments to the constitution, proposed by the Assembly and the Victoria College Council.

Let's LOOK at it!

THERE'S STILL no argument at all when it comes to the question of smart seperates, knitwear and tweeds for the daily grind. Good old sweaters and skirts are as popular at Barnard, N.Y.U. and Oxford as they are at U. of T., which is why the Evangeline Shops keep right on specializing in pullovers and cardigans and sturdily tailored skirts. These you'll find in abundance in the new Bloor Street branch, which operates with an eye to the college trade, and invites you to use as headquarters for information on what's news in classic campus ready-to-wearables. Two entrances, Bay Street, and Bloor, near Bay.

TRAVERS FOX is a shop which needn't frighten you by its veree suave appearance. The atmosphere is as friendly as the interior is "big town" and the clothes are better than average when it comes to selectivity. Service as to fitting is a very special effort for each and every customer. Moved down from north of Bloor to south of Bloor, at 1175 Bay Street, the new Travers Fox shop provides you with a quick and logical spot to take your visiting relative in search of something a little out of the ordinary in the way of city shopping where they know their fashion futures.

SUITS FOR AS LITTLE as fifty-five dollars are no news at Joan Rigby's . . . it's because most shoppers expect to pay far more for J. R. quality we're mentioning this very particularly. And by the way, any good ensemble of yesteryear can be stepped up to today's look by a little judicious length-adjustment and a really important accessory of the Joan Rigby standard of originality and craftsmanship. Reason? A Joan Rigby suit or dress is tops in quality, workmanship, fabric and fashioning made to carry through several seasons with a new look each time.

JUST TO REMIND YOU again that one hundred dollars will buy a specially selected engagement ring in three-stone or solitaire blue-white diamond ring at Scheuer's from a group which has been screened to be a selective offering at that price. Scheuer's have made a point of this hundred dollar special in engagement rings for a number of years, invite you to compare prices and draw your own conclusions. The stones are exquisitely selected, the mountings flawlessly beautiful. Drop in at 131 Yonge Street, facing Temperance, and study these.

JOINT HOUSE COMMITTEE

A plea for help to paint murals for the Engineers' Ball was received from the Engineering Society at a meeting of the Joint House Committee held in York Hall. House chairmen were urged to recruit helpers and have them get in touch with Hugh McMahon in Rec. 729.

Mr. M. K. McLachlin, chairman of the Joint House Committee, tendered his resignation as he had been appointed a housemaster. Mr. A. Chinery, Social Convener, tendered his resignation because of pressure of other duties.

In the election that followed Bob Bertram was elected chairman and Pete Dawson was elected Social Convener.

PANS CRITIC

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

We have just returned from a most enjoyable presentation of "The Man Who Came to Dinner". After reading Mr. Breen's extremely critical and unkind appreciation of the presentation, we went to the theatre expecting a rather dull evening of it. As a result of his severe and biased criticism, we know that many more went expecting the same.

Mr. Breen reports that it was "a pedestrian presentation". In the opinion of the whole audience, as shown by their applause, the play was neither pedestrian nor unfavorably received. Comments such as, "As good as most of the plays I have seen at the Royal Alex." and "Extremely well done", were heard throughout the audience as they left the theatre. Perhaps Mr. Breen needs to forget that he is a hardened critic and give with at least one compliment on such a splendid performance. He neglects to mention even such fine performers as Ben Forman, Beth Robinson and when he does mention two of the stars, it is only in a derogatory tone. Both Miss Walter and Mr. Lawrence gave very convincing performances.

Such unsavory A.M. & D. write-ups as this one can not be expected to encourage support and student participation in campus presentations, in our own Hart House Theatre. But then Mr. Breen may have been suffering from a hangover from the Western Weekend?

the Mustangs and four time winner of the all-star end award.

The second string boasts stars from each team in the loop. Ross McKelvey of Queen's, Tommy Waldon, Varsity, and Bob MacFarlane and Bob Phibbs of Western comprise the relief backfield. In the quarter spot is Rocky Robillard, aggressive McGill field general who has sparked his team throughout the season.

Rugged John Shore who combines the talents of snapbacking with those of plunging backfielder is the choice for centre. Wally Kowall of McGill and Dave Copp of Varsity were locked for one of the inside posts and Porter of McGill was elected to the other.

Bob Stevens of Queen's and Ticky Duck are on the roster filling the middle spots on the second squad and Jack Grey is paired with Jack Logan of the Gaels for the end positions to round off the team.

Front Wall Formidables Who Held That Line

ERIC McMILLAN

AL BROWN

ARCHIE JONES

Shown across the top are five formidables of the Varsity front wall who held that line and then some. Aggressive line play is requisite to any football victory and these stalwarts outdid themselves last Saturday. Dave Copp played a hard tackling game from his inside position and Fraser Mustard contributed to the Varsity cause by a sensational block on a Western kick in their territory, setting the stage for a touchdown drive. Eric McMillan tackled hard and also starred in the pass receiver roll. Archie Jones was a tower of strength in the center slot last Saturday, alternating with John Shore who was picked by the sports writers from the various campuses to appear on the Intercollegiate dream team. Al Brown, line coach of the Blues is one of the men responsible for its fine performance against the Western Mustangs. Al is a former Varsity player and knows all the tricks.

Ballots Pour In Pop Player Vote Has Big Response

The most-popular player contest being sponsored by The Varsity moved into full swing yesterday as ballot boxes were set up in Hart House Tuck Shop, the Women's SAC (UC), The Varsity Office, (UC), Hart House Porter's Desk and the Athletic Office. By nightfall, the ballots were overflowing their containers and we would request those submitting votes in future not to include the tops off their favorite cereals. It is not necessary in this contest.

Varsity-Sponsored

For those who are still in the dark as to the exact nature of the project being undertaken we present a brief review. In conjunction with the drive for improved student-player contacts initiated by Masterson, The Varsity has decided to purchase and donate a trophy to the player adjudged most popular by the entire student body. Student co-operation is requested in the completion of the small coupons appearing daily in the paper; you will please indicate your first and second choice.

On Wednesday next, Varsity staff-members of the highest integrity will total the votes on the basis of one point for a second choice and two points for a first. The player receiving the highest total of points will be presented with the trophy on Thursday afternoon by high-ranking officials of the sports staff in The Varsity office.

This contest sets a double-fold precedent and as such merits the undergraduate's earnest support; in the first place, it is the initial time that a Blues' player has been singled out by the student body and presented with a token of their esteem. The Cup will carry with it the genuine appreciation of 15,000 Intercollegiate football partisans for a job well done. In the second place it is the first time, that The Varsity has paid out money for anything other than libel suits.

Those who have yet to vote have only seven days in which to visit the boxes and in connection with the remainder of the balloting we have a few requests which we would like to make:

We hesitate to mention any names, but would certain of the managers cease soliciting votes at the ballot-box locations; their methods of solicitation are a little on the -er- questionable side.

Would those who insist on voting for The Varsity Sports Editor please desist; Galloway Westcott has discovered that he is no longer eligible and refuses to honor any future votes on his behalf with double tickets to Saturday's game.

Votes for Mrs. Ted Toogood cannot be accepted; the half-back's spouse has disclaimed any responsibility for Ted's inspired showing last week-end.

College Scribes Pick All Stars Western Leads

By BILL ROSS

Writers from all the colleges competing in the Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union have handed in their choices for the All-Star team for 1948. The poll, conducted by the Western Gazette, brought forward tough competition for almost all the births as only Murray Hayes of McGill, Bruce Cummings of Toronto and Jack Parry of Western were elected unanimously.

The team consisting of two strings, lists nine men from Western, seven from Toronto, six from Queen's and five from McGill. The coaches also voted Jack Parry, the gazelle-boy from Western, the most valuable player of the year.

The first string consists of Jack Parry, Western; Murray Hayes, McGill; Bruce Cummings and Ted Toogood of Varsity on the half line that haunts every coach's dreams. Al Lenard, veteran Queen's pivot man, got the nod for the quarterback spot and teammate Jim Charters, 213 pounder from Hamilton Tech was chosen as "Mr. Snap".

Al Bandiera and Bill Jarvie of Queen's, and Western respectively, are tied for the left inside post and Captain Ian Clark of the Blues was chosen for the right inside. Moose Mustard of Varsity tied with Nieman of McGill for middle slot with Bill Ford of Western filling the same hole on the other side of the line.

Western took complete charge of the outside wing department on the first string. Bill Wardle ended in a deadlock with George Turnbull and this is Turnbull's third all-star award in as many years of college football. The other first string end is Fabe Curry, co-captain of

UC Blanked By Sr. Meds Smith Stars

By BOB KNIEPER

The UC/PHE combines were defeated yesterday 13-0 by a driving Senior Meds team, in a game marked by wide open passing and long end runs. Both teams were tackling hard, and the game was much closer than the score would indicate. Meds made good use of their breaks early in the game to grab a lead and force UC-PHE to gamble on ground gaining plays.

Half way through the first quarter Meds smashed the UC man running back a kick so hard that he dropped the ball. Meds recovered to set up the first touchdown. Cochran went over on the next play from the ten yard line with a hard plunge. Jim Smith converted to make it 6-0 for the Medicals.

Sparked by Henshall and John Davis, the UC team began to press, but failed to get into scoring position. Meds' pass defences were clicking to keep the attackers at bay to half time. Pete Webb at the UC snap spot with Bill Wilson and Ralph Campbell kept charging the Meds line to hold the surgeons to small gains, but Jim Smith kept kicking out of danger. UC's short crow passes were succeeding with sharp regularity, and if the Meds had not been on their toes, the score would have been evened up.

In the early part of the second half Meds intercepted a UC pass and ran the ball to the UC twelve yard line. A charging line backed by strong secondary defence smeared a Meds plunge, so Meds decided to try a placement. UC's line again broke through to block the kick and recover on their own six. Fats took a hand on the next play and favored Meds as they broke up an end run and fell on the fumbled ball on the UC seven yard line. Jim Smith cut in fast on a projected right end run, and, bouncing off several Redmen, went over for the other major score. Smith boosted his value to the team by kicking the convert as well. The other point came when Cochran kicked a long spiral past the end zone.

Jim Smith, Cochran and Tony Cecutti sparked the victors with usual hard game while John Korkorian, Pete Webb and Ken Davis played well for the losers. This win puts Senior Meds in second place in Group One, right behind the leading Vic team and gives them a crack at the Mulock Cup playoffs come next week.

Lineups:

SENIOR MEDS — FW, Cochran; halves, A. Varga, G. Varga, Smith; quarter, Rota; centre, Soper; insides, Kendrick, Noonan; middles, Custard; ends, Jeffs, Armstrong; alternates, Murray, Ricci, Higgins, Marotta, Milligan, Rosen, Leckie, Macdonald, Cecutti, Nidzielski, Wickware, Anderson.

UC / PHE — FW, Mastronardi; halves, Korkorian, Miles, Scott; quarter, Henshall; centre, Webb; insides, McDougall, Grasser; middles, Wilson, Saint; ends, Gibson, Terry; alternates, Campbell, Davis, Gilman, Tyndall, Shapiro, Platt, Dingwall, Byrne, Kuzmuchko, Burns, Flavelle.

Speaking Of Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

Two columnists of Western Canada recently took it upon themselves to put the kiss of death on Canadian football as it is now played. Commenting upon the huge crowds in attendance at exhibition games between the UBC Thunderbirds and certain American colleges, they come to the conclusion that the Canadian brand of rugby is in its death throes upon the prairies and that the next decade will witness its survival only behind "the Iron Curtain of Eastern Canada."

The substitution of American rules has held a prominent spot in all forum discussions of the gridiron's future in local circles during the past few seasons. It has received an added impetus from the flow of much-needed football talent across the border in the same period.

The agitation in this direction has not been fruitless; the fans have had almost a full season's opportunity of observing one Yankee innovation — unlimited substitution. Its implications have hit hard in intercollegiate circles; all the teams have utilized the regulation to substitute different sets of backfielders for defensive and offensive duties. It's quite possible that this is but one step removed from the practise of substituting an entire team as used by many of the top American squads, college and pro.

The development of such a system and of specialist placement-kickers, ball-holders and passing experts will undoubtedly produce the most efficient possible ball club. But it has the effect of discouraging the all-round play of certain individuals who provide the main spectator interest in the modern game. As has been recognized to the south, unlimited substitution is the coaches' baby and its over-use detracts from the game as far as the spectators, writers and often the players are concerned.

Not content with this, a demand, from certain quarters, has arisen for the adoption of four downs to replace three as necessary for a first down and for the use of unlimited interference on offense, meaning that any player can block anywhere on the field to open a passage for the ball carrier. The avowed reason for introducing these measures is that it would bring the Canadian game up to date and would offset what is considered a top-heavy defensive position.

It is this corner's contention that a game that can provide enough offensive opportunity for a team to score 74 points in two games and 120 odd points in a six-game schedule, as Varsity has done, needs no opening up. With our backfield-in-motion rules it would be virtually impossible to halt a team with four downs and downfield blocking. It would be much better to spend the game time watching the bands march from one end of the field to the other and put the game on at half-time.

It's been a great season and we've got a great game, so let's keep it that way.

VOL. LXVIII, NO. 41 | THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO | Friday, November 1948

FIRST MUSTANG - BLUES TITLE TILT SATURDAY

Varsity Arena Scene Of Last Pre-game Rally

The fever is still on!

The last pep rally of the year, the last chance for Varsityites to show that they are behind the Blues body and soul, is all set to roll at 9.30 this evening in Varsity Arena.

Strictly a campus affair, the rally will feature only the cheerleaders, the Blue and White Band and the Pipers and Coach Bob Masterson. Entertainment by "Jack Parry" and "John P. Metras" will be brief and to the point.

Two New Songs

Two songs will be introduced, "Follow the Blues" from the U.C. Follies, and Norm Jewison's version of "Let's Beat Western Tomorrow". Joe Krol, a Western alumnus, may be enticed into making an appearance.

Keith Davey of the Blue and White Society had this to say yesterday: "The Blue and White is glad to see Western having pep rallies and 'Trample Toronto' buttons. We also have a few victory plans which we're afraid they won't be able to copy".

Keynote of the rally, "O.K., Blues, Let's do it Again!" will be before everybody's eyes on tags to be distributed free by co-eds. The lettering is superimposed on a big blue T. Four hundred "Beat Western" buttons will also be sold.

Davey, pep rally chairman, stressed that the rink would only hold 5,000 and admittance would be by the Bloor Street entrance.

Fireworks Too!

A never-before-equalled display of fireworks issuing from an undisclosed spot in Queen's Park will salute Arena-bound students.

Doors at the arena will not open before 11.15, dance officials said. Tickets at 25 cents a person will be sold by the girls in Blue and White blazers from 11 to two on the campus today and at the pep rally. Only 4,000 will be on sale.

Those with a flair for homemade banners and other stunts derogatory to Western or calculated to spur on the Blues in their victory march have been asked by the Blue and White Society to put their talents to full use.

"Shine Your Buttons!"

"It is also time to shine up those 'Beat Western' buttons and ribbons," Joe Potts advised.

Visibly shaken by the tremendous show of spirit this week at Western, the Society has called a special, hydro-saving emergency rally for the Front Campus at noon today. They pointed out, however, that this is really only a prelude to tonight's all-out effort.

Below is Toronto's version of Western's favorite song. Clip it out and bring it to the rally tonight:

Western, Western, Western U.,
College full of squares,
Johnny Metras coaches you
Then again who cares?
We'll lasso those young Mustangs
We will let them know
Just what college has the knowledge
Come and let us show
That their U. is P. U.
We're glad it's their U.
We come from Toronto Varsitee.
Our colors are flying,
And our team is trying To beat Western U.

The Wind She Did Blow

London, Nov. 18 — (Special) — Even the winds aren't playing ball with Johnny Metras this year. In an effort to rouse the flagging spirits of the University of Western Ontario's students, a huge pep rally was scheduled for today.

The climax of the show was to be a parachute jump by Al Campbell, veteran paratrooper of 30 jumps. The super spectacular stunt called for Campbell to pin a trample Toronto badge on the Western coach as soon as he landed.

The planes took off, and got into position over the campus. "Geron-imo" Campbell jumped—the wind she did blow—and the paratrooper landed near St. Joseph's hospital several miles from the waiting Metras. The trample Toronto button was pinned on by older and more pedantic methods.

Portside Punter!

At least one of Dr. McFarlane's sons will be raring to go against the Blues tomorrow for the Johnny Metras crew. While brother Bob is recuperating from a broken collar bone, Don (above), is being counted on heavily to carry some of the backfield mail for the Mustangs. Both Don and Bob, Western's "pony express" boys, are in Meds and are eligible for two more seasons of collegiate football

Hold Cheques Seven Days For Undergrad Veterans

All cheques, not called for on the regular November pay day, and not picked up at the Department of Veteran's Affairs office, 6th floor, 55 York Street, before November 22, will be sent to the District Treasury Officer, an official of the D.V.A. said yesterday.

The paymaster will hold the cheques at the D.V.A. office for seven days after the regular pay day and if they are not called for within that time they will be sent to the District Treasury Officer. Once the cheques have been sent to the District Officer, student veterans will not be able to receive them unless they present a letter of certification of attendance signed by the registrar of their college or faculty. If no applications are made for the cheques after they have been in the hands of the District Treasury Officer for a period of ten days, no further cheques will be issued to these students.

The official stressed that this ruling applied to undergraduate student veterans only, and not to ex-service students enrolled in the School of Graduate Studies. When asked why the cheques for the students registered in Graduate Studies were not forthcoming, the official said that at present he could give no official comment but promised a full report would be published in Tuesday's issue of The Varsity.

The D.V.A. pay office is open from 9.00-4.30 Monday to Friday and from 9.00-1.00 on Saturdays.

Joe's Coonskin To Be Burnt Today

At an emergency meeting of the Blue and White Society held late last night, it was decided in a last minute effort in answer to Western's "Trample Toronto" campaign to hold a noon hour pep rally from 1.15 to 1.45 on the Front Campus at which Joe Potts' Coonskin coat will be set afire. It is hoped that President Sidney Smith can be persuaded to light the fatal match.

Although the Western cheering section does not sneak into town until Saturday morning, a week-long pep rally has already aroused the college in the sticks to a white heat.

The cheerleaders, both bands and Margie, and the Varsity Horse, if they have not already been notified, are asked to turn out in uniform.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Will the following people please come to The Varsity office today at 3 o'clock: F. Montsugu, P. Calder, G. Milling, B. Macdonald, G. Macdonald, L. Martin, S. Decker, E. Eberle, D. Butters, G. Slater, J. Tinker, H. Wood, J. Smale.

Won Last In '36 Masterson's Men Seek Seventeenth

The fever is still on!

Rain or shine, snow or flood, every corner of Varsity Stadium will be jammed Saturday when Canada's two top college teams tangle in a game which has aroused more enthusiasm and interest than any previous athletic event. Tomorrow, for the first time in Intercollegiate history, Toronto Varsity Blues will meet the Western Mustangs in a championship game for the C.I.A.U. title. The two teams have only met once before in post-season contests when, in 1937, Varsity defeated Western 19-5 in a semi-final game only to lose to Queen's in the final one week later.

Last Time

Toronto last won a senior football title in 1936 when Gus Greco, Ralph Ripley and Al Williams led the team to its sixteenth Yates' Cup victory. (Al's brother Frank is an assistant coach of this year's squad.) The Torontonensis of that year stated that "the star of the team was not a player but the team's own spirit." Some of that same spirit which has been missing for some years from the campus has at last returned and has culminated in two giant pep rallies, and the Homecoming Week-end.

Varsity will be at full strength for the final. Captain Ian Clark has had a special harness rigged up for his injured shoulder and Jack Williams will wear a cast on his wrist, which suffered a dislocation while Fraser Mustard is still nursing a damaged hand injured early in the season. Apart from this the team should be at its peak physically and mentally. While last week's was in many ways the climax for the fans the team has been confident all along that they would be around for tomorrow's skirmish.

End of Streak

Western meanwhile should also be back up to scratch. Now that their 27 game streak is behind them they can concentrate on the business at hand. Just how the defeat will hit them is uncertain. They could feel that their time has come or on the other hand they might be on the rampage for another unbeaten streak.

The Western student body have been sponsoring a "Trample Toronto" week long pep rally with effigies of Varsity men being suspended from the rafters in the Arts building; bonfires are burning every night; and Johnny Metras has tacked up Monday's issue of The Varsity in a prominent spot in the Mustang's dressing room. In case you have forgotten, that issue was headed "The Mighty are fallen", R.I.P. Western Mustangs and J. P. Metras.

Trample Toronto

Here's a sample of the campaign:

Trample, Toronto, Trample Varsity
Shout and fight for the Mustang might
To Trample the U. of T.
Rip at 'em; Roar at 'em; Trample them with Glee
Trample, Toronto, Trample Varsity!

Besides adopting Varsity's pep rally tactics, re-wording the Varsity yell, and fostering a Beat Varsity campaign, Western came out this week with Trample Toronto buttons—the ultimate in copying winning ways. The Mustang team is to be paraded to the train station where a final ceremony from London well-wishers is to take place. The Mustangs will bed down in To-

Blue and White, Placard Colours At Varsity Game

The Letters "U T", stadium high and two sections wide, will flash forth in the stands tomorrow with the co-operation of the Blues supporters in sections V, W, and X.

A new departure in Toronto, the system of letters formed by colored cards held by football rooters has been in use for many years in other universities with success.

"To be successful, the scheme will require the co-operation of half of sections V and X, and all of section W," commented Pat Suddick, of the Blue and White Society. "Without the assistance of everyone, the whole idea will flop horribly."

Cards and instruction sheets will be handed out before the game. Control of the sections involved will be by signs displayed on the track.

Believing in small beginnings for a scheme which may be extended next year, the committee plans on having the section all blue, all white, a blue "UT" on a white background, and a white "UT" on a blue background.

The cards are white on one side, blue on the other. Seats in the "letter" will be marked by pieces of paper stapled to them. The cards should be displayed, held just below the chin.

When the signal "White" is displayed, all white sides will be shown. Similarly when the sign "Blue" is shown by the controller.

At the signal "White Letter" all those in the "letter" will display the white side. ALL others will display blue sides.

At the signal "Reverse", ALL cards will be turned over.

Montreal Urges Union With Ontario Medicos

The National Executive and the delegates gave reports yesterday at the 11th Annual Conference of the CAMSI (Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes).

It was decided that CAMSI should endeavor to promote closer relations between the working doctor and the student in training. So that there might be a closer union between the French and English speaking students the University of Montreal has undertaken to appoint a permanent translating committee for all business and the CAMSI Journal will now be completely bi-lingual.

The Readers Right

Elsewhere on this page appears a letter suggesting that student apathy at the University is the direct result of The Varsity's attitude toward letters submitted to this paper by students.

The writer claims students show little interest in campus affairs because many of their views are "suppressed" by The Varsity.

There are probably other undergraduates who share the same view because they have failed to see their letters appear in print. It might be well to clarify our policy again in the hope that any misunderstanding—and it seems to occur every year—will be eliminated.

At the beginning of the year it has generally been a practice of this paper to explain carefully the policy adopted concerning letters. It has been recognized over the years that certain regulations would ensure fairness for all.

Letter writers are requested to be brief, concise, to the point, and, as far as possible, to be topical.

Because of the welter of correspondence reaching this office regularly it is completely impossible to print all the letters received. To do so would be to make The Varsity a publication filled entirely with correspondence. Like any other newspaper we reserve the right to select those letters which we deem worthy of publication— a selection based on general interest and timeliness of topic.

We have no intention of "suppressing" letters. But the fact remains that some students use the facilities of The Varsity to deliver themselves of long-winded, pedantic discourses, which probably enhance their reputation for academic virtuosity, but which have little to contribute to general discussion.

On the other hand, many thought-provoking and interesting letters have failed to appear in print. Faced with a limited amount of space, it has become increasingly difficult to provide room for the many letters which merit publication. The constant and varied activities of the many student organizations demand suitable coverage in The Varsity. Without going into the many mechanical difficulties involved, the fact remains that news events affecting campus groups hold a priority over letters written by individuals, even though many letters merit publication. And with the space available it is impossible to provide for both.

In any case, Mr. Willmot's letter, written in defense of student apathy, tacitly admits that students are apathetic. Saying that the apathy is due to The Varsity's meagre publication of student letters seems like a very flimsy excuse.

Phooey, he says.

To the Editor, The Varsity:

In your editorial yesterday you accused the students of being apathetic. Gad, old man, I can see that you haven't any children. If you suppress your children consistently they will eventually cease to take any interest in household affairs or to shoulder any responsibility.

The students who write to The Varsity are writing to express an opinion before the University, not just to provide an item to fill space when the advertising or news drops off. How can you expect students to be enthusiastic about student affairs when their opinions can't be felt?

On my last trip to The Varsity offices I was shown a pile of letters to the editor. It was explained that not many of these would ever appear in print because:

(a) They were not considered suitable by The Varsity.

(b) The SAC insisted on so much space for advertising that there wasn't any space left.

What a way to whip up enthusiasm! Kill it before it get started.

Phooey.

Western Majorettes

Some teams have one drum majorette to spur them on to victory, other teams have two to lead them on to even greater heights, but Western has five tricky baton-twirlers. With this quintet of lovelies putting on their best performance, the Mustangs hope to outdo themselves this Saturday and carry home the Yates Cup. The question of the hour is — will those five terrific twirlers be able to make the Western hope a reality?

Housing Problems Will Be Solved By New "Skule" Of Architecture

Ever since Adam covered himself with a fig leaf, people have been seeking shelter. Soon the fig leaf was replaced by the ark and Noah. Then the Tower of Babel was constructed as a monument to racial prejudices. To-day at the University of Toronto we have 280 men and five women working on the problem of habitation. They are the newest faculty on the campus—the School of Architecture.

Baby School

Recently divorced from the School of Practical Science, the School of Architecture is installed on two new floors, situated behind Convocation Hall. Here you may see the colorful drawings and the little model houses and factories that the students are working on. But the unpainted board walls and partitions are hardly inspiring to the sensitive-souled architect who must create as well as build.

The architects have much to say about their campus surroundings. "We don't look at the buildings around us," asserted Stan White, V Arch. "If we did we'd go mad. I like U.C. best; it is lunatic with whimsy. Convocation Hall is the most appalling example of function warped to form. But few of the buildings on the campus can be taken seriously. Vic is beneath criticism." SPS was called "A museum," "just building," and "1875—kinda gothickish."

Bycycle Shed

Loath to comment on the campus buildings, Prof. Arthur remarked about campus traffic, "Hart House tower is the most expensive bicycle shed in the world."

To learn their profession, the architects have five years crammed with mathematical and scientific subjects, as well as aesthetics, free-hand drawing, economics, political science and other humanities. Throughout the year boat factories, schools and every other kind of designable building are overrun by students on field trips. Recently the local banks have been curious to know what possible interest the student has in the relation between the teller and the accountant.

Instead of the old projects of the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, —a building on a remote peninsula to commemorate the universal adoption of the Greenwich meridian—these Varsity field trips have resulted in designs for such enterprises as a stove factory for the Moffat Stove Factory, pre-fabricated houses for the National Research Council in Ottawa, and a house for the artist, Mr. Trier. A design for the Student Memorial Union in a fifth year student thesis.

Field Trips

To develop their aesthetic sense, for the first ten days of term members of the second, third, and fourth years migrate to the Forestry School at Dorset, near Haliburton. During the day the students go off on sketching parties, overland and by canoe. In the evening their work is criticized by such outstanding guests of the campus as the Canadian painter F. H. Brigden. The School plans an exhibit of these paintings in Hart House in the spring.

Through their Architectural Society, the architects themselves are bent on preaching the gospel of modern architecture in the spirit of true evangelists. They are inviting Frank Lloyd Wright, often called the "Dean of Modern Architecture" to speak to architects and Fine Art students. For the same purpose exhibitions, building criticisms, lecture discussions with professional architects, and even a newspaper are planned.

In the future, the School not only plans to decorate its studios, but also hopes for a building of its own. Such a building would include a first class library located near the drafting rooms, and a sample room with a lab where architects could make their own tests of new materials. The School also wants an exhibition room open to the public for foreign displays, student displays, films and slides. Members of the faculty hope to do research and to encourage post-graduate work.

J. M. Macdonnell, M.P. Will Address P.C. Club

J. M. Macdonnell M.P., President of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Progressive Conservative Club on Monday, November 22, at 4 p. m. The meeting will take place in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's College.

Mr. Macdonnell, the member of Parliament for Muskoka-Ontario, is the Progressive Conservative financial critic in the House of Commons. As president of the National P. C. Association, he has been responsible for building up the party organization for the past few years. He was the English-speaking joint chairman of the Progressive Conservative National Convention.

Ignatieff Praises Student Efforts

In a letter to J. Potts, Chairman of the Blue and White Society, Warden Ignatieff of Hart House officially congratulated the society on the excellent job it did in providing leadership and organization for the Home-coming week-end and the Victory-festivities during the past week-end.

The warden asked in his letter that his appreciation to students detailed for duty in Hart House, be particularly expressed, since "they performed an unenviable task in a most dependable and tactful manner and greatly contributed to the success of the party".

Mr. Ignatieff said that the staffing of the House is done on an entirely voluntary basis and therefore it is particularly important that the behavior and co-operation of the student body should be such as to gain the respect of those who volunteer their services.

Livingstone, Harwood Exonerated Of Charge

Vancouver, Nov. 18 — (CUP) — Grant Livingstone and Bob Harwood have been cleared of all responsibility for the inability of the University of British Columbia Students' Council to live up to its obligations to the War Memorial Gymnasium.

The committee appointed to investigate a deficit of $20,000 has cleared the two, former officers of the Students' Council, of charges of diversion of funds.

The committee stated that it "has found not the least evidence of dishonesty or breach of faith on the part of any officer or member of the Society."

Provincial Member Blames War Threat On The West

Charging that the Western powers have moved very far from the principles set forth in the Atlantic Charter, Mr. A. MacLeod, M.P.P., stated yesterday at an open meeting that, "The task before the people of this country and the other Western countries is to go back to the principles of the Atlantic Charter and sit down and negotiate with those who have disagreements with us."

Our Fault

The Ontario leader of the Labor Progressive Party said that departure from the principles contained in the charter—full collaboration, the seeking of peace, and decrease of armaments—was solely the responsibility of the Western powers, not of the Soviet.

"Just four years after the Atlantic Charter," he went on, "we entered into atomic warfare although no mention of the atomic bomb had been made at Potsdam where principles of close collaboration between the Big Three leaders were laid down."

Aggression

Commenting on the government's rearmament policy and Prime Minister St. Laurent's statement that "war is not inevitable but war is possible," Macleod posed this question, "Is there anyone here who seriously believes that this country is threatened with aggression from the Soviet Union?" No one would answer "yes" to this question if he knew of the terrible devastation the Soviet Union has suffered from war in the last 25 years.

He cited an official despatch from Ottawa, implying that armaments are being produced to prevent a recession in the Canadian economy. Mr. St. Laurent gave as his reason for arming, "the preservation of our Christian civilization from Russian aggression." To this Mr. Macleod replied. "Hitler used the same excuse when he attacked Russia."

"Whenever anything new comes into the world" stated Mr. Macleod, "it meets opposition. Those who know that they are losing, call names at those who are moving ahead, Naturally, the Russian revolution had its impact on the world but that cannot be called aggression anymore than the impact that the American revolution had on France could be called American aggression."

Judges Uphold Dean's Rights In Brennan Hall

Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, was rightfully given permission to speak at the University of Toronto, decided St. Michael's Senate last night. The vote of the House was 21 to 14 against the motion: "The Dean of Canterbury should not have been permitted to address the students of the University of Toronto". The judges' decision was two to one in favor of the negative.

Fred Furlong, first speaker for the affirmative, argued that Dr. Johnson had violated freedom of speech, and presented a menace to Canada's national security. Quoting Catholic doctrine which held communism to be wrong, he said that Dean Johnson had no right to speak, because what he had to say, was incorrect.

Opening the debate for the negative, Joanne McWilliams, Loretto College, stated that the question was not whether Dean Johnson was right or wrong in his opinion, but whether he had the privilege to speak. Pointing out that we were better off having heard his point of view, she said that more good had been done by allowing the Dean to speak, than if he had been refused permission.

Don Robertson, second speaker for the affirmative, outlined the Dean's political points of view over the past fifteen years. Terming him "Uncle Joe's little boy", and "an intellectual inferior", he continued the affirmative argument that the Dean should not have been allowed to speak.

Expanding the negative argument, Marg Howe said that the best way to fight the ideas Dr. Johnson has is to know what they are, and that therefore we should hear him speak.

Veterans Enjoy Geography Says President Smith

Five new appointments in the Department of Geography have been announced by President Sidney Smith, who noted an increased interest in geography among veterans who have travelled about the world in the military services.

Promoted to associate professor in the department are D. F. Putnam, specialist in political geography and philosophy of geography, and G. Tatham, specialist in agricultural geography and land utilization.

W. Wonders, appointed lecturer to the department, recently returned from a summer north of the Arctic Circle, where he flew to the Archipelago and reached Thule, in Greenland.

Also appointed lecturers are J. Spelt, a graduate of the University of Utrecht, specializing in continental geography and literature, and Mrs. Beryl Bird, a graduate of the Cambridge School of Geography, who spent last summer in Northern Keewatin with a party led by her husband, Brian Bird, also a lecturer in Geography.

President Smith also said Professor Griffith Taylor, head of the department, spent three months in Australia this year at the invitation of the new Australian National University at Canberra, where he advised in the setting up of two major research fields and did some field trips across the continent. He also lectured at six university centres.

COLE SLAN

The traffic guards efficiently herding scrambling children across busy roads have always been a source of quiet satisfaction to us. A bulging female guard rudely shattered our tranquil reflections on the subject after an event we witnessed the other noon. We came in just as an independent six-year-old was climbing safely to the side-walk safer a solo crossing. Resenting the flouting of her authority, the guard raced after him and firmly led him back to his starting point. Then, ignoring the momentary lack of traffic, she imperiously blew her whistle, waved her stop sign and beckoned the small fry to cross again, which he did. With her ear cocked for overwhelming applause, she marched, full of dignity, back to her post. Our small fry, irritated and unappreciative, saluted her authority in a most impressive manner, familiar to most of us at one time or another. And from where we sat, we could hardly blame him.

Need More Girls For Dance Class Lewis Announces

"All we need now is more girls," said George Lewis, Department of Medicine, speaking of his newly organized classes in social dancing. The first of these classes took place from 8 to 10 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday evenings in the JCR.

Mr. Lewis, who is an Arthur Murray graduate and has taught dancing for two years was surprised at the large number of men at the opening classes. Instead of the number of girls he had expected, there were approximately 30 boys to 3 girls on Monday night. On Tuesday there were 35 boys and 12 girls.

The 10-hour course takes five weeks to complete as the Monday and Tuesday classes cover the same lessons.

Whether or not the course will begin with a new group of students again after the first five weeks or whether there will be a continuation course for those having completed the course has not been decided. Mr. Lewis would like to run a teacher's course in the future but at present, needs some other girls to help him teach.

Sponsored by the Blue and White Society, the course costs $3.00.

ART - MUSIC - DRAMA

Meds Art Exhibit

Variety is the outstanding feature in the Canadian Medical Students and Internes' Art and Camera Exhibition, currently showing in the rotunda of the Royal Ontario Museum. Water colours, india ink and pencil sketches, oils, and tempera are all employed with varying ability, but with fervor and zeal. I particularly liked the restrained water colour "Mount Tremblant and Emerald Lake, B.C." by an Albertan, W. J. Mudry, and the impressionistic "Mountain Peaks," by R. L. Yanda, also from Alberta. The appealing "Warm Winter", by Gerald Base, from Queen's University, represented the spirit of that colorful season. In direct contrast was the stark "Desolation," a tempera by Gerald Stowe, also from Queen's.

It was extremely refreshing compared to the cramped nine by eleven "Hills and Valley," by Cecille Wilson, which should have covered a canvas of at least four times as large as the one upon which it was painted. I object to the copied efforts of some of the exhibitors. These always show disadvantageously when placed beside genuine work. I also object to the calendar type of rendering with which this exhibit is sprinkled. Medical students have direct access to endless colour and design in their work, and I missed the complete lack of any such representation in the exhibition. Hugh Douglas

Isaac Stern

Isaac Stern has been for the past few years a special favorite of mine, remembered as a brilliant technician and as a musician of clear intelligence. At Eaton auditorium last night he played an enticing and beautifully laid out program beginning with Haydn, Mozart and Bach and proceeding with Debussy, Bartok and (unfortunately) Lalo.

I have stated my very high opinion of Mr. Stern's playing purposely, because it may be the cause of my distinct disappointment with this performance.

Only one work (the Bartok Second Rhapsody) seems an unconditional musical success. The remainder showed an inconsistency in quality, a seeming irrationality or conception.

Bach's unaccompanied "Chaconne" provides a case in point. In spots, notably the quieter variations, an exact rightness of intensity and proportion was attained, but the unity of the composition was destroyed by show-piece dynamics. The tendency was in general towards sharp contrast and sentimentality of odd phrases.

The implicit suggestion in this of the ascendancy of showmanship over musicianship must not be pressed too far.

Eaton auditorium has announced for students a special Saturday afternoon repetition of this series.

Book Review

From Smoke To Smother .....

From Smoke to Smother (Clark, Irwin: $3.00) is more interesting for the insight it sheds on its author's, Douglas Reed's character than for the political analyses it purports to contain. Reed reveals himself as a competent, though by no means brilliant, journalist who would have done better to stick to reporting than to endeavor to conduct an inquest into world affairs. Irritated, perhaps, by the inconvenience imposed by the Labor government on the people of Britain, he interprets the whole of the Labor government's policy as the execution of some deep, dark "Design" by a group of world "Managers" who are out to destroy Christendom and establish a World Nihilist State. The villains of the piece are "World Communism" and "Political Zionism". I agree that communism is a danger and its march across Europe must be halted, but my reasons differ profoundly from Reed's. The barbarism which Reed sees as the aim of communism is rather an unfortunate and inevitable result of a system which is built on false premises. Political Zionism, according to Reed, works hand in hand with communism for the destruction of the free, Christian world. Why this destruction should be sought is not quite clear: it has something to do with the American gold reserves at Fort Knox and with mineral deposits in the Dead Sea. The author even revives the so-called "Protocols of the Elders of Zion", an ancient and rather worn-out weapon of anti-semitism, though Reed would be the first to deny any charge of anti-semitism against himself. The neatest trick in the whole book is the passing off of the assumptions in the first half as facts in the second half.

Architecture Students To Compete In Contest

Architectural students at the University of Toronto are eligible to compete for prizes totalling $250 in a national contest just announced by the Beaux-Arts Institute of Design, in co-operation with the Tile Council of America.

The contest calls for the designing of an elementary school and kindergarten in which special attention is given to the use of clay tile. First prize is $100, second $75, third $50 and fourth $25. The competition closes December 20 and will be judged between January 4 and 8.

Students from universities and colleges in the United States, Canada and Cuba have been invited to submit entries in the current contest. A large number of other competitions are also being sponsored by the Beaux-Arts Institute of Design during the 1948-49 school year.

Ski Clothes Displayed At Meeting

A demonstration of ski clothes and equipment was given to members of the Ski Club at one of their recent meetings. Conn Sparrow, president of women's skiing, talked on the right and wrong way to dress for skiing and Alec Campbell, secretary of the club, gave a lecture on skis, boots, waxes, poles and harness.

Jean McEachern, UC, appeared as Miss Snow Bunny 1948, dressed in woolen bonnet, sweater, fur mitts and two long scarves tied around her waist and neck. It was explained that although this getup caught the attention of the men, it also caught the snow and soon the little skier would retire to the chalet, cold and wet.

A better example was set by Conn Sparrow, wearing a jersey monk's hood and nylon jacket tucked into gabardine slacks. With this outfit on, cold, snow, rain and wind are kept out and skiing is more fun.

A display of men's ski slacks, gabardine and nylon jackets, as well as leather tow mitts were shown and it was felt that men set the practical style in ski clothes which women should follow.

Alec Campbell said that ski boots should be chosen with strong tops. What is important in picking out a boot, is good leather, steel shanks in the sole and the fitting. Skis of all kinds were shown, from inexpensive maples right up to laminated jumping, cross country and downhill skis from Norway, for the experts. Girls should have shorter more pliable skis, while longer, stiffer skis are for men.

There is always an argument about the right kind of wax to use and Alec explained that although experts have their own "special stuff", there are several types of good waxes for different kinds of snow conditions to be put on over a base wax.

Two Scholarships Given Yesterday By Hotel Men

Two scholarships with a total value of $350 were awarded at the Institutional Management prize-giving ceremony held yesterday in the Botany Building.

The Hotel Association of Ontario scholarship of $250 for the student ranking highest in examinations went to J. C. Holtom of Ottawa. Holtom is president of the Undergraduate Society and finance commissioner of the S.A.C. The presentation was made by Mr. Ward Markle, president of the association.

The Dalton J. Caswell Scholarship, worth $100, for the second highest standing in examinations, went to B. V. Bedore, Arnprior, and was presented by the donor who is past president of the Hotel Association of Ontario.

Mendelssohn Choir and Toronto Symphony in Conservatory Concert

The Toronto Mendelssohn Choir and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra will perform Belshazzar's Feast by the English composer, Walton, in the Music Hall of the Royal Conservatory on Nov. 30th.

Singing in the choir, which is directed by Sir Ernest MacMillan, are many University of Toronto students. The soloist is a young Vancouver baritone, Ernest Adams, who won high honours on the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" program.

Performed rarely, Belshazzar's Feast is a musical description of the Bible story, and requires a large orchestra of the size of the Toronto Symphony.

New Poll Threatens Safety Of 'Galloping'

Double Soccer Win Would Earn Titles

Tomorrow at noon the U. of T. Soccer Blues take on the Aggies from Guelph in the final game of the season. The Seniors need to win by two goals in order to take the Blackwood Trophy. Their 1-0 loss in Guelph makes this necessary since goals count in the event of a tie in games won and lost.

The Intermediates need only to tie Guelph since they have not lost a game this season. The seniors will have Barton, Watherspoon, Colvin on the forward line, while such stalwarts as Peters, and Evans uphold the defence.

The Intermediates will probably be back to full strength since Valere is expected to be able to play. Together with Leach he will strengthen a weakened forward line.

Arts Trophy — Whose? Is Soccer Query Next Wk.

Interfaculty soccer teams will start chasing the Arts Faculty Cup in earnest next week, and when UC won the last playoff berth yesterday entries closed for the six positions in the post-season gambolling.

Ajax walked off with top honors in group one with 10 points on an undefeated season. Trinity took the other spot with eight marks. Senior SPS and UC are tied in group two with eight points, and its a novel spot for the UC team that didn't win a game last year. In group three St. Mike's took the lone berth with nine marks, and Wycliffe won out in group four with 10.

Only one game remains in the regular schedule—a "nothing" game between Vic seconds and Premeds. Two quarter final games are carded for Monday, with Trinity meeting Wycliffe and St. Mike's tackling either UC or Senior SPS, who toss for the privilege.

STANDINGS

Group One Team	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Junior SPS	4	0	2	10
Trinity (I)	3	1	2	8
Vic. (I)	0	6	0	0

Speaking Of Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

For the first time in a while there isn't much Western money being laid on the line for a Varsity-Western football game. Numerous Varsity financiers have been greatly disillusioned at the unfaithfulness of Mustang followers, who have been known to go as high as 40-1 in support of their heroes.

It has been suggested that the final insurance of victory is a Western call from this column. So, always glad to oblige, shall we say that Western will win tomorrow by—ah!—let's see— about 34-11.

Followers of the Purple and White down in London are planning great things for this week-end—off the football field, that is. There's a "trample Toronto" slogan going the rounds down there, that from all reports should reach a peak when said fans reach our fair city.

There are rumours floating about that Varsity undergraduates feel that tomorrow's game is a bit of an anti-climax, and that maybe the support won't be as rabid as last week. I'm inclined to disagree. How can one victory possibly atone for ten years of famine? Tomorrow we've got to let the Blues know that the entire student and grad bodies are confident of a repeat. The championship is within Varsity's grasp—let's make it stick.

And as a start—tonight there's another big rally, with the Blue and White Society again leading the way. Failure to turn up is nothing short of treason. In fact, if you even get there late—you may find yourself burned at the stake or shot at sunrise.

The Blues say they're going to win; the undergraduates believe the Blues are going to win; all of Toronto thinks the Blues are to win; London wonders if the Blues are going to win; and I say the Blues are going to lose —How can the Blues go wrong?

By the way—let's see that credit goes where credit is due. Yesterday's column appeared under my name, but was the brain-child of Bob Jones. I guess the printers thought it was so good they decided to give me a break. It was certainly one of the finest efforts that has appeared on the Varsity Sports Page all year. If you didn't get a copy, better hunt one up.

Montemurro's 2 Win For UC

The UC soccer eleven pulled off a 2-1 win over senior SPS yesterday on the front campus, to grab one of the Group Two playoff spots. The win, their third of the year, coupled with two ties gives them eight points and a tie for the group leadership with senior SPS.

Montemurro singlehandedly nudged the UC squad into the playoffs, scoring both UC goals. Wotherspoon sniped the SPS counter on a penalty shot.

Clubbed By Car, Ref. Forgets Assignment

Chris Arnold, well known swim meet referee didn't show up for the UC-Ajax meet Wednesday. The unique story he told in the Intramural office the next day was that he was struck by a car while crossing St. George St. and promptly forgot all his official duties. Luckily, two of his frat brothers who are medical students ably looked after Chris. Pool patrolman Ron Hall generously took over Chris's duties, in case anyone was worried.

Rugged Bob LaRose of Senior Blues hockey fame has been having really tough luck with his apparently too aggressive chin. During the lacrosse schedule Bob was clipped for several stitches on the jaw. but the payoff was during a hockey practice Wednesday when he was blasted by one of the team's hot shots while circling the nets. His jaw was fractured and is now held tightly in place by yards of heavy duty wire. Unfortunately Bob will be lost to the team for at least six weeks.

SPORTSWOMAN

Last night at LM, St. Hilda's Freshies nipped Vic Freshies A 15-13. The Saints' tall guards, spiked by Sally McConnell, were the deciding factor in the game. Both teams were adept at interception and the score was close throughout. The top scorers were Dorothy Aiken, Vic, and Joan Stirling, St. Hilda's.

Physio A took OT 20-15, in a muddled game in which neither team was up to par. Despite the tight guarding of the OT defence, Jean Cossar racked up 10 points for Physio and her teammate Phyl Wilks added up eight.

The game between UC Freshies A and PHE I was cancelled.

Pop Player Poll Gives Big Problem; Who Will It Be?

By JOAN EDDIS

That's what everyone says when they pick up the Sports page these days after someone else has read that paper.

Not that there is anything wrong with the sports page these days, of course. The trouble is that everyone is tearing out the popular player award ballot and if you don't get a crisp new Varsity, a gaping hole has been torn in the page.

More and more of these ballots are being stuffed into the roomy boxes placed in the Hart House Tuck Shop, and Porter's desk, the Women's S.A.C. office in the U. C. basement, the Athletic Office, and The Varsity Office. No one will definitely predict which Blue will be voted the most popular player but it would be easy to do.

The system is a cinch with no crystal ball attached. In fact it's fool proof. As yet the system is only in experimental stage but Hankering Southcott, local sports genius, has devoted all his spare time to the study of this problem. After the Truman-Dewey elections this year and the loss of a small bet on account of it, our genius has lost all faith in Galloping Poles.

The way he operates is simple. After dark, when all co-eds and non-co-eds (males, that is) are floating in dreamland, he creeps in stocking feet through the dim halls of Hart House down to the Tuck Shop. There, by means of a pencil flashlight, he turns the ballot box on its side, and by juggling the box around, can read all the ballots.

Naturally, it is rather difficult to keep track of which ballots you have read but remember that Hankering is a genius.

He has not reached any definite conclusion yet, but I No Enuff, warden of the local institution whose inmates are barred from female visitors, expressed his opinion freely. As he Huycked up his trousers, Enuff stated that it Shore was Toogood an opportunity to miss a chance of predicting who would be voted the up-and-Cummings player to be awarded the Farcity trophy which will be presented by a bunch of sporting fellows next Thirstday. As he munched on his lunch and continued his predictions, a Clark from The Varsity recorded his every word. In conclusion, I No. said, "I don't know who will Copp the trophy but I sure like Mustard in my Western Sandwiches."

See Boxla Gals In Action Today

Here's your chance to see girls, yes... girls playing that slam-bang, whack-around game known as lacrosse. UC will come up against St. Hilda's for the third time, and try to repeat their two previous wins, at 4:15 today on Trinity Field. The girls are very enthusiastic about lacrosse and invite all Indians and boxla fiends to see them slip around in the mud of Trinity field as they scramble for that elusive white ball.

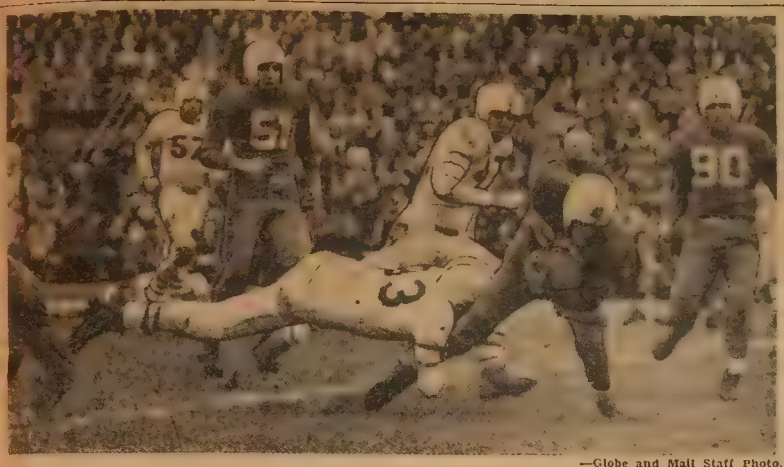
Game Time Change

There are a few changes in procedure for Toronto students to note. The first is that game time has been advanced from 2:15 to 2:00 p.m. The second change is that all students will enter the Stadium by the gate indicated on their tickets. And keep those stubs— the seats are reserved.

O. K. Blues let's do it again!



LOYOLA U. COACH RESIGNS

Los Angeles—Bill Sargent resigned as head football coach of Loyola University of Los Angeles because of ill health. Assistant coach Bob Shaw and Al Duval took over the team's preparations for its game here Friday night against Arizona State.

as Ted Toogood is brought down after carrying the mail for the Blues. George Arnott of Western stopped Ted on this play while Bruce Cummings (90) and Bill Stockman (51) are following up. Bill Ford (47) and Reg. Ort (57) of the Mustangs are coming up to lend a hand. Although stopped on this play Ted gave one of his best performances of the year on the gridiron which paced the Blues to their convincing 18-7 win at Varsity Stadium, Saturday afternoon.

By BRIAN LAND

Toronto Varsity Blues are the new senior Intercollegiate football champions. By convincingly turning back the Western University Mustangs for the second consecutive week, this time, 18-7, the Blues won their first Yates Cup since 1936, and added their seventeenth title. Thus Bob Masterson has the distinction of bringing a winner to the Toronto campus in his first full season as coach.

Playing the same kind of championship football they have displayed since catching fire in Montreal against McGill Redman, the Blues scored all three touchdowns with their withering pass attack, Bruce Cummings tossing two with Tommy Waldon pitching the other.

Despite the fact that Western was hampered by the absence of Bob McFarlane and Bob Farley, it was evident by the Toronto tackling that they would have made no difference. Western now has the distinction of having the second best team in the college loop.

VARSITY IN VICTORY

Following the game 8,000 cheering, happy students joined in a parade to the steps of the City Hall in downtown Toronto. Shown at right are Western's goal posts propped up against the City Hall steps while grinning cheerleaders look on happily. Keith Davey of the Blue and White Society introduced Controller Balfour, acting on behalf of Mayor McCallum, who was out of town. The Controller appeared with President Sidney Smith, Warren Stevens, coaches Bob Masterson, Jim Folwell and Frank Williams. The Blues arrived by car direct from the stadium and victory tired but happy. Introduced one by one they received a terrific ovation.

The announcement over the P.A. system at the end of the game started the jubilant Varsity supporters on the way, with the band leading and the roads cleared by motorcycle police. Varsity supporters haven't had a chance to cheer a victorious team since 1936 and they weren't losing any bets on making up for the long absence of a winning team. President Smith held up his hands to the riotous fans and announced: "I'm not going to make a speech, I'm going to sing!" He made a valiant try, although his voice seemed to range near falsetto after an afternoon's cheering.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

The badly bedraggled sign shown at left made its way down to the City Hall steps. Loyal fans are shown trying to effect some last minute repairs, but the mood of the crowd was such that a little thing like a torn sign didn't matter. Western fans were forced to change their Trample Toronto signs to a version which read Trampled By Toronto.

Hail The Blues

On Saturday a team which appeared beaten at the beginning of the season unseated one of the greatest university football teams on record to give the University of Toronto its first intercollegiate title in twelve years.

For all concerned, it was a great effort. For a fighting team which proved the Mustangs could be beaten, for a great coach who came through in his first year, for a student body which proved conclusively that this University has spirit, for the Blue and White Society which made Varsity and the city of Toronto aware that they had a great football team worthy of maximum support, it was an achievement.

When Bob Masterson took over as head this year he faced a gigantic task. Western seemed well on its way to tieing the intercollegiate mark in consecutive games won. Yet, at the end of his first season in his new post, Masterson produced a team which not only won the Yates Cup, but which went unscored on for three straight games, and which beat its arch enemy in two consecutive games by impressive scores.

How much of the victory was caused by the enthusiasm of the student body is impossible to estimate. Masterson himself praised the support given by the University very highly. Such support is as much a part of football games as the opening kick-off.

We hope the display of solidarity shown by students during the last few weeks will continue.

In a very real sense it is vital not only to the members of the football team, but also to the strength of the University. An apathetic membership is one of the greatest evils which can befall any institution, whether it be a college, club, union, or government. Senseless rivalries still exist inside the University which cannot be explained away wholly on the basis of "college spirit". Such rivalries can seriously cripple, if not halt entirely, the progress which such an institution as this must make.

Working together to support a team against outside "enemies" is not too difficult. But for students to work together for less glamorous but vastly more important ends is a problem that offers a greater challenge.

The Farcity Story

(Theme: A material rendition, full of rubato, allegretto, glissandos, crescendos, teredos, spaghetti, etc.)

Announcer: (In an excited voice: this is to mystify the listeners, who never find out what he is excited about). The Farcity Story!

Another announcer: By Morley Hasbeen!

Another announcer: Adapted for radio!

Another announcer: By . . . (his voice breaks),

Another announcer: With music!

Another announcer: By . . .

(The name is lost in a blare of music. By now, the show has used up all the available announcers, so there is nothing left to do but get on with the story.)

Announcer: A story that will warm your hearts . . . tickle your funnybone . . . bring tears to your eyes . . . (This is the first true thing he has said, but you know what script writers are.)

Another announcer: (who has just come in from a lecture in Psychopathology 42A) The Farcity Story! (There is a pause while the producer looks tc see if Institutional Management, a course for people who will spend their lives in institutions, is out yet. No more announcers arrive, so the first character—and he certainly is—has to talk.)

The character: I remember the day the new warden arrived. He looked so lost. Didn't seem like a warden, somehow. Chester Morris would have eaten him alive.

Another voice: Yes. In those days, there wasn't a shortage of water, and so there were lights in Hart House.

The character: (sotto voice) Hey!

The voice: But this year it's different. It's just because there wasn't any rain. I tell you. The Red Star is lying . . . (he screams, almost sobs) LYING!

(There are sounds of scuffling, and shouts of "Who is this guy?")

Announcer: Excuse us. Somebody's trying to get into the act. Get that slouch hat off him . . . Yipe! Ladies and gentlemen, you won't believe this . . .

The voice: Take your hands off me. Let me speak! You guys are crushing freedom of speech, and I won't have it. I'm the only one that can crush freedom of speech!

Announcer: It's Gorgeous George! (There is the sound of a further struggle, then the voice is heard, fading out, "I'll get on the radio yet, I tell you!")

Announcer: Listen again next week, for another installment of . . . Thirteen other announcers: The Farcity Story!

BLUES WIN YATES CUP

as his tackling time and time again halted the Mustang backs in their tracks, while Jack Gray Alec Lawson and Nick Volpe also turned in standout games on a team that had only three players chosen for All-Star selection. The Western line which placed five men on All-Stars, was well taken care of for most of the afternoon.

For Western the loss was a hard pill to swallow. Having disposed summarily of the Blues in their first meeting, they brushed aside all opposition until they ran into the Toronto giant-killers last Saturday when Varsity snapped their undefeated streak at 27 games. Jack Parry, despite his two costly fumbles, one of which paved the way for the first Toronto touchdown, was just about Western's top performer. He received able assistance from Doug Gray and Bob Phibbs, who tried hard to avert the inevitable.

As in last week's game Western were the first to score, when Phibbs hoisted a 65 yarder deep in the Varsity end-zone where Toogood was dropped for a rouge. Soon after, Western again threatened but Parry dropped the ball on third down and Toronto regained possession on their own 15.

CUMMINGS TIES COUNT

Cummings knotted the count early in the second quarter with a long kick which bounced into touch in goal for a single point.

Fading to toss a forward on his own 20, Parry was hit so hard by Alec Lawson that he fumbled, Jack Gray recovering. Gray then went high into the air to pull down Cummings' pass which he took to the six, from where Cummings tossed a touchdown pass to Volpe in the end-zone. Cummings' convert made it 7-1 for Varsity.

Varsity showed terrific power with their second touchdown drive moving all the way from their own 42 for the score. Gray was again prominent, taking Cummings' pass to the Western 14 before being downed. Waldon then caught Western off guard with a short pass over centre to Gray in the end-zone for the major which Cummings again converted.

Western started with determination in the third quarter but gave ground every time Cummings booted. Bruce started the third touchdown drive with a pass to Lawson who took it 25 more to the Mustang twenty. Cummings then took a lateral from Waldon and fired the pay-off ball to Choresteckl behind the goal-line. The convert failed but left the third quarter score at 18-1.

PARRY CROSSES LINE

Western started a flurry of last quarter passes which netted them only short gains until Doug Gray gathered in Parry's 15 yard pass and raced 38 yards to the Toronto 20 before Toogood dropped him from behind. Parry then ran the right end and went over standing up for Western's only touchdown which he converted. It took the Mustangs more than forty-eight minutes before they crossed the Blue goal-line.

That was Western's last gasp as interceptions by Huycke and Volpe kept the Purple in their own end. Play ended with Tommy Waldon in possession on the Western 6 yard-line.

The win was essentially a team victory, with the ends being particularly brilliant. Toogood, Volpe, Waldon, Jones, McMillan and Captain Ian Clark have been chasing that Yates Cup for the Big Blue team for three seasons and were finally rewarded.

In 1945 the season was an exhibition affair; in '46 Varsity didn't come close to trimming Western; the '47 season saw that terrific tie game; this year the climax came.

Potts' Coon Coat Meets Flaming Finale

Many a wet tear was shed Friday noon as the most memorable antique on the campus met its end in cremation. The occasion was the noon rally to whip Varsity spirit for the forthcoming victory over Western, and the relic consumed by the hungry flames, Joe Potts' ancient coonskin coat.

"This is to show how we're going to burn up Western tomorrow," declared Blues' coach Bob Masterson as he lit the conflagration, and burn them up, the Blues did.

With cheerleaders, musicians, and the Skule cannon in attendance, the preview rally was a pronounced success, the only squawk coming from a spectator who said disappointedly, looking at the smoking coonskin coat:

"I thought Joe was going to be in it!"

SOUTH AMERICANS VISITING CAMPUS

Eight men and two women graduate engineering students from the University of Buenos Aires are paying a visit to the University of Toronto campus. The Argentinian students were entertained at tea by the S.A.C. at Newman Hall on Sunday afternoon after a tour of the University grounds. The official host and hostess were Dean Wright of Ajax and Miss Parkes, Women's Union secretary.

Two of the visitors are staying at Burwash Hall, four at St. Michael's College and two at Trinity College. The two women are staying at Whitney Hall.

At ten o'clock this morning, the visitors will meet at the S.A.C. office and in the afternoon will be entertained by S.P.S. Prof. Loudon has arranged for the party to tour an airplane factory on Tuesday. On Wednesday they will leave for Niagara Falls and thence to Chicago.

E. C. Carter To Address Political Science Club

Edward C. Carter, chairman of the International Finance Committee and former Executive Secretary of the Institute of Pacific Relations, will address a joint meeting of the Political Science and International Relations Clubs today at 4 p. m., in the Women's Union Theatre.

Spirit Overflows In Giant Parade Following Victory

Victory is delirium. Just ask the 8,000 screaming, cheering, happy students who streamed downtown from the Varsity Stadium in triumphant parade after the Blues whipped the Mustangs for the Intercollegiate Union championship. Has Toronto got school spirit?

With Bob Cringan's Blue and White band blowing up in front, and masterful blocking by motorcycle, the victory parade roared its way down Devonshire Place via Hoskin, around Queen's Park, and Wellesley to Bay, and onward to the City Hall.

City Hall Fete

Controller Balfour, representing the absent Mayor McCallum, was introduced by Keith Davey to the happy horde which jammed the City Hall steps. Other dignitaries who appeared with the controller were President Sidney Smith, Warren Stevens, coaches Bob Masterson, Jim Folwell and Frank Williams.

The Blues, who arrived by car direct from the Stadium, were tired but happy. Introduced one by one, the players received terrific ovations from the crowd. Their breathless comments showed their feelings:

"A great game to win," "We gave them hell," "I wish this was my first year instead of my last," and "It's a great feeling."

Masterson Proud

Bob Masterson had nothing but praise and thanks to the team, and thanked the students for their great support. "This is my biggest moment—I really am proud," smiled the head coach.

Varsity's innovation of spelling out UT with blue and white cards in the south stands was an instant success. As Varsity made its first score, a cloud of blue balloons hit the air, and after the third Varsity touchdown, blue and white cards filled the sky with local glee.

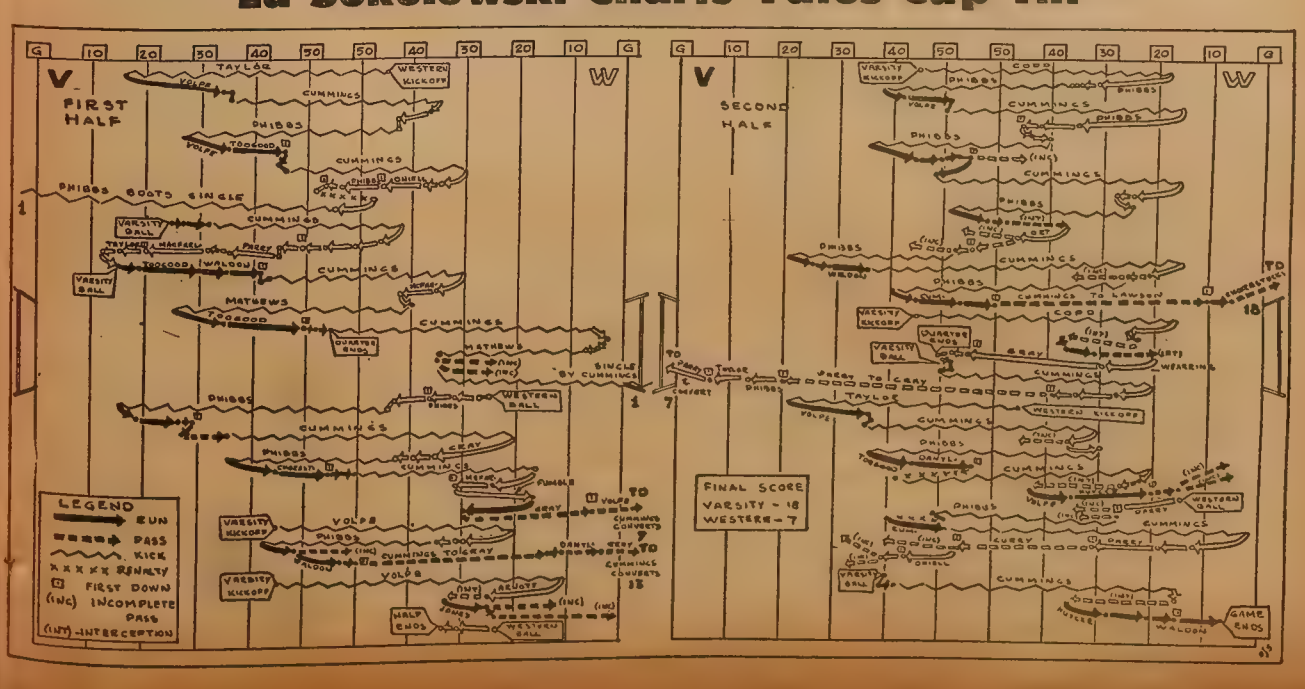
Forecasting the morrow's victory, nearly 1,000 students gathered in Varsity Arena Friday night despite a pouring rain to pep up Varsity spirit. Two new songs were introduced at the rally: "Follow the Blues" from the U.C. Follies, and "Let's Beat Western Tomorrow," the Varsity version of the Western school song.

Daily Hydro Cuts Affect Lectures; Library Service

The daily hydro cut-offs are seriously affecting activities in most University buildings, with the four-to five o'clock blackout in the afternoons causing the most trouble in lecture rooms and offices throughout the campus.

Officials at the Economics Building stated that one of the basement libraries will likely be closed during the afternoon blackouts since it has been impossible to work even with the aid of lamps. The University College reading room is also unable to distribute books during the cut-offs. At Trinity and St. Michael's, the registrars stated that the four o'clock lectures were the only ones affected so far, but within a few months the morning cuts may also cause serious interference.



Several buildings have escaped the cut-off disturbance thanks to the University power and heating plant at the south end of the campus. The University library, the Medical Building, Convocation Hall and Victoria College are among the buildings unaffected.

The evening University extension classes have missed the cut-offs since the few seven o'clock lectures have been changed to eight o'clock.

Vancouver, Nov. 22 — (C.U.P.) — Studious undergrads in the University of British Columbia library were unconcerned with the fire that broke out there last week, studying right through the alarm, which was sounded when flames burst out due to a short circuit in the wiring of the air conditioning units.

ART - MUSIC - DRAMA

Topaze

For three and a half hours on Saturday evening La Societe Francaise de University College kept their audience keenly interested in the transformation of a naive schoolmaster into an unscrupulous businessman. Their presentation of Marcel Pagnol's exquisite satire on municipal graft and boarding school management was far above most College productions in the foreign language field.

The casting was excellent. John Walker as the pedagogue Topaze and his confederates, the enchanting Suzy and the rascally councillor Castel-Benac, played by Barbara Chandler and Douglas Ney, were a constant delight. Their first scene together in Suzy's apartments saw a heightening of the tempo; they kept it at a high pitch throughout the rest of the evening.

In the scenes in the Pension Muche Robert Lightfoot made a good job of the unsympathetic role of the headmaster. His daughter (Esther Berger) struck the note of dissatisfaction her part require. The instruction in love-making and the disposing of music boxes given Topaze by his colleages (Fred Thorpe and Jack Patterson) was one of the most priceless bits in the whole play. The baroness to whose son Topaze was stupid enough to give a zero seemed rather common; she was perhaps nouveau riche.

The stes share the credit with cast and pace for the success of the piece. The black and white posters provided original and effective decoration and aptly illustrated the change in moral values as the play progressed.

Storm In A Teacup

The New Play Society is currently presenting an admirable performance of James Bridie's aptly-named comedy-piece "Storm in a Teacup". The director wisely appreciated the fact that the success of the play would depend on the full development of individual characters, as opposed to so many modern comedies which rely on impossible situations and clever dialogue only. All these characterizations were excellent and if I mention several in particular I do not mean to detract from the rest.

The story concerns the political career of a pompous Englishman in a Scottish town—and how an incident involving an impounded dog lands the provost in hot water galore. It starts out a bit on the slow side but accelerates to an amusing climax in two perfectly executed law-court scenes, reminiscent of G. & S.'s "Trial by Jury".

The love interest is amply supplied by Pegi Brown who scintillates throughout to win the young idealistic newspaperman, splendidly done by Don Harron. Marjorie Leete deserves special mention for her grand job as Mrs. Flanagan—an outstanding performance. Orchids also to Mavor Moore for his superb handling of the sheriff's role—his court-room demeanour was hilarious.

The great tendency to "overdo" the character portrayals was admirably restrained all the way, and I must mention the intelligent handling of the British brogues—just the right touch. All in all a commendable effort on a slender but witty play, expertly squeezed onto the museum's inadequate stage.

Hal Walkley.

Guerrero

A large and appreciative audience filled the Great Hall at Hart House last night to hear Alberto Guerrero. The program was an extremely interesting one, both from the point of view of the works it comprised and with regard to the manner in which they were played.

Mr. Guerrero is the possessor of an amazingly fluent piano technique; in addition, he displays the fine judgment of a mature and seasoned musician. His performance of Beethoven's Sonata opus 57 was, in consequence, a satisfying musical experience. It conveyed to the listener the feeling that a perfect circle had been traversed, in the sense that the work had been given a unified treatment by an artist of ability and discrimination.

The remainder of the program was, I felt, something of a fall-away from the grandeur of the Appassionata. This is to some extent unavoidable in a concert which

SKULE BANQUET

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

The report of Wilson Woodside's address to the Skule annual banquet is very interesting. I would ask that in analysing his remarks we keep two facts in minds:

1. The Dean of Canterbury who recently spoke to us about Russia saw what Mr. Woodside is talking about, namely the reconstruction of the devastated areas. Their viewpoints do not agree.

2. Mr. Woodside made the prediction in 1941, at the time that Germany invaded the Soviet Union, that Moscow would fall in six days.

Yours truly,

ERRORS

The Editor, The Varsity.
Dear Sir:

The midget edition of your invaluable daily which appeared for the student perusal on November 10th, showed an admirable spirit of devil-may-care reporting and proof-reading which would tend to give a new reader a distorted view of the usual capable Varsity issue.

An effort to confuse the student body was made on page one, column one, where it was stated that tickets for the Western week-end would go on sale TODAY, and may be obtained at vantage points which will be listed in TOMORROW'S Varsity.

And on the back page, did Vic girls beat PHE by one point as stated in the headline, or by a score of 15-13 as reported in the text? And I maintain that Vic girls at least play a brand of such as may be easily distinguished from basketball, as the sport was twice reported in The Varsity. Your reporter was at least observant enough to notice the FizzEd flies; your proof-reader was catching flies too.

The Monday meeting of the Tuesday Club, which usually meets on Wednesday will be postponed until Thursday, instead of Friday.

J. K. Fraser, IV Victoria.

Ed. Note—Mr. Fraser will find an open armed reception in The Varsity office as a copy reader—any day of the week between 9 a.m. and 11.30 p.m.

Gioconda Smile

Aldous Huxley's latest play, The Gioconda Smile (Clark Irwin & Co. $1.25) displays the author's brilliant mind at its best. When Brave New World made its appearance many Huxleyites felt that the author was in his decline, but his latest work disproves this.

Adapted from a short story in The Mortal Coils which first appeared in 1922, The Gioconda Smile has all the epigrammatic icing which tantalized readers of Point Counter Point and Crome Yellow. The play in many ways resembles Point Counter Point in which the author combines a thorough understanding of the workings of the human mind with brilliant satiric comment. Webley, Huxley's representation of Sir Oswald Mosley, was in the beginning very much like Janet, the murderess in The Gioconda Smile. In fact the only difference was one of motivation but this is the way the Mosleys grow, Huxley tells us. Janet's insanely selfish love for Hutton which leads her to murder is paralleled by his spiritual development during the trial and his subsequent prison term.

The central character, Hutton, is convincingly presented as a dilettante of prosperous means with a generous heart and an eye for the girls. Huxley deals with him in a sympathetic manner which is unparalleled in his previous work. He takes pains however to point out that Hutton's devotion to his invalid wife was not by any means whole-hearted because he acquired that pose of detachment which in the face of suffering often becomes a reality.

The Gioconda Smile proves conclusively that Huxley's powers extend beyond a mastery of satire. The cardboard figures of his earlier novels have been replaced by characters which are undeniably Huxlian but nevertheless convincing. Despite this more mature approach Huxley the iconoclast remains — this time the object of his satire is the heroine, a maniacal prude who seeks to excuse her crime on the grounds that "sex is dirty".

Suspense is maintained admirably throughout, particularly in the climactic prison scenes where Hutton spends his last hours with the jailer. There are few minor characters in the play and the major ones succeed in weaving a mediocre short story into a first-rate play. The opening scenes of the first act are rather slow and forced but cuts could remedy that. The Gioconda Smile would make an excellent testing-ground for Hart House talent.

The Gulf of Time

The scene of Robert Standish's new novel, "The Gulf of Time", (Reginald Saunders: $3.50) is laid in the wilds of New Guinea, in the years between the two great wars. The plot is the conventional adventure story one, familiar to the reader of standard blood and thunder novels. For this reason it lacks suspense, although interest is maintained by the authenticity of the local coloring and the fascination of watching the drama unfold exactly as you expect it will. From the moment the hero appears, it is apparent that no serious harm can come to him, and similarly the Bad Man is foredoomed to some gruesome end.

The characterization is well done, especially of the heroine, who develops from a cold hearted playgirl to a lovable but slightly superior woman in love. The natives

For the last three years, Macdonnell, member for Muskoka-Ontario, has been the National President of the Dominion Progressive Conservative Association directing organizational activities of the party.

At the recent Progressive Conservative Convention held in Ottawa, he acted as joint chairman. Macdonnell's last visit to the campus was in 1947.

Mrs Mart Kenney: "Jack, what became of that piece of cake I left on the table?"

Jack Kenney: "I gave it to an awfully hungry little boy, mother."

Mrs. Kenney: "That was nice. Who was the little boy?"

Jack Kenney: "Me."

Campus Show

Dentantics

A college show is a college show is a college show.

It seems only fair to point out that one college show cannot, and should not be compared with another. Each one of the campus cutups is manufactured under special conditions. Each one will be judged by this on its individual merits or demerits. Without further apology, here is a review of "Dentantics of 1948".

A college show can take many forms. The teeth-totallers based their show around the varied talent that can be found around that end of the campus. To do this they made use of an emcee in the form of Dave Mitchell. If you like emcees, then Mitchell was a capable one. He made his entrance in a bathtub, but the humor that followed was not as clean as he claimed.

The "dentist shop" quartet, the Amalgamators, proved to be very satisfying. We do not doubt that they are the best group of their kind on the campus. It is unfortunate that the music was mostly of the "show-tune" style. Original music or lyrics can add much.

Both the "violining" by Mary Ann Paul and the "pionoing" by Director Al. Chapple added to the overall pleasing effect. We often wonder why such talented people desire to spend their lives in somebody's mouth. Money?

The Walter Mitty skit gave great pleasure to the dental audience. Although not quite a Danny Kay, Bob Shaw gave the pleased people ample opportunity to show their dentures in wide-mouthed smiles and chuckles.

The gay nineties finale gave the dentettes ample opportunity to show their legs. Once again it seems a shame that these girls work with their hands. A can can chorus is almost a standard fixture in university reviews. The very fact that the very busy dental students are able to take enough time off their teething to put together a show, makes it a good show.

are not so clear cut, and in one instance, their words elicit an unforseen response from the reader; they are watching their first airplane take off, and as they turn away, unimpressed, they remark, anachronistically, perhaps, "It stinks!"

This story requires no effort of the mind, and will be best liked by those who, not yet tired of adventures among the savages, continue to read this type of work for relaxation. For the sophisticated reader however, interest will flag.

How television makes jobs for Canadians

The eye of the television camera is an image-orthicon tube. The heart of the receiving set is a cathode-ray tube. Most metal parts of these tubes are nickel or nickel alloys.

In television receivers there are also from 16 to 32 or more radio tubes of which the metal parts are nickel, nickel alloys or nickel coated. Nickel is also used in x-Ray tubes and in long distance telephone systems, including those using the new coaxial cable.

Television has been developed through long and exhaustive research by individuals and manufacturers of electrical equipment, and in this research the International Nickel research laboratories have co-operated to the fullest extent.

The development of television has given rise to an entirely new market for Canadian Nickel. New jobs are created for Canadians both in the Nickel industry and in industries which make equipment containing Nickel.

Thus does research develop better products, create more employment.

"The Romance of Nickel" a 60-page book fully illustrated, will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

Johnny Jr. - Horses - Goal Post Casualty - Everything Went At Sat. Game

By ED VOIGHT

Did we win the Yates Cup? Did we ever! Western's only hope now is "to board a slow boat to China." Is it ever!

Speaking of the Yates Cup reminds that the last time the U. of T. copped the Intercollegiate Rugby championship occurred way back in '36, when after splitting two games with Queen's in the regular schedule, the Blues won the sudden-death playoff with the Gaels 11-3. The next year, there was another playoff, but this time the Gaels reversed the story and knocked off the Blues. Since this latter year, '37, there has been no playoff until last Saturday.

Young Johnny also led the Mustangs out onto the field for Western's pre-game warm-up, and again after the half-time intermission. He might not know it, but he also came out with best crack that we heard in the Western dressing-room after the game. As Metras Sr. followed his vanquished valiants into their dressing-room, Johnny Jr. popped out with "Hello Daddy, we'll beat them next year, eh?"

When we asked Metras what he thought of the game and if he had anything to say to the press, he remarked that "Varsity has a helluva good ball club and it was a helluva good game". Try as we might, that's all we could coax out of him.

However we really can't blame Metras, for he was rather busy looking after his all-star outside, Bill Wardle, who was stretched out on a rubbing table, his head rapped with ice-packs. Wardle was thrown to the ground heavily by Blue-boy John Shore late in the last quarter and was carried off the field on a stretcher. The Mustang player kept repeating that he felt alright, but Metras, fearful of a minor concussion, took no chances and had Wardle taken to the hospital for further observation. There it was discovered that he had just that.

The best example that we picked up of the ticket shortage was given by 15 or so spectators who were perched on the peak of the roof of a house on the north side of Bloor St. just across from the Stadium. If one of those guys had ever slipped down that steep roof, he wouldn't have stopped till he hit a water-main.

Come back to-morrow and we'll tell you what we picked up in the Western dressing-room from some of the Mustangs after we had beaten our way through the mob that was chairing and acclaiming Bruce Cummings and some of the other Blues.

The Mustangs' uniforms (white pants and white sweaters) got one helluva lot dirtier than the Blues' uniforms.

Some of the finest blue blood of Ajax flowed at the defense of the goal posts. One rugged geologist received the falling cross bar squarely in the teeth, and was out cold for several minutes. Another fight took place between those who thought he needed air for his recovery, and those who hungered for the sight of gore.

P.S., he recovered.

Instead of the Yates Cup all that The Mustangs took out of Toronto was the train.

begins with so outstanding a work. Nevertheless, the wonderful clarity of which Mr. Guerrero so often showed himself capable was absent at times from the climaxes in the Chopin group. Of these pieces the Valse in A flat, opus 42, was perhaps the most effective.

In the third and concluding part of the program last night's audience heard a rather unusual interpretation of Debussy. In all four pieces, Mr. Guerrero's interpretation was consistently heavier in tone and more pronounced in rhythmic character than is customary in most performances of this composer's music. The result, a little startling in places, was on the whole refreshing, especially in "Reflets dans l'eau" and "L'Isle Joyeuse".

We Won
What A Team What A Game Really Great

By BOB JONES

Anyone seeking the origin of the expression "grinning from ear to ear" would have been well advised to visit the Blues' dressing room after their spectacular triumph on Saturday. Life in there was one made round of back-slapping, Coke-drinking and rushing to prepare for the City Hall reception.

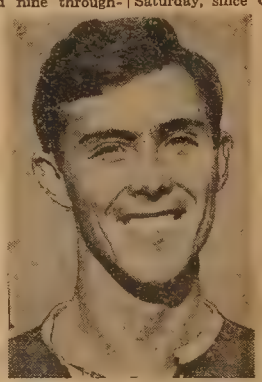
The celebration was not boisterous because many of those boys were mighty tired. And there were no flowery speeches; nevertheless, all you needed to do was see those grins and listen to the ceaseless flow of chatter to realize that for most of the people in that room they were experiencing one of the greatest days in their lives.

Half an hour after the game Coach Masterson was seeking a light for a cigarette that he had taken from the pack on the game's last play. Since that time he had been surrounded by a host of well-wishers and by his jubilant squad but he was loving every minute of it. "It was really great," was the earnest comment, "and doubly so because they did it the hard way." He seemed to be a little fazed by the repetition of such a convincing win over the mighty Mustangs.

Warren Stevens shared volubly in the general enthusiasm and it must have brought back some great memories for Steve as he declared to all and sundry, "Wasn't that a sweet win?"

Jim Folwell, assistant coach, was bubbling with good cheer as he repeated, "It sure is a nice feeling, isn't it." Which feeling, Jim?

Seniors Win 2-0; Seconds Lose Tilt But Win On Goals



The Intermediate Blue soccer team lost out to the OAC crew by a 2-1 score in a soccer tilt Saturday morning on the front campus.

The win for OAC put them in a first place tie with Toronto, but the championship went to Toronto. Goals to count decided the winners and Varsity countered fifteen goals while Aggies netted nine throughout the season. Both the Aggies and Varsity had only three goals scored against them, all by each other. Thus the championship came back to Toronto after being held by the Aggies last season.

The play was evenly divided, but the slippery field made it difficult to clear the ball. Near the end of the first half, the ball stopped dead only a couple of yards from the Varsity net. Benney, the Aggies' centre forward, was the first to recover his balance and he drove the ball into the net.

In the second half, Benney scored again, heading the ball past Ted Kersey from a free kick taken by the centre half.

The Blues took command of the ball after this goal and soon were awarded a penalty kick in a scramble around the Guelph goal. Glyn Williams made no mistake. The ball went into the far right hand corner of the net and the goalkeeper had no chance to stop it. Just before the game ended, Vic Quesnel almost tied the score with a lovely drive from left wing.

BRIAN BARTON

Playing coach of the Blackwood cup-winning senior soccer team.

The senior soccer team won the Blackwood trophy and the intercollegiate title for the sixth straight year when they beat OAC 2-0 on the front campus Saturday morning. But for a while it was touch-and-go.

Varsity needed to beat the OAC by at least two goals in the game Saturday, since OAC has a better goal average over the season. Through the first half, Varsity pressed hard but weren't able to crack the score card. Then in the second session, Jim Wotherspoon directed a Mesfin Abebe pass into the net, and a few minutes later, Jim Colvin bounced a Dave Critchely throw-in into the net with his head.

Guelph, fighting hard to grab the trophy which they have never won, came back strongly in the last five minutes, but weren't able to crack the superb Varsity defence led by John Small and netminder Newt Reed. The Varsity forward line played their smoothest game of the season—just when it was needed, despite the slippery field.

It was the last game for regulars Jim Colvin, Erri Thompson, Brian Barton, and Dave Critchely.

Hockey Blues Drop First Exhibition Tilt Howson-Turcott-Henry Line Net 6 Points

By BAZ WEEDON

The Varsity hockey Blues' hopes of an undefeated season suffered a severe jolt Friday eve as they succumbed to Peoples' Jewellers 8-4 in an exhibition tilt at Varsity Arena. Although a number of last year's championship team was present, it was quite evident that boys like Eddie Kryzanowski, Don Bark, Warren Winslow and the injured Bob LaRose were going to be sorely missed.

Despite the fact that the Blues were outplayed throughout most of the encounter, the chances of another successful year are far from hopeless. The Howson-Turcott-Henry line really looks as if it will be causing plenty of trouble before the season gets far underway. "Old Poison" Henry came up with his usual stellar performance by leading the Blues with two counters and a helper, while linemates Howson and Turcott grabbed two and one points respectively.

Barker Nets First

The game was just 17 seconds old when Barker and Gregor combined to beat goalie Paul Hutzulak. Rocky Howson grabbed that one back a couple of minutes later, but this was the last time Varsity were on equal terms. Peoples added one more in the first canto and another three in the sandwich session before rookie Paul Kavanaugh broke loose and planted the disk neatly behind goaler Red Gilbert.

In the third session Ace Bailey shuffled all but his first trio in an attempt to stem the tide. His efforts were partially successful as the Blues fired goal for goal with the "Jewellers". Bob Henry counted both of the Varsity markers while assists went to Rocky Howson and Cec Turcott.

Line-up:—

Varsity: goal, Hutzulak; defence, Digby, Ecclestone; centre, Turcott; wings, Henry, Howson; alternates, Larmer, Campbell, Kavanaugh, McDougald, Pearson, Boyd, McKillop, Moore, Bell, Spence.

Ajax Wins Over Trinity

By JOHN KENNEDY

The regular interfaculty football schedule wound up Friday night with Ajax thumping Trinity 12-0. Neither team could show much passing or efficient tackling due to the swampy condition of the back campus. Scoring opened in the first quarter when Julie Hanson, recently recovered from an injury, singled with a forty yard punt out of touch. Shortly after Bill Burley took the ball over centre and showed a nice turn of broken field running to major from the Trinity thirty yard line. The rest of the half was spent in sloshing and fumbling back and forth and no further scoring resulted.

The wet and bedraggled-looking teams fought through the second half as if the Mulock Cup were at stake. Rick Gaunt and Bill Sparling of Trinity tried hard to unmire their team in the third quarter and Gray Perkins exhibited a couple of nice runs. However, the winless Red and Black boys were soon submerged by the heavier Skule line and John Folinsbee counted the second TD of the contest. Gord Hollenhauer kicked the extra point.

Varsity Harrier Squad Defeats Wayne U 22 to 33

Detroit, Nov. 22—(Special)—The Varsity seven man harrier team took a 22 to 33 decision from runners of Wayne University in Detroit Saturday morning over a 4½ mile course.

Varsity placed second, third, fourth, sixth, and seventh for their 22 points to win the meet. Wayne captured first, fifth, eighth, ninth, and tenth spots.

George Doull, tireless Toronto runner placed second in the meet, while Gord Wilson, and Dunc Green were close on his heels at the finish line. Dave Barr was sixth and George McMullen was seventh. Pete Niblock took over the ninth position and Bud McCurry was eleventh.

On the strength of their showing Saturday the Varsity contingent has been invited to the National American Athletic Union harrier meet in Detroit next Saturday.

Five Teams In For Mulock Finals

The Interfaculty Rugby schedule is over and the five top teams start their semi-finals this week. Meds I and Vic were the two top teams from group 1, while Junior SPS and St. Mike's took the two spots in group 2. The single winner of group 3 was the Dents Rugby team who finished their season with no losses.

The first semi-final tilt will be between the Dents and Meds and may be played in the Varsity Stadium, depending on the condition of the field. The game is slated to start at 2.30 this afternoon.

Wednesday at 2.15 in the Varsity Stadium Vic and Junior School will clash.

Thursday of this week the winners of today's game will be pitted against the highly touted St. Mike's team.

The final game of the season will be played next Wednesday, December 1st at 2.15 in the Varsity Stadium and the winners of Wednesday's and Thursday's contests will play a sudden death game for the Mulock Trophy.

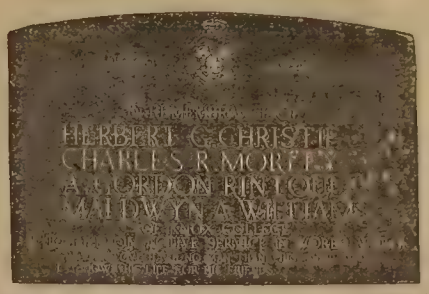
Toronto ISS Plan Weekend For Carabins



"We need accommodation for forty Carabins from the University of Montreal, who will be at the University of Toronto for the ISS French-Canadian week-end, Dec 3, 4, 5," said Pat Daniel, chairman of the Education Committee of ISS at Varsity, yesterday.

Daniel outlined the program for the week-end, which, he said, has the full support of the SAC. On Friday night, there will be a hockey game in Varsity Arena between Varsity and University of Montreal, and a Blue and White dance to round out the evening.

On Saturday night, the Carabins will present "La Revue Bleu et Or," the University of Montreal annual musical show. The entire cast of "La Revue" is coming to Toronto for the show, said Daniel. After the two-hour show, there will be a dance in the Trinity Buttery. Tickets for the show and dance will be on sale later.

Daniel emphasized the urgency of the appeal for hosts and hostesses for the Montreal students. "This project, aiming at better understanding between students of our two universities, requires solid student support here," said Daniel. "The Carabins are anxious to come, and are planning a return week-end for the winter."

Memorial Tablet

Canada's Governor-General will unveil and dedicate this tablet to the four men of Knox College who lost their lives in World War II. The address of the service will be given by Honorary Colonel Rev. J. W. Foote, V.C. The service will take place in Knox College Chapel tomorrow afternoon. Only those with special invitations will be admitted.

Ten Argentinian Students Make Visit To University

Ten Argentinian students have financed a trip which has taken them from Buenos Aires to Toronto. The party, made up of two women and eight men, is one of three now touring the world from the University of Buenos Aires. They are all graduate engineers, specializing in civil engineering. They are here to see what advances our country has made in their field and to make note of these advances in order that they may incorporate what is needed when they return to Argentina and enter their chosen fields.

Upon their arrival Saturday morning they met in the SAC office, and went from there to see the Santa Claus parade. Saturday afternoon found them split into two groups: one group of five saw the Varsity-Western football game which impressed them greatly. The other four visited the Royal Winter Fair where they saw one of their countrymen win the horse show.

On Sunday, following tea at Newman Club, the students attended the Hart House Concert. After the concert they were entertained by the Warden of Hart House.

Yesterday the Argentinians met and conversed with President Sidney Smith. After luncheon at the High Table in Hart House, the group was taken on a conducted tour of the Engineering Faculty. Late in the afternoon they were guests at a tea given by Dean Beatty, Head of the Faculty of Arts.

Declares Free Production Will Give Social Security

The party system, and, in particular, the two party system was upheld yesterday at a meeting of the U. of T. Progressive-Conservative Club by Mr. J. M. Macdonnell, M.P., national president of the Progressive - Conservative Association.

The two parties, he declared, should be sufficiently diverse to embrace all cross-sections of the community. In the economic realm Mr. Macdonnell, who is official PC financial critic in the House, contended that social security must result from large and free production which, he said, must emanate from freedom and economic opportunity. The Progressive-Conservative party, he declared, would make no attempt to provide for a "welfare state", but felt, nevertheless, that the government had a duty to help individuals to help themselves with special consideration for the unfortunate and the aged.

"Freedom is not static," said the speaker. He pointed out the dangers of economic controls which are, he maintained, "always paralleled by real and definite political controls." He warned that economic controls breed "like microbes". "They must be closely scrutinized and checked in time."

Critics of capitalism, he said, were generally those humanitarians who have a mistaken conception of economics and communists who desire upheaval and chaos for its own sake. He added, however, that people and governments must recognize the danger of big interests controlling the lives of little people and that the Progressive-Conservative party platform contained special features for the small business man.

Four Name Bands At Vic Informal

Romance will be the order of the evening Friday night in Hart House when the annual Vic Informal takes over. "This is THE big fall danee," declares Jim Nethercott, Vic social director, who is convening the affair.

Four bands, headed by the Benny Louis outfit, will provide the music. Intermission entertainment will be under the direction of Norm Jewison. Assisting Nethercott in the preparation for the Informal are Pat Mills, women's social director, and Jack Birkenshaw, III M & P.

Decorations, which in the past have gained a reputation for quantity and artistry, are under the supervision of Doug Maxwell.

Club Hears Talk On The Far East

Fall of China to the Communists would not mean that all Asia would be lost to the Western World, Edward C. Carter of New York, expert on Asian affairs, told a joint meeting of the Political Science Club and International Relations Club in the Women's Union theatre Monday afternoon.

Mr. Carter, chairman of the finance committee of the International Institute of Pacific Relations and formerly executive secretary of the Institute, recently returned from his 11th visit to the Orient.

The Nanking government was very gloomy when it learned about the outcome of the United States presidential election, he said. Generalissimo Chiang's forces had hoped for a Republican victory which they felt would mean aid in "billions" instead of the present help in "millions."

Governor General Will Unveil Tablet At Chapel Service

His Excellency Field Marshall the Right Honourable the Viscount Alexander of Tunis will be present at the university tomorrow to unveil and dedicate a War Memorial Tablet in Knox College Chapel.

Students Honoured

The tablet is in memory of four men from Knox College who paid the supreme sacrifice in world war II. One of them was Herbert G. Christie, born and educated in Toronto. He joined the service at the conclusion of his second year in the University and was killed in 1944, at the age of 21. He was a member of Dovercourt Presbyterian Church. Charles Morley was in attendance at this university from 1937-39. He joined the forces in 1939 and was killed in action. Gordon Rintoul was born in Wingham and graduated at this university in Knox College in 1932. He also gave his life while on active service. Maidwyn A. Williams was born in Wales and graduated from Knox College in 1941. He joined the RCAF the same year and was killed in November 1942.

Church Service

The dedication will take the form of a church service during which Rev. W. W. Bryden, Principal of Knox College will make the introductory statement. The presentation of the Memorial will be made by Hon. Major the Rev. R. C. Creelman, and the Rev. C. Ritchie Bell, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, will make the prayer of dedication.

Immediately after the unveiling the Governor General will speak briefly. The address of the service will be given by Hon. Colonel, the Rev. J. W. Foote, VC.

The service will take place in Knox College Chapel at 3 p.m. tomorrow afternoon and only those with special invitations will be admitted.

Intercollegiate Bridge Tourney Early Next Term

The third annual Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament will be held in Hart House early next year. Back in 1946 the first tournament was held in Montreal with only four universities competing and Queens coming out on top.

As a result, last year an enlarged tournament was held in Kingston with Varsity topping the six competing schools.

This year's contest will be split between Hart House Ajax and Toronto, with the Team of four competition on Friday night being held out at Ajax and the pairs game in Toronto Saturday afternoon and evening.

Mr. Percy Sheardown, Canada's outstanding bridge player will be the tournament director and it is expected that Mr. Charles Goren, the American Contract Bridge League's highest ranking life master will be on hand for the tournament if he can fit the event into his crowded tournament schedule.

All colleges in Ontario and Quebec have been invited and it is expected that nine or ten will be on hand, making this the biggest tournament yet.

The Hart House bridge club meets every Thursday night in the Debates room and in addition to giving bridge players an opportunity to make the Varsity team it also serves to introduce rubber bridge players to duplicate or tournament bridge.

Meds Elect New Executive Arrange Interneship Plan

Details of a placement scheme for internes were discussed at last week's conference of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes. The national executive will poll medical students as to the most favored method of placement, and will attempt to establish a system acceptable to all medical faculties and approved hospitals.

The conference also adopted a plan enabling medical students to purchase their instruments at special student rates through CAMSI student agents.

The incoming executive have been directed to investigate the possibility of establishing graduate courses for general practitioners at the various medical teaching centres.

CHESS CLUB

Hart House Chess Club started the season in the Toronto Chess League competition when the major and intermediate teams defeated those of Gambit Chess Club by scores of 4-2 and 5-3, respectively. Individual scoring in the major match was: Hastings 0, Orlando 1; Fox 1, Jewitt 0; Neatby 1, Scott 0; (adj.); Atkinson 1-2, Sundsten 1-2 (adj.); Talvila 1-2, Siems 1-2 (adj.); Prof. Wallace 1, Hodges 0. (Hart House players listed first).

IUS Aims

NFCUS Explains Aims And Activities Of IUS

—— By LEW HANLEY Publicity Director, N.F.C.U.S. ——

In view of the recent criticisms levelled against I.U.S. in recent weeks and the discussions centred around this, it was thought that some light should be shed on the purposes and aims of this International Union of Students. The Toronto delegation to the National Conference this Christmas will carry with it recommendations on this issue. The question which should be predominant, therefore, is "What does I.U.S. do?"

The International Union of Students was born in August, 1946, as a result of decisions made at the World Youth Conference in London that year. There it was recognized that such an organization could fulfill many services common to students throughout the world. Problems such as health and assistance in material needs, organization of sport, and pressure against violation of student rights could be worked out in this organization.

"What have they done?" In the field of education they have set up faculty bureaus for the exchange of information with representation by universities throughout the world. Bureaus in medicine, architecture, and engineering have already been set up.

In the field of health they have opened their first sanitorium with facilities for 120 students, financed partly from I.U.S. funds and partly with the help of several governments. The Medical Faculty Bureau has already begun work by sending supplies to Egypt at the height of the cholera epidemic.

The Physical Education and Sports Department of I.U.S. organized international winter sports in Switzerland and summer games in Paris last year, and plans to do the same again this year.

In the field of material assistance they have coordinated efforts to collect and distribute limited supplies of books, paper, equipment, etc., to student bodies needing of them.

One of their most important contributions is the protection of student rights and democratization of learning in a number of countries. Investigations into the activities against Spanish, Greek and Chinese students have brought to light the extent to which Fascism as they know it still exists.

Travel occupies a large department of their activities and is directed by the Central Travel and Exchange Department. Already International Student Identity Cards facilitate visa problems and make available reduced fares on national transport systems.

A few of the aims of I.U.S. for the near future include a conference of young writers and journalists, and a world student conference in 1949. The executive of the I.U.S. is directly responsible to the latter organization.

This is necessarily a short resume of I.U.S.' positive activities. Should our union join I.U.S.? It has been said that not joining will serve no ends and that attempting to form another union would be impossible. The Christmas Conference will crystallize our stand. These are positive activities which we may participate in and benefit from. It was on the basis of these positive activities that the Toronto S.A.C. endorsed the motion for affiliation.

Slavics Dept. Promotes Instructor Of Russian

Promotion of B. E. Shore from lecturer to assistant professor of Slavic Studies has been announced by Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto. Slavic Studies include the Russian classes which were started last year.

More than 30 students are now registered in the Russian language course, compared with nine last year, and Russian literature has been added to the curriculum. Dr. Smith said that official registration does not tell the whole story of sharply increased interest in Slavic Studies. Quite a number of other undergraduates take in as many lectures as possible.

Two Cultures

The proposed visit to this campus of forty French-Canadian students from the University of Montreal is a welcome step in a general scheme which is practiced far too infrequently—that of student exchanges and inter-cultural student visits.

Canadians, who enjoy a double heritage from the culture of two great nationalities within our borders, do little to take advantage of it.

Ontario and Quebec are particularly well situated to promote a contact with the broadening influence of two major cultures. But the inadequate instruction in French given by the high schools of Ontario will certainly never enable anyone to become really conversant with French culture and language.

The teaching of French should be begun in the public schools and pursued in the secondary schools to a degree which will allow high school graduates to read French literature with ease even if they cannot sustain an intelligent conversation in the language.

With the exception of the modern language student and the few who make a special effort to become proficient in French the average person after four years of university has forgotten the little he ever knew of the language and would be quite incapable of reading a French book. As linguists, people on this side of the Atlantic lag behind Europeans in a most lamentable manner.

A Canadian professor travelling in Italy some years ago was struck by the fluency with which his small Italian guide spoke French and questioned him about it. "Why I go to school," answered the boy in a puzzled manner, for to him the very fact that he went to school was synonymous with being able to speak at least one language besides his own.

World problems would have a greater basis for understanding and would be much simpler to solve if nations understood each other. And the first step in understanding each other comes from speaking a common language and studying each other's literatures.

The opportunity to do so is probably greater in Canada than anywhere else. But we do not make the most of it.

ART — MUSIC and DRAMA

Lois Marshall

Pale but vital Lois Marshal set a standard at the Sunday afternoon Art Gallery Concert which future sopranos will find hard to surpass. Keen musicianship and sensitivity marked the treatment of her programme. Miss Marshal did not simply sing notes; she lived them. She reflected the mood of the music even when listening to the accompaniment.

Two demanding arias by Scarlatti and the famous "Non Mi Dir" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" were ample ground on which to display the power and flexibility of her voice. The combination of textural evenness (which gives her voice an essentially instrumental quality), and her musical insight, along with her deep human understanding, added up to a magnificent performance of the arias. Showing musical good sense, Miss Marshal adapted her style of delivery to the style of the composition.

In the last two groups the accompanist, Weldon Kilburn, did not give Miss Marshal the support she should have had; however, she struggled valiantly to establish the moods of the songs even if (sotto voce) Mr. Kilburn was insensitive to them. Of the English group "A Piper" (Head), and "Sure on This Shining Night" (Barber) were the most successful. The most impressive of the French were the highly poetic "Soir" (Faure), the favorite bit of mush "Chanson Triste" (Duparc), and the fascinating "Le Coucou" (Canteloupe).

Despite the lack of sympathetic accompaniment, Miss Marshall delighted and thrilled her audience. A battered bit of left-over high-school German seems to cover the situation adequately: "Schoen", I muttered to myself, "Schoen".

The Drunkard

Last night at the Royal Alex the New World Theatre Company proved you can tear a passion to tatters and still make it pay. Their suped-up version of The Drunkard —a play gleaned from the drama's most lachrymose era—and the interspersed specialty numbers gave my companion and me many trifling, foolish and thoroughly enjoyable moments.

The waspish may find greater merit in the specialties than in the play proper: so be it. It may not be homogeneous, but it's none of it superfluous. They've got the old play up on its feet by the use of technique which is that of traditional melodrama plus. This sort of thing can be grotesque and hence embarrassing; there isn't a suspicion of this in the show. There's consistency, taste, exuberance, — and some very good variety know-how.

The addition of John Pratt and Murray Matheson to the original Straw Hat nucleus was a happy inspiration. They brought their music with them. We liked "Why did they dig Ma's Grave so deep?" We weren't sure of the waltz, "Only a Glass of Champagne", but we perked up with Mr. Pratt's parodic "Trees". Then we liked Barb Hamilton's and Beth Gillanders' "Whispering Hope"—we didn't catch all the lyrics, but the expressions and gestures more than compensated.

About the play proper: enjoyed Murray Davis (the lush), doubling nicely in the specialties; enjoyed Miss King, Miss Gillanders, Miss Lockhart, threading through the sinuous plot with delightful stylization; hissed William Drew, as mean a villain as ever bit an orphan. A word, too, for Ted Follows; watch him. In fact, watch everything—the ushers, the program, the scenery! Everything's worth it.

Mel Breen.

Russian-Yank Power Drive Is Criticized

Delegates from the University of Toronto International Relations Club attended a week-end conference with representatives of 130 American Universities and two Canadian on the subject of American-Russian relations.

Key Speech

Ed Cosford, the President of the Toronto club, made a keynote speech on "A Student Looks at World Affairs," Friday night, headed up the important Resolutions Committee, was member of the Steering Committee and a joint reporter. Doug Scott, also from U of T, reviewed the film "Indonesian Independence" in a report to the conference. Other members of the Toronto delegation served on the round table discussions, with the result that a great many Toronto resolutions were adopted, and M. Paul Crepeau of the University of Montreal was elected Secretary for next year's conference.

Peace Is Possible

The three main speakers at the conference were Dr. Clyde Eagleton who spoke on the "U.S. and Soviets in the United Nations", Dr. Herbert Feis who spoke on "Economic Relations between the U.S. and the Soviets", and Dr. Phillip Morrison who spoke on the "The Problems of Controlling Atomic Energy". The first and last speakers held out some hope of peace through the UN if the U.S. and Soviet would be willing to compromise and would stop being so "pig-headed".

Impresses Americans

The Americans were much impressed by Ed Cosford's speech and one of them summed it up by saying "it was good for us to hear someone saying 'you' to us instead of the 'we' that we are used to hearing". Speaking briefly in French, Cosford pointed to Canada as an example of how divergent races and cultures can live together in harmony. "It is not a two-power world", he said and urged the U.S. to consider other viewpoints than their own. Now that the U.S. was physically mature, it is necessary that they exercise judgment and tolerance, Cosford stated.

Toronto Delegates Active

The U of T delegation were active on all the groups on Ideology, Political Relations, the United Nations, Economic Relations, and the "Third Force" and stressed the importance of the rights of nations other than the two great powers, and the solution if it comes will likely come through the efforts of the smaller nations.

The Toronto delegation was composed of Ed Cosford, Chairman; Guy Clarkson, Vice-Chairman; Sally Stewart; Ramona Thomas; Doug Scott; Mary Dunlop; Kent McDonald; Elisa Pettifer; Barbara Cosford and Dudley Burland.

War With Russia To Be Discussed By Noted Author

Leslie Roberts, author and journalist, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the International Relations Club, Tuesday, Nov. 23, to be held in the Women's Union theatre at 4:15 p.m. The subject of his address will be "Under what circumstances would Russia go to war?"

Mr. Roberts spent the summer travelling through the Soviet Union and adjoining states, Scandinavia and Britain. The purpose of this tour was to study the impact of Soviet-American collision upon Europe and its people.

Roberts was born in Wales and emigrated with his parents to the United States at the age of 12. Shortly after he and his parents moved to Montreal.

During World War I, he served as an officer in the Royal Flying Corps and later in the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Need All Biography Cards To Complete Torontonensis

"Approximately 2,000 of 3,800 biography cards have been received by the Torontonensis staff to date," Editor John Sullivan said Friday. The deadline for receipt of the cards, which had been set for November 15th, has been set ahead to Nov. 29.

"Since we have no furniture and no phone in our office we have been hampered in our organizational work", Sullivan said. Because of this many cards had been sent to faculty representatives later than had been expected, and it was impossible to have these returned by the fifteenth.

Space sale to date has practically filled the alloted pages and is being held open until November 23 in order that all those wishing space may buy it.

No complete reports on sales of the year book to the students are available yet, although early returns indicate that sales will be better than anticipated.

The Torontonensis Editor said that he understood how people feel about paying $2 for the year book, but explained that the charge had to be made to cover "the rising costs of printing, engraving and paper." He pointed out that Torontonensis is paid for out of the fees received by the SAC. These fees have not risen at all in recent years, and some way to cut down on expected deficit this year of about $13,000 had to be found. The cost to graduates will be two dollars, while undergraduates wishing to buy the magazine will have to pay six dollars. In this way it is hoped that the Torontonensis deficit will not be more than $7,000.

Sullivan urged that all biography cards be turned into faculty representatives or to the Torontonensis office in the COTC Building, 119 St. George St., as soon as possible. Graduates wishing to buy the year book may place their orders with their faculty representatives, while undergraduates who want copies may order theirs in either of the SAC offices.

UC Women to Hear Talk On Vic's Amalgamation

UC women will have an opportunity to learn how one college on the campus amalgamated its men's and women's student societies, when a speaker from the V.C.U. will address the W.U.A. Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Women's Union Theatre. Amalgamation of the Lit. and the W.U.A. was proposed recently and all sides of the question will be presented to the students before a plebiscite is held.

UBC Undergrads Demand Strict Finance Control

Vancouver, Nov. 17, —(CUP)— Students at the University of British Columbia will be asked to approve over fourteen resolutions at the next meeting of the Alma Mater society calling for strict control of student monies. The resolutions are designed to limit "large capital expenditures which have endangered the financial position of the Society". Formation of the Committee was ordered to investigate charges of "diversion of student funds" accounting for a deficit of $20,000.

The Department of Spanish, Italian, and Portuguese announced last week that the Republic of Uruguay has established annual prizes to be awarded to students ranking highest in Spanish in first, second, third and fourth years of the Honor Course, and in the third year of the pass course.

Rugby Should Stay Is Debate Verdict; Is Unifying Factor

The resolution "that the University of Toronto should withdraw from intercollegiate football" was defeated last night in the Victoria College Debating Parliament by a vote of 14-10. An S.P.S. team of Tom Faul and Earnest Fedryk opposed the motion which was supported by a Vic team of Steve Endicott and Diane Rodgers.

Football Unites University

"The purpose of football is to develop competition; to teach us to win and to lose; to make us all-round citizens rather than dry scholars," said Tom Faul, first speaker of the negative.

"What other activity does this university have which unites grads and undergrads, artsmen and skulemen, other than intercollegiate football?" asked Earnest Fedryk, second speaker for the negative.

The S.P.S. team pointed out that publicity brought to the university by football was favourable. "People in Western Canada never hear of McMaster University but they hear of this university. And why? It's our football team," said Fedryk.

The leader of the affirmative, Steve Endicott, IV History, in beginning the debate, qualified the stand he and his colleague were taking by saying that "Toronto should not withdraw from intercollegiate football for all time but just for the present."

"In its present state, intercollegiate football is exercising pernicious influences on university life and until these are remedied the government believes that Toronto should withdraw from competition," Endicott said.

His main criticism was that the spirit aroused by the sport equated football to university. "When people think of our university they think of football. A true university spirit should be based on scholarship, drama and music as well as sports," the speaker contended.

Diane Rodgers, III Pol. Sci. and Ec., the second affirmative speaker said that the present setup is detrimental to students. "Instead of creating leadership it creates uncritical emotionalism," she said.

Mines Department Interviews Grads For Survey Work

"We need so many men, anyone who applies is practically certain to get a job," declared W. H. Miller of the Department of Mines and Resources Friday as he interviewed potential mappers and surveyors in the Mining Building.

The Mapping and Surveying Bureau of the Mines Department, which the Ottawa official represents, seeks 100 students graduating next year for permanent positions in the bureau as chiefs of field teams which will undertake topographical, hydrographic, geodetic and legal surveys of unmapped areas of the Dominion.

Qualifications are a civil, mining or mechanical engineering background, with surveying experience preferred but not necessary.

"Desperate" Need For Surveyors

Miller stressed the "desperate need" for qualified men to map and survey various parts of Canada for future development.

Residence would be in Ottawa with four summer months in the field, anywhere in Canada, but currently particularly in the Maritimes, Yukon and the Northwest Territories, and the other eight months spent in office work. The work would consist of heading field survey teams, consisting mostly of student assistants, which would specialize in field-photo topography to control the air-photos made of the same area.

Salary Stated

Salary starts at $2400 basic for Grade I workers, with annual increases which guarantee that a graduate engineer would have a salary of $3900 after 7 years in the bureau. At the start, surveying experience will count for additional pay.

"You will never get wealthy, but it's a good life," Miller stated.

Final date for application is March 1949. Further information may be obtained from the University Placement Service.

Jax Java Prices Upped Two Cents As Of Wednesday

The price of coffee in the Hart House Ajax Tuck Shop will be raised to 7 cents, commencing Wednesday, it was announced last night. A special meeting of the Hart House Ajax House Committee was called to discuss the problem of Tuck Shop revenues, and the raise was approved. Roy Loken, Hart House supervisor pointed out that the revenues of the Tuck Shop had dropped considerably from last year, and that the cost of labor had risen proportionately, making an increase absolutely necessary.

McGill Students Asked For Funds For New Buildings

Montreal, Que., Nov. 17—(CUP)— The students' share of the $9,075,000 McGill Fund Campaign has been set at $25,000. A corps of canvassers is already active at McGill, Dawson and Macdonald College. This goal must be reached.

It is hoped that each student will contribute three to five dollars to the campaign.

Arrangements are being made to set up a pledge system whereby students may make their contributions over a period of time.

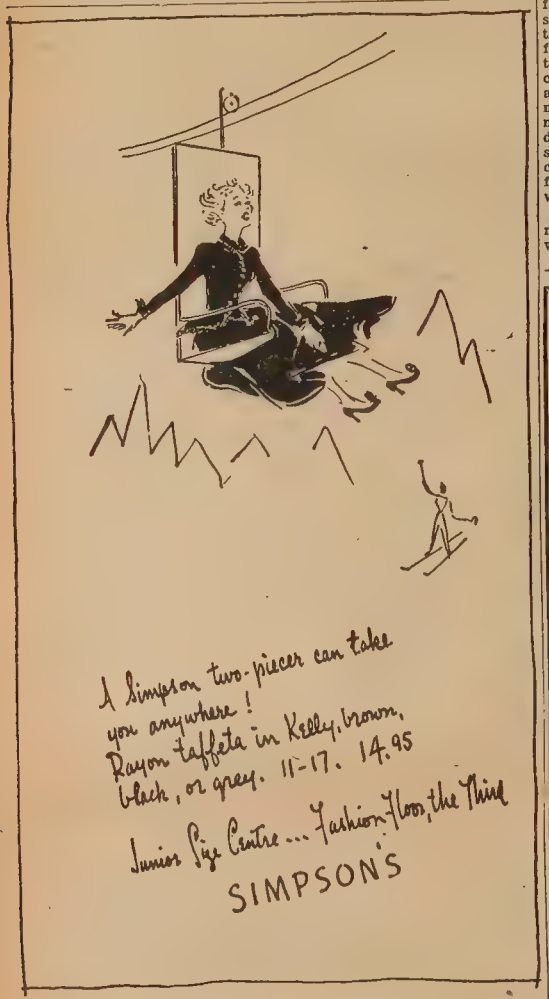
McGill students are well aware of the Alma Mater's inadequate and overtaxed facilities. Equipment is antiquated, classrooms and laboratories too small for proper instruction to be given and libraries are in great need of expansion.

The campaign is to raise funds to modernize the facilities of the university to meet the pressing demands of its increased enrolment.

Chance Seen For Grads To Train As Assessors

University graduates in commerce and finance, accounting and business administration will have a chance this year to enter the Department of National Revenue as Assessors in Training with a starting salary of $2100-2400 per annum.

The Civil Service Commision has announced the inception of a continuing examination for assessors consisting of a review of education and experiences of candidates, followed by oral interviews.



So We Came Anyway

No, a girl can't win. We heard what might be called two sets of antinomies the other day which pretty well state the case. When a woman graduates from a university these days her choice of a job is the object of considerable scrutiny on the part of her acquaintances. If she goes into teaching, the general opinion is that she is burying herself, that she will soon be in a rut, that she probably is in one already. If, on the other hand, she chooses something like journalism or travel in which she is likely to meet people other than inattentive and restless adolescents, she is accused of "going where there are lots of men", or of doing something "non-essential".

Which brings us to the second antinomy. The female graduate who sports a diamond ring along with her bunny-fur and sheepskin came to college, the cynics say, for the sole purpose of getting a man. She who has the white stuff and the diploma without the sparkler becomes the victim of the same cynics. "She came to college to get a man," they say. "And she flunked her major subject."

Along this line, a third antinomy comes to mind. Girls in Pass Arts face the jeers of those who consider the course a mere waste of time, an excuse to spend three carefree years filling in the gap between school and marriage. At the other extreme, the women who are ambitious enough to get into the medical and engineering schools meet with male (and some female) disapproval from the start. Professional women are perpetually accused of losing everything from femininity to humanity and individuality in their work.

Funny nobody ever accuses a man of coming to college to get a woman.

Women Doctors,

Are Women Doctors Good? U of T Grads Give Answer

So you don't think women can make good doctors. Students who happened to read the Saturday Evening Post's article on this subject in its issue of November 15th might have adopted a new point of view. The University of Toronto, the article states, has led not only in the field of medicine in general but in the enrollment of women it has permitted in the past few years. Our University has the largest percentage of women in its medical classes of any North American institution where medical science is taught.

Looking back at grads of former years, we see the remarkable record of the first woman graduate in the Faculty of Medicine at the U of T. She was the daughter of a woman who had gone to the United States to take her own medical training, and in the course of her own studies here she had to surmount the many difficulties ordinarily in the path of the student as well as those which, at that time particularly, harassed women undergraduates. In 1883, she became the first woman doctor to graduate in Canada and a year later was joined by her mother in becoming a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Canada's first woman doctor was Dr. Augusta Stowe-Gullen.

Women Medical College

It was through Dr. Stowe-Gullen's efforts that in her graduating year the University medical authorities saw fit to incorporate a special college for women (which had three students in its first session) and which continued until 1903. It was at this time that the University became officially co-educational.

There were outstanding people in the first few years but in particular Dr. Daisy M. Macklin, who graduated in 1895, and who went with her brother to China, became a distinguished member of her profession. Dr. Helen MacMurchy was honoured for her work when she received the C.B.E., and Dr. Jessie Gray was the first woman to take part in the panel meetings of the American College of Surgeons at Los Angeles.

Top Registration

At present, the U T can claim the lead in the North American field of medical education for women. Among its 964 medical students this year are 96 women. This figure represent a drop over the last two or three years, since in 1946-47, there were 121 women attending medical lectures. This year's graduating class has 32 women members, many of whom expect to enter such important fields as obstetrics, gynocology or pediatrics.

At a dinner this year, Dean MacFarlane of the Faculty of Medicine expressed the current more favourable attitude in the profession as a whole towards its women members when he spoke of the wonderful work they have done and are doing. The prejudices which so hampered them first are gradually disappearing in the admiration which so many people feel for those who have pushed their way into the front ranks of a great profession.

Active Undergrads

Here at the University, women in medicine have taken an active part in student activities, proving themselves good organizers, all-round athletes and cooperative workers in social activities and entertainment. Meds teams have been outstanding in the last few years in the annals of women's sports, with Lois Lloyd representing both her faculty and the university in intercollegiate swimming. Girls have proven themselves essential in the annual presentation of the Faculty, Daffydil, which comes up just before Christmas.

Not to be forgotten too, are the tasks performed by the 44 women physicians who enlisted in the Army Medical Corps during the war. The first woman to be commissioned as a Medical Officer in the Canadian Army was Capt. Marion Ross, a U of T graduate who accompanied troops in the invasion of Sicily. A recent grad is Dr. Henrietta Banting, widow of the co-discoverer of insulin, who left not long ago to do medical work in Hong Kong.

Besides sitting on Bloor Street roofs, would-be tickets holders not only leaned out of windows in the Ec building and stood on its roof, but two bold males were clinging to the side of the building about three floors up. At first glance it looked as if they were hanging onto the drain pipe from the eaves but closer crutiny revealed that that they were standing on a fire escape ladder. (Both these venturers went in after awhile, either from the cold or the dizzifying height.)

Western's take-off of Rippartee Rappartee sounded exactly like the original on the other side of the stadium where the words were unintelligible. Thanks for the support, Western!

Metras found a "lucky" black cat for himself before the game. If 18 points hadn't already made it lose its nine lives twice, Metras must have drowned it after the game.

Under the goal posts raised on the steps of the city hall, Sidney Smith, representing the whole University of Toronto, kissed Coach Bob Masterson. Immediately the repeated cry went up "Okay, Sid, let's do it again."

Skulemen carried the goal posts back to the stadium after the rally at the city hall. One lone Skuleman was asking later, "Where did everyone go? If we'd had more people we could have raised the posts at Bloor and Avenue Road after we had upped them at Bay and Wellesley."

While marching down to the city hall and back, the chief joy of many was pulling the trolley poles off the wires and then enjoying the pyro-technical display while the conductor struggled to get them back in place.

* * *

A few trolley-puller-offers came to an abrupt halt when rushing around the end of one lighted street-car. They found the conductor valiantly standing guard over his power line.

The top song on the Varsity hit parade after the game was "London Bridge has fallen down".

One adventurous chap spent most of his time in the last half running up the roof of the Arena trying to catch elusive blue balloons but didn't catch one. When he despaired of catching balloons he climbed up on a spotlight standard where he swayed contentedly back and forth.

When there was only four minutes to go, three Blues tackled Parry and literally swept the referee off his feet. Earlier in the game, Hec Creighton looked like all-star material when he ran in and grabbed the ball after a Western fumble.

The white "horse" gave Marjie some close competition during her jive routine as it kicked up its heels in front of her and nearly knocked one photographer's camera for a loop.

Distaff Side

By DOREEN JESSOP

Do you generate your own electricity? If not you'll probably be interested in a scheme advocated by one of our professors. It involves a home generating plant.

All you need is a couple of old alley cats and a wheel capable of rotating rapidly. Drape one of the cats over the wheel holding the other up to it so that the fur flies in the wrong way. By the light of the resultant sparks you should be able to read, that is if you can hold the book in your feet. You might try catching the sparks in a bottle like fireflies.

If it doesn't work maybe you have the wrong kind of cat, or else you've plugged the wheel in while the power is off.

For further information please consult the Boner Book.

VIC'S CORNER

With Hydro switches being pulled all over Toronto, the question of the day seems to be .. "Are you in the dark?" Of course if you read the Corner regularly you're not when it comes to matters concerning Vic. However, fellow-students, in one respect you are in the dark. The wool is being pulled over your peepers. BUT we intend to reveal the light. Read on.

To date, "The Dance of Romance", the Vic Informal, has been advertised as the best dance on the Campus. Strictly Scarlet propaganda. "The Dance of Romance", to put it in the pungent vernacular ... STINKS! Benny Louis and his worm-eaten wood winds provide a disguised form of music for dancing in the main gym. In addition three orchestras will attempt to play in other parts of Hart House. Who can dance with so much noise?

The decorations, featuring colorful scenes from the Arabian Nights, Alice in Wonderland, and Nursery Rhymes are childish. Granted you won't recognize Hart House, but better you should stay at home and read fairy tales. (Those of you who wish to get a look at these decorations may do so by dropping down to the basement of Vic any afternoon this week. However please come prepared to work ... not to look.)

A limited number of tickets have been put on sale. This means that the dance will not be crowded. But who wants to go to a dance that isn't crowded? No atmosphere. And the price! Atrocious! For the $1.25 admission (per couple) you can get sex copies of the Kinsey Report. This book adds quality to any library. There are still a few tickets left but don't be tricked. Remember, the "Dance of Romance" this Friday night at Hart House ... STINKS! If you don't believe me go and find out for yourself.

The shouting and the color of the Intercollegiate Football season is over. But the color and the shouting here at Vic is just beginning to warm up. The Blues "did it again" ... and so did the Scarlet and Gold. They've wound up another successful season and are making their bid for the Intramural Championship this Wednesday afternoon at 2:15 in Varsity Stadium.

A win against Ajax will send the S & G (not to be confused with the soap) into the finals either Meds or St. Mike's next week. Statistics show that the "Mulock Mug" has been won by Vic five times in the past seven years. The Blues "did it again" and the cry goes up on the Strand .. "Come on Vic ... Let's Keep That Cup."

Arrangements have been made to hold another tealess "T" Dance in the co-educationless Co-Ed Room in Vic tomorrow after the game. Hydro or no hydro, the dance will go on .. or so we are informed by very reliable sources. As usual there'll be the unpredictable spot dances and prizes.

Tickets are now being sold for "IoIanthe" which will be presented in Hart House the week of December 6th. Knowing our Music Club and going by previous productions we've already bought our tickets. If you like Gilbert and Sullivan you can't miss. The tickets are going very quickly. Get yours now in the halls of Vic.

Here's a notice for those people in 5T2 that have nothing in particular to do this Saturday evening. The class is holding a party in Burwash Hall but don't tell a soul. Think of all the extra food, fun and dancing space you'll have to yourself.

* * *

Before closing we have one more profound statement to make. In brief ... "COME ON VIC, LET'S KEEP THAT CUP." See you all at the game on Wednesday.

—Stan "13"

COLE SLAW

A friend of ours has false teeth, complete uppers and lowers, and is continually complaining about them. He has an understandable difficulty eating nuts, and as the Christmas season approaches, his complaints rise to a terrible crescendo. What should otherwise be a season of gayety and gustatory delight, is to him, just a season of more deeply accented gloom. This year, we decided to do something practical for him and purchased a tin of powder designed to keep his dentures in place. It is claimed for this powder, that it will prevent false teeth from slipping, wobbling or whistling. To prove our faith in its merits we sent along a pound of mixed nuts to practise on, and we're now anxiously waiting to see how the experiment works out. If it's successful we're going to buy some for ourself. Just for once'e we'd like to enjoy Christmas dinner, too.

rate my present plans don't include rugby next year."

Co-captains Bill Jarvie and Fabe Curry were more talkative. Jarvie thought Tommy Waldon was the Blues' biggest threat and couldn't understand how the Varsity back was overlooked in the all-star poll.

"The Blues have a good team. Their pass plays were terrific. You might also say that we thought we'd win. And one more thing yet. That tackle by Shore on Wardle was the dirtiest play I've ever seen in my four years of Intercollegiate rugby."

We found Curry quite friendly and co-operative. The tall, blond outside wing thought that "Varsity had the better team, but that the score should have been closer. We ran into a couple of tough breaks in the first quarter too, that didn't help us any."

Ticky Duck commented that "Varsity's pass plays were better than ours. They're really a good team."

Bill Downe said that "Varsity showed more sportsmanship than either Queen's or McGill. And on today's game they deserved to win."

When we asked Bob Phibbs what he thought of the game, he threw his hands up in the air and exclaimed, "Who knows? You can say though that next year we've got some good boys coming up to the team, and that we'll be right in there again."

Big George Wearring told us that he'd be back next year, but smilingly replied to our usual question that he had nothing to say.

Reg Ort commented on the poor quality of refereeing in the league throughout the regular schedule, but that "today's game was alright." Ort was not the only Mustang to criticize the reffing. Three or four other players told us the same thing.

Varsity captain Ian Clarke and Dave Copp dropped into the Mustang dressing-room to ask about Bill Wardle, who was later sent to the hospital. Both received congratulations from Metras.

a Bank

THE VEIN proves rich, a shaft is sunk, and a new mining town springs into life. The main street takes form. Commercial buildings rise.

When such a development occurs, the services of a bank are needed — to handle payrolls, to keep savings accounts and, as the town grows, to furnish bank credit for the needs of the community.

This is a basic pattern in Canada's development. And part of it is the local bank manager, providing those financial services which help Canadian men and women to win the rewards of modern enterprise and modern living.

Medsmen Yank Dents 18-0 Advance To Semi-Finals

By JOHN KENNEDY

Dents' six game win streak was cut short yesterday afternoon up at Varsity Stadium, when Senior Meds rugby team walloped them 18-0, to advance into the Mulock Cup semi-final come Thursday. The key-note of Meds' win was their hard-charging line which blocked four kicks and were often found in the Dents' back field.

Jimmy Smith and Tony Cecutti started the Meds' ball rolling early in the first quarter on their broken field running which brought them well into the Dentists' territory. Gabe Varga threw a long pass to Wilf Anderson which brought the ball to the Dents' 25, from where Al Varga kicked to Gord Woolidge, who was tackled by Tony Cecutti behind the Dent line for a single point.

The Doctors' first major score came off a blocked kick which Don Smith gobbled up and ran twenty yards to the Dents' end-zone. Cecutti's convert attempt hit the upright. Shortly after, Jimmy Smith made sure of a single point by hoofing one into the north end track seats. Dents were awarded the ball on the forty and Gord Woolidge hit for yards twice successively. Bill Kendrick hauled him down the last time just when it looked as if he were away.

In the second quarter Meds made some good run backs of kicks, one of which went for thirty yards when Varga and Cecutti worked the old but seldom seen cut-back.

Meds were frequently able to get the ball up into scoring position but usually lost possesion due to an intercepted pass. Ken Ryan was the man to foil the Medsmen in this manner in the second quarter.

Dents, for variation at the start of the second half, returned the kick-off. There were penalties galore in this period and at one time it was Meds' third down and sixty to go. Wilf Anderson heaved a couple of long passes to Cecutti and Jeffs which put Meds into position for their second major. While the Med line held, Al Varga took plenty of time in finding Tony Cecutti under the Dent goal posts with a fifteen yard pass. The convert was blocked.

Bob Hannah made some nice holes for Woolidge of Dents to make use of in the last canto but they never really threatened a superior medical team.

Al Varga kicked his second point when Macdonald rouged Moore. Meds moved into scoring range on a series of passes which were culminated by a run around the end by Wilf Anderson for a TD. Dents then proceeded to go pass happy but were unable to break into the scoring column. Wes Moore, Gord Woolidge and Irwin White were the stars of the Dent aggregation while the Vargas, Cecutti and the Smiths starred for the Meds.

Western Stars Laud Varsity In Interview

By ED VOIGHT

It took the Western Mustangs about ten minutes to reconcile themselves to the fact that they had just lost the Yates Cup when they tramped into their dressing room after Saturday's game. From then on, we got the impression that they knew the game was over, that they'd lost, that there was no use crying over it, so as one of the managers commented, "Why worry about it?"

Don McFarlane and Jack Parry were two exceptions. While all the rest of the team were chatting and yelling spasmodically to one another, the two backfield stars sat on the dressing-room benches in stolid silence.

McFarlane was so disappointed that he didn't even bother to remove his helmet. Don just sat there, his elbows on his knees, puffing slowly at a cigarette and sipping a ginger-ale. When we asked him if he had anything to comment on, McFarlane quietly replied, "Sorry, I've got nothing to say."

Parry wouldn't talk about the game, but told us the pleasing news (from a Toronto point of view, at least) that he didn't intend to play rugby for Western next year. We asked him why not.

"Well, next year is my last year Medicine, and I'd sort of like to get some work done."

We commented that he just felt disappointed and let-down, and come next autumn he'd be out with the team again.

"Well, that could be, but at any

The "Ghost" Walks Again At Varsity

By BOB REID

A week before the football season began a poll of alleged Varsity Sports Staff experts was taken to determine how many games the Senior Blues were capable of winning. The estimates ranged from an optimistic six to a decidedly pessimistic two. This reporter had the unenviable distinction of calling the Blues to win but two games. How wrong can you be? Like Gallup, Roper, Crosley this shattering miscalculation called for a complete investigation of its complex aspects.

After checking with all the wholesale drug companies in Toronto, it was disconcerting to learn that not a drop of benzedrene had been delivered to the U. of T. during the last three months. Discarding one lead after another the factor that shattered the prognostications of the alleged experts and the myth of Western football invincibility was discovered. What was it? A basketball game. (A basketball game — has this guy been psycho-analysed lately). Yes, children, a basketball game that all who witnessed will never forget. How could anyone forget the game that featured bursting excitement, tension, a near riot and a last second basket by Wally Zeaton that ended Western's domination of the Intercollegiate basketball scene. It was more than that, for as the uninhibited, unprecedented, enthusiasm swept Hart House, a ghost returned to Varsity. The name of this spirit was "School" (not to be confused with "Skule"). Apparently this spirit liked what he, she or it saw, for he, she or it was seen and felt (even drunk) by many all season. Here a word for the Blue and White Society is appropriate. Their knowledge of spirits was obvious. I talked to this spirit yesterday and there is bad news tonight — for Western. The spirit has decided to stay.

Student Ducats For CRU Tilt Go Rapidly

The student ticket sale for the Grey Cup final game between the Ottawa Rough Riders and the Calgary Stampeders took place yesterday at the Varsity Stadium and was completed with the dispatch characteristic of former East-West finals sales.

A total of 740 tickets were allotted for the student sale to be divided between Toronto and Ajax. This allotment was arrived at with a view to the number of tickets bought by students for previous Canadian Rugby Union games. This number has varied between 63 ducats bought by students for the Hamilton-Argonauts game on October 9th and 167 which was the all-year high, for the Argo-Ottawa meeting on November 6th.

The tickets were controlled by the organization which has engaged the stadium for the game and not by the Athletic Association of the University of Toronto. It will be noted that the 740 tickets allotted for the coming Saturday is a quota almost five times the amount of the student sale for the regular league games.

Sr. Meds-Dents Afterthoughts

By HAL HOLDEN

Dents' loss to Sr. Meds. was their first of the Intramural season but it came at a bad time. The defeat bumps Dents off the playoff path to the Mulock Cup.

Losers' coach, Ted Engles, was not too disconsolate over his team's first defeat, had the air of a man who fought a good fight but lost to a better man. "They were far superior," said he. Engles was quick to give Meds credit for their win. A sympathizer tried to offer a consoling thought but Engles wasn't having any. "Tough? No, they deserved to win."

End Wes Moore was the best man on the field for Dents; for that matter who could touch him in the Meds' lineup? The crowd gave Moore a well-deserved hand as he left the field in the fourth quarter after spilling Meds' ball carriers on their rompers with All-Bran regularity. Moore went into the Meds' locker-room after the game looking for his missing coat. The Medicine men were probably wondering if they would ever see the last of him.

Morley Thomas would not make any prediction as to the outcome of his club's second playoff test with the powerful Double Blue aggregation from St. Mike's. "I haven't seen St. Mike's play all year, but the boys feel that they will give us more trouble than Vic. But I like to take them one game at a time. Vic always put up a battle."

AJAX SPORTS NOTES

The Jr. SPS rugby team are in high spirits after their victory over Trinity on Friday. In spite of bad conditions, the Jaxmen assured themselves of a spot in the quarter-final playoff against Vic, last year's Mulock Cup champs.

Junior Skule will be practicing hard for the next two days for the match. Julie Hanson, outstanding plunging back, will return to the Ajax aggregation in time for the playoff.

Coaches, Scribes Elect Interfaculty All Stars

By BILL ROSS

The interfaculty football coaches in conjunction with the sports staff of The Varsity have picked their all-star selections from all the teams competing in the intramural loop this year. Two squads were picked with twenty-five men making up their complement. St. Mike's A leads the list of contributors with seven men from their squad making the grade, followed closely by Sr. Meds who list six.

Forestry and Dents made fine showings for Group three teams as the former had three of their men on the list and the latter two. Vic, of group one, had four players on the squad to take third place and Ajax, Trinity and Sr SPS each had one member nominated.

The first string boasts Lorne Lodge of Vic at the flying wing position and teammate Harry Damp at half. Lorne McIntyre of St. Mike's is deadlocked with Fred Collict of Forestry for another half spot and Al Varga of Sr Meds holds down the remaining half post. Tony Cecutti, Meds' starry quarter, is in the pivot spot. Mike man Sam O'Hara is snapback and Rick Ricci of Meds and Bob Hannah from Dents occupy the inside positions. Sr. SPS man Gordon and Murray of Meds play middle on the dream team while the outside wings are Ed Brennan of St. Mike's and Vic's Stew Howard.

MacMcCagherty and Phil Austin of Ajax and Forestry respectively are flying wing and half on the second squad. Jim Smith of Meds and Bill Kelly of St. Mike's combine to complete the half line. Dick Brown quarters this squad which has Rob Dowsett of Vic as centre and Bud Brennan of St. Mike's and Al Tamosetis from Forestry at inside. Bucko MacDonald of the double blue A team and Alley of Trinity share middle duties. Bob Jeffs, a Medsman, and Wes Moore of Dents round out the aggregation at end.

Ski Clubbers Working Party Clears Trails

By CONN SPARROW

Sunday morning, the first work party started in on the ski grounds at Newmarket, with a vengeance. John Rankin, SPS, was in charge of the nine stalwarts, whose number was cut by those still celebrating the Varsity triumph.

However, a great deal of work was done and although numerous rubbed hands, broken fingernails, muddy shoes, coats and trousers resulted from the day's job, there was a smug smile of satisfaction on the faces of all, as they headed back to town, after rolling nearly all the big and little stones off John Rankin's instruction hill.

Both girls and boys pitched in and even the sad things seemed funny. Two of the girls, after taking off their coats and putting them on a big rock to keep them clean, carefully dropped a boulder in some muddy water beside the rock and the climax was quite "splashy".

One of the boys stirred the coffee with his penknife and then remembered that he had just used it to clean all the mud—and stuff off his shoes.

A ski tow which Dan Gibson is building at the north end of the property is nearing completion and the hill it serves looks quite roomy for all kinds of skiers.

The jump was surveyed and is badly in need of some new boards, while the hill and run-off below will have to be "brushed". Some of the trails, near the ski shack will have to be cleared, as well.

Speaking Of Sport

By GEORGE MacFARLANE

As Eddie Huycke said after the game, "I guess that'll show 'em eh!

As Brother Doug said after the game, "Well, at last I'm convinced."

As everyone else said after the game, "Yee-hoo!"

For the faithful, and there were more than usual, the victory is indeed sweet. Congratulations to Bobby (Globe and Mail) Rosenfeld, one of the few Toronto sportswriters who called Varsity in both final games against Western. As Bobby said, "Metras says he'll have a different team out there for the playoff, but I'll string along with the Blues because Bob Masterson says he'll have the same team out there."

Last Monday the London Free Press ran a cartoon of Johnny Metras sorrowfully pulling a pair of overalls out of a large bowl of chowder. The overalls were labelled "Varsity Blues", and the caption read "Who threw the overalls in Mr. Metras' chowder?" Now it appears the Blues have stolen the chowder right from under his nose.

While the roses are being handed around for the fine sportsmanship that was shown by both teams in Saturday's game, let's toss a thorn or two. No. 1 on the thorn parade goes back to Jack Park, sports editor of the Free Press. Apparently Mr. Park was trying to incite a "ya gotta hate 'em" attitude when he wrote about "Bill Danylchuk's uncalled for, vicious attack on Jack Parry". He goes on to say that while Parry was on the ground, Danylchuk crashed into the motionless Western player.

Careful study of motion pictures taken of the play shows that Parry was about to break one tackler and that he was "definitely" moving forward, and not even falling when Danylchuk smashed into him. If there was anything dirty about the play it was the piling on that followed Danylchuk's smash. Dany didn't even fall, let alone Parry.

The Western players didn't seem particularly impressed by Park's tirade. They had plenty of opportunity to get back at Danylchuk in yesterday's game, but didn't seem inclined to do so.

1948 is now a Red-Letter year, and to you Mr. Woodrow, a loud and prolonged guffaw.

Student Votes Award Trophy To Footballer

Tomorrow noon will mark the advent of a brand new and important institution in Varsity football tradition when the Most Popular Player Award will be presented for the first time to the member of the current Yates Cup winners chosen by the student body as their "Mr. Football" for the year. The place will be the Zion Church at the corner of Elizabeth and College and numerous celebrities will be in attendance.

Playoff Films

Movies of the playoff game will be shown at 12.15 followed by the presentation of the cup. An additional movie will be shown afterwards if the attendance is sufficient to warrant a second screening. These films are the handiwork of Art Chetwynd, of the Athletic Office, which were taken from the roof of Varsity Stadium for training and display purposes.

Coach Bob Masterson and his mustang busters will be there, as well as Warren Stevens, head man in the Varsity athletic setup. If the Yates Cup arrives from its former semi-permanent abode in London in time, it also will be on display.

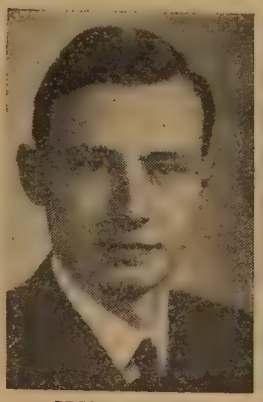
The trophy is donated by The Varsity and is unique in that the recipient is chosen by the student body. The Johnny Copp trophy, awarded to the player who has contributed the most to his team in the opinion of his fellow players, does not necessarily reflect the choice of all the students. With this in mind, the award to be presented tomorrow was instituted.

Annual Award

This cup will be awarded annually at the end of the football season in years to come and this premier presentation promises to be nothing short of a monumental event.

Crowd Expected

The presentation will be the last big event for the 1948 season. If the terrific school spirit which has manifested itself through the co-operation of the Blue and White society and the students hasn't died out by now, the little church turned lecture hall will be packed to the choir loft with football fans who appreciate what the Big Blues have done this year.



Final Day

Today is the final day for the voting and a ballot will be found on page four of this issue. The ballot boxes will be collected at three o'clock this afternoon after which time no votes will be accepted.

British Debaters

REGINALD GALER

ANTHONY COX

Coming here after a debating tour of American universities, the two British students shown above will clash with U of T debaters tomorrow against a resolution stating that the British Empire is decadent.

Touring English Students Debate British Decadence

A visiting team of British debaters will defend the British Empire against an attack from a University of Toronto team Thursday. The debate, which is sponsored by the Hart House Debates Committee and the University of Toronto Debating Union, will be on the resolution: "That the British Empire is decadent."

The local team, taking the affirmative, will be Martin Shublk, Graduate Studies, and Norm DePoe, IV U.C. The negative will be upheld by J. Anthony Cox, of Bristol University and Regnal Galer of Birmingham University.

Both Cox and Galer are veterans, now completing their university courses. Cox, who passed his Intermediate examination in Law at Bristol University before joining the Royal Marines in 1942, has seen service in Belgium, Holland and northern Germany. He has already completed most of his final examinations for the bar.

Galer, a Navy man, served for six years and was commissioned in 1942. He has visited Russia, Iceland, the Mediterranean and the Far East. He is reading history at Birmingham.

Both the English debaters are thoroughly familiar with the topic. They have been speaking several times a week during their tour of American universities, debating one of four topics chosen in advance. It is hoped that the idea of touring teams will be reversed next year, and that American debaters will be able to visit England. English teams have toured North America for years.

The debate will start at 8:15 on Thursday in Strachan Hall, Trinity. The speaker of the house will be D. H. Hay, IV Victoria, and the usual procedure for debates at the University of Toronto will be followed.

Music Materials To Be Displayed In Conservatory

President Sidney Smith of the University of Toronto and Sir Ernest MacMillan, Dean of the Faculty of Music, will conduct the opening ceremonies of the Instrumental Music Materials Clinic, Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., to be held in the Recital Hall of the Royal Conservatory of Music.

Featured at the clinic will be an orchestra and a band made up of faculty students, as well as exhibits from various music publishers. Besides students who intend to make a career of teaching music in the schools, there will be orchestral directors from schools throughout the province, and members of the Canadian Band Masters Association.

Emphasis at the clinic will be on music publications suitable for school use. After each of the performances, discussion groups will be held.

Province May Help Forestry Grads Says Ont. Minister

A few specific points of government policy on forestry were explained at a meeting of the Forestry Club last night, by the Hon. H. R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests in the Ontario Government. Mr. Scott talked on five questions submitted to him by the executive of the Forestry Club.

Aerial Survey

In answer to a question concerning the recent steps taken by the government to manage Crown Lands, Mr. Scott said the government was carrying through an inventory of Ontario forests, to see just what trees and how many of them Ontario has. In conjunction with this a survey rates of growth is being carried out, the minister said. The inventory is being taken by survey and by ground checking, and it is expected that all data should be in by 1951 or 1952, Mr. Scott stated.

The government is also trying to eliminate what Mr. Scott calls "lumber ghost towns", towns that have grown up around saw mills, and then are abandoned when all the timber has been cut off the surrounding land. This condition will be remedied, the government hopes, by new legislation which limits the amount of timber that may be cut in any one year by a company, and also by ensuring that new companies have sufficient land to cut timber on.

Financial Aid

Government policy on the export of raw wood is reverting to the pre-depression policy of not selling raw wood from Ontario, Mr. Scott said. "Inside of ten years no raw wood will be going out of the province We will be selling only manufactured goods."

Replying to a question on the government's policy in furthering post graduate work by foresters, and whether the department of Lands and Forests would extend financial assistance, Mr. Scott said "If the work of the forester was beneficial to the Department then we would certainly give financial assistance."

U. of T. Needs Guides For Carabins

Hosts and hostesses are urgently needed for the 40 Universite de Montreal students who will be at the University of Toronto for the ISS French-Canadian weekend, December 3, 4, 5. Volunteers must be free to look after their guests on Saturday, December 4, as well as be able to provide accommodation for a student for Friday and Saturday nights. Please sign the list in the Men's or Women's SAC Office right away.

Set Back Speech To End of Week

Leslie Roberts, well-known author and journalist, was unable to give a scheduled speech to the International Relations Club yesterday afternoon. Mr. Robert's publishers phoned to say that his car had broken down on his way from a southern Ontario town. Ed. Cosford, President of the IRC announced that Mr. Roberts will speak on Friday afternoon, at 4 15 p m

Doug Scott outlined the tentative plans for a trip to Ottawa this spring. Forty or fifty members will be guests of the Department of External Affairs for a weekend. Members will be shown through the parliament buildings and will be addressed by secretary of state, L. B. Pearson. Scott asked members who could drive down to contact him.

JOLLIFFE SPEECH

E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the official opposition in the Ontario legislature, will address an open meeting of the University of Toronto CCF Club today at 1 p. m. in West Hall, University College on the Hydro situation in Ontario.

Faculty Members To Judge Entries In U of T Contest

Thirty-five dollars in cash prizes will be awarded to the winners in each class for The Varsity literary issue to be published December 17.

First prize in each class will be $5. with a second prize of $2. Entries will be accepted for fiction, essays, serious verse, light verse and photography.

Judges for the literary entries will be Dr. M. M. McLuhan, Professor of English in St. Michael's College, who will judge the poetry, and Professor J. D. Robins, head of the English department in Victoria College, who will judge the essays. Judges for the fiction and photography will be announced at a later date.

The deadline for all entries has been set for December 8, in order to allow time for judging. It has been requested, however, that contestants submit entries as early as possible, in order to ease the burden on the judges.

The Varsity's literary issue, it has been pointed out, is the only literary publication on the campus in which members of all colleges and faculties may participate. Other publications of this nature ordinarily print only contributions from members of their own group. The literary issue is open to all comers, the only exception being members of the masthead of The Varsity.

Entries should be submitted according to the usual rules for term essays—that is, on standard size paper, written on one side of the paper only, and double spaced if typewritten. The Varsity will return both successful and unsuccessful entries to contestants, who call for them at the editorial office before December 19, after which remaining manuscripts will be destroyed.

For Distinguished Writing

Offer Prize In Memory Of Varsity Reporter

By NAN McKENZIE

Some writer of The Varsity will receive $100 at the end of this school year for distinguished reporting. The award is being presented in memory of Anita Freedman, former writer on The Varsity and The Globe and Mail. Miss Freedman died in the spring of 1947.

In his office high above King Street, the man for whom UC-grad, Anita Freedman worked, Mr. R. A. Farquaharson, Managing-Editor of the Globe and Mail, said in an interview last week that this young woman during her short career with the paper had shown all the promise of the very rare top-notch reporter.

Top Notch Reporter

Miss Freedman died just as she was starting in what Mr. Farquaharson calls, "a long business". A lot come in, he said, and a lot go out of newspaper work and those who become top-notch reporters are rare. He felt at once that she had the intelligence to make the grade. She had an extra perspective enabling her to see the meaning behind what her interviewee said. He watched her develop along this line that is today more and more in demand as newspapers seek men and women who can report events accurately and explain them in terms readily understood by every reader.

Whether reporters are made or born, said Mr. Farquaharson, some of them take time to develop the necessary qualities and some seem to have them almost immediately. Anita was being assigned senior reporting jobs very shortly after her arrival from the Canadian Press. She joined the staff of CP after graduation, "as an experiment", as her brother, former Music Editor of The Varsity, puts it.

Anita reported public affairs for the Globe and Mail. Her brightness and ability to talk with her subject on any topic that the moment demanded, qualified her well for such work.

A Competent Writer

The Globe and Mail editions follow one another in rapid succession to the street, and whereas many a good writer in working painstakingly on his or her story will miss one or two issues, Anita was an extremely competent writer. She could quickly turn out understandable copy.

The close friends of Miss Freedman have expressed great satisfaction at the $100 award being set up by them in Anita Freedman's name. The suggestion was that of her former English professor, Dr. C. T. Bissel, assistant to the President, that the Anita Freedman Award be granted yearly for the most distinguished reporting on The Varsity.

ANITA FREEDMAN

The award will be presented at the Annual Staff Banquet of The Varsity in March, and will be determined on the basis of the high level of the reporting year, with no specific definition for qualification other than energy, faithfulness, inventiveness, integrity of the reporter concerned. There are no restrictions involved as to the type of writing: writers of sports, news, art, music, book and movie reviewing or features may qualify.

Award Committee

The awarding committee will consist of the editor of The Varsity, on whom the committee will rely heavily for personal references, the secretary-treasurer of the SAC, a member of the faculty appointed by the President, and a representative of the Toronto Press, all of whom will watch The Varsity throughout the year.

Dr. Bissel has expressed the thought with many others who have approved the plan, that the award set up in memory of this popular, young newspaperwoman should be a worthy incentive to journalism on the University of Toronto campus.

What's Wrong With The Press?

(The following editorial is reprinted from the Dalhousie Gazette. It should be of interest in Toronto where our daily newspapers are currently scrambling over themselves to make political capital of the Hydro shortage.)

Last week newspapers all over the United States (and elsewhere) made themselves look a little foolish over their coverage of the United States elections, and some had the rather bad grace to try and make a joke of it afterwards.

Exactly how the American people—to whom freedom of the press is a household god—took the joke is not yet known. The pollsters are, we assume, gathering together the scattered remnants of their prestige before giving the question a try.

It was beginning to dawn on many people last week that freedom was evidently not enough, and that responsibility might have something to do with it.

It all began like this: Once upon a time some person began the rumour that the press was to be free. This was at a time when people were catching up on the idea that freedom was the great essential in all things, the universal solvent which would dissolve all our problems, and the rumour became a maxim of the great new era that was dawning.

The maxim received tremendous impetus from the work of a small number of genuine independents (now, alas, no more) who used their freedom with great skill and judgment and were admitted to the Mecca of the journalist, the syndicated column. Only a few remain, but they have for the most part forsaken the "free" press—except for one or two who linger in the comic strips.

The maxim, however, has reached the status of a legend and grown to vast proportions. It caused a great outcry when the British government proposed to investigate the newspaper "industry" with a view, presumably, to nationalizing it. Freedom of the press was reaching its peak, and developing from a legend into a purpose. Far from being a means, it was regarded as an end.

It will soon become a platitude, when people will realize that freedom is a means only, and that without a reasonable amount of integrity and responsibility it is vicious and dangerous.

ART - MUSIC - DRAMA

Primrose — T.S.O.

The guest artist at last night's T.S.O. concert, William Primrose, has been acclaimed by critics as the outstanding violist of today. In spite of his artistry, however, the program as a whole did not quite measure up to the standard we have come to expect of the T.S.O. this season.

Primrose was heard first in "Concerto on Themes of Camaroso" by Arthur Benjamin. This is a pleasant, neo-classical work which is largely imitative. It is too short to become monotonous, and the ingenious interplay between soloist and orchestra help to maintain a lively interest throughout.

"Harold in Italy", a symphony with viola solo, by Berlioz, practically ignores the viola after the first movement, but in this movement Primrose held the audience spellbound.

It seems indecent to criticize a new work after one hearing, but this week's Canadian contribution, Alex Brott's suite, "From Sea To Sea", must be mentioned if only for its inordinate length. Any one of its five movements (with the possible exception of The Prairies) would make interesting concert music; played all at once it becomes a bit trying. It is not strictly programmatic, but rather a musical travelogue of Canada. Mr. Brott investigated the range of his orchestral colouring within the Maritimes movement, and from there on, in spite of rhythmic variations and the inclusion of several lovely folk melodies, it seemed largely repetitive.

The overture to "The Secret of Suzanne" by Wolf-Ferrari served as a "cute" curtain-raiser.

I have just read the Dentantics show write-up by Harry Rasky, the producer of the U.C. Follies. Apparently Harry did not think much of the show.

I saw Dentantics, I also saw the Follies. Dentantics was a good show.

All I ask Mr. Editor, is that when Skule Nite comes around let someone other than Harry report on it.

Yours sincerely,

DVA To Aid Postgrads Of Merit Preparing For Posts In Canada

A. R. Whitten, Supervisor of Counselling and Training Services for the Department of Veterans' Affairs, clarified the position of student veterans going post-graduate work on the campus, in a statement issued yesterday.

The regulations of the Department of Veterans' Affairs allow for assistance beyond the undergraduate level to certain Veteran students who have distinguished themselves in their studies and whose program of post-graduate work is logically tied in with their occupational objective. Before a Veteran can be approved in the first place for training at the post-graduate level, he must produce evidence of high scholarship from the University from which he graduated in his undergraduate course, show the need for post-graduate study and not only be accepted into the School of Graduate Studies, but be approved by the Committee of the Graduate School for a definite program of studies in a definite department or departments, and as a candidate for a degree. In addition, it must be established that the course is in the public interest. The "public interest" implies that the post-graduate training is designed to fit the candidate for employment in Canada. High scholarship must continue throughout the graduate course and, particularly when extension beyond entitlement is involved, evidence of outstanding scholarship and a strong recommendation from the University are required for the continuation of benefits.

Reviewing Cases

As there are now over 375 Veteran students registered in the School of Graduate Studies who are looking to D.V.A. for assistance, it will be seen that the task of reviewing each individual case is a considerable one and must be undertaken at the local D.V.A. office by staff fully acquainted with University training, particularly at the post-graduate level, and also fully cognizant of the policy of the Department of Veterans' Affairs and of the University with respect to post-graduate studies. The review of each case by the Chief Counsellor for University Training and his assistants, the tying in of the Committee's recommendation from the University, the completion of the necessary forms, particularly where dependents are involved, all leading to approval of one academic year's training at an average cost of $1,000, cannot be done casually and as the Committee of the School of Graduate Studies could not commence the task of reviewing and evaluating the program of each Veteran in the School until October, their task will not be completed until the end of November. In addition, scores of Veterans who have graduated from universities outside of the Toronto district have come in to Toronto for graduate studies and the load in this District is increasing as it decreases in other districts, as it appears that Toronto is becoming the centre for Canada for post-graduate training.

A number of Veterans, who arrived from other districts to commence post-graduate training in the University, were under the impression that their home district had made complete arrangements for payment of allowances while attending the University of Toronto; others in the Toronto area have commenced studies at the graduate level without even applying to the Department of Veterans' Affairs for assistance, while still others who were in attendance last year or the previous year or perhaps even in 1946 in the School of Graduate Studies presume that the Department of Veterans' Affairs can continue them on and on without interruption and without a review of the work already accomplished. A post-graduate student, even more than an undergraduate, must complete a definite and adequate part of his program each year.

It is understandable that there are still a considerable number of cases where a definite recommendation has not been made by the Committee of the School to D.V.A.

U.C., it's this way...

While walking through the Junior Common Room the other day we couldn't help but wonder at the changes that have slowly taken place in this historical hall. The J.C.R. of the old days (two or three years ago) presented a very unusual appearance, to say the least.

Heavy smoke hung listlessly in the air from 10 a.m. to closing time, and from 10 a.m. to closing time sallow-faced individuals sat huddled over the tables, staring intently at the greasy, grimy cards in their hands. These gentlemen were not all from UC for every type of refugee from the late-lamented Hart House billiards room flocked to the J.C.R. to indulge in various games of chance. It was worth a man's life to turn on the radio or to sit down to play at the piano — such noise not being conducive to pasteboard concentration. However, the J.C.R. was seldom quiet. The low hum of guttural conversation was frequently broken by wild shrieks of exultation and explanation after each hand. These sounds were always accompanied by the raucous noise of wild debate among the kibitzers and hangers-on who sat crouched around the four active participants (sometimes only two—gin rummy).

However, we shouldn't give the impression that card-players formed the total population (and it wasn't a floating population) of the Common Room. Some of the inhabitants were mere transients passing through looking for tickets to the All-Varsity or Arts Ball or attempting to place a small sporting wager on that Saturday's football game.

However, much more important and prominent were the politicians. These types hung around the old J.C.R. gleefully planning ways and means of getting rid of the executive while the executive members passing through on the way to their offices, were planning with equal glee, ways and means of getting rid of the politicians. The late days of February, just before the Lit elections, were the days of most intense activity. Candidates and campaign managers scurried in and out of the J.C.R., trying to make last-minute deals. Each and every candidate had one or all of the 1) P.H.E. vote 2) the fraternity vote 3) the residence vote — all tied up. On election day the place was mobbed and those aspiring to hold office hustled up and down the voters' line-up pumping hands, shouting promises and vociferously predicting reforms.

And still the card-players grimly played on, looking neither to left nor right — until the heavy hand of virtue fell upon them and UC's greatest indoor sport was banished from its arena — forcing the habitues of the J.C.R. either to accept checker-playing as a pitiful substitute or to move elsewhere.

Ah yes, ye old Common Room has truly undergone a revolutionary change. Young co-eds saunter in for coke 'n' conversation between lectures. Many of our rotunda rakes and roues can still remember the days when it was worth a young girl's reputation to be seen in the J.C.R. without an escort of fourth-year females (fourth-year women being singularly immune to all types of evil temptation).

So remember, the next time you lightly trip into the J.C.R., that this clean quiet and wholesome meeting place has a lurid and indeed sinister history.

Note and comment . . . Any woman who is in any way interested in her college, will be planning to attend the W.U.A. Open Meeting this afternoon at four in the Women's Union Theatre. In case there are any yet who don't know how important today's meeting is, we'll tell you a bit about what's on the agenda. . . . A woman from the Victoria College Union executive will tell how the men's and women's societies at Vic were amalgamated and just what part the women play under the present constitution. . . . A representative to the S.A.C. will be nominated. She will be elected within a week or so but will not take office until next year. The reason for her early election is so that she will have an opportunity during the rest of the year to sit in on S.A.C. meetings and learn how its affairs are conducted.

The party which was attended by about 100 members of the Follies cast last Tuesday was almost as big a success as the Follies themselves—which is saying a lot. We're glad the chorus-girls, actors, make-up people, writers, etc., etc., enjoyed themselves. They certainly deserved it after their fine work. . . . Don't forget the T-Dance (T for Terrific, Titanic and Tremendous) being held this Friday afternoon at four in the J.C.R. These little afternoon get-togethers are a lot of fun for everyone so drop in with the rest of the UC gang and start off the week-end in the right way. . . . Jim Cairns wants to remind all of you that the UC Parliament meets this afternoon at four — and not on Thursday as usual — because of the Thursday matinee of "Hamlet" for UC. Here's the explosive topic — "Resolved that this House supports the Arab resistance to the creation of a Jewish National State in Palestine". Members of all faculties are invited to sit in and speak on the motion. . . . Attention UC men! The Open Lit meeting to be held on Tuesday night is one of the most important of the year. Proposals for constitutional amendment will undoubtedly fly thick and fast when the committee to investigate our present system of Open Lit meetings reports. UC might wind up with a Victorian-like assembly. You can never tell. Also on the agenda is a discussion of the Arts Ball — concerning dress, bands, etc. . . . "Jolly Jack" Hollihan and Gretchen Ratz are sending out an invitation right now to all third year people to attend a thrilling third-year party being held for their exclusive enjoyment on December 3 in the C.O.T.C. Drill Hall. Added attraction — the presence of third year Victoria.

We'll say goodbye for this week with a surprising reminder. — There are only 17 more days for you fellows and girls to get a playmate for the UC Christmas Dance.

St. Michael's, Forestry Top Interfaculty Scoring

Now that the regular interfaculty rugby sked is over it is time to take a look at the individual scoring records.

Six teams are found represented among the first twenty point-getters with St. Mike's claiming six places to lead all comers. Forestry has the distinction of claiming the number one and two positions although they didn't even make the playoffs. The apparently weakened Vic machine can only boast one high scorer while Dents, Meds, and the S.P.S. teams fairly equally divvy up the remaining places. If anyone is interested St. Mike's rolled up almost twice as many points as the runner-up, Forestry.

Archers Form Mixed Club On Campus

Something new is always being added to Varsity's already lengthy sports list and the latest is the formation of a mixed Archery Club. It is the first one of its kind on the campus and if the enthusiasm of its continually growing membership is any indication of its ability, it will mean one more occasion for Varsity to shine.

The four girls who were sent to represent Toronto at MacMaster in the Intercollegiate Archery Shoot, along with Miss Slack, began the club. They thought that "more practice" would be the advantage of a club and set about forming one.

Shooting takes place every Tuesday from four to six in the Margaret Eaton gym and in the spring they will move outdoors. Equipment is supplied to those who do not have their own and instruction is given to beginners.

LAST CHANCE

The last chance for you to pick your favorite football performer with the intercollegiate Blues this year is today. The ballot boxes will be collected at three o'clock this afternoon in order to facilitate counting so get your ballot's worth in so the man you think did most for the Blues will receive his just reward. Don't forget to be there tomorrow at the presentation too, and see the people's choice crowned at the Zion Church at noon.

COLE SLAW

The institution of marriage, we are told, is in imminent danger of breaking up. Phrased that way, we don't wonder very much that it is. We think that any relationship between the sexes that holds forth such glittering promise of increasing bliss deserves to be known by a far more glamorous term. The very word "institution" is enough to cool the most passionate ardour, and to make one hesitate. As we look at it, institution is synonymous with incarceration, and what unfettered soul cares for such cold captivity? And once within the confines of any institution, who, but the most dehydrated, would not yearn for freedom? No wonder the institution of marriage is breaking up—the implication is imprisonment.

Grid, Soccer Semi-Finals Are Today

Today's semi final Mulock Cup grid battle between Victoria College and Ajax will get under way at two o'clock sharp at Varsity Stadium. Both clubs have consented to play regular fifteen minute quarters in the semi final as well as the final games.

At Ajax today at 3:30 St. Mike's will encounter the undefeated Jr. SPS soccer aggregation in the semi final playdown match. At the north section of the front campus Trinity will lock horns with Forestry at the same hour in another semi final tilt in the soccer playdowns.

Medsmen Best UC Firsts 8-7

Meds I, group I lacrosse leaders beat out a 8-7 victory over UC Firsts in a noon hour fixture at Hart House yesterday. The game produced some of the best boxla displayed yet this year in any loop. MacKay and Bernie, of Meds and UC respectively, were the top snipers in the contest netting four apiece.

The Medsmen outshot the Red and White in the first period as the piled up a 2-1 lead. UC picked up another in the second quarter and held Meds scoreless to knot the count at two all at the end of the half.

It looked like a UC victory in the third stanza when they potted four tallies to the doctors' three and generally dominated the play. The strong Meds squad, last year's titlists, came out in the final quarter and notched three goals while holding UC to a single counter to come up the winner by a nose.

For the Meds aggregation MacKay had four, Haliburton got a duo and Beaton and Mohr contributed one apiece. UC scorers were led by Bernie with four while Raymond, Robb and Chambers netted singles.

War Memorial Unveiled Here By Alexander

His Excellency, the Governor-General, Viscount Alexander of Tunis unveiled the War Memorial Tablet in Knox College Chapel at a special dedication service yesterday afternoon. In his remarks after the unveiling, his excellency said that the purpose of this service would be lost unless the graduates, faculty and students remembered the great price paid by those whose names appeared on the tablet. The Governor-General and Lady Alexander were welcomed to the College by the principal, Rev. W. W. Bryden, M.A., D.D.

In the main address, given by Hon. Col. Rev. John W. Foote, V.C., it was pointed out that Faith would be the salvation of western civilization if it should become engaged in a struggle against materialism. "Today," said Col Foote, "we are in conflict with the Godless and soul-destroying materialism of Russia. Should a struggle result, we can combat this philosophy only with our Faith in action."

"Nazi Germany, with whom our conflict is ended, was beaten by the determination of her opponents and by the weakness of her own philosophy," declared the speaker. "As you go your way in this College, honor those names you keep in memory. Never pity them. Never talk foolishly about the futility of war or of their achievements. Be proud of them and be prepared to follow them."

The introductory statement at the service was made by Rev. W. W. Bryden, and the presentation of the tablet was made by Hon. Major Rev. R. C. Creelman. President Sidney E. Smith and members of the other theological colleges were present at the unveiling, and those who attended the reception held in the college afterwards had the opportunity of meeting their Excellencies.

Key-note Speech Given by Cosford At I.R.C. Meeting

Three resolutions introduced by the 10-man University of Toronto delegation were carried by the week-end conference of the International Relations Clubs at State College, Penna., and the chairman of the U. of T. delegation, Ed Cosford, III Trinity, gave the key-note speech to 450 delegates from 120 Canadian and United States colleges and universities.

The resolutions asked the United States government to consult with other countries before "trying to solve the question of world relationships with Russia;" urged the "wider teaching in all universities and colleges of unprejudiced information on the national systems and ideas of every country in the world." A specific example of this would be the teaching of such information about the Soviet Union. The conference voted its wholehearted support of the United Nations.

Cosford, head of the convention's resolutions committee and a member of the steering committee, in his key-note speech pointed to Canada as an example of how divergent races and cultures can live together in harmony.

Speaking briefly in French, Cosford also pointed to the co-operation and friendship existing between the U.S. and Canada despite the differences between the two countries.

Cosford said the present conflict centering on Europe, Asia and the Middle East—was not taking place in a "two-power world alone."

"The people of the United States must see some point of view other than their own," he said.

He said the United States had to do its share of solving the world's economic problems, including the world-wide shortage of American currency which could be cured only by higher U.S. imports.

The Varsity resolution on international relations said the conflict was not "one of two countries, the United States and Russia alone

The Winner

"Ted" Toogood, Varsity Blues' flying wing, was chosen the most popular player by students who cast votes for their favorite player in week-long balloting which ended yesterday. Ted will receive the award today at noon in the Zion Church at the corner of College and Elizabeth streets.

Presentation of the cup will be made following the showing of movies of the playoff game at 12:15. Coach Bob Masterson, members of the Blues and Warren Stevens, Athletic Director, will be on hand for the ceremony.

The trophy is donated by The Varsity and is unique in that the recipient is chosen by the student body. The cup will be awarded anually at the end of the football season.

A capacity crowd is expected to fill the church for the presentation ceremony. It will be the last chance of the season for football fans to show their appreciation to the Blues for bringing the Yates Cup back to Varsity.

If the intercollegiate trophy arrives from London on time, it will also be on display.

NFCUS, IUS Union To Be Discussed At Open Meeting

The entire question of affiliation between the National Federation of Canadian University Students and the International Union of Students will be thrown open for general student discussion as a result of a motion passed at last night's SAC meeting.

All Council members were urged to attend an open meeting of the NFCUS committee next Wednesday when the controversial problem of affiliation will be discussed. SAC members will then return to their own colleges and faculties to explain the problem which has beset NFCUS officials since last year when NFCUS voted for conditional affiliation with IUS. At its meeting last summer IUS rejected Canada's offer and requested that affiliation be unconditional.

Affiliation

SAC members will then bring the decisions of their college groups to the next SAC meeting when Council will decide whether this university will endorse or oppose affiliation with the international student organization, reported to be Communist-dominated.

Anne Templeton, V.C.U. Speaks To U.C. Women

"Men and women do not split into opposing factions on controversial issues in the Victoria College Assembly," Anne Templeton, associate president of the Victoria College Union, told an open meeting of UC's Women's Undergraduate Association yesterday. Miss Templeton said she felt that student government at Victoria was more efficient because of the amalgamation last year of its men's and women's societies.

Joan Crysdale, Jane Hill and Jane Young, all III UC, were nominated for the position of S.A.C. representative. The election will be held Wednesday, December 1, but the representative will not take office until next year.

Peace Resolution Made by Council

The founders of the Students' Peace Council "reject the necessity of war and are aghast at the thought of the damage and horror of the atomic destruction which another war will bring," Bill Gagnon, tentative president, told a council meeting called to approve a constitution, yesterday.

The meeting approved the first two of a series of six articles: "This association shall be called the University of Toronto Peace Council," and "Its purpose shall be to fight the attitude that war is inevitable or necessary, to critically examine current world issues that threaten peace, to stimulate discussion of them and to promote peace in every possible way, particularly through support of the United Nations and its charter."

The temporarily-elected executive will appeal to the S.A.C. and the Caput for recognition when the constitution has finally been approved.

To Await Report Before Any Action Can Be Considered

A committee to re-investigate student fees and provincial grants to the University was set up at last night's meeting of the Students' Administrative Council. The committee was formed after the Council heard a letter from the Bursar's office explaining that the Board of Governors was unable to reduce tuition fees.

Approach Government

The committee headed by Student Service Commissioner Jane Hazard, UC, will continue work on the fees problem with the intention of a direct approach to the provincial government.

The reply from the Board of Governors to the fees brief submitted by the SAC last year pointed out that estimates for the University for the 1948-49 term were approved by the government only recently.

"These estimates involve a larger grant from the province for the present year than was the case during the session 1947-48," the letter stated. "Notwithstanding the increased grant, the Board of Governors is unable to reduce tuition fees. The costs of goods and services are mounting so rapidly that the University may not be able to balance its budget for this year."

Further Approach

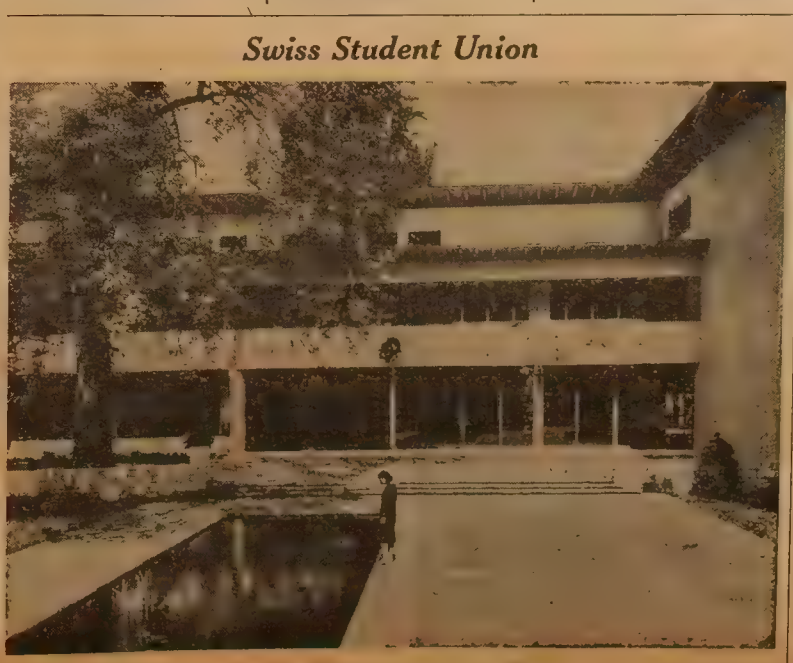
SAC President Gordon Gwynne-Timothy called for another complete investigation into the fees question. "A full report should then be turned into the Council for further action", he said.

UC Representative Joe Potts urged a direct approach to the provincial government. "Last year the government told us to go through the proper channels. We did. We went to the Board of Governors and now we're told the provincial government will not authorize any further grant. I think we should go directly to the government on this thing."

Potts praised the DVA plan which allowed so many veterans to go through university. "It is a great advance," he said. "But unless we do something now, when the veterans leave we're going to find ourselves in the same position as in 1939 when the only way you could get into university was on a financial ticket. We want equality of opportunity for all."

Ajax Representative W. I. Turner, felt an approach to the provincial government "wouldn't do any good." Students formed only a small proportion of the province's population, he said, and couldn't expect the government to increase its grant to the extent of lowering tuition fees.

The motion, calling for the formation of the new committee, was put forward by George Wilkes, Forestry, who asked for "another complete investigation."



Drama League Festival To Be Held In Toronto

Arrangements for the Inter-University Drama League festival, which will take place in Toronto next February, will be made Saturday when representatives of Western, McMaster, O.A.C. and Varsity meet in the Green Room, Hart House.

James Hamelin, president of the western section of the League, will be chairman. Problems to be discussed in the 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. sessions are publicity, transportation of properties, and adjudication.

Officials of the Drama League at the U. of T. say the Toronto chapter intends to enter in the inter-university festival the play which wins the inter-faculty festival competition to be held January 31st.

Swiss Student Union

No dream is the building above. It is the Auditorium Building at the University of Basle in Switzerland. The picture is taken from the symmetrically arranged garden court. This auditorium is part of the modern designed co-ed union. Such a building may soon make its appearance in Toronto, with or without lily pond.

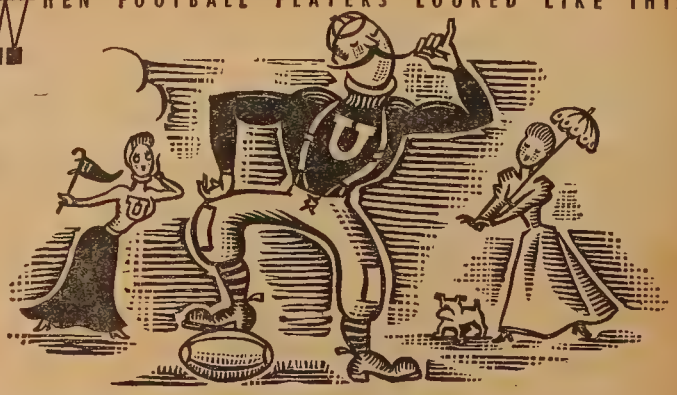
Too Much Talk

It is becoming increasingly apparent that the campaign against communism being waged in this country and in the United States is fast degenerating into a flood of invective, abuse, and wild accusations.

On both sides of the border the tide of hatred and vilification continues unabated. All sense of liberalism is disappearing in a wave of nonsensical outbursts against the enemy. And in the process, many of our hard-won civil rights are being chucked overboard as the "defenders" of freedom combine to exert pressure on anyone suspected of harbouring an opinion with a pinkish tinge.

In the United States, the House Committee investigating un-American activities has issued a bulletin containing one hundred questions and answers designed to warn readers of the horrors of communism. Sample question: "If I had a Bible could I keep it under a Communist government?" Answer: "No, it would be burned and you would be persecuted for having one."

Such ridiculous attempts to fan public prejudice do more harm than good. Instead of providing reassurance that the democratic method can offer security, effort is expended in hurling wild charges which are too often based on ignorance and hatred.



An article in this month's issue of Canadian Business, a Chamber of Commerce publication, deplores the apathetic attitude of Canadian business men in the short-range approach that is often taken toward political and economic problems.

"Wild denunciations are as useless against this international apparatus as an arrow against a Sherman tank," says the writer. An accompanying editorial acknowledges that "there are communist practices, however, which cannot be readily condemned, despite the tyrannical nature of the underlying objectives. For example, the avowed glorification of Soviet scientists, technical men, artists, and teachers . . ."

The challenge cannot be met by shrieking, by suppression or by persecution, says the writer, "because in the final analysis, the coming struggle of Western civilization is not the fight against Communism. It is a battle against human despair." He realizes that the banning of communist organizations is no more than a quack remedy.

Too few people recognize the fact that communism offers glittering hope — rightly or wrongly — to millions. And until western democrats realize they must offer something more than abuse, all the vituperation and name-calling will do little good.

HAPCO More Airout

The newly set up Hydrew Air Power Commission of Ontario (HAPCO) announced last night that too many people are breathing at the same time. This is producing further airouts.

"People are going to have to stagger their breathing or they will have to drop dead," said Hirem McPhierem, newly appointed commissioner, who has been called the 'big wind'.

The commissioner said that he could not understand why people complained about the shortage. It is their duty to their king, country and city to stop breathing during certain hours of the day.

Late reports said a black market was being set up in air. It is said that air-marketeers were storing air in vacuum-cleaner bags and balloons. This was declared to be unloyal.

Ex-commissioner Pogg, who retired because of ill-wealth, said he had warned the Drew government about the increasing lack of air many years ago. He said his argument had disappeared into thin air.

It was Adam Heck who declared many years ago, "keep air out of politics or the government will take the air out of your mouth once they have the shirt off your back."

Already McPhirem was withdrawing his Harsh of Ottawa photo from the paper. Even Robin Hood Cinders, Hydrew Electric Commissioner was making fewer proclamations. His radio speeches were being cut off because of cut-offs.

Cinders said that it was not true that he was working for the Coal-

Members of the university CCF Club last night passed an "emergency resolution" that "The University of Toronto CCF Club views with increasing alarm the tendency which is growing in the community at large and appears to be spreading to this university, to deny to certain individuals the freedom of speech which we have enjoyed in Canada."

"And further, that this club commends the recent action of Provost Seeley and Warden Ignatieff who went out of their way to provide auditorium space for the Dean of Canterbury, although they did not necessarily endorse his opinions."

The meeting elected delegates to the Christmas convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth University Federation and appointed a representative to serve on the provincial Education Committee of the CCYM.

Staff, Students Discuss English On CBC Tonight

"Let's Start Teaching English" will be the subject of tonight's presentation on the Varsity show broadcast over the CBC at 9 p.m.

A discussion group led by John Fisher of the CBC Talks Dept. will investigate such questions as why English is so unpopular to most Canadian students, how teaching methods in high schools and universities can be improved to make English more interesting, and why a basic knowledge of the subject is so necessary in everyday life.

They will also try to explain the cause and cure for the recent outbursts of booing and hissing by a high school audience during a recent Toronto presentation of Shakespeare's "Hamlet".

The group will consist of Professor MacDonald, former member of the UC English staff, Professor McCluhan of St. Mike's English staff, Bill Elliot, IV Eng., Trinity and Jack Smith, IV M&P, UC. The show is produced by Ross McLean of the CBC.

National Sovereignty To Be Debate Topic

The University of Toronto Debating Union will play host on Friday to the McGill University Debating Society in a debate to be held in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's at 8 p.m. The topic will be "Resolved that the concept of National Sovereignty is an impediment to world peace", with Marg Kearns, of Loretto, and Blair Ferguson, of SPS, upholding the motion.

The same topic will be debated in McGill on Thursday night, with Jean O'Shaughnessy of Loretto and Fred Furlong of St. Michael's opposing the motion. This debate is one of a long series of annual home and home debates held between McGill and Toronto.

NFCUS Parley Reveals Split On IUS Policy

Evidence of a wide split in opinion on the question of affiliation between the National Federation of Canadian University Students and The International Union of Students showed itself in an open meeting yesterday called by the Toronto NFCUS Committee. Many speakers advocated a strict isolationalist policy for NFCUS, holding that the Canadian organization was too weak to undertake any work in the international field.

Although the meting was open to all students of the university, only members of the NFCUS Committee were allowed to vote on resolutions presented. Under the NFCUS constitution any person attending a meeting is allowed to present a resolution. Two resolutions were moved. The first called on NFCUS to postpone joining IUS for a period of at least three years and was defeated by a vote of six to three; the second resolution called for affiliation with IUS. No vote was taken, the motion being tabled for action at the next meeting of the NFCUS Committee.

IUS Laughing Stock

David Stanley, speaking from the floor, advocated that NFCUS "ditch IUS and ditch it fast." He charged that NFCUS was not a representative body, terming it "the laughing stock of the whole university." "We have a job to do at home," he said, "and affiliation will be a stumbling block to that work."

Lack Of Planning Causes Power Loss Comments Jolliffe

Blame for the present Ontario Hydro shortage was levelled at the two "old-line parties" yesterday afternoon when E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. provincial leader, told students "The lack of planning by the political parties which have been in power for the last twenty-five or thirty years is the reason for the shortage."

Bureaucracy Created

Jolliffe said the Drew Government, together with those Conservative and Liberal governments within the last generation, have stated that they do not believe in public ownership. If these governments continue such a policy they will create a bureaucracy which will lead to elimination of free enterprise.

Jolliffe said that the Hydro Commission, led by Dr. Hogg, had, up until 1944, tried to warn the government of the forthcoming shortages. The governments refused to do anything about it until it was too late. The Commission attempted to lay plans for the increase of generator plants but, unfortunately, these plans were ignored by the Drew administration.

The Legislature of Quebec passed a bill permitting the building of various plants in Quebec. When a similar bill was introduced in Ontario, the Drew opposition voted against the bill four different times. Drew, himself, vigorously attacked the bill calling it "iniquitous" and urging caution because of changing locations of war-plants decreasing need for power.

The C.C.F. has drawn up a program to follow in order to relieve the situation. Firstly, they suggest a rationing of electricity. This rationing will give electrical power to consumers in relation to their previous electrical consumption. Secondly, they will differentiate between the essential and non-essential uses of electricity and act accordingly. In the third place they intend to adopt an emergency program of building steam plants in needed locations. Fourthly, they will try to get a definite start on the St. Lawrence Waterway plan.

Doctors Decry Resistance To Jews' Home In Palestine

By a vote of 70-19 the motion "that this house supports the Arab resistance to the creation of a Jewish National State in Palestine" was defeated last night in the University College Parliament, held in the Junior Common Room, U. C.

For the affirmative, Jeffrey Wasteneys held that in accepting the mandate Britain had in view "the encouragement of a National home for the Jews and a bettering of the conditions of the mandated peoples," but that this had not been realized. He claimed that the problem of refugee Jews was one "not for Palestine alone but for the world."

"Support for Arab resistance is opposed to the purpose of the United Nations", said John Morden, first speaker for the negative. He declared that Jews had restored many barren areas to such fertility that they were now "gardens of Eden" and that the Jewish economy works to the benefit of the Arab.

Also for the affirmative, Jim Peters claimed that from the ethical point of view "if justice has its place, the Jewish people have no right to Palestine." The Arabs had justice on their side in that they were the "original indigenous peoples in Palestine." He said that the Jews "have no more historic claims than others who had occupied the country."

Opposing the motion, David Luck pointed out that the Arabs themselves admit they do not have full claim to Palestine; that the Arab leader Emir Feisal had signed a reaty in which the Arabs "recognized the rights of the Jews to immigrate and to develop Palestine,

SAC At A Glance

At its regular meeting last night the Student's Administrative Council:

Heard a letter from the Registrar stating that the Caput has authorized an All-Varsity Review to be held in Hart House Theatre from January 10th to the 15th, provided that the SAC will accept full responsibility financial and otherwise and that the SAC appoint a Board of Review after consultation with President Smith.

Set up a new fees committee to approach the provincial government on the fees problem.

Heard a letter from the CCF club asking the SAC to press for a decrease in fees.

Heard a letter from the ISS asking financial support for entertainment of French-Canadian students on the week-end of December 3rd. The Council moved its support.

Heard a report from the Blue and White Society Chairman Joe Potts explaining that plans are now under way for a Homecoming Week-end to be held next year. The Council moved a vote of thanks to the Blue and White Society for the part played in building up the university spirit during the football season.

Heard NFCUS Chairman George Wilkes' report with a recommendation of NFCUS committee calling for NFCUS affiliation with the Coordinating Committee of Canadian Youth Groups. The SAC approved the recommendation. The Council moved that all members come to the next NFCUS meeting prepared to vote on the question of IUS affiliation.

Heard the ex-service Committee report explaining that cost-of-living survey will be taken among veterans on the campus.

The Council approved that each Colleges and Faculty be asked to make tickets available for disabled veterans to attend college shows.

OCE Representative, D. Holmes moved that entertainment for disabled veterans be placed on NFCUS agenda.

Heard a recommendation by NFCUS Chairman George Wilkes to the effect that the UTDU have a debate on the subject of NFCUS affiliation with IUS on unconditional terms.

Heard the Book Exchange Commissioner, Jane Hazard, report that no space is available at the moment to house a proposed book exchange. Heard Red Feather Chairman, Jane Hazard, report a total collection of $3,258.87 from the undergraduate body.

Student P.C. To End Series With Talk On Party Policy

The Workers' Educational Association will conclude its series of three addresses on "Youth In Politics" Friday night in the Economics Building when Allan F. Lawrence (III Vic), National President of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation, addresses the open meeting on the subject "My Philosophy and My Party". There is no admission charged and the meeting is open to all. A question period at the end of Mr. Lawrence's talk will close the meeting.

The meeting, scheduled to get under way at 8.15 p.m., is the concluding one of a series of three, sponsored by the W.E.A., in an endeavor to illustrate how the youth of the three Canadian political parties, Liberal, C.C.F., and Progressive Conservative, deal with the problems of today. Four weeks ago, the Liberal Party was represented by Mr. D. C. Stanley, the President of the University of Toronto Liberal Association. Two weeks ago the C.C.F. philosophy was presented by Reid Scott, C.C.F. member of the legislature for Toronto-Beaches, the past President of the University of Toronto C.C.F. Club. This Friday night, Mr. Lawrence will give his view of the Progressive Conservative philosophy.

Al Lawrence is the youngest person to take part in the nominating and seconding of a candidate for the leadership of any national Canadian political party. At the National Progressive Conservative Convention held in Ottawa recently, Mr. Lawrence seconded the nomination of Donald M. Fleming, M.P., for the leadership of his party. Lawrence is also a past vice-president of the University of Toronto Progressive Conservative Club, and as well is on the Ontario executive of his party.

ALL VARSITY REVUE

Tryouts for chorus girls and boys in St. Hilda's Cartwright Hall, Thursday from 3 to 6 p.m.

Book Review

The Trinity Review

One of the most commendable features of the Trinity Review is that it provides interesting reading even for those who are not undergraduates of Trinity University. The college magazine should be something more than a re-hash of college activities, such as is found in high school year books. It should be the medium of expression for the intellectual and cultural life of the college. It is not too much to expect the college magazine to make a contribution, however small, towards the education of the undergraduates. For some years now, the Trinity Review, in its own quiet way, has managed to do this.

In the October issue, the essays are, almost without exception, of high quality. Peter Dobell's "Economic Reconstruction in Germany" is a mature, intelligent, and extremely well written article on Germany's present economic situation in relation to the rest of Europe. "Religion and Sex", by Michael Macklem, tries to deal with too much material in too little space; the importance and interest of the ideas presented are lost in the over-compression. Just how much material is handled can be judged from the fact that five or six important authors are referred to in the footnotes. Bruce Kirby's article, "Wagner", leaves much to be desired. To assume "that pure symphonic music had reached its limit" with Beethoven's Ninth Symphony is to imply that art develops, and it is sufficiently obvious that art does not develop. And to say that Wagner's philosophy is "of little importance for us today" is to overlook the fact that Wagner's music was given primacy by the Nazis. There is an intimate connection between the anarchic "Gotterdammerung" and the nihilism of the extreme Nazis.

The fiction is not exceptional, "In the Bocas" is a competent but not memorable story of human relationships, while the denouement of "Halfpenny Black" is obvious from the first page, depriving the story of the one quality that might have made it interesting. The poetry is undistinguished. It is significant, perhaps, that the quality of the general esays contrasts strongly with that of the fiction and poetry.

Kenneth Kee.

Acta Victoriana

The current issue of Acta Victoriana is slight both in bulk and content. Nevertheless there is much of interest within its covers. Victoria seems to be facing the same problem that has confronted other colleges during the past three years. Acta, its main literary organ, has been severely criticized on various grounds among which "exclusiveness" ranked high. The editorial of the current issue suggests that much of the support that the publication has received has been in the form of criticism rather than contributions. Contests do have some effect, but are beginning to pall a little on the student body. Here the various arts and letters clubs on campus could be of invaluable aid in encouraging members to contribute their best work. Wider participation in the creative forums held by groups like the Modern Letters Club might enable some of the critics of the publications to contribute of their talent.

The best short story of the issue was Marion O. Brown's The World is Too Much With Us, an extremely sensitive portrait of a child's dream-world. It has everything a good short short needs—contrast, realism of detail, excellent dialogue and revealing incident around which the story is woven. Douglas Valleau's The Best-Laid Schemes and Mary Louise Kilgour's Gently Down the Stream both fall short of the mark, mainly because the incidents around which they are woven are not of particular significance. The Best Laid Schemes and D. M. Fisher's Love at Second Sight show a lack of familiarity with the technique used. All these short stories with the notable exceptions of The World Is Too Much With Us reveal an interesting feature; namely, that the authors don't know the characters of whom they are writing. Miss Kilgour sets the scene skilfully but then leaves the reader wondering if she had any idea of what to do with her characters after placing them in that situation.

Of poetry there is little in this issue. Norma Arnett's At Parting indicates over-familiarity with Sassoon although the imagery is striking in spots. Marion Brown's Futility lacks even emotional appeal but she redeems herself in Comparison as does Douglas Valleau in To Conscience On Going To Press.

The book review section in this issue is distressingly short, and attempts, nothing of significance. Acta's Repeat of the Month—Gordon Rattray's Spectator was a bright spot in the issue, original compressed and effectively handled a la Farrell. The quality of the issue as a whole leaves much to be desired, but remembering excellence of last spring's issue, we are sure that there will be better things to come.

Photography

Whit exactly makes a photograph good or bad?

Take the very charming view of Heidelberg by Louis Falquet. Wordsworth's poem, 'On Westminster Bridge' comes to my mind:

Never did sun more beautifully steep
In his first splendor valley, rock, or hill...

And yet the same view could have been taken a thousand different ways—different angles, times of day, positions; a dirty alley or a thriving black market could have equally been called 'Heidelberg'. But somehow the position of the spires, the river, the mist over the 'lower town', all evoke that curious medieval atmosphere of dwarfs and craftsmen. Here we have the art of photography: out of a thousand views, one, perhaps, successfully captures the atmosphere. The photographer's job, then, often unconscious and instinctive, is that of selection: the one angle, the one position that reveals the beauty of an object. Of course in studio pieces he may manipulate the light and shadows, the position of the subject and so on, but never just 'for contrast': it must reveal something about the subject or situation. Those who saw Ivan the Terrible will remember very powerful sequences where the whole effect is achieved through black and white contrasts. (That would be impossible, incidentally, in technicolor.)

Some of the best photographs are those revealing unconscious designs in nature. To this group belongs 'Just for a Moment' a picture of twigs after a snowfall, one of the most stimulating of the exhibition. The geometric patterns of 'Vigil' and 'Bristol Cathedral' are quite pleasing, but the picture of three posts, awarded an honorable mention, is a trifle slick for my taste. There are two rather good ones by Don Teskey: 'Ol' Cabane', with a tumbledown shack and farm, the Canadian version of Tobacco Road, and 'the Derelict', an arrangement of logs.

'Liza' by Joseph Chang is the best of the portraits. The sweep of black tones across the picture, broken only by a silver earring, is very striking indeed. 'Lilacs' is the best of the flower pictures. Most of the rest—wizened Indians and Eskimos etc, would do best in the Star Weekly pictorial section. Some of them are quite good reporting, but as such, concentrate almost completely on the peculiarities of the subject.

Photography is an art that will be very interesting to follow, as it seems to thrive better than others on this continent. Who would prefer the London Illustrated News to Life?

John Grube.

Parlow Quartet

I do not venture to say whether one day some critic will be justified to add the name of the English composer Benjamin Britten to the list of the Big B's. If so he will describe the program of yesterday's Conservatory Five O'clock as as devoted to Big B number 3 and 4. Both Brahms and Britten were represented by their mature first efforts in the medium. Here the affinities end, for the two works have nothing in common in point of aesthetics and style.

As so often in Brahms the inner movements have the character of intermezzi rather than of complete scenes. Furthermore, the classical contrast between the two movements is lost: the Romanza is too lively for a slow movement, the allegretto too pensive for a spirited one. This is not a criticism of the musical ideas which are unusually subtle and rich.

The Britten quartet made a favorable impression. The composer's handling of the strings is brilliant and his clear writing flows with ease. To me it seems that his intentions are less clearly defined. In the Allegro vivo and the finale his main interest seems to be architecture, in other sections color dominates. Of the four movements the Allegretto is the wittiest and the last one comes closest to the conventional idea of the quartet as a discussion between four individuals. The performance, especially of the modern work, was well-rehearsed and excellent. The rhythmic intricacies of Brahms were well mastered; on the other hand I did not like the violinistic habit of retarding on the first note of a triplet passage.

Soldiers' Tower To List War Dead Of Last Conflict

The University of Toronto is proceeding with the plans for a memorial to the 480 graduates who gave their lives in World War II, Dr. Sidney Smith, U. of T. president announced today. Dr. Smith said it is planned to develop the new memorial within the fan vaulted archway of the Soldiers' Tower. The names will be inscribed on panels approximately the same size as those in the present arcade.

The memorial was one of the stated objectives of the Varsity Appeal for Six Million Dollars begun last May. Although the campaign for funds is not yet concluded, the Board of Governors now has money available for the memorial and Dr. Smith said it is planned to proceed without further delay.

CO-ED UNION-PRO

The Editor, The Varsity;
Dear Sir;

In answer to J. S. Willmot's letter re the proposed University Memorial Building, I would like to voice what I think would be the feelings of our World War II dead. I am an ex-serviceman myself and I feel I know how the group we left over there felt. Mr. Willmot's attitude is typical of that group which dotted our land and other lands too with great pillars of stone and cement and yet did not change their way of life so that a second World War would be prevented.

I see in the proposed students union a medium for the encouragement of the principles for which our friends are supposed to have died. Here we can develop freedom of expression and contact with other racial and religious groups which will break down prejudice. If we can develop an attitude of good-will and a knowledge of our democratic heritage here at this University and later on throughout the nation, we will have built a far better and more lasting memorial to our chums than by sticking another chunk of granite in another corner of the campus.

I believe that in the proposed students union we can portray by the means of murals, the various branches of the service and what our friends died for. I think by that means the atmosphere of a

The Padre's Pastoral

Below The Surface

Our life, like that of a plant, has two parts, and both are important. There is the part above the surface and the part below. The former has to do with our habits and activities which everybody can see, but the latter has to do with our thoughts and feelings, our beliefs and affections, which few, if any, can see. The temptation in life, writes an Old Country scholar, is to let this hidden part take care of itself and to live on the surface. Many people do. They draw their strength from shallow motives and small aims. They find comfort in cheap little wordly maxims. They find stimulus in the desire to stand well with others and to make a success in business. But that kind of living is so shallow. In it there is no power or stability or abiding joy. Without healthy roots and sufficient soil, no plant can weather either a storm or a lengthy drought. In His parable of the sower Jesus described its inevitable end in one telling sentence, "Because it had no root it withered away".

Many things could be mentioned but space will permit only one. If life is to be strong to withstand all kinds of weather it must be rooted in great convictions. It is true that we are paying a big price today for the silly slogan that it does not matter what a man believes. As a matter of fact, the very opposite is true. Nothing else matters so much —if the belief is sincere. All we have to do is to look at what happened in Europe. The Nazis had convictions. They were false; but they were very deep. Convictions make up the most important part of the soil of life. If a person hasn't any, then the soil is shallow and life is at the mercy of every "wind of doctrine".

A scientific lecturer not so long ago surprised his audience by putting in a plea for the closed mind. He went on to say that there is much merit in it because an ever open mind, like an open drain, is in danger of becoming a receptacle for a great deal of rubbish. He made it clear that he was not thinking of a mind closed by prejudice or by unreasoning preconception, but a mind which exercised a wise conservatism and declined to dash here and there in pursuit of the ephemeral fashion of the hour. There is indeed a great deal in what he said even though it runs counter to the modern admiration of the man with the open mind. For years this engaging fellow has been the object of extravagant praise. People felt he was friendly and approachable. There was no dogmatism or hardness about him. He could disagree with somebody and not become disagreeable. He could give the fullest respect to others' opinions. The man with the open mind—God bless him! No, as G. K. Chesterton said, there is only one reason for opening the mind, and that is to close it. Close it! Yes; but around what? That is the pressing and persistent query. Countless thousands, many of whom are among the ablest scholars in history, witness to the Bible as the word of God and therefore as the reliable touchstone for all truth. It wasn't manufactured in the figment of the human imagination. It was revealed by God. It isn't the invention of last week: it is "the message once delivered to the saints". It has been tested and tried. For centuries men have sailed by this dependable chart. Many a storm has beaten upon it, but still it stands as solid as the rock of Gibraltar. When anyone reverently opens his mind to this revelation of eternal truth and closes it, then the soil is rich and deep. The roots of life have something on which they can grip.

Minister,

provided Arab independence was achieved in Arab lands outside Palestine."

He also claimed that, from a point of view of ethics, "the constitution of the State of Israel served the ends of Justice, giving to the Arabs full democratic rights as citizens."

Equal time was later made available for speeches from the floor supporting and opposing the motion. The view was expressed in opposition to the motion that the Arab sheik lived in "feudal splendour while the peasants lived in poverty and squalor and that whenever the Arab peasant came into contact with the Jews of Palestine his standard of living was raised." A view in support of the motion expressed from the floor held that "even though the Arabs may be a decadent and lazy people the Jews had no right to foist progress in the form of universities and hospitals on them if such were not wanted."

Everyone thinks of Christmas as the happiest time of the year, except for a certain party who has undoubtedly been the guest of honour at more Yule-tide gatherings than any of us. We refer, of course, to the turkey. Hail to the turkey! What other bird do you know of that provides so great a delight at so complete a sacrifice? Giving this situation the thought it has never received, we went out to interview a turkey last weekend. "What do you think of Christmas?" we asked, in our most engaging manner. Silence "Fed up, we suppose." This remark ruffled his feathers. "Listen, you," said the turkey, "how would you like to spend Christmas on your back in a roasting pan?" This Christmas, we eat water-cress.

Vic Team Drops Ajax 13-2 To Move Into Cup Finals

By HAL HOLDEN

Vic's smashing football team assured itself of a chance to gain the Mulock Cup for the third successive year when they turned back a courageous Ajax squad of 13-2 in Varsity Stadium yesterday afternoon. Vic will now meet the winner of this afternoon's St. Mike's "A"-Sr. Meds tussle for the Intramural football title next Wednesday.

The Jaxmen, led by powerful Julie Hanson, came mighty close to upsetting the favored Vic gridders as they played inspired football for the first half of the game to hold the champs to a 1-1 tie at the intermission. Only a combination of fleet Vic backfielders and breaks which turned against them kept the losers from registering two touchdowns which could have meant the ball game.

Two Vic miscues on kick runbacks resulted in the lose ball being dribbled across the Vic goal line by alert engineers, but in each case the speedier Vicmen were able to wrap themselves around the ball in the end zone and give the Ajax crew two points where it might have, with luckier bounces, had ten.

600 Watch Game

A crowd of about 600 watched the game played on a field which was in remarkable shape for this time of year. The ground was dry enough for both clubs to use everything in their football bag of tricks, and mild weather made for good ball handling. Running plays were the rule with Vic's Keith Sumner and Julie Hanson of Ajax being the most consistent ground gainers.

In addition to plunging for valuable yardage both these boys kicked consistently well. Hanson, once surrounded by three potential punt-blockers coolly eluded them by an adroit side-step and while on the run booted a 45 yarder.

Breaks Were Important

Breaks played the important role in the game as both of the Jaxmen's points were the result of fumbles while Vic's second major came off a bobbled boot. Luck was with the Scarlet and Gold, however, either that or the Jaxmen don't live right.

Just about the best play of the day was the second last of the game. Paul Valenti of Ajax dropped back behind the line of scrimmage and let go a low 46 yard pass down the centre which Tim Crandall plucked out of the air to weave another 10 yards before being tackled. Valenti rifled another long pass on the next play to the Vic three yard line but this one just failed to click.

Ajax Gets First

Ajax scored the first point when a lateral on a runback of a Hanson kick went awry and Ken Dellinbach booted the ball over the goal line but was outfooted by Vicman Charles Fick who was rouged for one point. Vic had to wait until the last play of the half before it equalled the count on an attempted placement from the 40 yard line by Jim Little which was wide and went for a rouge.

In the opening minutes of the second half Vic racked up its first touchdown on a Harry Damp to Harry Boyd aerial. Boyd took Damp's pass in the flat, about five yards over the line of scrimmage and galloped 45 yards down the touch line at the west side of the field into pay dirt, shaking off one tackler and out-running two more on the way. Jim Little added the extra point.

Another Fumble

The doughty Ajax squad bounced right back a few minutes later to dribble another Vic fumble across the goal but again fortune favored the champs and the Engineers had to be content with a single on Johnny Ridell's rouge.

Near the end of the fourth quarter Lorne Lodge intercepted a Jax desperation pass at the Ajax 45 yard line and scooted another 10 to the 35 yard line from where Sumner kicked, after two plays, to the Engineers' goal line. At this point the breaks entered the ball game once again and the Ajax receiver dropped the ball in front of the onrushing Vic tacklers. Bill Allen recovered, tumbled over the line and Vic had five more points. The winners rounded out the scoring with a singleton to the deadline by Keith Sumner from the Ajax 35 yard line.

Hansen, Crandell Good

Julie Hanson and Tim Crandell sparked the Jr. SPS offense with Doug Keen and John Riddell proving solid blocks in the front wall.

Lorne Lodge, Harry Boyd and Keith Sumner featured the Vic ball carriers while Gerry Hill and Blake Ashforth led the blocking.

Blues Seek First Win Tomorrow

Varsity hockey Blues will be looking for their first win of the young season tomorrow night when they tackle Barkers of the THL Major loop at Varsity Arena. The Blues dropped their first game, an exhibition with People's last Friday.

In addition to being without such solid performers as Ed Kryzanowski, now with Boston Bruins, Don Bark and Warren Winslow of last year's Intercollegiate champions, the Blue and White will have to get along without the services of defenceman Bob LaRose who was clipped on the jaw by a flying puck while circling the net in a practice session. Gerry Larmer is another who will likely sit out the Barker's game.

Don Bark, coach of the Varsity football intermediates and sharer of scoring honors while a member of the ice Blues last year, will line up against his old mates as this year Bark is puckchasing for the Barker THL entry.

Coach Bailey is counting on the Howson-Turcott-Henry to supply lots of scoring punch and judging from their scintillating effort last Friday this threesome should produce without too much trouble. Game time is slated for about 8 o'clock.

The 'Digger'

Wilf Digby is one of the Blues who will be tangling with Barker's in an exhibition encounter at Varsity Arena tomorrow night as the Blues look for their first win.

St. Mike's Tie Ajax One All In Soccer Tilt

After two periods of overtime play the final score remained tied at 1-1 in the soccer game played at Ajax yesterday between Jr. SPS and St. Mike's.

Ajax pressed the attack most of the game and made shot after shot at the St. Mike's goal, but the outstanding goal tending on the part of the goalie Kane prevented a sure victory for Ajax.

In the first five minutes of play, Ajax had several point-blank shots from directly in front of the S. M. goal but it was Kane who saved the day by stopping them cold. In the latter part of the first half, Quesnels of St. Mike's let go with a long drive at the Ajax goal. Clark, the Jax goalie, leaped him in a vain attempt to block it but fell flat as the ball sailed over his head to give St. Mike's a 1-0 lead.

With ten minutes gone in the second half, Ajax received a kick which was placed high and to the opposite corner of the S.M. goalposts where Mesfin Abebe of Ajax came out of nowhere to head the ball in for the tying goal. The game ended with both teams pressing to break the tie and it was only the S. M. goalie that prevented Ajax from shooting in the winning goal.

Two ten minute periods of overtime were played with still no further scoring and the tired players were happy to settle for a final score of one-all.

The game will be replayed in Toronto tomorrow at 3 p.m.

TRINITY OUSTS SPS

A powerful Trinity firsts soccer team ousted senior SPS from the Arts Faculty cup race yesterday with a 2-0 win. But it was a tough battle all the way.

Play raced back and forth through the first half with neither team having a distinct advantage, until Trinity's Britton-Forster broke through to crack the scoring column.

It was the same story in the second period, with Trinity just having enough finish to their thrusts to add another with Forbes performing the rites. Trinity will meet either St. Mike's or Ajax in the finals next week.

Afterthoughts

Schoolmen Long on Cheer But Short on Touchdowns

By JOHN KENNEDY

Victoria rugby supporters were rather upset yesterday afternoon at Varsity Stadium when a determined Ajax team held them to a one all tie in the first half. Most observers figured last year's Mulock Mug champs would have little trouble with the Jaxmen. However, they were relieved when the slightly smoother Vic back field took charge in the last half and grabbed two touchdowns to assure their reaching the final next Wednesday.

The Skule followers are to be congratulated on their vocal efforts which produced far more decibels than the Vic crowd, who had the added incentive of four pretty gal cheer leaders.

Someone should tell the Skule quarter-back that play doesn't end until the whistle blows. Gord looked very surprised when he caught a kick after the half horn had sounded and didn't try to run it back. He was mashed by the greater part of the Vic line. A guy could get hurt that way.

Vic half Harry Boyd topped a fine afternoon's performance with his 55 yard jaunt for a major in the third quarter. Mollenhauer made a nice effort to get him but Boyd was not to be denied.

Ajax got their two points on identical plays. Vic fumbled and Ajax dribbled the ball over the line where a Vic player recovered and was tackled.

How unlady-like of the Vic girl cheer leaders proclaiming that they would and could imbibe forty beers and also that they didn't give a damn for anyone, etc.! Don't you really girls?

Masterson's Blue Hoopsters Lose Y.M.H.A. Seniors Victorious, 82-74

In an exhibition basketball game last night in Hart House the Y.M.H.A. senior team eked out a win over Varsity 82-74. Coach Masterson tried out ten men who are trying for the senior team; probably some will go back to the intermediate quintet, but the majority will probably remain with the Blues.

The Y boys jumped into an early lead with ex-Blue Harry Mayzell popping in nine quick points. Tall Doug Tyndall retaliated with seven in the first quarter but the fast-breaking Y men were able to build up a 32-17 lead. In the second quarter Varsity started to roll and closed the gap to 53-42. Glen Pettinger, rapid red head up from the intermediates led the Varsity squad in this quarter both offensively and defensively. He hooped six points and set up many others with lovely passes while running at top speed. Glen is an excellent two-way player.

Johnny McManus, veteran senior player showed that he is rounding into seasonal form with his deceptive ball handling and general good condition. He is one of the top men in Masterson's plans for this year, and really knows how to set up his bucket men.

Varsity took the lead briefly in the third quarter as LaChance, Luck and Henderson began to find their shooting eyes. Rugby star Jack Gray tossed in six points in this period to close the score to 63-62 in favor of Y.M.H.A.

The last quarter was very hard fought with the Y guys coming out on top of an 82-74 score. The scoring was well spread out on the Blue team, the high scorers being Pettinger, McManus and Tyndall, with 12 each and Gray with 10. It's interesting to note that everyone on the team scored at least four points. An unidentified Y player hooped 21 points.

On the team last night the only hold-overs from last year were Jack Gray, John McManus and rugged Bill LaChance. Adam Smalley and Bill Henderson are imports from Syracuse and New York respectively and are in their freshman year at St. Mike's.

FOOTBALL MOVIES

Movies of the playoff game between Western and Varsity will be shown today at 12.15 in the reconverted Zion Church at the corner of College and Elizabeth. Presentation of the most popular player cup and possibly the Yates Cup will also be made. Warren Stevens, Bob Masterson, and the team will be there.

(N.B.—BASKETBALL QUARTER FINALS ARE ON FRIDAY)

Six!

That's how many teams are left in the competition for the basketball crown.

In two of the six leagues a tie occurred. St. Hilda's Sophs had the same number of points as Meds in league IV and a sudden-death game was played. Meds came out on top, 21-14, but have to down UC Sophs in the quarter final game Friday at OCE if they want to make the semi-finals against PHE III, who topped league I, on Tuesday in Hart House.

Yes, Hart House ! ! !

Every year the basketball finals are held in Hart House. This is the one time girls intramural teams have the use of the spacious athletic facilities there . . . Ah well, we can keep plugging for that Women's building.

There was a tie in league V as well as in IV. UC Freshies A edged PHE I 21-18 in the deciding game on Tuesday. If they win Friday's game against Physio B, who led league VI, they will meet the leaders of league II, Physio A.

Th finals will be played in Hart House on Thursday, December 2. The teams that are ousted in the semi-finals will battle it out for third place the same night.

When these games are over, it doesn't mean that basketball is all washed up for this year. Try-outs for the intercollegiate team will be starting any day now. Last year our team came second. This year we can and will win but everyone has to help.

Watching the scheduled games we see a lot of good material; but each year what happens? Many of these talented players don't bother to come to the tryouts. How can we have an "all star" team if only a few people come to the intercollegiate trials?

On each and every team in the league there are at least two or three players that have what it takes to make an Intercollegiate player.

We've got to win this year.

We will win if we give our coach enough material with which to work.

Important hockey refs meeting today at five o'clock, in women's athletic office. If you can't be present, be sure to send a representative.

LIBERALS ASK NEW PLATFORM

Mr. Football

Ted Toogood, Blues star flying wing received The Most Popular Player Award at a presentation in Zion Church yesterday afternoon. Toogood was elected most popular player after spirited voting on the part of the student body during the week.

Toogood, who graduates this year, said, "I can't think of a better way to wind up my college career than by being on the championship team and being awarded this trophy."

Large Audience

Warren Stevens, Director of Athletics, introduced the award winner to the audience of more than 900 students who attended the presentation. He referred to the trophy as one example of the way in which the students were standing firmly behind the players. "I knew Ted during the war," he said, "and he exemplifies the type of player we like to have on our team." Stevens said he considered the cheerleaders and members of the band as players, and could recommend two or three of the former who could have won the trophy quite easily.

Ian Clark, captain of the Blues, thanked the students for their support of the team, and coach Bob Masterson who did so much for them. "There is no doubt that Bob is the best coach," he said. "He taught us all those wonderful plays."

Bob Masterson, coach of the team, said the players did more for him than he could ever do for them. "I'm no speech maker," he said. "I just came to see the movies."

The movies, in technicolor, showed the fall training camp of the Blues at Lake Couchiching and the team going through the rigors of preliminary training.

The films of the inter-collegiate playoff between Western and Varsity last Saturday, although not in technicolor, showed practically every play in slow motion. "They showed that there is no doubt that we have the best team. Western are a bunch of has-beens," Hank Westcott, Sports Editor of The Varsity said.

Westcott pointed out the trophy was not awarded on merit. If it had been, The Varsity would not have been able to afford enough trophies to go around.

Russian Play 'Sea Gull' Scheduled For Hart House

"To the Russian mind, the Sea Gull is a comedy" said Bob Gill, director of Hart House Theatre. "In his play, the author reveals the human foibles of the characters, who, if analysed, are ridiculous, shallow, egotistical, and quite helpless; — in fact, not one of them has any backbone!"

In giving a reason why the play appears to have mystical qualities, Gill said that the story suffers through translation. The translators write into it a flowery language that is out of place on the stage. In the production that starts this Saturday however, a new translation by Stark Young is being used. "This time, for the first time, the translation is quite clear and free of obscurities", said the director.

Aside from technical difficulties, the correct interpretation of the characters posed a problem to the cast. "Very often," said Gill, "we found it necessary to sit down and analyze the thoughts of the character. In many instances, what the character was thinking was the important thing, not what he was saying."

The only connection between a real, live sea gull and the title of the play, is symbolic. The heroine of the story thinks of herself as a gull. Another remote connection, is the fact that in the second act, one of the characters of the play shoots a sea gull for no particular reason whatever.

The play, which was last produced on Broadway in 1938, was originally given at the Moscow Theatre. It was such a success, that the crest for the theatre has been a sea gull ever since.

"The play was chosen", said Gill, "because there has never been a Russian classic on the bill before. Another reason is that we are trying to give balance to our productions, since the first and third shows are comedies," he said.

In listing the names of the cast, Gill stated that there would be no stars in this production. Among the more familiar names, he listed Dave Gardner, who was in St. Joan, Anna Comeron, Chris Taylor, Bea Goldberg, and Don Davis, each of whom have been in previous Hart House productions.

Opening date is Saturday, 27th November.

C.C.F. Party Aim Stated As Democratic Socialism

"The basic principles of democratic socialism must sooner or later become the property of every political party," Gord Milling, III, Political Science and Economics, told a discussion group of Victoria C.C.F. Club, Wednesday afternoon.

Choosing as his topic "The Basic Tenets of the C.C.F." Milling outlined the fundamental principles on which the party was formed and on which it operates.

The aim of the C.C.F. party, he said, is to promote the establishment in Canada of a co-operative commonwealth, a socialistic democracy that would regulate the production, distribution and exchange of goods in the light of human needs, not profit.

Strongly Advocate Abolition Of Fees Suggest Subsidies

The U of T Liberal Association last night passed a resolution demanding that a Provincial Convention of the Ontario Liberal Party be called either in February or March, 1949, to consider the question of the provincial leadership and vigorous party organization and for the purpose of adopting a comprehensive and constructive platform.

Condemns Tory Habit

Following the introduction of the motion, speakers took the floor protesting its implications with regard to the position of the present provincial leader, Mr. Farquhar Oliver, M.P. One speaker, who proved to be the leader of a minority group when his motion for the deletion of the leadership clause came to a vote, condemned the advocation of any policy which might approximate "the Tory habit of changing leadership every two or three years." Joe Potts, IV UC, regional vice-president of the Canadian University Liberal Federation, spoke against the motion for deletion of the clause. "We would gain a great deal," he said, "if we were to follow the CCF line of reconsidering the question of leadership at each party convention."

Further debate resulted in the passage of the motion as a whole containing a recommendation that conventions of the provincial liberal party be held regularly at four-year intervals. Other provisions were demands that a committee be set up at once for the purpose of receiving resolutions and submissions throughout Ontario and of preparing draft resolutions for the consideration of the convention demanded in the resolution of the Association.

Abolish Fees

The abolition of tuition fees in universities was advocated in another motion introduced at last night's meeting. The motion, to be forwarded to both provincial and dominion governments, also contained clauses recommending that the government assist deserving students of sufficient ability who are unable to provide for their own sustenance or who are faced with the difficulty of non-residence in university centres. This assistance, the motion suggested, should be given by the provincial and/or by the federal government.

Subsidies

A further provision within the resolution recommended that further allowances designed to facilitate specialized research and graduate studies should be provided for students who have achieved academic distinction and who have the recommendation of the appropriate educational authorities. The Association approved the addition to the preamble of the clause, "whereas the recent DVA plan, which has been a marked advance towards equality of educational opportunity, is soon to expire," and the members of the association, as Liberals, declared their belief in the right of the individual to education to the measure of his ability.

Congratulates King

The first resolution of the meeting was to the effect that a message of congratulation and appreciation be sent to the Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King on his retirement as Prime Minister. "We are proud," read the motion, "to serve our country in the ranks of a party to whose greatness your leadership has contributed so much."

The final resolution on housing urged that the 1945 federal housing proposals be implemented immediately "in co-operation with those provinces which are prepared to work out an agreement."

During the course of the meeting, Joe Potts outlined the aims and activities of the Canadian University Liberal Federation of which he is a regional vice-president. The

Mexican Culture To Be Discussed At RCI Lecture

On Saturday evening, November 27, in Convocation Hall, Dr. M. W. Stirling, Director of the Bureau of American Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., will address the Royal Canadian Institute on archaeological exploration in Veracruz, Tabasco, and Chiapas. The address is entitled, "Uncovering Mexico's Buried Treasures."

Expeditions sponsored jointly by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Geographic Society were sent to trace out the early La Venta or Olmec civilization. This culture, the earliest advanced civilization known in Middle America, was probably ancestral in many of its phases to such later but better known centres as the Maya, Zapotec, Toltec, or Aztec. The dates of this period extended from a century or two before the beginning of the Christian era to about 800 A.D. The artistic achievements of many of these people were high.

The people were of a different physical type than that which later became typical of the area, having small round faces with broad noses and quite thick lips. The lecturer will describe many features of the country, methods of travel, native types, and native activities.

Dr. Stirling was born in Salinas, California, and obtained his A.B. degree at the University of California. In 1922, he received his A.M. degree from George Washington University and in 1943, he received his Sc. D. degree from Tampa University. Dr. Stirling was Assistant Curator of the Division of Ethnology, United States National Museum between 1921 and 1924 and in 1928, he became Chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology. He is now its director.

Varsity-McGill Debate Tonight At St. Hilda's

The University of Toronto Debating Union will play host tonight to the McGill Debating Society in a debate to be held at 8 p. m. in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's. The topic will be: "Resolved that the concept of National Sovereignty is an impediment to world peace".

Marg Kearns, St. Michael's, together with Blair Ferguson of S.P.S., will support the motion. This debate is a home-and-home event.

Jean O'Shaughnessy and Fred Furlong of St. Michael's are supporting the negative in Montreal. This is one of a long-standing series of home-and-home debates between McGill and the University of Toronto.

Fees Again

It is well over a year since the increase in tuition fees first aroused student indignation on the campus. Now, thirteen months later, an adequate remedy still seems as remote as ever.

The Students' Administrative Council set up a committee on October 1st of last year "to investigate the increase in tuition fees and possible alternative sources of income". The committee, in conference with President Smith last October 21st, was told that university expenditures had increased greatly. The committee issued a report stating it felt the problem to be one "affecting students but affecting students as citizens. Therefore we feel that the problem now becomes one beyond the realm of the SAC".

A number of student organizations took up the torch and on October 24th, 1947, held a protest rally on the front steps of the Ontario Legislature. The rally, called to seek an audience with the Minister of Education, proved fruitless after Premier Drew in a letter stated "Tuition fees are fixed by the Board of Governors and it would be advisable to place before them any representations."

Education Minister Drew knew full well that tuition fees, based on the existing provincial grant and a meagre University budget, could not be lowered without an increase in the government subsidy. In a later telegram he reiterated "First discussion of subject should be with Board of Governors."

We have now passed the "first discussion" stage. The SAC fees brief, compiled a great deal of time and effort by an SAC committee, was submitted to the Board of Governors last January. The reply, made public yesterday, explained that in spite of an increased grant, the mounting cost of goods and services made it impossible to reduce tuition fees.

We are now right back where we started from. It is obvious that only a further increase in the provincial grant will make it possible to reduce fees. That fact was recognized by the SAC Wednesday night when it set up a committee to re-examine the problem with the intention of placing it before the provincial government.

Students have shown considerable patience during the past year—with little result. The protest has been voiced through the "proper channels" in a comprehensive and responsible manner, but it is clear that it must be taken a step further.

The SAC fees committee, seeking all possible co-operation from the Board of Governors, can put the issue where it really belongs—in the hands of the provincial government.

British Team Holds Empire Still Potent

Two visiting British debaters successfully opposed a motion "that the British Empire is decadent", in a debate sponsored jointly by Hart House and The University of Toronto Debating Union in Strachan Hall last night. The vote of the house was 52 to 10 against the motion.

The speakers for the negative were two English students, Anthony J. Cox, from the University of Bristol, and Reginald Galer from the University of Birmingham. Cox and Galer have been in the United States for the past few weeks, debating with American University teams.

Martin Shubick, Graduate Studies, and Norm Depoe, IV U.C., upheld the affirmative for the University of Toronto.

Empire Only

Shubick introduced the motion. He stated that the Toronto team had hoped for a wider debate, holding that the wording of the resolution narrowed discussion to the "Empire only", and excluded the Commonwealth. He drew a parallel between the downfall of the Roman Empire and the decline of the British, but claimed that while the Roman had gone down in "pomp and glory", the British (under their austerity program) were "not even allowed to go down to the tune of 'Land of Hope and Glory'".

Reginald Galer, first speaker for the negative said that he understood the debate to include the Commonwealth. He claimed that the growth of the Commonwealth, and the development of responsible government in the independent dominions did not show any sign of material decadence. Pointing out the co-operation that has existed in the past, and still exists between Britain and the autonomous members of the Commonwealth, he said that there were also no signs of moral decadence.

Liquidating Assets

Norm Depoe claimed that the people of Britain "have lost their sense of imperial mission and elected a government which is liquidating every asset the Empire ever had."

The final speaker for the negative, Anthony Cox, said there is little or no sign of decadence in the Empire. He claimed that it has "a healthier and stronger foundation than ever before in its history."

Both the English speakers expressed their warm thanks to the University for the hospitality shown them on their visit here.

Noted English Authority, Van Doren, To Lecture On 'New Poems' At Vic

Mark Van Doren, Professor of English at Columbia University, will give the Armstrong Lecture, "New Poems", at 4 p.m. today in Victoria College Chapel. "New Poems" is also the title of the Professor's latest book. Its contents and modern poetry in general will be the subject of the lecture.

One of the most outstanding professors of English in the country, Professor Van Doren is a noted authority on Shakespeare and has published several volumes of poetry as well as a book entitled "Liberal Education" which expounds the theory behind the "Hundred Great Books" program of education. As a trustee of St. John's College in Annapolis, Maryland, he is closely associated with the Chicago group who have spread the "Great Books" program. Most recently his poems have been connected with the war and are reputed to be among the best poems to come out of the war.

In 1940 Professor Van Doren won the Pulitzer Award in journalism and for some time he has been director of "The Invitation to Learning" radio program.

George Doull is more interested in lensman Bob Shelley, but the rest of the Varsity senior Intercollegiate harrier team, Pete Niblock, George McMullen, Dave Barr, Dunc Green, and Gord Wilson gaze fondly at the Little Cup which they won along with the championship in Montreal a couple of weeks a go. This morning they leave for Detroit where they take part in the National American Athletic Union harrier meet against the best runners of the States.

Tickets Sold Out For Talk By Architect, F. L. Wright

Frank Lloyd Wright, known in architectural circles as the "Dean of Modern Architecture," will speak in Hart House Theatre, Tuesday, November 30, at 3.30 p.m. The address has been arranged by the Architectural Society of the University of Toronto School of Architecture. A capacity audience is assured for this distinguished visitor as all available tickets have been sold.

Mr. Wright, who has given up hope for present-day architecture and believes that modern architecture's future depends on the present crop of students, has put off going to his Arizona home—Taliesin West—in order to make his appearance here.

World acclaim was given Mr. Wright for his design of the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo. Possibly one of his best-known creations on this continent is the Johnson Wax Building in Racine, Wis.

In 1945, Wright designed the Guggenheim Museum, a cylindrical building with a glass-domed roof and a spiral staircase, three-quarters of a mile long, leading to the roof.

Characteristic of his radical departure from conventional design are Wright's two homes: Taliesin, his summer home in Spring Green, Wis., and his winter residence, Taliesin West in the Arizona desert.

Wright left his studies at the University of Wisconsin before graduation and went to work under Louis Sullivan, a pioneer in modern architecture and designer of the Wainwright building in St. Louis.

Wright developed the "unit block" system of construction, in which walls, floors and ceilings are built as hollow concrete shells inlaid with steel.

A lengthy article on Wright and his work, which recently appeared in Life magazine said: "To him, the essential goodness of man awaits only the destruction of villainous politicians and corrupt institutions, to flower ever after in a perfectly designed Usonia (Wright's term for the future American Utopia)."

Journalist's Life Not Hair-Raising States Publisher

Robertson Davies, publisher of the Peterboro Examiner, addressed the 3rd and 4th year men in Trinity College yesterday. Mr. Davies is also an author and playwright, having written the Diary of Samuel Marchbanks, and a play which won first prize at the Dominion Drama Festival.

He described "Journalism as a Career" under various headings. Mr. Davies' remarks were not encouraging to anyone under the impression that the life of a newspaperman was the hair-raising one exemplified by Steve Wilson of the Illustrated Press. A cub reporter may begin with a salary as high as $27.50. The art of reporting does not "just come" to the average prospective reporter. "An intelligent man can master the art of reporting in five years" Mr. Davies stated. "The primary requirement is common sense and good judgment. There is no great mystery; all that is required is a certain amount of intelligence, and a coherent knowledge of modern and world history," he continued.

On a newspaper one of the main things is to report incidents as they happen, not in the way that the writer would want them to happen. A reporter should not have any political opinions or inclinations. "What we need in Ontario is a better grade of man in the provincial press. That is, people with good academic qualifications," he stated.

To a question by one of the audience concerning the School of Journalism, Mr. Davies said: "You cannot learn to be a newspaperman in a School of Journalism. If a man were a top-notch journalist, he would not be running such a school."

Mr. Davies was not entirely sceptical. "It's not a bad life," he stated.

Book Exchange To Open Soon—To Be Operated By SAC

Students at the University of Toronto may soon have an opportunity to buy and sell their books in a book exchange operated by the Students' Administrative Council. "At present, all that is holding up the project is the inability to secure space for the business," Jane Hazard, Student Service Commissioner of the SAC, said last night.

Have Option

The move to establish a book exchange on the campus came as a result of an approach made by Horner and Bowes who have been operating a similar enterprise for the past two years. The SAC has held an option to buy since last year.

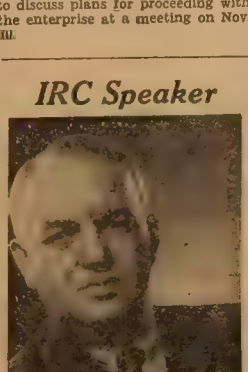
Two weeks ago Horner and Bowes asked the SAC to take up the option they held on the business and to purchase it outright. At the meeting of the SAC on November 10 the Book Exchange Committee was set up to investigate the terms under which Horner and Bowes would sell the business and to investigate the possibilities of securing space to conduct the exchange.

At its meeting last week, the Book Exchange Committee agreed to accept Horner and Bowes' terms of sale. The terms are as follows: a $50 cash down payment and two per cent of the gross sales, a maximum of $100 a year for five years provided the option was taken up. up.

Have Approval

The Committee approached the Board of Governors to get its approval to set up the book exchange business. The Board gave its permission last week.

The SAC plans to conduct the book exchange under the same policy as that of Horner and Bowes. Students would be able to bring their books to the exchange and either turn them in on other used books or leave them for sale at a price set by the student, the SAC taking a percentage of the money derived from direct sales, for operating costs.



Open All Day

If adequate space can be found, the business would operate at the following hours: for six weeks at the beginning of the term it would be open all day, for the rest of the term specific hours would be set.

The Book Exchange Committee requested Horner and Bowes to submit a financial statement for the present year. The financial statement shows the firm operated with a net profit of $206.

The Committee is investigating possible sites for housing the exchange. If they are successful in obtaining a place, they will meet to discuss plans for proceeding with the enterprise at a meeting on Nov. 30.

Important Finds In Archeology Enhance Science

Results of student archaeological digs at Aurora, Woodbridge and Black Creek were discussed by Mr. J. N. Emmerson, lecturer in Anthropology, Wednesday night at the opening meeting of the Archaeological Club. The meeting was held in the Home Economics Building.

U of T archaeologists, Mr. Emmerson said, had scored three firsts in Ontario archaeology during the course of the three digs. He felt, he said, that these discoveries were of definite value in the advancement of archaeology in Canada. "The science is taking its place in what I am convinced is Canada's growth towards a nation of cultural maturity," Mr. Emmerson declared. "For that belief I am sincerely grateful."

At Aurora, the prehistoric Huron site which was uncovered proved, by the simplicity of its pottery design, to represent the remains of a community which must have existed in cultural and social isolation, said the speaker. The second find was the first prehistoric Huron long-house, a characteristic feature of Iroquois life at what is now Woodbridge. The long-house, said Mr. Emmerson, was the genesis of the social concept underlying the Iroquois league.

At Black Creek, U of T excavators found a fortified Seneca-like site with a double-walled palisade and firing platform. The discovery, remarked Mr. Emmerson, raised the question as to whether or not the wars of the Iroquois were well under way before Columbus discovered America. Tentatively, he said, the answer would be that this warfare had probably begun before the coming of the Spanish expedition.

Lecture On 'R. Niebuhr' Given In Debates Room By Professor Coleman

Professor William Coleman of Wycliffe College delivered the fourth in a series of talks on "Contemporary Religious Thinkers" in Hart House Debates Room Wednesday.

"Rhinehold Niebuhr, American theologian, is the product of two chief factors, pragmatism and a passion for absolutes. Christians must be governed by absolutes but must be shrewd in their understanding of the dynamics of human living," said Professor Coleman.

"Although his passion for human beings led Niebuhr to an extreme leftist position in political thought, he was highly critical of orthodox Marxism. Man, according to Niebuhr, is torn between the finite and the infinite and the resulting dizziness is his consciousness of freedom."

DEBATE TRY-OUTS

Those interested in debating in the intercollegiate debate between Osgoode and Toronto should prepare a three minute speech, "Resolved that the legal mind is the servant of Humanity". The tryouts will be held beginning Monday, November 29th, at 1.20 in Room Nine, Trinity. For an appointment and further details, see your debates rep or call Pat Cole, debates commissioner. KI 5914.

Movie Review

The Pearl

Fortunately, the "Good Neighbour" policy does not require us to say we liked this all-Mexican production of Steinbeck's short novel, "The Pearl." However, we wouldn't object if more Hollywood films were guilty of what we feel is the chief fault of this film, namely over-sincerity on the part of its makers. These Mexicans tried a little too hard to produce a good movie from the standpoint of cinema art, as well as box-office. The result, we feel, while neither insipid nor mediocre, does not present the author's tale in its true light.

One day while diving for pearls, Kino, a member of a poor community of Mexican Indians, comes up with a magnificent specimen of so high a value that he cannot comprehend its worth in terms of hard cash. He does realize that through it he can do much to improve his own, as well as his neighbours' lot. But before he has a chance to put the pearl to good use, the sharp operators move in. The remainder of the plot concerns the flight of Kino, and his young wife and baby, before his greedy pursuers.

While it is true that the "greed" theme is a profound one which, in other stories, could call for numerous complexities, in this picture it is involved in an essentially simple plot comprising essentially simple characters. Apparently the producers either failed to appreciate this simplicity, or they intentionally overlooked it.

Thus we find exaggerated figures speaking too deliberately, and acting too deliberately, all in a seeming attempt to get across the point to us rather thick-skulled movie-goers. A false impression of greatness is suggested; a dignity and majesty which I feel is inappropriate. And most ridiculous of all, (and here we suspect the hand of Hollywood) are the dance scenes which occur during the celebrations over Kino's discovery. Poverty-stricken, barefooted peasants are suddenly seen doing mass rhumbas, all in handsome costumes and real leather shoes, and in a style that would draw eager bids from Billy Rose!

These incongruencies, plus an objective camera, and some very jerky scene transitions, prevent the film from being top-notch. There are, however, fine performances turned in by the hero and heroine, and several supporting actors; that is, fine in spite of the directing. It is a pity that these players could not have said more and done more, instead of staring into space as often as they do. Also, the photography at times is excellent, especially during the flight across the desert and into the hills. Occasionally the Steinbeck flavor is captured. Both in killing his human enemies, and in killing a scorpion which attacks his baby, Kino is portrayed with that visciousness and realism we expect in a Steinbeck narrative.

Certainly "The Pearl" does not suffer from lack of sympathetic treatment on film, but to the people who were responsible for it, we would hold up John Huston's "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," and advise them to take a good look at it before proceeding with their next production. SKULE SPIRIT

The Editor, The Varsity.

In the past, when the issue of "Skule spirit" has come up from time to time in the "Letters to the Editor", my attitude has been one of slightly amused neutrality. However, an incident occurring during the parade Saturday last has soured me completely on all aspects of this so-called spirit.

It seems that a party of Skule men, objecting (or could it have been jealousy) to the fact that a lad wearing an Engineer's sweater was shining a Commerce man's shoes on the Commerce Club float, jumped aboard, succeeded in knocking one side of the float askew, dragged the "wisest Engineer in the Rainbows are undoubtedly amongst the most inspiring of natural phenomena, and along with all the others, we have always been suitably impressed. Those layers upon layers of delicately shaded colours have always held us in thrall, and we have only had pity for those poor unfortunates who have never taken pause to look and wonder. We felt the same way about the Ishihara colour-plates, with their myriad speckles of vividly sprinkled splashes. It was only when the medical examiners failed to agree with us on the figures that we identified, that we realized how much some people miss. We still laugh at people who cannot appreciate the deep, rich, greens of the passionately setting sun.

ART — MUSIC — DRAMA

De Paur Infantry Chorus

Dynamic, dark Leonard De Paur and his famed Infantry Chorus starred in last night's concert of the Musical Arts Series at Eaton Auditorium. The 34-man choir sang a unique program of 21 songs which ranged from William Schumann's "Truth Shall Deliver" to Dett's "Listen to the Lambs."

De Paur's chorus was outstanding on three counts: An uncanny, instinctive blending of voices was notable in the novel "Spanish Johnny", in the jazzy "Ugly Woman", and in Robinson's "Water Boy". Then the Latin-American group ("Folga Nego" and "Coco do norte") gave the infantrymen a chance to show their fine sense of rhythm.

Remarkable in "The Duckworth Chant" (a cadence work), "The Song of the French Partisan" and "Roger Young" were an electrically precise attack and a harmony balance which might well brand the singers the "Don Cossacks of the South."

Their technique in the latter songs was almost over precise. No consonants were in excess, no vowels overdone.

De Paur conducts with impulsive shooting arms, which holds audience attention high. Twelve of the 21 songs were De Paur arranged. All bore original touches of a new musical mind. His super-setting of Malotte's "Lord's Prayer" began with the Amens in a silent hush—and ended with them on a triple forte—giving the piece an unusual unity of theme.

The choir had a stiff bearing when onstage. But this stiffness did not affect their work, except possibly in the polyphonic Palestrina "Adoremus Te Christe" and in "Quiet flows the Don"—whereas in the spirituals and Latin songs the choir's flexibility and tone control were evident.

I was most struck by the diversity of De Paur's program—with its exhaustive scope and range of spirituals, chants and songs of faith. The concert was a kind of panorama in song—from Brazil to France and to Toronto ("Quiet flows the Don"). The chorus encored with the "Whiffenpoof Song" and a Russian chant.

Royal Canadian Academy

The Royal Canadian Academy of Arts is holding its sixty-ninth annual exhibition at the Art Gallery until Dec. 12. While there is time we strongly recommend that you see it.

Instead of joining the wordy war of valuations which has raged ever since individual intellectuals have been more concerned with knowing than doing in art, and which must continue to rage as long as personal perspectives differ, we shall be content with merely listing some of the paintings which held particular appeal for us, and to attempt to make a classification relating to the various functioning levels of the artists involved.

The great majority of the paintings in the various media fall under the heading "popular"—that is, a picture, within the artist's own and other people's familiar experience. Descriptive is the adjective to apply to such men as Brigden, Manly Macdonald, and Panabaker with their familiar "Christmas Card" landscapes. Garside, Tom Roberts, and Albert Frank follow the same tradition. Frank, along with another naturalistic type, Eitel, employs super-sensitive colour harmonies which are worthy of note.

In these popular paintings the derivative characteristic is marked. In the assembling of their lines, spaces, lights, darks, and forms, the artists repeat the chaos of the natural scene thus aligning themselves with academic painting.

Actually, for ourselves, we prefer definitely adventurous pictures which widen our experience by revealing aspects of subject perceived by the adventurous vision of the creative artist. This spirit was not entirely submerged in the R.C.A. exhibit. Haworth, Gautier, Bouchard, Schaefer, have built elements into an active purposeful unity—active because the forms are slightly but sufficiently emancipated from the familiarity of the literal fact to compel interest. The same holds true for the "architectural" painters; they all seem to promote design even further. After these come the "original canvasses"—prime examples are Lismer's works and Panton's "Rock Cluster, Nova Scotia Landscape No. 3."

Although power of conception, organization, and execution are of the highest importance, a deeply felt subject does to a considerable extent compel its own forces. The "human interest" subjects and portraits display a quality of interpretive sensitivity which makes up for the preponderance of factual compositions. The portraits of fellow artists by Comfort, Scott, and Pannaton are striking, each in their own way. The sculpture, too, falls into the "human interest" group.

There are a host of names which should have been mentioned—our advice is to go visit this exhibit yourself and take your time about it. We wonder if you, too, will come away with the feeling that, in the Canadian field we need more artists to face and deal with the realities of contemporary life (not in compromising familiar recipes of popular art), but in a way which painting trees-and-sky, or posing models and still-lifes will never do.

TRON-TO?

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Why do Varsity students insist on singing "TRON-TO is Our University"? They can sing "Old TO-RON-TO, Mother Ever Dear" all right. The music, which you published not long ago in The Varsity, provides enough notes for all the syllables, and it seems to me it would sound very much better if students would sing it that way.

Well Drilled Double Blues Beat Senior Meds 16 To 7

By JOHN KENNEDY

The St. Mike's A rugby team has done it again. Yesterday afternoon at Varsity Stadium the boys from the medical school succumbed to the Collegians' well-coached outfit by a 16-7 margin. The victory was the seventh consecutive one for the winners.

The double blue featured a slick passing attack that Meds were unable to cope with, at least in the first half. Quarterback Dick Brown guided his team to an early lead in the first quarter but unfortunately had to leave the game due to a slight injury. Tony Adams subbed for him for the rest of the game and proved that St. Mike's have lots of quality as well as quantity.

Exactly two minutes after Meds kicked off to start the game, the Saints got their first major. Brown ran back to the 47 and promptly threw a long pass to the Med 18 which was completed by Tom Popp. Lorne McIntyre then hit the line twice to take the play to the Med six yard stripe. On a fast sequence play Brown tossed over the line to Jerry Fullerton for the score, which was converted by Bud Brennan.

After an exchange of kicks Cecutti for Meds hit for five followed by Jimmy Smith who fought his way to the 30, where he was finally stopped by McIntyre. Tony Cecutti picked up seven over centre and the Med team looked as if they were going places until secondary Sam O'Hara intercepted a forward pass. A terrific quick kick by Brown set the Doctors back on their one yard line, when he just missed the coffin-corner. St. Mike's lost a TD when Brown, behind a line that gives him amazing protection, threw a great pass to Popp in the end zone, who couldn't seem to hold on to it.

Meds started the second period with Cecutti smashing for ten, followed by a Gabe Varga to Jim Smith pass good for 35. Sam O'Hara cut this advance off when he intercepted a pass from Varga. Tony Adams of the Collegians got the team rolling again with good broken field running and a pass to Fullerton, taking them to centre field. Lorne McIntyre set up the next touchdown with a terrific run from the Med 40 to the 10 where he was stopped by Noonan and Armstrong. On the next play Bill Kelly swept around right end for a major that went unconverted.

On the last play of the half, Tony Adams was downed behind his line after a 40 yard punt by Jimmy Smith of Meds.

Trailing 11-1, Meds drove to the 55 yard line before they lost the ball on failure to make yards. St. Mike's took possession and drove to the Med 15 on good runs by Kelly, Adams and McIntyre. Jim Coghlin topped this drive off with a 15 yard plunge right through centre for the Mikemen's third touchdown, which went unconverted.

Behind durable blocking by Ricci and Milligan, Smith ran the ball on successive plays to the St. Mike's 12 but their attack petered out when they were unable to complete a couple of passes over the goal line.

The embryo doctors dominated the play through most of the last session and were rewarded by a converted touchdown. A Bill Cochrane to Kent Armstrong pass began the TD push that was continued with sustained drives by Smith and Cecutti plus a rough-play penalty that took the Medsmen to the 7. From there, Cochrane lugged the ball over for five points. Smith got the extra one. That completed the scoring of a game that had numerous stars. For the winners, Adams, McIntyre, B. Brennan and Kelly were a few of the standouts, while the Medsmen showed Cecutti, Smith, Cochrane and Gabe Varga to best advantage.

St. Mike's subs: Kite, Macdonald, Neill, Washington, E. Brennan, R. McDonald, Knollmeyer, Lancefield, Timmins, Aprile, Adams, Carolan.

Meds: Soper, Rosen, Mustard, Anderson, A. Varga, Kendrick, Rota, Leckie, D. Smith, Higgins, Milligan.

Football Forces Default By Mikemen

Yesterday afternoon the St. Michael's I volleyball team was to play UC/PHE I. The Mikemen didn't turn up for the game. Intramural officials wondered why. After the Meds-St. Mike's football tilt they found out. The players had gone en masse to help cheer their college into the Mulock Cup finals. As a result they lost the volleyball game by default but because of the moral assistance they gave the football team the college will not lose any Reed Trophy points.

Skule and UC IV Winners In Boxla

Senior SPS handed Vic firsts a 7-4 setback in the five o'clock lacrosse game in Hart House yesterday, while UC fourths beat St. Mike's B squad 5-1 at noon.

Pilgrim and Skordoff paced the SPS attack in the late game with two goals apiece. Anderson, Watkins, and Olsen added the others. Wiggins with two, Ladly and Naylor were the Vic marksmen.

Young fired two for the UC fourths in the other game, and Kopsky, Knox, and Onizuka scored singles. McBride scored for St. Mike's.

SPORT IN SHORT

Football

St. Mike's, 16; Senior Meds, 7.

Lacrosse

Sr. SPS (I), 7; Vic (I), 4.

UC (IV), 5; St. Mike's (B), 1.

Volleyball

Junior UC beat Trinity (I), 15-9, 15-12.

St. Mike's (I) defaulted to UC/PHE (I).

WATER POLO

The senior intercollegiate water polo game between Queen's and the champion Varsity team, originally scheduled for Saturday night in Hart House has been cancelled.

SPORTSWOMAN

SPLASH!

The annual women's splash parties are starting next week. Each college or faculty has the pool for one night either separately or in conjunction with another faculty.

The primary object of the swims is to enable the colleges and faculties to choose a team for the intramural meet but that is not the only reason they are held. This is the only opportunity to swim for most women. As the name indicates these splash parties are run in a very informal manner and everyone goes just to splash around and have some fun.

All the splash nights will be in the UTS pool except those for PHE, December 2, and UC, December 7.

PIX TODAY

Today at 1.15 all of the senior Blues will congregate on the steps of UC to have their pictures taken. The Yates Cup, which has been gathering dust at Western since 1939, will be on display.

At 1.30, after the football Blues have had their pictures taken, the UC soccer team will line up to be photographed.

Afterthoughts

Try To Limit Imports? Only Rumor Says Jones

By BOB JONES

The Double Blue rooting section in the open stands yesterday was so large that it looked as if the entire St. Michael's student body had marched over to support their football representatives. This faculty always does manage to muster a strong backing for their intramural teams and do so with male cheer leaders. It is a carry-over, perhaps, of the strong Bay Street High School spirit.

Yesterday's semi-final game found no less than 12 of the Varsity's intramural all-star selections participating. Without a single exception the lads chosen on the mythical dream-teams were outstanding for their respective causes.

Meds fielded essentially the same team that suffered a hard-luck loss to Trinity in last year's Mulock Cup semi-finals. The doctors are thus gaining a reputation for being a strong schedule team but do not appear to be slated for playoff glory.

Prominent in a winning cause were ten members of the St. Michael's Western course; these boys are all from south of the border and have adapted themselves most capably to our game. There is no truth to the rumour that other faculties are attempting to impose an American import limit of six men.

Lou Barnes has displayed an amazingly successful series of imaginative formations in his plays. He has deevloped a running and passing attack that can be directed with equal facility from a single-wing spread, or T-formation.

EAST-WEST ODDS

Latest odds on the east-west final are Ottawa 8-5.

Seek First Win Tonight

By HAL HOLDEN

Ace Bailey's senior hockey Blues meet their second exhibition test of the young season tonight at Varsity Arena when they take on Barkers of the THL Major League at 8.00. The Blues have yet to break into the win column, having dropped their first game of the year to People's Jewellers last Friday.

The Blues played Barkers last year and beat them handily. "We didn't have too much trouble with them," Coach Bailey said, "but they didn't try too hard. Peoples skated their hearts out against us a week ago and lost the next night to a team that never should have beaten them."

Barkers will feature Murray Dowey in goal, the same boy who held the fort for Canada's 1948 Olympic team. Dowey turned in some excellent efforts as the Canucks took all the honors at the ice games.

Paul Hutzulak and Bill Prince will be the Varsity netminders dressed for tonight's fracas. Wilf Digby, Gord Eccelstone, Paul Kavanagh and Dan MacDougald are the rearguards to see action.

Three complete forward lines will split the front line duty for the defending Intercollegiate champs. Bob Henry, who tied for the league scoring title last year, Cece Turcott and Wes Moore make up one trio. Don Howson, Ernie Frey and Harry Boyd form another attacking threesome while John Fox, Bill Spence and Art Bell fill out the other forward line. Jerry Larmer was considered a doubtful starter for tonight but latest word from the Blue camp is that the cut around his eye is sufficiently healed to allow him to get into action.

Bailey was non-committal on the probable outcome of the game.

Student Show To Come Here With Carabins

The following telegram, sent to ISS in Toronto by the University of Montreal, appeared in Le Quartier Latin, U. of M. newspaper, under the headline "Lost Weekend a Toronto."

"Invasion 40 Carabins stop; Voleront ou autobuseront Toronto 3 Dec. stop; bravo invitation, stop; preparez Toronto, stop; bleu et or hockey team venant, stop; preparez, Torontoises, stop.

(Signe) Ageum (ISS), Montreal, P.Q.

To clear up misunderstandings, "Carabin" is the name popularly given to the students of the University of Montreal. Great enthusiasm has been aroused among the Carabins, say their ISS executive, for the coming weekend, complete with hockey game and the U. of M. annual show, "La Revue Bleu et Or".

For the ISS French Canadian weekend, 40 Carabins and Carabinettes will be guests of Varsity students. Anyone who is able to accommodate a student is urgently requested to sign the lists in the Men's and Women's SAC offices. "Provision of accommodation for the 40 Carabins for Friday and Saturday nights, Dec. 3 and 4," said Pat Daniel, chairman of the committee in charge, "is extremely important."

The program for the weekend will begin with the season's first Intercollegiate hockey game, Varsity vs. Montreal, followed by a Blue and White Dance. Saturday evening the Carabins will present in Cartwright Hall their show, "La Revue Bleu et Or". Tickets for this show will go on sale tomorrow in the SAC offices.

Designed to bring closer together students from the two major races in Canada, Daniel said, the scheme is a concrete example of the work of ISS. The Carabins are planning a return weekend for sometime during the Winter.

GRADUATE VETS

A meeting to discuss DVA policy and to elect a committee to represent Graduate Student Veterans will be held in the Graduate Union, 44 Hoskin Ave., 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 30.

Chapter House

The Chapter House was the Directors' Board Room of the Middle Ages: monastery and cathedral were administered by the men who met regularly in it. Characteristically, only the English gave special architectural expression to this symbol of government; and to them is due the compact round structure of which Croft Chapter House is an unpretentious descendant.

Brothers May Discriminate U.S. Fraternities Decide

New York (Special) — Consideration of the "character and personality" of any prospective member "rather than his race, color, religion or nationality," was urged on its fifty-eight member fraternities by the National Interfraternity Conference meeting here, Saturday. At the same time the conference affirmed the right of fraternities to determine the qualifications of their members.

"The wisdom or desirability of social considerations affecting the membership, including religious, racial or national qualifications, are thus the concern of the fraternity itself," it was asserted in a statement issued by the conference to its affiliates.

"The conference, however, believes that the fraternity system will flourish better if the character and personality of the individual are regarded as paramount, rather than his race, color, religion or nationality," it was said in the statement.

Delegates to the 40th annual conference of the group had voted unofficially on Friday in favor of keeping the ban on negroes maintained by most fraternities. The resolution, which was merely an expression of opinion, passed by a 25-12 margin.

Interest in discrimination was heightened at the meeting by the recent suspension by Phi Kappa Psi fraternity of its Amherst College Chapter because the latter asked a negro to join.

The national executive council of Phi Kappa Psi was scheduled to meet here yesterday to consider this matter.

The statement issued on Saturday said it was recognized that "a chapter member may cast his vote on discriminatory considerations" when considering a candidate for membership.

"He may concede or refuse to concede to the opinions or even the prejudices of his fraternity brothers," the statement said. "That is his individual right. The weight to be given to conflicting considerations is for his individual decision."

An open meeting to report on the Dean of Canterbury will be held on Tues., Nov. 30 at 1:00 p.m. in Room 6 U.C.

Send Christmas Greetings To West Indies Via CBC

Students from Jamaica, Trinidad, Barbadoes, and British Guiana will have the opportunity again this year of broadcasting Christmas greetings to their relatives and friends at home through the International Service of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

After being recorded in Toronto, the individual messages will be mailed to the West Indies in time for Christmas Eve broadcasts by local radio stations. To ensure their listening, relatives or friends will be notified in advance. There will be no charge for either the recording or the notification.

Half-Minute Talks

Each student should come prepared to talk for about half a minute. The CBC has some suggestions to make concerning the messages: the talk might refer briefly to the student's life and activities in Canada, in addition to the holiday greetings; and West Indian listeners can be assumed by now as being well-versed on the vagaries of Canada's weather.

A master of ceremonies will be on hand at the time of the recording, to help any student needing assistance. To assist in the planning of the programs, those who intend to take advantage of the opportunity are asked to contact the International Service office of the CBC at MIdway 5481 (local 380) as far in advance as possible. The students' names, Toronto addresses, and the names and addresses of the relatives or friends in the West Indies whom they wish to be notified of the broadcast, should be given to the CBC.

The date of the recording of the messages will be Thursday, Dec. 2, in Studio H, 354 Jarvis Street. Students who wish to send messages should appear at the following times: from Jamaica—3.30 p. m.; from Trinidad—4 p. m.; from Barbadoes—4.15 p. m.; from British Guiana—4.30 p. m. Only students from the above areas can be accommodated in this service.

Petunia—She's A Sweet-Smelling Skunk

Of all the animals least likely to succeed in life as a household pet, the friendly little skunk would take first place. Petunia is the exception to this rule.

Petunia is seven pounds, six ounces of live skunkmeat. By now she will perhaps have become a familiar figure to Varsity rugby fans. Win or lose, the little lady (Petunia is female) attended each of the Varsity games in the Blue Bowl.

It was erroneously reported that Petunia was a McGill skunk. It is said that her feelings were hurt when she read the report in The Varsity. She might have said, "The Varsity stinks".

The truth of the matter is Petunia is the mascot of the Pi Lambda Phi fraternity. Every year the fraternity gets an animal mascot. Past years have seen the 'Pi lamb', and a duck. This year Petunia is it.

The socialized skunk is not only deodorized, but also house-broken. She spent her happy hours in a special 'skunkery' at the back of the St. George street fraternity house. The fraternity fellows talk of the patter of little feet along the hall. Petunia was the only woman of the House.

Petunia's background is not well known. It is expected though, that she is a thoroughbred. She was purchased through an ad in the personal column, which said, "Group of boys would like to find companion." Petunia was the only answer they received. She cost $30, fur coat and all.

Daily walks were given to the mascot along "three-letter street". A special collar and leash was made to measure. Russel Berg, I Institutional Management, reported that Petunia used to walk in the gutter on her daily excursions," as she couldn't climb to the curb once she had fallen off. Petunia was antimale. She was attracted to females only. Suggested a fraternity spokesman, "I think it's the similarity in perfume that attracted her."

TORONTO STUDENT WINS TWO AWARDS

William H. Dray of Toronto has been awarded the First Maurice Cody Scholarship valued at $300, Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto announced today on behalf of the Maurice Cody Research Fellowships and Scholarships Committee. This is the second scholarship in two days for William Dray. Yesterday it was announced that he had been awarded the G. H. Armstrong Scholarship in Canadian History.

The Second Maurice Cody Scholarship has been won jointly by D. M. Fisher of Sioux Lookout, Ont., and W. J. Young of Walkerville, Ont.

Toronto Debaters Rap Sovereignty, Beat McGill Team

Taking the affirmative of the motion "Resolved that the concept of national sovereignty is an impediment to world peace", the University of Toronto defeated McGill University in the first intercollegiate debate of the year in Cartwright Hall on Friday night.

Blair Ferguson, IV SPS, first speaker for the affirmative, said that the period of national sovereignty was ended by the great technological advance made in recent years, especially by the development of the atomic bomb. Power politics, growing ever more intensive, he charged, are no basis for world security. "There must be," he said, "a sovereignty beyond nations." "In the surrender of national sovereignty," he said, "world security is gained".

Has Many Meanings

Cuz Curran, II Law at McGill, first speaker for the negative, began by asking, "Does the concept of national sovereignty logically or practically prevent anyone from working for world peace?" Replying "No, emphatically, no," he defined the concept as one of several things. One definition, he said, was a code of international law which has much supporting evidence from history; the other, he said, was an inherent characteristic of nations, but "not illimitable". In no way, he stated, did the concept mean the absolute right of a nation to do as it pleased. Further, he pointed out, it was no obstacle to any nation to enter international peace organizations.

Boundaries Artificial

Second speaker for the affirmative, Marg Kearns, II Loretto, said the world was made up of the haves and the have-nots, the former profiting at the expense of the latter. National boundaries, she said, were in many respects artificial; disease, and the exigencies of economics, are not bound by them. Although national boundaries in some ways limit peoples' thinking, she stated, it is "not necessary to change human nature, but human behaviour".

Final speaker for the negative, William Archer, IV Arts, McGill, pointed to Canada as a nation for which national sovereignty, achieved in 1931, had been a factor enabling her to work for world peace then. National sovereignty, he continued, aided the six nations in the Western bloc to come together for peace. He said national sovereignty was like a brick; it could be misused to throw at people, or used to build a wall of peace.

Television Big Attraction At SMC Christmas Carnival

Featuring television in the coke bar and evening-long bingo, St. Mike's Christmas carnival is scheduled to open at 4.30 p. m. Wednesday, for two nights.

Carnival organizers, remembering turn-away crowds at last year's one-night run, expect similarly high attendance both nights. Several new attractions, including television demonstrations provided by Danforth Radio, are expected to raise substantial proceeds for the European Relief Fund.

Pete Mosteller, heading the organizing committee, declared he anticipated keen interest from crowds of would-be television stars. "We know we can keep the people here and keep them happy," said Mosteller. "There are to be all the usual dime-and-nickel games and a few special features as well. In general, the policy is to include everything that went to make the carnival such a success last year and to add new attractions."

When queried as to the five dollar prizes planned for the bingo games, a spokesman said, "It's a big risk giving so much away, but we feel that this would make more people come and try their hand, and in a cause like this we are really out to make a big job of it."

LITERARY ISSUE

All essays, short stories, poetry and photography work must be submitted to The Varsity Office for the Christmas Literary issue as soon as possible. Deadline is Dec. 8th. Art work will not be accepted for the Literary issue this year.

My Country 'Tis Of Thee

Friday's Varsity-McGill debate, reported elsewhere in this issue, came up with a resolution that has become increasingly valid in recent years.

The resolution, "that the concept of national sovereignty is an impediment to world peace", is based on the premise that there is a greater loyalty than that which is owed to one's native land.

In an increasingly complex world whose far-flung distances are rapidly shrinking in time and space, the need for men to think in international terms beyond the confines of national boundaries is more vital than ever.

Fifty years ago the concept of one world based on a universal community was considered completely ridiculous. Britain's colonial expansion had been consolidated. The United States had begun to flex its muscles, proud of its growing strength, and resolved never to mix in the affairs of the Old World.

Even today, after two world wars have shattered the myth of national insularity and isolation, people everywhere still cling tenaciously to nationalism and jealously guard against any attempt to surrender sovereign rights into a common pool.

The League of Nations, and more recently, the United Nations, conceived in a spirit of international co-operation, have failed because member nations have refused to relinquish even a morsel of their much-prized sovereignty. And because they have refused to do so, we have an ineffectual world organization which, like a toothless dog, can bark, but not bite.

Last week's UN General Assembly session offered a pitiful example. South Africa, asked to surrender its mandate of Southwest Africa to United Nations' trusteeship, refused to do so. The Assembly, confronted with a recalcitrant member, exercised its "authority"—it passed a resolution expressing regret that South Africa refused to surrender its mandate. And so it goes.

The sense of nationalism or patriotism is an admirable quality, when carried only to a degree. But carried to an extreme of blind chauvinism it leads only to bitter rivalry and hatred. It is, actually, a projection of shallow provincialism but carried to more dangerous lengths.

But time is growing short. In an atomic age where international understanding is vital for survival itself, there is little room left for national sovereignty as we know it. If it is not pooled voluntarily it seems doomed to disappear completely in the ashes of a new world war.

Iron Curtain Getting Rusty

Three workmen are still reported to be wandering around the university campus. They're getting pretty tired of it, too. As one of them remarked about two o'clock yesterday....

Cat: What do you mean, about two o'clock? Don't you know that newspaper reporters are supposed to be accurate?

Us: You great oaf! Accurate, indeed! Who bet twenty bucks on Dewey?

Cat: Touche, vulgarian. Proceed.

Us: As one of them remarked about two o'clock yesterday, it's pretty disheartening carrying a heavy Iron Curtain all over the place, and never finding out where to put it up.

The curtain had been ordered by the Yoomanist Club, as a special prop for a lecture by the (you should pardon the expression) red dean of Canteloupe. One of the features of the lecture—if it comes off, if he comes, if the Yoomanists can find a hall—will be an expose by the dean of the Iron Curtain. At a crucial point in his talk, bands will burst into the Internationale (by Vincent Yoomanist, natch) and the dean will slowly lift the Curtain, disclosing the amazing fact that there is nothing behind it at all.

In fact, there is no such place as Russia, and the man constantly referred to in the press as Stalin is really a paid hireling of the Canadian Chamber of Horrors, who just voted a large sum to keep up the fiction. The Chamber of Horrors, in fact, had to elect a jeweler as president to raise the money.

It's already rumored....

Cat: There you go again! You aren't supposed to print rumors.

Us: (sneeringly) Hah! Well, then, usually informed sources say...

Cat: That's better! Why didn't you say so in the first place?

Us: I don't like to give Doberman too much publicity, that's why.

Anyway, usually informed sources say that the Labor-Regressive Club is determined to stop the dean's lecture. They say that Russia is a real place. Your reporter asked them if any of them had ever been there, and they shamefacedly answered "No."

"But it is real," said Steve Bandicoot brokenly. "And no old dean's gonna say it ain't!"

Controller David Ballfire is also ready, as ever, to guard the people's minds from error.

"It's a lie!" he said in a special interview. "I stand foursquare against red revolution, Hush, and Kitty!" The controller was obviously under a strain, and a moment later he broke down.

"Don't let him lift that curtain!" he sobbed." If there's really nothing there...well...I won't have anything to say in Council any more... just those dirty books over and over again. I..just...can't stand it, that's all."

FLASH—a report from the fictitious city of Moscow says that an impostor called Stalin has started an entirely unconfirmed five year plan. What the meaning of this latest move of the Chamber of Horrors really is remains to be seen.

U. of T. Graduate Heads Stanford

Dr. J. E. Wallace Sterling, a native of Linwood, Ont., and a graduate of the University of Toronto, has been appointed president of Stanford University, California. Paul C. Edwards, president of the Stanford Board of Trustees annouced today the appointement would take effect in September 1949.

Dr. Sterling is the third University of Toronto graduate to become head of an important U.S. college. Earlier this year, Miss Marion Tait who graduated from Varsity in 1934, was elected Dean of Vassar. Dr. Harold Taylor, a graduate of 1935, was the youngest college president in the U.S. when he took over as president of Sarah Lawrence College at Bronxville, N.Y.

Now 42, Dr. Sterling became lecturer in History at Regina College, University of Saskatchewan, after leaving Varsity.

N.F.C.U.S. News

Q. WHAT IS N.F.C.U.S.?
A. The National Federation of Canadian Students — a federation of all the Student Councils in Canadian Universities.
Q. WHO BELONGS TO N.F.C.U.S.?
A. Every student who pays Students' Administrative Council fees is automatically a member
Q. HOW IS IT ORGANIZED?
A. The basic unit is the local N.F.C.U.S. Committee of the S.A.C.; then there is a regional organization (Western, English-speaking, Central, French-speaking, Central and Maritimes), which holds annual conferences under a regional vice-president; finally the national organization which also holds an annual conference.
Q. WHAT HAS N.F.C.U.S. DONE TO DATE?
A. (1) Achieved reduced rail rates for holidays.
(2) Established a national student exchange plan.
(3) Established the C.U.P.
(4) Achieved a 1/3 reduction in cost of athletic equipment and a 40% reduction in play royalties.
(5) Established a Canadian University Debating Association (the National Debating League).
Q. IS THAT ALL?
A. Regrettably, yes. N.F.C.U.S. was non-active during the war, and only now is it being put on a more permanent basis with a good student service programme.
Q. WHAT ARE SOME OF THESE PLANS?
(1) A national student magazine produced jointly by N.F.C.U.S. and I.S.S.
(2 A national student radio programme on the C.B.C.
(3) A broad system of American-Canadian student exchange.
(4) Establishment of a Dominion Inter - Collegiate Athletic Union to put student athletics on a national basis.
(5) Abolishment of payment of Unemployment Insurance by students doing summer work.
(8) Plans to hold a cultural seminar next summer in Quebec.
These are only a few of N.F.C.U.S. plans.
Q. HOW MUCH DOES ALL THIS COST ME?
A. At the present time, only 6c a year; however, as these plans materialize it is likely more will be required.
Q. HOW CAN I TAKE PART IN N.F.C.U.S. ACTIVITIES?
A. By attending N.F.C.U.S. meetings and offering to help in whatever field you're interested in. These meetings are open to the student body and full participation is welcomed.

EDWARD KYLIE TRUST AWARD

Application may be made to the Secretary of the Edward Kylie Trust on or before Saturday, December 11th, 1948, by candidates for the Edward Kylie Trust Award for the year 1949-50. These applications should be made in writing and should give particulars of the qualifications and record of the applicant with a view to the following requirements. The Award will be made to a male student who is a British subject, either a graduate or an undergraduate of Arts, preferably in the course of Modern History, at the University of Toronto, to enable him to pursue his studies in Great Britain. The Trustees shall make their award to that candidate who appears from his record at the University to be most likely to occupy a position of leadership and influence in the Community.

The sum available is Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($850.00) for the year 1949-50 and the Trustees may renew the Award for a second year if they are satisfied with the first year's record.

The Trustees, upon receiving applications, will arrange for the examination of the candidates and if the Trustees are not satisfied as to the suitability of any of the candidates they will have the right to withhold the Award.

Dated this 22nd day of November, 1948.

The Honourable Dana Porter,
Secretary, Edward Kylie Trust,
Room N220, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Snack Bar Delux

Casual, refreshing, and modern is the architectural note of this snack bar where Swiss students at the University of Basle stop for a sandwich and coffee between lectures. A potted palm tree in the corner adds atmosphere while the benches in the corridor face a garden court. Building designs such as the one shown above will be under consideration for the University of Toronto's proposed Student Union.

Kremlin Is Backed By United People Roberts Tells IRC

"The Russian people are a united people, strong and powerful, and the individual wants peace," said Leslie Roberts, noted author and journalist, addressing a meeting of the I.R.C. in the Women's Union on Friday. "Although it is correct that four or five million people are in forced labour camps all those who would be in opposition to the Kremlin are now out of circulation. Ninety-eight per cent of the population are solidly behind their administration and we must realize that in case of a war against us, they would fight just as hard as they did against the Germans," he continued.

People Seek Peace

Mr. Roberts was given a visa to travel extensively in Russia this summer because it was felt he would give a fair and objective view on existing conditions. His principle study was the common man in Russia. These people he said consider themselves free. Although they would not be considered free by our standards few have known any other political system. In their hearts the people are looking for peace.

"The first question they asked me," Mr. Roberts said, "was why do Americans want to start a war with us? There is a complete misunderstanding on either side of the curtain," Mr. Roberts said, "that I hope we may be able to dissolve.

"Hotel food and service," Mr. Roberts said, "was comparable to that in the Royal York Hotel. On the collective farms there was an abundance of plain but wholesome food. Although the cost of many things is high, rents are extremely low and houses are allotted by the Government as quickly as those in devasted areas can be rebuilt. Freedom of worship in Russia is complete but priests must not criticize any phase of the political life. The state feels it has an investment in the men it has trained in certain industries. Although choice is open to students and workers alike it is difficult to switch jobs later on."

War Appalling

Asked if Rusia is preparing or is prepared for war, Mr. Roberts said the Russian people find war an appalling idea. "The devastation in Stalingrad is terrible. Propaganda from the government to the people is peace. "But," Mr. Roberts said, "we must regaid the Russian first as a nationalist and second as a communist."

"The communist," he said, "will never stop carrying his gospel wherever he goes. We must do the same for democracy and prove its worth."

Smith Announces Appointments In Hygiene School

"Enrolment of post-graduate students in public health in the School of Hygiene, at the University is the largest in its history," Dr. Sidney Smith announced.

There are, he said, physicians, engineers and veterinarians from China, Ceylon, England, India and Yugoslavia.

President Smith announced the following appointments in the School of Hygiene: Dr. J. F. A. Sprent, Assistant Professor of Parasitology (part-time); Miss E. Stuart, Assistant Professor of Hospital Administration.

He also announced the following promotions: A. M. Fallis, Professor of Parasitology (part-time); R. C. Parker, Associate Professor of Experimental Cytology; A. J. Rhodes, Associate Professor of Virus Infections; G. H. M. Hatcher, Assistant Professor of Public Health Administration; D. R. E. MacLeod, Assistant Professor of Epidemiology and Biometrics; D. B. W. Reid, Assistant Professor of Biometrics; Miss E. M. Shaver, Assistant Professor of Public Health Nutrition; R. J. Wilson, Assistant Professor of Hygiene and Preventive Medicine.

A Good Time Had By All At Ajax Engineers' Ball

On last Friday and Saturday night, the annual Ajax Engineers Ball was held here at Ajax. The Rec Hall where the main dancing was held was very ably decorated in a tropical island motif.

The music for the Ball was rendered by Art Hallman and his Orchestra, and the many Engineers and their ladies danced to his sweet strains from 9 to 1 on Friday night and from 8 to 12 on Saturday night.

During the intermision, the many guests dispersed to Coffee Parties at the various residences. The guests of honor were entertained at a Coffee Party in the Music Room of Hart House, Ajax. Among the distinguished visitors present were Dean and Mrs. C. R. Young, Prof. and Mrs. Wright, Prof. and Mrs. Sheppard, Warden and Mrs. N. Ignatief, Prof. and Mrs. T. R. Louden, Padre Swan, and Mr. Madonald of the S.A.C.

During the dance, a skit was presented by the committee about the Chumley Expedition to the Utopian Island of Wango-Wango, the source of the material for the many murals decorating the wall of the Rec Hall. The cast of the skit included as commentator, J. R. Gregory; Prof. Chumley, Bryan Hooper; Maizie, Ed. Hall; duellists, Peter Dawson and Bob Blout; and stage hands, Ted Powell and Matt MacLachlan.

The Engineers Ball was presented under the auspices of the Ajax Engineering Society. Mr. B. E. Judges, the 1st Vice President acted as the Master of Ceremonies of the Ball.

The members in charge of the various functions at the Ball were: Bob Oxland, decorations; Frank Yamada, programmes; John R. Gregory, publicity; Irving Naxma, tickets and invitations, Gerry Pelletier, guest accommodation; Mike Spence and Dave Robertson, stage, and Toby Day and Jack Hostein, cokes and checkrooms.

Many of those who attended expressed the opinion that this had been the best Engineers Ball yet seen at Ajax, and a hearty vote of thanks is due those responsible for the good showing.

Carabins and Carabinettes

Optometrists See Again

Installation of a three thousand watt generator in the College of Optometry will eliminate further morning blackouts, which have proved too great a handicap to both students and patients in the college clinic.

"The addition of the power generator will enable us to maintain efficient eye examinations with no inconvenience to the patients," said Ron Sclater, undergraduate director of public relations for the College.

Hear Poet Read Own Words In Victoria Lecture Series

Mark Van Doren, well-known American poet and critic, read examples of his own poetry to a gathering which filled the Victoria College Chapel, Friday afternoon, for the 1948 lecture in the Armstrong Series. The lecturer, professor of English Literature at Columbia University, is famed for his essays on Shakespeare and his mentoring of the "Invitation to Learning" radio forums.

In reading his poetry, Professor Van Doren explained the thoughts and purposes behind the various poems. In his introduction, he said poetry ought to be true and interesting. But true statements were not always interesting, and interesting statements were not necessariiy true.

In the poems classified as definitions, Professor Van Doren explain his theses: that, Wit was an exclusively human possession; praise was a good thing to give and receive, and should be given whether deserved or not—if only

'Pop' Taylor — Locksmith and Bowler

By HERB WOOD

"We can unlock any door in the University of Toronto, but the one to the Lee Collection," says Harry "Pop" Taylor. He is the master locksmith to the University, and some shakes as a sportsman too.

Located in the basement of Simcoe Hall, room 13, Harry, along with his assistant, veteran Tommy Connor, preside over an ever-expanding kingdom that will reach 25,000 keys when the two new buildings are completed.

Room 13 is hard to find, perhaps because of its size. Roughly, it is 3 paces wide and 8 paces long. Lining two walls are eight foot panels from which hang from 14,000-15,000 keys. There is a pleasant smell of oil and steel and from one wall a clock ticks noisily.

Blue-eyed Harry Taylor was born in Lancashire "Wher' the Gragley folk cum fro." In other words, where the best people come from. In the late eighties, the Taylor family emigrated to New Jersey. But "the old man was homesick" so they returned to England. Later, "Pop" Taylor and his wife came to Canada. He came to the University on November 5th, 1920, Guy Fawkes' Day.

Quieter Times

"Things are very, very quiet now," he says. Years ago "we used to have fun" with locks plugged with gum and plaster of Paris. Gummed-up locks were the most difficult to clean. He finally had to make up his own concoction to dissolve it. Speaking about the deterring effect of the cost of damages to the students, Harry said, "Give'm a punch on the nose and they retaliate, but hit them in their pocket book and they quit."

The Wallberg Memorial Building will have 2,690 locker keys for students and 642 in the Mechanical building. Each building has a master key that will unlock any door. German silver, sometimes called white metal, is the best and toughest for keys says Harry. During the war, aluminum keys were used, but proved unsatisfactory.

University College naturally has the oldest and biggest locks. These huge wooden affairs have not been in use for forty or fifty years. "The keys were about this length," indicated Harry, holding up his hands a foot apart. Today you can see one of these locks on the door in the south-west corner of University College, right beside the round room. Those deep axe marks on the right hand side are from the anxious firemen, who attempted to batter in the four-inch thick door in 1890 to battle a fire in the east wing.

Harry is a loyal fan of the Varsity Blues and hasn't missed one of their games. Last Saturday he picked Varsity, Ottawa and Toronto to win. "I may be wrong, but I can't understand a person not interested in sport. I was playing on championship soccer and cricket teams before I was twenty." Once when playing football as a kid, the football broke. Young Harry sweated all one morning, pitching over a ton of coal to earn six pence to repair the ball. "Yes, those were the days," he said.

Bowler

"Pop" Taylor is a member of the Withrow Lawn Bowling Club and was president in '42 and secretary-treasurer in '43 through '46. Since his son joined, he has been nicknamed "Pop" to distinguish one from the other. In 1935 he won Eaton's Gold Cup, worth $1,150. The year 1939 saw him share the Ontario Lawn Bowling championship doubles. His opponents were none other than George Davies and Bob Webber, author of The Telegram's Thomas Richard Henry column. "We were so far ahead that they quit half-way through the game," said Harry.

In 1924 Harry and Frank Selke, now general-manager of the Montreal Canadiens, organized the first alley-bowling league around the University.

If ever you see a man carrying a small hardwood box and a hammer, you will know he is one of these master locksmiths.

Three Trophies For Top Papers At CUP Meeting

Halifax, Nov. 29—(C.U.P.)—Two new trophies have been established for the excellence in University student newspapers, and will be awarded for the year when members of the Canadian University Press hold their annual meeting at Quebec, Dec. 29 to 31.

A trophy for the best all-around publication in the smaller universities has been presented by H. S. Southam of the Southam newspapers. The winner among larger universities will get a cup given by Gerald G. Ryan, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada.

The Bracken Cup, presented by John Bracken in 1945, will be awarded for the best editorial in university papers, as originally intended. Up to this year it has been awarded for best all-around paper as well as editorial content.

Judges will be T. D'arcy Finn, of the Ottawa Citizen, honorary president of the C.U.P.; M. E. Nichols, former publisher of the Vancouver Province; Herve Major of Montreal La Presse, and C. J. Allbon of Springhill, N. S., president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

Book Review

Of Far Away Places

The chief character in C. S. Forester's "The Sky and the Forest" (Michael Joseph: $3.00), Loa, was a god in his native village, in the heart of equatorial Africa, with no doubts as his infallibility and power. This dreamy life was shattered by the Arab raiders who came looking for ivory and slaves. Into his stunted mentality, glimmerings of new and painful truths began to appear, and the horror and brutality of his brief but memorable captivity with the Arabs, influenced his actions and thoughts for the rest of his life. His devoted wife and son had rescued him after following through the forest for many days, and their adventures in the inhospitable and treacherous African bush take up a good deal of time, interesting and informative to those with inquiring minds. The author shows an intimate knowledge of this phase of science. Having successfully made their escape, they finally reach "home" after many months. The former god had learned much from the Arab raiders, and he built up an empire along the mighty river which stretched many miles in both directions. But the steady encroachment of the white man was irresistible, and the arrival of a gunboat with many soldiers ended Loa's life and rule in a bloody engagement of rifle and spear.

This is an absorbing anthropological study of the mind of a primitive man, and of the life led in the jungle by the human inhabitants. Marriage customs, details of cannibalism, social practices are all woven into the story in a way that only an experienced story teller can manage. The unfavorable showing of the white man should give us cause to consider our status: in his own way, Loa was more civilized than the raiding white men.

The Big Fisherman

To the unfortunate millions who read or saw "The Robe", Mr. Lloyd C. Douglas needs no introduction. "The Big Fisherman" (Thomas Allen: $3.75), the life of Simon Peter the Apostle, is a very unrewarding novel, having neither the English novelists' virtue, subtlety, nor the Americans' virtue, sex. But what could we reasonably expect from a novel about Palestine? The period of the Bible is so vivid and familiar, the language and atmosphere of the Scripture so all-pervading in English literature. One expects the passion and the visions, the captivity and the desolation. One should feel to the full that yearning for a Messiah, and close the book with a deep sense of its fulfillment. But the simple narrator of the Bible becomes the sugary middle-aged Sunday School teacher who smiles so prosperously from the back cover. (Mr. Douglas and Mr. Dale Carnegie look alarmingly similar.)

However, we are given poetic observations on the Apostle's personal side: "Doubtless it was her very flower-like fragility that attracted the big brawny fellow," and pene-

ART — MUSIC and DRAMA

Kander-Braugh

Gerhard Kander, violinist, and George Brough, pianist, were the recitalists in the second of a series of "matinees musicales" under the auspices of the Toronto Music Lovers, Saturday afternoon, at the Museum Theatre.

A Sonata in A Major by Schubert, unfamiliar to me, opened the proceedings. I feel bound to say that as the work progressed I found very few reasons why it should not continue to suffer from comparative neglect. The themes were most un-Schubertian in their lack of melodiousness, the development equally uninteresting. The high opus number would suggest that this sonata was contemporary with the "Great" C Major Symphony, but it shares little of the spirit or loftiness of that work. The performances sounded competent enough, marred by a rasp here or a squeak there from Mr. Kander, while Mr. Brough's playing was relegated to a needlessly contributory role. The D Major Sonata of Prokofiev, a relatively late composition was consistently lyric and lively, and occasionally even impassioned. The performance was likeable also, well - tooled and rhythmically - incisive for the most part. The older generation is reputed to be unreceptive to Prokofiev and his ilk, and after a few characteristic Prokofievian dissonances I fully expected the elderly lady beside me to switch off her hearing apparatus; but unfortunately I was not able to ascertain whether she did.

I thought the commentaries (by Mr. Boris Hambourg) were oversimplified and rather dispensable.

The Sea Gull

Here is what disturbed me so profoundly when I watched Robert Gill's Hart House production of Chekhov's "Sea Gull" (to run through Saturday): I had never seen the play performed but had formed a fairly definite idea of it from reading. Had Gill's conception differed completely from my own, I would have submitted gladly. As it was, it confirmed but stopped short of realizing it. Granted, I cannot think of a more difficult problem than that of maintaining dramatic coherence in a play which I understand to aim at showing a group of people living past each other devoid of specifically human bonds of affection, a group degraded, so to speak, by the glass walls that separate them.

For all I know, one may not be justified in craving for the "sure touch" that has made previous H. H. productions so singularly exciting. But often one could not help feeling that some of the actors were ill at ease; how else explain certain spots of awkwardness at which we shrug when they occur in lesser organizations, but wonder when they happen on H. H. stage. For once, too, the problem of age-illusion with a young cast seemed an obstacle. There was too much striving for decrepitude in the voice and movements of Alvin Shaw (Sorin) and I suspect that Anna Cameron is too wholesome (or young) a lady to endow Arcadina's obscene clinging to youth with the sweetish scent of putrefaction needed. But she did set out in the right direction and her great skills were far from wasted. Much more latent were those of E. Foord (Shamreyeff). The scene in which he threatens to resign over the horse-question should have told him that much more was involved in the character than a curiously unmusical loudness. Elizabeth Cormach, as his wife was much more implyingly straightforward and left the spectator in a much better position to fill in the author's sketchy outline.

I am tempted to ascribe some of the high excellence of Don Davis' presentation of Dr. Dorn to the great advantages of his part but do not wish to take away an iota from the highly persuasive depth and continuity that he brought to it. Chris Taylor (Trigorin) had many of these qualities, too, but they seemed to bog down in one dimension. To him I recommend a perusal of Th. Mann's "Tonio Kroeger". Does David Gardner (Constantine) require a similar invitation? I am not so sure, because I think that he would have come much closer to the fulfilment of a devilishly difficult task, if he had pushed the gas pedal a little harder. As it was, I felt that he kept wishing that Chekhov had been more sparing in the use of the tear gland lever. Kate Reid was much more at peace with the playwright and gave a grand portrayal of socially destructive starry-eyedness and folly, just as Bea Goldberg (Masha) did an almost consistently splendid study in a figure that is a part of society and, at the same time, a canker on it.

Please do not read the remainder as a soothing balm on the preceding paragraphs. I think we ought to be exceedingly grateful to Robert Gill, not only for the handsome sets, but for the vote of confidence expressed in us by the choice of play. All of us to whom drama is more than a live movie substitute

Seven Members

The senior members of Hart House are like Moses in that "their eye is not dim nor their natural force abated". They do not play around with color, but use it with gusto. Not to be included in this group is Mr. Fairley, who has yet to discover that bright colors exist.

If there be Cynics on the Faculty of the University of Toronto, they do not seem to have contributed to the Senior Member show, now on view in the Hart House Art Gallery. Every artist seems contented and paints the world as bright, colorful and gay. These men paint from a love of painting, and the results are vigorous, even in their worst pictures.

Among the individual contributors, I found Mr. Collett the most restful. Mr. Walmsley impressed me with his mountain scenes, and would have impressed me more, if he did not put trees on both sides of every picture. Mr. Carswell, who paints Ontario's bush, has trouble with his water scenes. The Oxtongue River flows uphill. I liked Mr. Lacey's "Blythe House" and Mr. Sears' "Green House". "Bronte Harbour", a pencil drawing, by Mr. Campbell, is inviting. Mr. Agnew makes a valiant attack on the ocean, in "Off Bermuda", but his waves just will not roll.

This exhibit contains neither great nor lasting art, but it is a comforting show, for it is cheerful and quite sane.

Philip Creighton.

Movie Review

The Ox-Bow Incident

Anyone drifting into the Victoria or Nortown this week to see a comfortable, routine western is in for a nasty shock, for "The Ox-Bow Incident" is one of the ugliest (and one of the finest) motion pictures ever made. It is also one answer to the perennial lament "Why don't the movies grow up?" In 1943 it died a quiet death on the North American screen (major English circuits refused to show it at all) and although the critics' first choice, it was a financial failure. Why? Its unorthodox conflict—reason vs. violence—didn't arrive at a very nice conclusion.

Based on an actual lynching, it concerns the good citizens of a Nevada cow-town, 1885, who, hankering after excitement, sally out to find some local rustlers. They find them, hang them, and go home. On the way back they learn that they have hanged the wrong men.

Formula-fed movie audiences, confronted with mob-psychology and the unforgivable spectacle of the hero in tears, nervously await the arrival of the good guys and the happy ending. Neither gets there. And as if this blasphemy weren't enough they can't even be sure of the villains. The worst press their cause with hardy frontier spirit and "no-truck-with-law" he-manliness, and all of them are frighteningly recognizable—nor do you have to go back to 1885 to recognize them.

Some will appreciate this honesty.

OUR READERS WRITE

CO-ED UNION-ANTI

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Congratulations to Mr. Willmot for his splendid stand on the proposed student memorial union union building. We had never quite thought of this project as a memorial had we? Those very attractive articles about the recreational facilities of other universities, with the stress on luxurious lounges and ballrooms and dining halls very rarely touch on that dreary depressing memorial idea. Oh yes, they concede that above the door we'll engrave the words "To the memory of ...." and, well, even perhaps a plaque of dedication inside. But they say we want a living useful memorial; what's the use of bringing back what happened in the past? No use at all, I guess except that what happened in the past might just bother us again. Memorials and veterans and war are relics of a remote, unpleasant old-fashioned age of over three years ago. This is 1948 you know.

Let's not deceive ourselves any longer, Mr. Editor, a building such as you propose will not really widen the gates of knowledge, tolerance and good-will. But it might give us all a whooping good time. If we want a recreational building for the University of Toronto—all right, but for heaven's sakes, don't call it a war memorial. If we are sincerely interested in a monument to the sacrifices of our glorious dead we must put ourselves out of the picture. How about taking over a section of some hospital and making ourselves responsible for its upkeep? Believe me a hospital makes you count your blessings.

CO-ED UNION-ANTI

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

The Varsity advocates the Utopian dream of a co-ed Union to add to the burdensome social chores the Toronto University student has to bear. It is our opinion that such a scheme realized would only increase the state of subtle mass hysteria that prevails here today. As it is, we are exposed little enough to education. Such a ridiculous enterprise as the proposed co-ed Union you hope would provide a place where boy may meet girl (hymns ringing in the background) and exchange ideas about Shakespeare, Marx and the procreation of the porcupine. You have a faith in human nature surpassed only by Whitman, or perhaps God.

The spirit of a glorified collegiate flits everywhere in our university life. To the detriment of all our students the co-ed Union would only add to it. No Platonic ether ever exists when boy meets girl over coffee and a marshmallow sundae. How much better it would be if you ran a series of articles advocating a new and more spacious university library.

But already the hue and cry rises from the lips of Joe College (that excellent fellow so active around Hart House tuck shop) and we, for safety, must join his ranks or die.

Injustice, injustice everywhere. I have to drag my girl a whole block to have our coffee together. Where are our rights? Let's convert the science building into a dance hall, run street cars from college to college, and install coke coolers and lounge chairs in all lecture rooms. What about a noon hour hop every third day, and a peprally before R. K. lectures? Come on, gang, let's beat the B-JABBERS out of somebody.

Meeting a deadline is no way of writing a column, even a column of this length. Inspiration cannot be provoked with one eye on the clock and the other turned inwards in a sweeping search for an idea. We tried that system for this piece and the net result is this uninspired paragraph and a pair of slightly crossed eyes. The only consolation we have left, is that with the one eye turned inwards we can always be sure of where we're going. It's very convenient to be able to read one's mind so easily. One's appearance suffers, but there are so many other advantages.

Passing was wild and penalties frequent. At three-quarter time the score was tied, 11 all. After that the UC team crumbled as they tried desperate shots from far out and long passes with no luck at all.

However, checking by Ann Gostling, UC, was uniformly good from the beginning and was the sole factor that prevented the Physio team, who were superior shots, from completely overwhelming UC. High scorer for Physio was Sally Spence who tallied 11 of her team's total points. This win boosts Physio B into the semi-finals where they will come up against their older sisters, Physio A.

and some fine performances, led by Dana Andrews' moving portrayal of a young settler whose life is suddenly set at the value of a hideous mock-trial out in the woods; and Wm. Eythe as a hyper-sensitive boy driven to suicide by his father's military contempt for weakness. Kudos too to Lamarr Trotti for pulling very few punches in his adaptation of Walter van Tilburg Clark's bitter novel.

In production the film is not an extravagant job, but its casual incidental quality packs a terrific wallop. Discriminating fans are advised to take in this Hollywood product, and that goes for foreign-film addicts too. They don't make them any better—anywhere.

Hockey Blues Bow To Barkers 5-4

Harry Boyd Scores Twice Blues' Last Minute Rally Fails

By HAL HOLDEN

Despite an improved showing in the third period, Varsity hockey Blues were edged 5-4 by Barkers in an exhibition game at Varsity Arena Friday night. It was the second loss in two games thus far this season for the Blues, but Coach Ace Bailey was able to see a bright spot in the hockey picture. "We were 55 per cent better than last week", said the ex-Leaf star.

At that rate of improvement the Blues should be ready and able to open the local Senior Intercollegiate race with a win against the University of Montreal Carabins at the Arena, Friday.

The heavier Barkers were able to jump into an early lead and were never behind although Varsity tied the score in the opening minutes of the final frame.

Trailing by a goal in the last four minutes of the game the Blues staged a power play which had Barkers reeling, but anxious Blue pucksters managed to do everything except put the puck in the net. Wilf Digby was outlucked during the last seconds of play with Bert Halliday, the Barker netminder stretched out on the ice several feet in front of the crease. Halliday made several other saves on Blues in the last period on what looked like sure goals.

Bill Prince and Paul Hutzulak divided the goalkeeping at the Varsity end of the rink. Both boys came up with some superior netminding to ward off the thrusts of the Barkers' attackers.

Gerry Junkin potted the first score of the game at the three-minute mark of the first period, then came right back a few minutes later and netted his second goal to give Barkers their early lead. The Blues bounced back to tie the count on goals by Ernie Frey and Bill Spence. Frey was Johnny-on-the-spot to deflect a shot by Wilf Digby into the net. Spence stole the puck away from a Barker attacker at the Varsity blue line as the visitors were carrying out a ganging attack, and roared down the left wing on a breakaway to stick the puck behind Halliday.

Barkers' playing coach Red Heron shoved his club back out in front with a goal near the end of the period.

Harry Boyd, Vic footballer who led the Blues with two goals, counted his first and an equalizer after twenty-four seconds of the second period on a pass from Frey, but Barkers retaliated as Sadler slipped one by Hutzulak.

From the second period on, the Blues played Barkers goal for goal, and carried just as much of the play. In the final period in fact, Varsity looked like a new team. The goal advantage gained by Barkers in the first period, however, was something the Blues could not completely overcome although they did manage to tie the score on two occasions, but were unable to go ahead.

Play speeded up in the last period and Boyd lifted the Blues up on even terms momentarily with his second counter of the night. The deadlock was shortlived, however, Bob Staunton seized the puck in his own zone immediately after a face-off and outskated pursuing Blues to swoop right in on goal. Hutzulak didn't have a chance as the Barkers wingman drilled a low drive into the lower left-hand corner of the net,

The Blues tried their best to get that one back with a ganging at-

Harriers Fifth In Meet Against Best of Continent

By BILL GAGNON

Detroit, Nov. 28—(Special) — In the 1948 National Senior A.A.U. 10,000 meter cross country meet held at Detroit last Saturday, the Varsity harrier squad placed fifth in a field of twelve teams representing the cream of the amateur cross country crop in North America. Approximately 7,800 clubs were eligible.

Individual honors went to Robert Black of Rhode Island State, this yar's IC4A and NCAA winner who covered the 6 1-4 mile grind, two one hundredths of a second and three inches ahead of Curtis Stone of the Shanahan Catholic Club, member of the U.S. Olympic team and 1947 A.A.U. champ, in a photo-finish that officials declared to be the nearest thing to a dead heat in A.A.U. history. Black's time was 32.02; Stone's was 32.02.02. Third man, Warren Druetzler of Michigan State, was nearly a full minute behind the leaders at 31.01. Neil Pratt of Syracuse U., 31.06, and Bill Mack of Mich. State, 31.10, finished fourth and fifth, respectively. Out of approximately 80 starters, only seventy finished the hilly, and in some spots, muddy course.

Michigan State College's powerful squad, the second team in history to win both the IC4A and NCAA meets, made a clean sweep of the top three amateur events Saturday by literally running away with team honors. Syracuse U. surprised the experts by finishing second; Shanahan Catholic Club, Middle Atlantic Junior champs, with two U. S. Olympic Squad members, placed third; the New York Athletic Club, 1947 winners and thereby defending champions, took fourth spot; and Varsity's Canadian Intercollegiate champs, finished fifth.

Toronto's first three men were Doull, 15th; Wilson, 27th; and Green, 31st. Here is the complete report on Varsity runners:

Name	Place	Time
George Doull	15	32.23
Gord Wilson	27	32.55
Dunc Green	31	33.06
Dave Barr	48	34.21
George McMullen .	50	34.41
Pete Niblock	54	35.25
Frank McCurry ...	62	36.20

Prior to Saturday's meeting, Toronto's harrier squad had met with but one defeat. In their first meet of the 1948 season Buffalo State Teacher's College took a close 28 to 29 decision over them. They have overcome Alfred U., Niagara U., Queen's, McGill, and Wayne U.

Oldest man to finish the 1948 A. A.U. classic, and many a younger man dropped out, was 61-year-old T. Reuben Hartley, unattached amateur from Philadelphia. Hartley, who has been running for 45 years, was a member of the Class of 1912 Freshman cross country team at the University of Pennysylvan. He said: "I've never been out of running condition since then. I run because I like it. It's good fun and good health."

Winner Bob Black, the wiry, dark-haired speedster from North Attleboro, Mass., said that most of his running has been in New England, where he said he holds several course records and has never lost a race. He gave his best previous time as 30.28 for 6 miles cross country, and 32.12 for 10,000 meters on a flat track.

The only Canadian team other than the Varsity squad was the Hamilton Olympic Club, which placed seventh.

UC split the honors last Friday when their Sophs defeated Meds 19-17 and their Freshies bowed to the onslaught of Physio B 18-11.

In the first of the two quarter finals Meds led throughout with a half-time score of 8-4. But in the last half UC put on a burst of energy and with only four and a half minutes to play they had succeeded in tying the score 17 all. In two minutes the fighting UC'ers had scored the winning basket and were able to prevent their opponents from doing the same.

Noticeable on both sides was the unit team play with guarding standing out for both teams. This win puts the UC Sophs in line for the semi-finals against PHE III in Hart House on Tuesday night.

In the second game of this double header UC fared much worse when they succumbed to Physio B. Starting slowly, this game did not show any spark for the remaining time.

St. Mike's Lose To Ajax 3-0 In Soccer Tilt

On Friday the Ajax-St. Mike's soccer semi-final was replayed because of the tie on Wednesday. This time Ajax took the game by the safe margin of 3-0 and move on to the finals, still undefeated.

This game was a complete reversal of the fate of the first game in which Ajax pressed hard and were unlucky not to have scored on several occasions. This time, on a wet standard-sized field, the Ajax men were slowed down considerably and the game was far more even. The peculiar Ajax rule which forbids charging the goal-keeper was also off, but the double blue were missing their regular goalie, home in the States, and although the substitute stopped a penalty in the first half he was unable to keep out the goal which Jim Allen headed in off the corner kick which resulted from the penalty save.

In the second half Tom Broadhurst put in the second Ajax goal with a deliberate, well-placed kick from the centre just outside the penalty area. The final goal came soon after this and was from the head of Mike Rigabut off a corner kick.

Mesfin Abebe was up to his usual form for Ajax and Vic Quesnell, skippering St. Mike's, was every where. The double blue backs Dennis O'Connor and Ted Nistawicz were playing the type of game which has helped their team so much throughout the season. Many teams went down simply because their backs played a parallel game which meant that if one of them was passed by an opposing forward the defense was left wide open.

What St. Mike's lacked was long kicking power from the defense, who found great difficulty in lifting the ball well clear of their own half, and all-round experience. Both of these Ajax had in plenty.

The final game this afternoon between Trinity and Ajax should prove close and interesting.

Speaking Of Sport

By BOB JONES

By way of closing comment on the Intercollegiate Rugby season we'd like to remark that the Blues' sensational capture of the Yates' Cup two weeks ago should be of genuine satisfaction to any student who watched the struggle to build up a championship team over the past four years. In a sense, it was a post-war problem and in its relatively speedy solution, three coaches, many players and a variety of tactical experiments were employed.

It should be a source of real gratification to the students that the team which finally turned the trick was essentially a campus production. The majority of the players became senior football calibre under Varsity coaching, and, spurred on by an unprecedented display of student backing, they proved themselves the best in the Intercollegiate loop.

In past years much reliance was placed on players who brought a gridiron reputation to the campus but although they played capably they did not spark the squad to the extent expected. Steve Karrys of the '47 Blues was an exception as are Clark, Waldon, Gray and Stockman of this year's champs; these men were of value, though, because they merged their experience with a spirit of team-play which is necessary for any winning effort.

In the long run, it's better, as Western has demonstrated, to secure a good coaching staff and local farm system; from those sources a team will develop. It's been a great treat to watch boys like McMillan, Toogood, Huycke and Volpe blossom, in a playing way, from game to game, as good coaching and self-confidence took effect.

But if the championship drive has been a tough one, just think of the task that faces Masterson and Co. next year. The Blues are the team to knock off next year and thirteen players of '48 will not be around to defend the hard-won Yates trophy.

Two of the backfield big-guns of the post-war build-up, Toogood and Waldon, will depart, along with Volpe and Huycke, to leave eight empty cleats behind the wing-line. Intermediate replacements may prove to be the answer here.

But take a look at the front-wall absentees: Copp, Williams, Clark, Jeans, Shore, Hardman, Beatty, McMillan and Stockman. The loss here is beyond verbal description. The graduating total comprises practically one full team and where can adequate replacements be found? There are nine months left to answer this one and we wish all concerned a healthy measure of luck in their quest.

Varsity Junior B Hockey Squad Takes St. Mike's 8-4 In Close Fight

By BOB DNIEPER

In a Junior "B" game at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday, Varsity beat St. Mike's by a score of 8-4. The boys showed the crowd some fast and furious hockey for three solid periods. The score just about indicates the difference in the two teams during that particular game, although for the first seven minutes of the first period it looked as if the skate might have been on the other foot. Because of some sloppy play on the part of the Varsityites, Skelton and Ray of St. Mike's popped in two fast goals and took a commanding lead in the play.

St. Mike's joy, however, was shortlived for the boys in white tightened up and began whittling the Mikemen's lead down. The edge in play see-sawed as each team took alternate hands at scoring throughout the second period, and it was not apparent who would win until the third stanza, when Varsity embarked on a bulldozing scoring spree and completely smothered the double blue. The score might have been closer, but for the spectacular goal tending of a certain Mr. Leuty. Ace Bailey had better keep an eye on this boy in case the rubber flies past the senior blue posts too often.

The backchecking of the Varsity forwards was impressive, and, coupled with the drive and hustle of the whole club, was probably the deciding factor in the game. St. Mike's lost their speed at the first of the third period when the U. of T. defence started bouncing them off the boards and hitting them with solid body checks at centre. If it hadn't been for Skelton, Peart, and Roy, the score would have been still higher. According to Bill Wade, the Varsity coach, the whole team played well, but Frey, Walters, Fox, and Howson were exceptionally good. One department the teams were equal in was the penalty statistics, each team having four men banished by referee Ken Holmeshaw.

The first goal of the game was scored by Skelton of St. Mike's at 1.50 of the first period from a pass by Sandford. Several minutes later, at 6.25 team-mate Roy made it 2-0 on a solo effort. Varsity then got back when Sinclair gave the puck to Fox, who passed to Walters, and at 11.45 the score was 2-1 on Walters' goal.

In the second period, Varsity lost no time in evening the score as Walters again scored at 40-seconds. Clements then put Varsity in the lead by his unassisted effort at 4.15, but St. Mike's tied it up again when Skelton beat Leuty on a screened longshot. Then Howson and Frey teamed up to put their team in the lead again, only to have Milhisin of the double blue cancel the lead at 16.10. Score at the end of the second period—4-4.

Varsity really went hog-wild in the third and racked up four goals while successfully keeping St. Mike's at bay. It was strictly no contest as Howson hit for two goals and Frey and Arrowsmith for one apiece. Despite hard trying by St. Michael's, it was obvious the Varsityites were not to be headed off, and the game ended at 8-4.

Ontario Government's Stand On Varsity Grant Question To Be Clarified, Says Frost

An early clarification of the Ontario Government's position with regard to grants to the University of Toronto was indicated yesterday afternoon by Provincial Secretary Leslie Frost.

In an interview on the question of increased government aid, Mr. Frost said: "I expect that there will be some clarification of the matter within the next few months."

There have been reports that fees at the University of Toronto will take another jump next fall as a result of the higher post-war administrative costs. A bigger government grant probably would make such a step unnecessary and might result in a slight reduction.

Grants Boosted by Government

The provincial secretary reminded his questioners that, under the Progressive-Conservative Government, university grants had been boosted over 100 per cent and added:

"If I had my way, there would be no fees at all."

Mr. Frost was one of five Ontario cabinet ministers who were guests of the Progressive Conservative Club at a reception and tea in the University College Women's Union. The others were Education Minister Dana Porter, Health Minister Russell T. Kelly, Welfare Minister W. A. Goodfellow and Planning and Development Minister Arthur Welch. The speakers were introduced by Jack Hoolihan, III U.C., club vice-president.

Congratulating club members on their activities, Mr. Frost stated that the organization's great value lay in the new ideas it brings to light and the criticism it offers upon matters on which they differ with older party members at Queen's Park.

Messrs. Porter and Kelley forecast a Progressive-Conservative federal ministry after the next general election. "I firmly believe Mr. Drew will be elected," Mr. Kelly said.

Jax Flying Club Seeks Members

The Ajax Flying Club has greatly increased its activities with the recent government announcement of a $100 bonus for every private licence with an additional $100 if the pilot joins the R.C.A.F. reserve. By using qualified students as instructors, and purchasing air time in blocks from the Ontario County Flying Club at Oshawa, the Club offers the cheapest flying time in Canada.

If there is sufficient interest a complete ground school course will be offered by the club for no charge other than the $2.00 membership fee.

There are six air craft available to the Jaxmen including a Yale owned by one of the students.

To publicize the club a display of aerobatics will be given over the campus at noon today weather permitting.

The Club is holding an open meeting tonight in 729 and anyone interested in the club is asked to attend.

Hillel Lectures Feature Scholar In Next Program

Dr. Shalon Spiegel, professor of Hebrew literature at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City, will deliver the second lecture on the Hillel Series of 1948-49. Dr. Spiegel will speak on, "Invitation to Jewish Learning," tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Library Auditorium on St. George Street.

Dr. Spiegel studied at the University of Vienna in 1922 and was one of the founders and early leaders of the Jewish Youth movement Ha-shomer Ha-tzair and edited its central organ in Vienna. He taught in Palestine till 1928 when he was called to the chair of biblical and post-biblical literature at the Jewish Institute of Religion which he held till 1943 when he moved to the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

Dr. Shalon, regarded as one of the outstanding scholars in American Jewry, is also the author of the book, Hebrew Reborn.

Support of Canadian Writing Subject of Trinity Debate

Morley Callaghan and John Thomas will be featured in the Trinity debate tonight at 7:15. The topic will be, "Resolved, that this country is capable of supporting a truly Canadian literature."

Morley Callaghan, prominent Canadian writer, will oppose the motion. Callaghan, a graduate of St. Michael's College, is well acquainted with the financial problems facing the Canadian writer who wishes to live in Canada.

John Thomas, a Trinity graduate, was editor of New World and is now editor of National Magazine.

L.P.P.'s Discuss Communist Union With Christians

Whether or not Christians and Communists can co-operate was the topic of the LPP open discussion in UC yesterday noon.

Bob Munroe, III UC, said his concept of human personality is not that of a Communist. "Fundamentally, human nature does not change. Man will always be self-centred and so Christians believe no society will ever be successful or approach perfection," he said.

Norman Endicott, III VIC, chairman disagreed: "Communists and Christians have differences philosophically, but this does not mean that they cannot work together. Both groups agree the world has to be made better, but the problem is what has to be done to do this. Not all Christians will agree with the Marxist solution to our present-day problems, that of Socialism, but many do."

Endicott stated that Marxist philosophy, dialectical materialism, differs from Christian philosophy, in that it denies the validity of any deity. But, he added, dialectical materialism does not deny that people support the Christian belief and take action because of it.

The group also discussed the difference between Christians and Communists by the leftists emphasis on action by organized groups rather that individuals.

All Varsity Show Nears Completion

Bob Cringan, director of the All-Varsity Revue, disclosed yesterday that plans for the show are well along to completion.

"The show is shaping up", Cringan said. "The birth pains are over now."

Cringan stressed that the show is to be a revue. "It is divided into 18 sections or scenes, with small group or solo scenes alternating with big production numbers," he said. "The whole effort revolves around the proposed student union."

"We are not lifting whole acts or scenes from faculty presentations," Cringan said. "But we are writing entire and original scenes for individual stars of other shows. For example, Pasternak and Nashman, the duo from the U.C. Follies, are doing some comedy acts."

The dancing in the show is being directed by Dunc. Newton, who has a chorus line of 12 boys and 20 girls. The line will make four appearances in the show. There will also be a mixed vocal chorus under the direction of Ida May Nicholson. The chorus will sing several of the old-time campus favorites as well as songs written especially for them, Cringan said.

One of the larger production scenes of the show will be a South American number. The music for this section will be played on authentic instruments. "Some St. Hilda's girls brought these instruments from Cuba and a more intriguing collection you have never seen," Cringan enthused. "We have some big gourds called 'bongo' drums that are hollowed out and played by scraping with wire brushes. Besides these we have the usual complement of South American instruments such as maracas and castenets."

"The show is to be presented the second week in January and we hope to make this a real innovation on the campus. Norm Jewison, the producer, and myself feel very pleased with the way the revue is shaping up and we are sure it will be a big success," Cringan added.

Library, Loans and Journal Run by Engineers' Society

The Engineering Institute of Canada is the national society of the engineering profession. Most of Canada's practicing engineers are members and share in the activities of the institute's twenty-eight branches from Victoria to Sydney.

The library at its Montreal Headquarters, 2050 Mansfield St. contains more than 13,000 volumes with access to many times this number through co-operative arrangements with other technical libraries. The librarians will prepare bibliographies, search the literature on particular subjects or help in obtaining obscure reference works.

An employment service maintains contact with employers of engineers throughout Canada and supplies these employers with records of engineers seeking jobs or wider horizons in engineering. The service operates a classified advertising section of the Engineering Journal and will supply lists of positions available upon request.

The Institute also administers the $25,000.00 Bennett Educational Fund raised by institute members to assist promising engineering students in financing their courses. The only security required for loans from this fund is a good scholastic record, character endorsements, and an undertaking to repay the loan as soon as possible after graduation.

The Engineering Journal, the publication of the institute, records the progress and achievements of the profession. Its editorial columns give consideration to vital questions affecting engineers. Other departments cover activities of the branches and of the individual members.

The institute appreciates that the costs of an engineering education are high. The institute also believes engineering students need its services and to reconcile these two conditions it has set student membership fees at only $2.00—less than the printing and mailing costs of the twelve copies of the Journal included with membership each year. The institute does this in the expectation that student members will carry on after graduation and become full corporate members making their contribution to the work of the institute and the advancement of the profession.

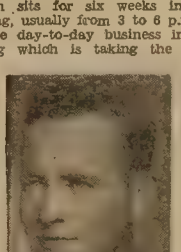
Reid Scott

It Doesn't Feel Any Different To Be An MLA



By ANNE McARTHUR

"Oh, I didn't know you were anybody important in the C.C.F. I thought you were just one of those left wingers who sat up in Murray's and talked." Thus was Reid Scott respectfully addressed by a breathless young lady who rushed up to him on one of the first days of the fall term at Osgoode Hall.

Vic Graduate

Reid graduated last year from Victoria, and in June, was elected to a seat in the provincial legislature in the Toronto Beaches riding. He is also a first year student at Osgoode. Nearly everyone is wondering how Reid will be able to carry on with his duties as an M.L.A. and his studies at the same time. When questioned on this point, he admitted that while it will be difficult, he feels confident that he will be able to fit everything in. Charlie Millard and other experienced workers have agreed to take some of the heavier work off his hands, he said. He thinks that one or two speeches in the House, in addition to committee work, will be enough for this year. As a new member, he will start slowly.

Rather than the regular session, which sits for six weeks in the Spring, usually from 3 to 6 p.m., it is the day-to-day business in the riding which is taking the most time. For instance, Reid has had a minimum of two speeches a week all Fall and this does not include afternoon speeches. He is in demand as a speaker by all kinds of organizations from Boy Scout groups and Home and School clubs to labour unions. Then there are matters to be taken care of regarding his individual constituents. Reid mentioned, with a grin, a letter he received recently from a former member of his riding, now an inmate at Burwash Reformatory. This person did not think he was being treated properly and wanted Reid to get him out.

Has Busy Day

Reid is often on the go from 6 a.m. until midnight. He arises early to get some studying done before lectures, and at present, he is spending every evening and weekend, except for the nights he is making speeches, interviewing Japanese-Canadians in connection with the law firm to which he is articled. In addition to being an Osgoode student, and M.L.A., Reid is National President of the University Federation of C.C.F. Clubs, is on the Union Executive Board in Toronto, the Toronto District Labour Council, and the Toronto Board of the International Teamsters.

"It doesn't feel any different to be an M.L.A.," says Reid, although he finds that people treat him differently. Acquaintances don't come up any longer and whack him on the back yelling "How're ya doin'?" They treat him with deference. "People seem to think there is something supernatural about an M.L.A., that he can get things done just by waving some kind of magic wand," he said.

CCF Needs Youth

"Incidentally", claimed Reid, "It is not unusual for someone of 21 years of age to reach a prominent place in the C.C.F. The party is only too anxious to accept young people into its ranks and give them important posts." Another example is Harvey Hay, Vic 4T9, who is now a member of the Provincial Executive. Hazen Argue was a C.C.F. member elected at 24 to the Federal House and was the youngest person ever elected to that body.

Reid is firmly convinced of the part the C.C.F. is going to play in the future development of Canada. His conviction and sincerity are evident in his determination to make a success of this new venture.

Are Students Too Practical?

By many educators—some of whom should know better—the desire for a university education by an increasing number of people is regarded with dismay.

The standards of the universities are being lowered because of huge enrolments, they cry. All people are not suited for university training, they explain. But beyond calling for smaller registrations and more rigid entrance requirements, they offer few remedies.

It is true that not everyone is suited for university training. It is equally true that standards are falling as a result of swollen classes and overloaded professors. But assuming that the answer lies in limitation of registration is both short-sighted and unjust. If universities are overcrowded then more universities should be built, not existing facilities curtailed. If university overcrowding is dangerous, lack of widespread education is even more dangerous. A system of junior colleges such as the one advocated by President Smith last year is the obvious answer. The system, adopted in many places in the United States, would divert the influx from the high schools into separate institutions where two years of basic work at the university level could be obtained, leaving the universities free to concentrate on more advanced undergraduate training and post-graduate work.

Coupled with the disapproval of increased enrolments is the complaint that too many people seek college degrees for materialistic or practical reasons.

What is wrong with being practical?

The perennial critics of the growing generation might well re-examine the problem. They had their own idealistic values shattered during the cynical 1920's following World War I and they destroyed the values of the new generation in another conflict twenty-five years later. They have helped to make a world in which all values are measured by monetary scales. They have put barriers such as the necessity of a university degree in the path of potential job-seekers. What else can they expect but "practical" students, anxious to carve a niche of security for themselves in a world of unrest?

And if students feel a university education is essential for that security, who can say they are wrong?

Our Readers Write

DEFENDS CO-ED UNION

The Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir: I read with a great deal of interest the two letters which were entitled "Co-ed Union-Anti", and which appeared in Monday's paper. I am writing this letter to reply to their remarks, and further, through the medium of The Varsity, to try to clarify some of the misconceptions which have arisen about the purposes of the proposed union project.

A group of students from St. Mike's are busy tabulating the results of the poll of 1,500 students. While these results are not yet completed, I had the opportunity of glancing over a partial group of questionnaires (about 1,000 of them), and if my memory serves me well, there are not more than ten of that thousand who did not want a union built. Again, over the period of the past month I have spoken to well over fifteen hundred members of the student body, in conversation, speeches—over thirty of these latter—and discussion groups. There is no doubt at all in my mind that the vast majority of people to whom I have spoken want a student union—not perhaps of the same frivolous type that Messrs. Crerar and Connell would think we are advocating, certainly—but a union which would in the truest sense be a cultural and social centre of the University.

Even Trinity Needs One

The two gentlemen who wrote that letter go to Trinity College, where two years ago a Buttery was built, where there are facilities for eating, where people can dance, and where there are in the college very adequate facilities (especially for residents, which these men are) for practically all college activities. And I emphasize college activities, for even Trinity men recognize the need for greater facilities for University functions. Anyone who doesn't should go to a meeting of the Blue and White Society of the S.A.C., where the large portion of the Society's time is spent trying to find some place where the students can have the dances they want, and cheaply. And any member of any University club knows the difficulty there is in obtaining space for club meetings. Again, if Messrs. Crerar and Connell would go to Hart House some noon hour, and see the rows of men students crowded together sitting on benches in the corridor in the basement, they would perhaps be a little more aware of the acute need for eating facilities on the campus.

Build Goodwill

And this question of reasonable, comfortable, eating and recreational facilities leads me to deny outright Mr. Humphries' statement that "a building such as you propose will not really widen the gates of knowledge, tolerance and goodwill." I say that the union which we are planning can do far more than these. Though enabling all the various people on the campus to mingle together, to talk, plan, and hold their meetings, I suggest that the union could well aid in the spreading of knowledge and goodwill, and tolerance. Who knows, Mr. Editor, perhaps even the Skulemen and Keith Davey could, when they meet in such a convivial spot, iron out their differences?

And a Union can be eminently practical, too. If the students indicate that they want them, large, well-equipped offices for The Varsity will be included, so that those future undergraduates who are interested in newspaper work may work under something like real newspaper conditions. There might be, too, a radio studio where the students can learn something of the radio world where some of them may seek employment some day. And there are many other activities which such a union would house. Let me emphasize that all the working and planning towards this union is being done by teams of upwards of 200 students. They, working on all possible phases of such a building, and guided by the results of the questionnaires, will submit a plan which will be presented to the student body for approval when it is completed. I can assure the reader that these working committees have made very complete investigation into all possible functions of such a building, beyond just a place where "boy may meet girl".

Won't Interfere

The more serious charge might be made that this union may interfere with plans for a library, or a

Must Achieve World's Unity Says Speaker

Speaking on World Government, Professor Mark Van Doren of Columbia University said that "This is the most difficult thing that man has ever tried to do, but when accomplished, will be man's greatest achievement."

Professor Van Doren, Professor of English at Columbia, 1941 Pulitzer Prize Winner and former National Director of World Federalist Council, spoke to a special meeting of the Executive of the University of Toronto World Government Association.

Professor Van Doren laid great emphasis on the movements which are now taking place among the peoples in the East and feels that the initiative for World Government may come from there. The East is rapidly changing, the population is increasing and adapting itself to conditions of the modern world. The West tends to overlook these facts. It would be impossible, he felt, for the western countries which are a small minority of the world's population to achieve World Government alone.

It is the peoples of the whole world, he stated, who will have to be behind the movement. Governments will never do it because governments will never, nor are they supposed to, surrender their sovereignty. The western peoples are afraid that they may lose something in the formation of a World Government, he continued, and so they will, but they must face this fact.

"The formation of a World Government will take a long time and must overcome tremendous difficulties, but now is the time to start working for it," stated Professor Van Doren. The movement must be based on discussion and study and will be led by intellectuals, but it will be the people, the man in the street, who will carry it through. It will, he concluded, be the greatest revolution of thought in the history of mankind.

U.C. Government Lit Meeting Topic

The constitutional committee of the U.C. Lit, which was set up to study methods of making the student government more representative of the college, will present its report at tonight's open meeting.

This committee, successor to the Ways and Means Committee, has discussed a wide range of material including the Noble Report which was all that remained of the previous committee's work.

The committee claimed the suggestion to erect a representative government system, while very ambitious and well meant, does not face the facts of the political life in U.C."

They feel that the advocates of such a system have allowed political science theorizing to obscure the actualities of the situation. The content of the committee's alternative plan is still a matter for speculation.

U.C. POETRY GROUP

Mr. Edward Sawyer of University College will address the Poetry Group Wednesday, Dec. 1, 8 p.m., in Newman Hall. His topic: "Painting and Poetry".

C. H. Millard

C. H. Millard of the United Steelworkers will be one of four speakers at a Political Science Club meeting tomorrow night. Other speakers will represent management.

Ideal Labor Code To Be Discussed By Four Experts

Representatives of labor and of management will consider what would be "An Ideal Labor Code", at an open meeting of the Political Science Club Wednesday, at 8 p.m. in Wymilwood.

Taking part in the discussion, said Ernie Steele, IV Poli. Sci., president of the club, will be Mr. C. H. Millard of the CIO United Steelworkers, and Mr. Russel Harvey of the AFL, both representing labor, and Mr. McAuley Dillon, Toronto lawyer, and Mr. W. J. Corbett of the Hayes Steel Products Co., member of the Ontario Labor Relations Board, both representing management.

Steele announced that the meeting will take the form of a panel discussion, followed by a question period for cross-examination of both sides.

The panel chairman will be Professor J. Finkelman, K.C., M.A., LL.B., professor of industrial law in the School of Law, University of Toronto, and formerly Registrar of the Ontario Labor Court.

Steele pointed out the topical interest of this panel discussion, in view of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act, passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament.

NIGHT RAID

The mysterious appearance of the letters "SMC" (in white paint) on the Vic lawn near the library and the sidewalk at the front and west entrances caused a good deal of comment today. It also caused a good deal of work on the part of valiant janitors who were successful in removing the paint from the sidewalks. The "SMC" on the lawn however, remains as a testimonial to the determination of the St. Mike's men to win the Thursday tilt which will decide the winner of the Mulock Cup.

National Group's Conference And SAC Committee's Survey To Aid Vets, Says Umanski

Union With Legion Will Be Discussed At NCSV Meeting

The fourth annual National Conference of Student Veterans will be held during December 28th to the 30th at Queen's University, it was announced last night.

"The National Conference of Student Veterans was organized in the closing years of the war when veterans began to inflate the registration in Canadian Universities. The purpose of the organization is to express the views of the student veterans on the campus and to provide leadership in the solution of student veterans' problems," said Fred Umansky, Victoria College ex-service representative and past chairman of the Ex-service Committee of the SAC.

Four of the problems to be brought up at this year's conference for discussion will be the possible affiliation of the NCSV with the Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion; the problem of increase in government allowance for both single and married veterans; a complete discussion on the status of post-graduate students under DVA; and a discussion on the DVA loan fund. An attempt will be made

Literary Issue Open To All

The literary issue of The Varsity is planned to give all undergraduates an opportunity to have their literary material published. The judges will be members of the university staff and cash prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Contributions will be accepted till Wednesday, Dec. 8th in The Varsity office, room 78, basement of U.C. Contrary to previous years art drawings will not be accepted. Short stories and essays on any topic should be kept within 1800 words. Serious and light verse will also be accepted.

Photographic entries should be 8"x10" or larger, preferably mounted on standard size mounts. Color or hand-tinted photographs will not be acceptable. While the utmost care will be taken, no responsibility can be assumed by The Varsity for the safe return of contributions. Entry of a photograph automatically indicates permission for reproduction in The Varsity. The contest is open to all undergraduates with no restriction on subject matter.

To Present Brief Of Monthly Costs For Student Vets

A complete survey of monthly expenditures and income of single and married student veterans on the campus is being conducted by the SAC's ex-service Committee, it was learned yesterday.

The information gathered from this urvey will be compiled in the form of a brief to be presented to the SAC and to the National Conference of student Veterans to be held at Queen's University.

One thousand forms have been printed and distributed to colleges and faculty offices. Veterans can obtain a form from their college representative or the SAC. All completed forms should be turned in t the SAC before December 6th.

The Ex-service Committee is attempting to find the monthly and yearly expenditures of both single and married vets as well as their monthly income from DVA. Veteran students who find that there is a difference between their income and their expenses may state on the form the method by which they make up this deficiency.

The National conference of Student Veterans will use this information to approach the government once more in an attempt to get an increase in allowances for both single and married veterans.

"If we are to get an increase in allowance," said F. Umansky III VIC., of the Ex-Service committee, last night, "It must be done this year since the majority of the ex-service students will be graduating this year. The student veterans organization was partly responsible for the small increase given to the married veteran last year, but we feel that the increase was inadequate."

GRADUATE VETS

A meeting to discuss DVA policy and to elect a committee to represent Graduate Student Veterans will be held tonight in the Graduate Union, 7:30 p.m.

Carabins Need Hospitality Stage Blue and Gold Show

What better way to improve your understanding of French-speaking Canadian students than to have a student from the University of Montreal stay at your home for the coming Caragin weekend?

No Trouble

It would be next to no trouble for you, because the Montrealers will be here only for Friday and Saturday nights, and ISS has planned activities to take care of most of their daylight hours. Of course, if you would like to accompany your guest, on Saturday afternoon, for example, we're sure everyone would be pleased.

And these Carabins are plenty of fun. Ask anyone who has known them. They are always full of energy and gay spirits. Judging by the correspondence received from them in recent weeks, they are terrifically enthused about what they call the "Lost Weekend at Toronto."

La Revue Bleu et Or

The highlight of the weekend activities be their presentation of "La Revue Bleu et Or" on Saturday night in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's. "La Revue" is the equivalent of an all-Varsity show here, except that theirs has been an actual fac' for a number of years. It has a fine tradition behind it. The Montreal showings took place the end of last week, and the Carabins say the showing here will be "of the mos' excellent." "La Revue Bleu et Or" is not just a show thrown together for the occasion, but is one of the major efforts of the year for the Montreal students. Further, the prettiest girls in the university are in the cast. The ticket sale begins today!

English Translation

As for the language difficulty, the Carabins are making a synopsis in English for use of Varsity linguists. Besides, some things can be understood in any language.

After the show Saturday night, there will be a "do" in the Trinity Buttery, with food, songs, dancing, and a further opportunity to talk things over with French-speaking students. We almost forgot to mention the big dance after the game Friday night, sponsored by the Blue and White. (Thank you, Joe Potts).

As we said before, can you think of a better way to get some education through meeting and getting to know French-Canadian students from the University of Montreal, and at the same time have a lot of fun?

P.S. If you are able to provide accommodation for a Carabin, please sign the lists in the SAC Offices.

N.F.C.U.S.

A meeting of the N.F.C.U.S. committee will be held in Room 1, Trinity College, on Wednesday, December 1, at 4:30 p.m. All representatives are urged to attend.

Ethiopian Students

No Universities Where They Come From

If the students from Port Credit think they have a long way to come to obtain higher education, they should meet Yohanese, who has come thousands of miles to reach the University of Toronto. He came from Ethiopia.

Yohanese is one of three Ethiopian students attending Varsity on a scholarship similar to the famous Rhodes Scholarships. They are given on a basis of academic standing, character and general interests. The only condition attached is that the students are to come back with knowledge and information to benefit their native land. This is what Yohanese wants to do.

The story of Ethiopia's political history is the story of their educational system. It may be hard for a Varsity student to believe that there is a country without a university. It was in 1935 that the Italians invaded the unprotected country of Ethiopia. The invasion disrupted the planning of the proposed university, which is only now being built.

High School For All

Araya, another of the shy Ethiopians, explained that although higher education is limited, everybody in Ethiopia attends high school. Board is paid by the government for those who can't afford to pay for themselves. The educational system is quite similar to the English one, because the majority of Ethiopian students go to England for their advanced training. Women here may be interested in women there. Unlike the surrounding Moslem world, women have equal rights in Ethiopia. Araya expressed his surprise at the sight of girls smoking. Women never smoke in Ethiopia. He chuckles at our "New Look". It is Ethiopia's oldest look. It is very confusing because our old appearance is their new one.

Yohanese laughed when anti-Semitism was mentioned. There just isn't any such thing in his African homeland. He claimed that it is created by Anglo-Saxon countries, whereas their country is greatly influenced by Semitic culture.

Better Than Florida

Odd as it may seem, Ethiopia is much the samé as Canada, except perhaps for the weather. ("The whole country is like a summer resort".) It is a largely agricultural country. Modern methods are being introduced and the country is rich in natural resources. The future of Ethiopia depends largely on students like Yohanese, who have come to Canada to learn our way of life.

Grad Groups Undergo Reorganization,

Full Range of Activities Seen in New Alumni Plans

By ANNE BURTON

All you preoccupied people who screamed and shouted yourselves hoarse on the Homecoming Week-end may or may not have noticed a new addition to Varsity life. But it was there and there in the persons of innumerable alumni and -ae who came enthusiastically back to college to join in the mass hysteria of the Game (WE BEAT WESTERN!), and in all the joint undergrad-alum functions of the weekend.

This brand new outburst of alumni spirit is the result of a "face lifting" of the old graduate organization into the U. of T. Alumni Association, an active and interested force for the support of the student body and the university itself. Not that the old association did not contribute to college life in the past. It did. It built Convocation Hall, and the Soldiers Tower, assisted by the undergrads. It has given $121,000 in War Memorial Scholarships since 1928. As the new association will do, the alumni kept their members posted on college activities and alumni functions through their magazine, the Varsity Graduate, and through the Alumni Bulletin. And they sponsored alumni get-togethers such as "Alumni Night', when Hart House was thrown open to members young and old for dancing and entertainment.

The new U. of T. Alumni Association—which by the way includes both grads and ex-students—is still very much in a process of formulation. There are many hush-hush plans that can't be divulged as yet. A notable project for the future is a program of expansion of local alumni clubs all over Canada, from Vancouver to Halifax, in order to maintain university contacts in their own districts, and to supply similar contacts with their districts for the central administration.

The Alumni Association is made up of the smaller alum organizations of all the colleges and faculties, each of which, besides having its own individual program, is represented on the central Board of Directors, and has a direct voice in central policy and program. Representatives of local clubs also sit on this Board, which meets at least twice annually. The number of reps from each faculty association is regulated by the size of each respective association. In addition to the main Board, an executive committee of seven members meets regularly to carry out the policies evolved by the board. The president of the new alum association is an ex-skuleman, W. A. Osbourne.

The Alumni Association feels that its organization is an essential factor in our world today for the strengthening of the position of education, after graduation. It provides an organization for thinking citizens.

Many of the most prominent men and women in Canadian home and foreign affairs are U. of T. grads. Besides concentrating on our alma mater, the association is also a member of the Alumni Council of America, representing 300 universities on the continent, which meets annually to discuss joint programs.

All graduates, on payment of a small fee, become members of the new Alumni Association, receive its publications, and can attend its meetings and social functions. In this way they can maintain contact with the University, and can contribute actively to its promotion.

Crossfire

A Reactionary Speaks

by Janet Harbron

Traditions they say are to be found only under old ivy leaves or attached to oak panelling. However in the broadest sense the word tradition may be used to cover every aspect of life. For example there are many students and some professors who condemn the pageantry and pomp of university functions, they attach to them primitive symbolism and pseudo-Freudian suggestions. These same people wear ties when its hot and nylons when its too cold and dogmatically insisit on eating their meat course before their dessert.

There is another group who while complaining about the class barriers in old England, accept with unanimity the most excruciating series of trials and terrors enabling a member of the masses to enter a select number, be it college, fraternity, or similar brotherhood.

With traditions we are able to build on the past. It is impossible to unthinkingly accept the new while with gay abandon we cast away the old. Many customs have remained because human nature, the constatnt factor has tested and accepted certain procedures as most satisfactory to all concerned.

In a material sense all that has passed is not useless. Do we discard Bach for Dizzy Gillespie, or Scarlatti for William Walton? We have nylon bu we still need wool. We have beautiful and bright plastic violins—that means of course that Stradivarius must go. So with ideas.

Respect and dignity are much to be valued in our often haphazard world, something must prevent enthusiasm from running away with us. The modern world is hectic, a cliche, we have all heard it said before. The gentleman escorting us to a dance at Hart House no longer walks on the outside to protect his lady fair from garbage hurling in the narrow street. It is comforting however to have him there and know that we are secure in a sense of protection, the happy partakers of the hangover of an old tradition.

Traditions like old recipes contain the savor of an old age that is past. To the soul of the romanticist, not always strictly feminine they give a pause and charm to modern living.

Like good wine they have mellowed with age and are scarce to-day. True one might say — if the salt have lost its savor—but perhaps it is we who have lost our sense of taste. Next time you pass a neogothic pile look under the ivy leaves; you may be surprised at what you find.

President of U.C. Alumnae Noted For Wide Interests

By JOYCE SMALE

A vivacious personality and an unflagging interest in other people make Miss Enid Walker one of the most interesting people that we have ever met. Miss Walker, now serving her second term as president of the University College Alumnae Association, is a graduate of the college, class of '29, in Household Economics.

To say that she is an English teacher at Danforth Technical School and a worker for many good causes, would give an incomplete picture of Miss Walker, but to say that she is the friend of "just about everyone in a dozen or so countries" gives at least an inkling of what a busy and interesting person she is.

Even at college her interest in everything knew no bounds. "I liked ed all the clubs and organizations so I joined them all. There was hardly any time for lectures," she said. One of her chief interests at college was foreign students, whom she wanted to get to know better. With this in mind she travelled to Russia in 1934 "just to see what it was all about." Her desire to travel took her "north with the sun" in 1935 when she started at the Mediterranean countries and went north through Europe spending a great deal of time in Englan. Now whenever she has the time and the money she travels.

When the war broke out she did canteen work in Canada until "my arm was almost frozen from dipping into the coke cooler". She wanted to go overseas as soon as possible to join the RCAMC as a home sister, arriving in England in January, 1942. There she became enthusiastic about a plan for improving relationships between army personal and civilians, lecturing to schools and clubs about Canada. Moved by the hardships the English people were enduring, she came back to Canada in September, 1945, devoting her time to collecting goods to take back. She returned to England with 1,200 pounds of used clothing and saw how the shipment was distributed.

Right now she's busy earning money so that she can travel some more. She wants to go to England and Scotland as soon as she can, stay as long as she can, and go as often as she can. Why England and Scotland? Perhaps because she admires the people so much. They never complain. "Austerity can be satisfying when it is universal," she has found. She is active with the Universal Emergency Fund for Britain.

Of her work with the UC Alumnae. Miss Walker said "We took so much out of the university that we should attempt to make up for it by contributing out of our own experience."

She would dwell only briefly on her position as Honorary Secretary on the Board of the Women's College Hospital and on her membership in the University Women's Club in which she has held several offices. She would rather talk about other people "much more interesting than myself".

There's Mary F. Edgar, director of Glen Bernard Camp, to whom Miss Walker attributes much of the inspiration she has received in her interests. Miss Walker has attended the camp at Sundridge, Ontario, annually since her university years.

Then there was the Dutch industrialist she had met in Holland many years ago who is at present in Canada finding out how Dutch war brides are getting along. Miss Walker was helping him in his survey. She knew practically all the Dutch war brides in Toronto herself. It started with her interest in English war brides which turned into an interest in all war brides.

Amid Upsurge In Old Varsity Spirit

Between Lectures

That electric tingle in the air along with the snow flakes means the same thing every year—Christmas is coming! Unbelievable as it may seem, Saint Nick will make his annual visit in just a bit over three weeks. Sugar plums and tinsel and Christmas exams are about to come into their own again. And along with them comes the problem of what would he or she like wrapped up in that shiny red paper?

While not presuming to solve all gift questions, we did pick up a few ideas in a jaunt through the downtown marts. For the be-petticoated light of your life there are tiny "opera compacts", just a trifle more than an inch square. And if she's feeling poorly, an even tinier enamelled or jewelled pill box should make a big hit!

On the other hand if she's "athaletic" and you didn't manage to snag a piece of goal-post during the season, there is a set of matching hood and mittens in leopard cloth that doesn't add up to too much.

Being athletic comes high this season, though. I'm afraid most co-eds won't have a chance at one of those smooth gabardine ski suits unless poppa just robbed the First National.

However, under those unbelievable silver trees that sprout scarlet globes or incandescent candles there are some items that won't leave the wallet too limp. For instance, the cologne that comes all done up in an imitation Santa C'aus, or the little plastic forms that you fill with water and put in the refrigerator . . . they produce junior ice cubes that are just the thing for popping in the punch-bowl Christmas eve.

For the man in your life, we noticed a tie that has on it a painted puppy holding in its mouth . . . a tie! Or you can get one sporting a hoss or a . . . was it a rooster?

If he likes something woolly, and your needles are out of order, we spotted a beootiful gray cable knit pullover.

One male of our acquaintance declared that nothing would please him more than to find Judy Garland under the Christmas tree. But coming down to earth he agreed to accept as a satisfactory substitute a pair of ski mitts or a book . . . "something good, along the line of the King's General"!

If he is a pipe smoker, you might try gifting him with a new briar . . . already broken in. It will only leave you dizzy for a few days.

Anent the subject of Christmas in general . . . it must be admitted that the whole affair is sadly commercialized—somehow you can sense the jingle of cash registers behind the tinkle of shiny bells. But that aspect is more than made up for by the way the beeg stores exert themselves in the matter of decorations.

A casual amble outside the windows of a downtown store reveals a series of white stags covered with shiny fishnet. One lucky deer is in a perennial state of having his rump tickled by a swish mannikin in black crepe. Somehow he looks happier than the other stags.

Distaff Side

By DOROTHY HERRING

They say that the concept of an American college is that of an institution built up around a football team, and that of a European university one centred by an ivory tower. That leaves Canadian spots of higher learning right smack in the place of Mr. In-between.

This concept carries over into the field of clothes, too. Canadian co-eds can take their choice of "the British look" or can appear attired straight out of Mademoiselle.

It all depends on your type. The British look can be very effective when well handled. A belted suede jacket, a straight or pleated wool skirt, and "covered up" suede shoes can present a very smart appearance. For fighting the frost, we would cover up the whole with a stadium coat . . . beige rain-proof material lined with wool and topped with a beaver collar, which, though emanating from New York, fits in very well with the British look.

From the U.S.A. come gathered and flared skirts, delicate pumps, and those gorgeous full-back coats

VIC'S CORNER

The Corner this week is being written in haste. This is not adifferent kind of ink nor is it a new form of wearing apparel. Due to the passage of time and the exigencies of a printer's deadline we find ourselves rather pressed. Consequently Vic's Corner this week will be very straightforward, to the point and precise. There will be no comparisons, allegory or imitative harmony. Even the shallowest of fourth year students will be able to understand what we are trying to say.

Abeunt studia in mores pigskin perverts having achieved a goal sought after by numerous other football filberts will strive to maintain their ascendancy on the 329th day of the year at 2.00 p.m. when they meet the Double Blues in the Bloor Street Bowl to determine the holder of the Mulock Mug. SINK THOSE SAINTS. This phrase perhaps merits closer attention and analysis.

Abeunt Studia in Mores: Few people have been able to determine the literal translation of these words. Hazard ing a rough guess we would say that they stand for a certain College on the Northeast Corner of the Campus whose spirit and vigor in past years have carried her on to envious heights. From this year's demonstration on the part of football fans we would not be too confident of such an interpretation. Although at times they have turned out in great numbers, the vocal rigor mortis with which they have often been seized could mean that on the part or many the spirit and vigor is waning.

Pigskin perverts: The thirty or so diligentsia that have been prattising every night (except Sunday) since the end of September can only be defined as something closely approximating a screwball. Thus the difference between a football and a screwball. A football is an object that is kicked with the foot. A screwball is also an object but this one is kicked around by the coach. Such watchful and sympathetic efforts by coaches, Pat Patterson and Bamber Allan, have enabled Vic to go through the season with only one defeat.

The 329th day of the year: Tomorrow.

The Double Blue: Another aggregation of football filberts that have been practising every night since September. The choice of colours was probably due to a deep state of melancholia on the part of the College founders. However today they have nothing to be unhappy about. This St. Mike's outfit have enjoyed a perfect season and in no uncertain terms do they intend to maintain that record.

Bloor Street Bowl: This has nothing to do with breakfast cereals or wash basins. It refers to Varsity stadium which holds a capacity crowd of 20,000 people. Tomorrow we hope that at least one-tenth that number will be sitting in the Victoria rooting section which will be marked out with appropriate signs. In any case head for the people garbed in scarlet and gold. These are Vic cheerleaders. If you miss them don't bother staying for the game. The School of Optometry is on St. George.

The Mulock Mug: A cup emblematic of intramural football supremacy donated by a chap called Mulock and so long in the shadows of Vic trophy cases that even the tarnish has adopted a scarlet and gold hue. If Vic wins again, the cup will have remained in one place so long that even the cobwebs will have cobwebs.

Sink Those Saints: A catchy little phrase conceived to represent the feelings of Vic fans, supporters and players with regard to the game tomorrow. See you tomorrow in the bowl.

Here are one or two items that were brought to our attention at the last moment. The Class of 4T9 will hold a Christmas Par y this Saturday evening in Wymilwood. A nine-piece band will be in attendance. They will play too.

For all Vic girls who can swim or would not mind drowning in attempt to learn. (Anything for the College you know). There will be a Splash Party in the U.T.S. pool at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, December 13th. We'll have more to say on this next week but for now a reminder.

The Senior Vic Hockey team will be playing Senior Skule, last year's champs, at 12:00 in Varsity. A list has been posted on the Women's Athletic Board in Vic. Now this is not just an ordinary list be cause when you sign it you signify your desire to play hockey. Men please note. The list was not put on the Women's Board by accident.

Anything else we have to say must lie over until next week ... fortunately. See you at the scuttling tomorrow afternoon.

We have a complex. Whenever we walk down the street, or stand up in street-cars, we feel that people are staring at us. And it's all the fault of our girl-friend, a girl whose intelligence and discernment we'd felt had been so recently confirmed in her choice of a man. In a thoroughly upsetting manner she declared that we had no soul, little conscience, that we were a boor, had a receding chin, mouldy moustache, over-size nose, wind-stopping ears, hair like a horse and weak, watery eyes. We never had a complex before, but now, wherever we go, we feel that people are staring at us. Imagine saying that our eyes were watery! What a complex to give a man!

Winnipeg Ballet

Last week Toronto balettomanes had a field day on the occasion of the Toronto debut of Gwenneth Lloyd's Winnipeg Ballet. It is indicative of a quickening of the spirit that many had to be turned away from Eaton Auditorium; yet, the fact that Toronto was deemed worthy of one performance only, whilst Montreal rated two makes it clear that we still have far to go to redeem ourselves in the eyes of the cognoscenti.

Gwenneth Lloyd is an energetic Englishwoman who has adopted Winnipeg and is fast making it a byword in the world of ballet. Taking the dancers from ordinary men and women she has fashioned a corps of inspired enthusiasts who give their spare time single-mindedly to the Winnipeg Ballet.

Their program last week was a delightful mixture of the traditional and the new. From Chopin's "Etude" choreographed by Miss Lloyd via Rachmaninoff and Swan Lake to "Chapter 13" subtitled "A Melodrama" in which we were treated to the joys of the "Burlyque" and an adequate amount of symbolistic melodrama justifying the subtitle.

All in all the group had a great chance to show their virtuosity which they took after a little preliminary hesitation giving their audience an evening which they will not easily forget.

Mihail Dumbeliuk.

Wymilwood Recital

The Sunday Evening Concert at Wymilwood by Mary MacKinnon Shore was distinguished neither by the program nor the performance. Whether it was the piano or the pianist, I heard only the slightest variation of tone in the recital.

The opening group comprised: "Andante with Variations"-Haydn; "Gavotte"-Gluck - Brahms; and "Prelude"-Pasquini. They were notably dull and academic.

One of the earlier Beethoven Sonatas, Opus 31, No. 3, was the program "warhorse." Unfortunately it is derivative from Haydn, and rathe: uninteresting. A glib staccato style of playing was demanded for it, and Mrs. Shore appeared capable in this medium.

In the modern group, "Reverie" by Richard Strauss was played with great sentimentality: a quality Mrs. Shore has developed to a hitherto unknown apex. Four selections of Debussy: Reflects dans l'Eau, Minstrels, Voiles, Jardins sous la Pluie, were played without the transparent flashing of colour which Debussy merits.

to suggest ways by which some of the clauses of the loan fund could be relaxed to facilitate loans.

The question of DVA allowance for graduate medical students who are doing internship will also be considered. The question is being brought up because the Ex-service Committee feels that there is discrimination in the matter. "Because of our system at this University," said Umansky. "veterans graduating in medicine and going on to intern do not receive DVA allowance. Since they receive their M.D. degree after their fourth year, the government feels that their course is finished and that they are not entitled to DVA grants any longer."

Umansky was referring to the system at Queen's University and others where a student does not receive his M.D. till he has completed his pre-intern and post-intern years. Since their course is not considered to be complete by the government until the final post-intern year is completed, student veterans in medicine at Queen's University receive DVA allowances.

"A letter will be drafted stating the case of University of Toronto veteran students in medicine and presented to the Department of Veterans Affairs. This same letter will be taken to the National Conference of Student Veterans to get national support of the question," said Umansky.

Schedule Opens Friday Closes Sat.

The U of T Senior Water-Polo team plays the first game in defense of its Intercollegiate championship on Friday night and the last game on Saturday evening. The Friday game will be played in the Hart House Pool at 6:30 p.m. against Queen's and the boys will embark for Montreal immediately following to round out their schedule against Queen's the following night. Hardly worth taking the trunks off, eh boys?

The Varsity team are current Dominion champs, in addition to being cream of the college crop, having defeated Montreal YMHA in last year's Canadian finals. This year's squad has made an auspicious start, having secured two wins in as many starts, in the Ontario Water Polo League, but their immediate problems are centred around retention of the Hershorn Trophy which they captured by beating Queen's and McGill last year. Since the Tri-colour natators are perpetual marks, Saturday night's game will decide the trophy's resting place for '48-'49.

Bob Dunston, in his second year of coaching, had several key positions to refill at the beginning of the year, including replacement of Al Marshall and Warren Clayson who graduated last year after dominating the Intercollegiate aquatic scene for years. The return of such stars as Curry, Peacock, Crang and Phil Rosen along with the impressive performances of rookies Derry Hubbard and Norm Mortimer have combined to lessen the coach's misapprehensions.

Manager Ian Fraser has assured the press that the only requisites for a successful snowing on Friday night are a crowd (the ladies are invited) and a few marriages. It seems that there were no less than six espoused water-"polars" on last year's team and efforts are now being made to raise the present total of one (Phil Rosen) married member to the necessary championship heights.

Women's Athletic Building, etc. Again I can assure you that it will not. The president has said many times that these other buildings will be built just as soon as possible, and he and the Planning Committee of the University have been assured that our building would in no way overlap with, or impede the plans that the University has made towards thees other facilities which are needed so badly. To the end that our plans should not overlap with other existing or proposed facilities, we have the Warden of Hart House and the President on the Steering Committee of the University who are being kept informed of our planning.

I hope that these words have in some way clarified the union question. May I at this point interject a comment that I would be more than happy to talk to any group who want to know more about the union.

Poll Favors Union

The criticism that Mr. Humphries raises that we should not "for heaven's sake call it a memorial" is more difficult to attack. I can readily see the point that he is making, and I am sure that it is shared by others on the campus. It is not, however, shared by the majority. In 1946, the S.A.C. held another poll, asking students what kind of memorial they would most like to see built. The answer was strongly in favor of a co-ed union. I think that the number of veterans who were polled at the time was considerable. I know too, that many people who think that a memorial union is quite in line with what a suitable memorial should be, would agree that a hospital would be another worthwhile memorial. But I do not see that either one need preclude the other.

Campbell Barred From Mulock Final

ISC Refuses Permission To Referee

By HANK WESTCOTT
Sports Editor

Alec Campbell, top interfaculty referee, will not be allowed to officiate at the Mulock Cup final game tomorrow, it was decided at an Intramural Sports Committee meeting last night.

Prodded by a letter from Mel Jardine, manager of the St. Mike's football team, Campbell was barred because he is a Victoria student. The letter stated that St. Mike's did not feel that Campbell would be completely impartial in his decisions, and that he had already shown discrimination against St. Mike's.

Has Impressive Record

Campbell has been an interfaculty referee for three years, has worked the finals for all of them, and for the past two years has run a refereeing school in Hart House. He was to have been scouted by CRU officials tomorrow as potential material for that league. Mac McCutcheon, Miss Boyd and Campbell will name the substitute referee tomorrow.

The barring of Campbell was effected through a blanket resolution that "no official be appointed for an intramural final series in any sport who is a member of the competing college unless both managers agree." The sports committee also unanimously added, "This decision has no bearing on the integrity of the officials who handled semi-finals, who were connected with the colleges concerned."

Reporters Barred

By this rule, Campbell can still referee if managers Bob Ralph of Vic and Mel Jardine of St. Mike's agree. "Because of the ill-will it might engender, I would not want to referee the game even under those circumstances," Campbell said last night.

Although two Varsity reporters were barred from the sports committee meeting last night because of "the mudslinging that might be done," Mac McCutcheon said afterwards that it was conducted "with dignity and without personalities."

Stevens Scores Decision

"A man's faculty has nothing to do with his capabilities, and Alec has proven himself as the best in the league," Warren A. Stevens, Director of Athletics, commented. "Hec Creighton has been refereeing Varsity intercollegiate games for some time, and he is himself a Varsity grad," Stevens added.

Red McKimm, Athletic Director of Vic, said that "Campbell is head and shoulders above any other referee in the league, and since he is barred, an outside official should be brought in."

Says Campbell

"I have refereed intermediate and senior intercollegiate football and basketball games in which Varsity has participated and it has made no difference in my decisions," Campbell said last night. "When I'm on the field I represent the league which I'm working for, not my college, and I'm out there to make sure that the rules are obeyed as that's what I'm paid for.

"I've tried to make the intramural league a success, and this is the first year that no games have been protested because of refereeing, making it a success from my viewpoint. This petty quibbling of St. Mike's is detrimental to the smooth functioning of the league."

"I have 100 per cent confidence in Alec's ability and integrity," Mac McCutcheon added after the ISC meeting.

SPORTSWOMAN

BASKETBALL

In the playoffs for the UC Rosebowl, UC sophs downed UC seniors 24-16. Wilma Booty, small but quick soph forward, racked up 17 of her team's points. Lil Laakso, who scored nine points for the seniors, and her team-mate, Mickey Thomas, both played fast, intercepting games for the losers.

They had only five players each but that didn't dampen the spirits of the two freshie teams, who played next. Freshies A downed the B team 21-7.

Don't forget the semi-final games tonight in Hart House from 7:30 on. PHE III and UC sophs will battle it out in the first game while the two Physio teams come up against each other in the second.

Trinity Triumphs In Soccer Tilt

VARSITY SPORTS

Last Yr's Runners-Up Nail Arts Faculty Cup

By MILES KENNEDY

The bad luck bogey was out against Ajax again yesterday afternoon when the soccer final went to Trinity by the triumphant margin of 5-0. Ajax were playing soundly, Trinity were playing very soundly but it was a sounder victory than the play merited.

Where Ajax came unstuck was in the matter of shooting. The position play of their attack was excellent and despite a concession in size they got the high balls almost as often as not but they failed to make the most of their opportunities. In an endeavor to draw the defense they would pass out to the wing even when right on the penalty line. This policy has been more or less explainable during the course of the season but with Mesfin Abebe playing centre forward it was sheer madness.

Ajax Defence Good

For a losing team the Ajax defence were playing far too aggressive a game which meant that their full backs were constantly having to run back to get the ball and content themselves with a mediocre kick backwards over their heads rather than a straight-forward clearance shot. They could have used that extra kicking power.

Play never looked too one-sided thanks largely to the hard work of Ajax attackers Mesfin Abebe and Mike Rigabert, but hard fast drives gave Trinity three goals in the first half. Al Forbes started the ball rolling (into the wide open spaces of the Jax net) to run up the first score after an attacking move by Will Elliot. Bill Brewer and Vince Dawson followed up with an unassisted goal apiece.

Trinity Eats Oranges!!!

After the halftime break (when Trinity partook of ORANGES!) play started up as hot as ever.

There was one unfortunate burst of temper but on the whole it was a very clean game. Play was as before with little to choose between the teams in mid-field but when Will Elliot broke loose up the field Trinity once again capitalized on the break with a safe goal from Vince Dawson. It was his second goal of the game.

Forbes Gets Last

Soon after this Al Forbes broke loose up the left wing, drove a hard shot at the goal which was saved with a punch forward only to go safely in on a quick second shot by Forbes who had been playing a hard and successful game all afternoon.

This was a reversal of last year's result when Ajax took the cup from Trinity in a very close game with no fewer than three overtime periods. Ajax seem to have been dogged by back luck throughout the play-off season for they came perilously close to losing the semi-finals in their first game against St. Mike's.

Moreover, although it was commonly agreed that they were a better team than their senior Skule brethren, they lost to Trinity by a margin of five whereas the senior SPS lost by only a two-goal margin.

SPORT IN SHORT

Soccer

Trinity, 5; Ajax, 0. (Trinity wins title).

Championship Score Vic 12—St. Mike's 2

Victoria College will march onto Varsity's stadium tomorrow with the most impressive record in Interfaculty football behind them. Vic has won the Mulock Cup 12 times since 1920, a mark that has not been even closely approached by any other faculty.

St. Mike's has won the championship but twice in the same period, the last time in 1939. SPS has the second best record in intramural football with a total of eight titles —four by junior SPS, three by senior SPS, and one held jointly. Trinity, Dents, and UC each have won the Mulock Cup once since 1920.

Victoria will also be trying to tie a record that they set in 1937 of three straight championships. No other team has won two straight.

Speaking Of Sport

By BOB JONES

Attention was drawn early in the year to the fact that out of some 27 Intercollegiate trophies (Senior and Intermediate) open to competition in the '47-'48 athletic campaign, the University of Toronto managed to capture no fewer than 21. This is a truly amazing accomplishment, even for an institution that has double the enrolment of any competing rivals in the college field.

The competition in the great majority of these sports, though, is generally witnessed by a very small proportion of the student body and their main function is the provision of opportunities to the undergraduates for specialization in their pet sports. Spectator and consequently outsider interest centres around the Senior teams in the major sports and it is on the University's success in football, basketball and hockey that their athletic rating usually rests.

The Grand Slam of Intercollegiate competition, that is the capture of the gridiron, court and ice championships (with the track title thrown in for good measure, perhaps) all in one year, is the height of campus sporting prowess. This is impossible for Western to attain since they do not compete in the hockey loop and Queen's can rarely muster contenders for more than one field of endeavour at a time so that Varsity and McGill remain as the leading rivals for numerical as well as qualitative championship efforts.

Varsity bid for and made the Slam in 1920 and that was the last year the trick was turned. Previously Toronto and McGill had each accomplished the feat once, but neither team has ever included the track and field title in its achievement. In 1940 the Blues took the hockey championship and tied for the basketball top spot but were confined to the two-sport limit because war exigencies halted competition in the remaining fields.

Once again, Varsity is in a position to make a clean sweep of the honours, having garnered the football and track titles. The only obstacles are six teams just waiting to paste the respective daylights out of our hockey and basketball representatives. In neither division, according to pre-schedule indications, can the Blues be classed as powerhouses. Their competition is, as yet, an unknown quantity but Western is perenially dangerous on a basketball floor and the University of Montreal, Varsity's opposition at the arena, this Friday, are burning up the Hockey League.

Ace Bailey and Bob Masterson are going to need a few trumps up their sleeve if they are going to present us with two major championships.

Varsity Jr. Bees Tackle Corner Boys

Varsity Junior Bees play their third game of the season tonight at Varsity Arena when they meet Corner Boys in the second half of a doubleheader. Marlboros and St. Mike's, the other clubs in the loop, will tangle in the first game. The Varsity fixture is slated for 9:00 o'clock.

Bill Wade's juniors knocked off Marlboros in their first clash of the season and handed St. Mike's a convincing defeat in the Gardens on Saturday afternoon. As the last second of the game ticked away on the huge Sportimer the Bees were on the long end of an 8-4 score.

Three members of the senior Blues have been bolstering the Bees in Ernie Frey, Rocky Howson and John Fox. This trio counted a total of eight scoring points between them on Saturday.

Bill Leuty in goal has also been playing capably and bids fair to improve with every game.

By CONN SPARROW

"Last one in is a sissy".

Suddenly the quietness of the big pool was disrupted by the patter of bare feet, the delighted squeals of female voices and the many splashes that resulted from this mighty challenge.

Laughing swimmers collided with one another as they attempted to get away from the person who was "it" and little conversational groups gathered in the corners, at the shallow end. A whistle blew—shrill and high—announcing the beginning of the speed races.

Susie Floogle was absolutely left behind in those but did you see her style—pretty smooth! Look at Nola Bola do a torpedo and that swan dive was good.

Yes, the splash parties begin this week and each swimming rep is hoping that everyone will turn out for these informal get-togethers, because there is going to be lots of fun and entertainment for all those interested in swimming and just having a good time for an evening. It also gives the reps a chance to look over the prospects of swimmers for interfaculty practices which begin after Christmas and eventually the distant meet in February.

Lists have been put up in each college and faculty and all girls are urged to sign early, as each rep wants to know how many are coming.

The Lillian Massey pool will be the scene for two of these splash nights—PHE on Thursday, December 2nd, and UC on Tuesday, December 7th. The times for both are 5:30-7:00.

All others will be in the UTS pool from 8:00-9:30. On Monday, December 6th St. Mike's, Meds and Nursing will be all together, while on Wednesday, December 8th OT and Physio will have their meet. Trinity's party takes place Thursday, December 9th and Victoria is last on Monday, December 13th.

Medicals are a must—everyone engaged in sports should have one of these anyways—and bathing suits and caps are the last word in smartness for such novel affairs.

GRADS LEVEL CENSURE AT DVA

No Opportunity Offered Writer Says Callaghan

Canadian literature was declared to be in "a poverty-stricken condition" by Morley Callaghan, opposition speaker at last night's Trinity debate. Mr. Callaghan, Canadian writer and author of "The Varsity Story", and J. K. Thomas, editor of The National Magazine, were guest debaters taking opposite sides on the resolution, "That this country is capable of supporting a truly Canadian literature".

Best Markets in U.S.

"The writer has to look out for himself or nobody else will," said Mr. Callaghan. He advised young writers to make their work as good as possible and to sell it wherever they could. "I'll leave it to you," he said, "to decide for yourselves where you would find the best market for it." The United States, he declared, offered opportunities for the sale of novels and short stories which Canada could not even approach.

Speaking for the government, which was defeated by a vote of 28 to 10, Mr. Thomas said that the question was not whether Canada could support a literature but whether the country wanted to do so. "There is a wealth of material in this country out of which great books could be written. There is a market for a literature which truly expresses the soul of Canada and its people. These books have not been written because we, as a nation, have been too busy building factories and railroads."

Lacks Universality

Ron Bryden, III Eng. Lang. & Lit., first speaker for the opposition, criticized the existing Canadian literature on the grounds that it failed to achieve the universality which distinguishes the works of Shakespeare and the Greek writers of tragedy. "We should not try to write novels which are regional or national. Great literature is universal." He referred to Oedipus and Anna Karenina as characters whose problems possessed a high degree of this "universality". "Oedipus was not a Greek," he declared, "he was Man involved in a human situation."

Must Have Authenticity

Mr. Thomas, in speaking on this point, suggested that too much stress on universality would drain any literature of its authenticity. "No great writer can eliminate the element of the local scene," he said. He mentioned Ottawa parliamentary and social life as "excellent material for a truly Canadian satire." Mr. Callaghan's attitude was reflected in

University Book Store Run For Profit Motive States Potts at UC Lit

Joe Potts, S.A.C. representative of the UC Lit., recommended to an Open Meeting of the society last night that the S.A.C. tackle the Provincial Government in connection with the reduction of student fees in co-operation with the Board of Governors. The report was adopted.

Some criticism was levelled at the financial arrangements of the S.A.C. in regard to the proposed purchase of Horner and Bowes book exchange business. The society recommended that Potts ask for a reconsideration of the agreement and a lump sum payment instead of a percentage over five years. Potts said that "the University book store is more interested in profit than Coles". The society agreed that a central book exchange was a necessity. Further discussion developed on the session the S.A.C. held in camera on racial discrimination. Joe Potts explained that campus personalities were involved and that to avoid the S.A.C. being used as a platform for propaganda it was decided to hold the meetings privately.

Figaro

18th century elegance will strike the eye, no less than the ear, in the Royal Conservatory Opera production of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" at Eaton Auditorium on December 9 and 11. The cast will sing in English and includes Jean Patterson (Barbarina) and Andrew MacMillan (Figaro.)

"Marriage of Figaro" Cast Hails From All Canada

Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro", the first major production of the season by the Royal Conservatory Opera, will be presented in Eaton Auditorium December 9 and 11.

The cast includes young singing-actors from Montreal, St. Boniface, Windsor, Hamilton, Winnipeg and Medicine Hat. They are among 100 students enrolled in the Opera School, which is a branch of the University.

Third Season

"This is the third season of the school, which was organized with the hope of forming the nucleus of a much-needed permanent opera company, similar to the Metropolitan in New York", said Mr. John Beckwith, publicity director of the Conservatory. Mr. Beckwith stated that there were many complaints in London, England because there were only four opera houses in the city, and pointed out however the shameful fact that there was only one large company in the whole North American continent.

Figaro is portrayed by Andrew MacMillan, Susanna by Marguerite Gignac, the Countess by Louise Roy, the Count by Glenn Burns, and Cherubino by Mary Alice Rogers. Nicholas Goldschmidt is the musical director. He was formerly with the Municipal Theatre in Rio de Janeiro.

The production of the "Marriage of Figaro" follows such performances as "The Bartered Bride", "Hansel and Gretel" and "Rosalinda".

"Rosalinda" was presented at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, where it was very enthusiastically received, and was held over for two weeks. Mr. Beckwith feels that this is indicative of the interest of the public which needed only the stimulus which the members of the Opera School are providing.

Doctor Arnold Walter, director of the Conservatory Senior School, will speak on the opera Thursday afternoon. The lecture is open to all interested and will be given in the Conservatory Concert Hall.

Arbitrary Actions By Toronto Branch Will Be Protested

The Toronto Branch of the Department of Veterans' Affairs was strongly criticized at a meeting of the Graduate Student Veterans last night, concerning its policies in regard to veterans doing post-grad work at the university. A committee of three was nominated to make representations to DVA.

D.V.A. Statement

The meeting was called to discuss DVA policies in the light of a recent statement issued by A. R. Whitten, Supervisor of the DVA Counselling and Training Service, and published in The Varsity under the dateline of Nov. 24th and to elect a committee to represent the graduate student veterans before DVA.

The general criticism levied against DVA was the apparent lack of efficiency on the part of the Toronto Branch of DVA concerning payment of allowance. Very few of the graduate vets have received any pay from DVA so far this year. After listening to various cases from some of the veterans concerning the hardship which is occasioned to them by DVA's failure to make a decision on whether or not they will be paid, the meeting was of the general opinion that they are being given the "run-around" by 55 York Street, and that they should appeal to higher authorities for a clarification of their position.

They felt that there is no reason why DVA should take so long in reviewing the cases of veterans who have expressed their wish of doing post-graduate work upon graduation, and felt that there is no reason for the long delay in forwarding cheques. As a remedy they suggest that all reviewing if any is needed, on the part of DVA be done during the summer so that a veteran could know exactly where he stands with DVA upon his return in the fall.

One veteran had his own private solution to the problem of getting his cheque from DVA. He wrote to his Member of Parliament explaining his case and received his cheque two days later.

Some doubt was also expressed as to the authority of the local branch of DVA to be judge on how long a post-graduate course should take. They felt that this should be left to the faculty concerned to decide and not to the government representatives. They also doubted whether DVA's new ruling that every student doing post-graduate work must be interviewed by Mr. Hounson of DVA is a national ruling or merely a local one. If local, veteran graduate feel that if a graduate is accepted and recommended by the university to do post-graduate work it automatically means that his academic standing is good, and that DVA should not have to spend so much time in reviewing each individual case before deeming it worthy of DVA allowance.

Fewer T.B. Cases In Recent Tests Reports Gossage

A preliminary survey of the results of the X-rays taken last month indicates a smaller percentage of active cases than last year, according to Dr. C. D. Gossage of the University Health Services.

Of 9,883 students and faculty members tested only ten actual cases of active tuberculosis were found, or at a rate of one per thousand.

Officials were disappointed that only 9,000 out of 16,000 students took advantage of the tests, said Dr. Gossage.

Hillel Speaker

Dr. Shalon Spiegal, professor of Hebrew Literature at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York, will deliver the second lecture on the Hillel Series at 8.30 p. m. in the Library Auditorium, St. George Street. Dr. Spiegal will speak on "Invitation to Jewish Learning."

Frank Lloyd Wright

'As A Nation Builds So That Nation Is'

By JACK GRAY

Men today are being educated far beyond their capacity, declared Frank Lloyd Wright, well-known American architect, yesterday in an address to the University of Toronto Architectural Society. An overflow crowd in Hart House Theatre heard the distinguished architect talk on "the one subject, Architecture, my relation to it and my experience in it."

Mr. Wright described architecture as the "thing I love most." He deplored the fact that today it fails to receive the devotion it is entitled to. "A building," said Mr. Wright, "is a piece of property, and that is its misfortune." He saw the trend in architecture "for many years" as a reflection of what the business man asks for. "I doubt that we are going to have much to do with architecture", he stated.

Replying to the argument of many architects that they must give the customer what he wants, Mr. Wright said that "when you live on, and at the expense of, the thing you have given your love to, then that is a prostitution of architecture." He said that what architecture needs today is individuality and character.

Mr. Wright sees architecture as an essential part of the life of a nation. "As a nation builds, so that nation is", he said. He feels "that for 500 years we have not had any creative architects." The only thing the modern architects have done is to "create effects, and that is our sickness in the architectural realm at the present time," he added.

In his talk Mr Wright explained that he sees in architecture an opportunity to express the principles of democracy and freedom. The modern architect, in his preoccupation with effects, misses his chance to express these principles; in fact, he doesn't even understand them.

"What a man does is what he has," said Mr. Wright. He stated that education has not done what it should do, and that what it needs today is an influx of fresh blood. "If I could see this influx in our universities I would be for education, but I don't," said Mr. Wright. "I am thoroughly persuaded that the method of sending a boy to school, getting him to read books and listen to lectures, and then handing him a paper degree is a great mistake. I am for apprenticeship Education is the great mass production of all mass productions, ... the trampling of the great herd," he declared.

Organic Building

"Architecture is great art, the mother of the fine arts," said Mr. Wright. It is the duty of architecture to make our environment more noble and more beautiful, and the best way we can do this is through what Mr. Wright calls 'organic Architecture? To be able to build an 'organic building', or to live in one, we must be able to "see into the life of things," he stated.

"Our present buildings are insignificant rubbish heaps, and the city is dead and gone", declared Mr. Wright. "It is time to decentralize, to recognise the city as a festering sore against nature, and to use 'organic architecture' to magnify the individual and express the principles of democracy and freedom."

NFCUS Debate

At about this time last year many students on the campus were confused when they read reports of SAC meetings and NFCUS committees which told of hot debates on the question of affiliation of the National Federation of Canadian University Students with the International Union of Students.

Since then more reports and more debates have made the issue even more confusing and any decision seems to be as remote as ever. But the problem still remains: Should NFCUS affiliate with IUS?

We think it should. But there are many who disagree with us and there are many more who aren't too well acquainted with all the details. Sporadic newspaper reports and the occasional editorial may help to clarify the issue somewhat, but there is much that can be explained thoroughly only in a full-scale debate where each student could hear the problem discussed at length.

The opportunity will present itself next Monday. The University of Toronto Debating Union will hold a full-scale debate on the resolution: "That this house believes NFCUS should affiliate with IUS now."

The problem is one that affects every student. By holding automatic membership in NFCUS every student here is directly concerned with the attitude of NFCUS toward an international student union.

Last year some students objected because the general student body wasn't consulted about affiliation. The decision of this year's SAC on the question will be guided to a great degree by the discussion presented at Monday's debate.

If anyone has anything to say—or to learn—about NFCUS-IUS affiliation, he should be there.

ART ∞ MUSIC ∞ DRAMA

Elisabeth Bergner

No sane person who has seen Bergner once would miss an opportunity of seeing her again, even if she did no more than twiddle her thumbs. And she does much more than that in "Escape Me Never" Margaret Kennedy's play, made-to measure for her at the Royal Alexandra this week.

This vehicle allows the great lady to pull all her stops from her very own variety of common-sensical anti-conventional humor to infinitely fragile pathos. She manages to make you feel like an intruder on watching her sorrow, but, of course, you do not let her out of sight for a moment. You suspect her of bold extemporization until you compel yourself to pause and gasp at the uncanny shrewdness of her timing and the careful calculation of her movements. The trite phrase of the triumph of the spirit over years, in this case gains startling immediacy. Whatever one's personal reactions to the very clearly circumscribed Bergner personality, they are submerged after a few minutes by the irresistible onrush of its strength.

The supporting cast which moves about the medium-quality sets is perfectly adequate and competent. Leading it is Philip Huston, a robust, but not insensitive gentleman closely followed by Emily Laurence whose looks and wrappings are highly praiseworthy and who does fine work, especially in II, 2 which may well be Bergner's finest. Ludwig Roth's sketch of a continental musician hits the nail with great precision. The slight frigidity of the audience did not lessen my desire to unhitch the horses of Miss Bergner's carriage.

E. M. Oppenheim.

GIVE HIM AIR

Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir: I have a pet peeve. Let's make that stronger and call it a big beef. My grievance is a new one to show forth, and strongly enough concerns air . . . stale air.

Any human or animal (this category is to include bookworms too) who has ever entered the main University Library bordering the front campus, will agree with me, that the atmosphere at first seems appropriate for polishing off that last-minute essay or lab. report, or book-browsing for pleasure. This is erroneous and calculated to entice the student body in its more serious moments. Once inside and seated you commence reading. But notice! After a few minutes that wide-awake feeling you had on entering disappears and mental preception is already on the decline. Your head nods and soon the book has ceased being an educational instrument and becomes a makeshift pillow. Even if you slept ten hours a night for a week, you would still experience the same smothering results after being enclosed in that suffocating roundhouse for reading. The air in that structure is downright stale!

Since we possess such a wonderful engineering faculty, as Mr. Keith Davey will attest, why not have some engineers investigate the problem with a view to recommending modern ventilating devices. Even one fan of appropriate size to draw in and another to expel the air would help immensely.

Yours, still breathing.

Bob Dic, IV Pol. Sci. and Ec.

PHE Take UC With Overtime In Gals' Hoopla

In the Hart House gym, last night, PHE III and the UC Sophs battled out two games to break a tie and finally make PHE III victors in the first of the semi-final games in interfaculty basketball. In the first game, UC led all the way until the final quarter when PHE scored six points to three points for UC, tying the game 12-12.

The two teams were evenly matched, showing the spectators fast-moving, clean basketball, with UC making more shots on goal count than did their fighting sisters. Fizz Ed technique was better than that of their opponents, but UC exhibited better ball-handling in this first game.

Two Physio's Clash

The other two teams to meet in the semi-finals last night were the Physio A's and the Physio B's. The A's opened the scoring in the first few seconds of the play and led all the way to snuff their sisters with a score of 15-7. This game was considerably slower and lacked much of the technique shown in the two others. Both teams were passing short and wild, and a great deal of time was wasted on throw-ins, resulting from line infringements. Jean Cossar and Phyl Wilks each copped six points for the winners and were by far the best players on the floor. The A's guard line also deserves honorable mention for playing a tight defence.

The winning teams, PHE III and Physio A, will grapple for the championship in Hart House gym, Thursday, December 2, at 8.30.

Tie-Breaking Game

But the results of the second game, played to break the tie, told a far different story. PHE unleashed all their latent abilities as they built a score of 15 points to 6 points for UC in two four-minute quarters. Gwen Smith and Jacey Steele were really "on" as they chalked up 13 points between them. The PHE guard tightened considerably and Betsy McFaul did a memorable job of intercepting. The girls were following out the orders from their coach, Mickey Barnett, who told them "to check hard".

Intercollegiate Tryouts

Fizz Ed coach Mickey Barnett will be coaching the Intercollegiate team this year and wishes to remind all those who want to try out for it that the first practise will be held in OCE gym from 5.30 to 7.00 next Monday.

VOLLEYBALL

U.C. It's this way...

There's so much going on around UC these days that we don't know just where to start telling you about all the activities. Today would be as good a day as any to start, wouldn't it?

If there are any UC women reading this who haven't voted yet for your S.A.C. rep, hie yourself right down to the rotunda and cast that ballot. A preferential voting system is used and candidates should be numbered by choice. Girls running for the position are Joan Crysdale, III General; Jane Hill, III Sociology, and Jane Young, III Psychology ... Remember your a-t-l card for identification.

Tonight's a big night for first-year students. It's their first year-party of the term and Presidents Marilyn Craig and Jon Christensen promise a bang-up time. All for 25 cents you get dancing, entertainment and food. It's a come-single go-home-double affair. Place .. the Women's Union. Time ... 8 - 12 TONIGHT ! ... Tickets are being sold in the rotunda today.

Friday night the class of 5T0 gets together with their contemporaries from across the campus—the class of 5T0 from Vic. Third year Vic presidents, John Max Allen and June Day, have been working hard with our third year presidents, Gretchen Ratz and Jack Hoolihan, and they've come up with a dandy program. Just give a listen. C.O.T.C. Drill Hall for lots of room, Bill Pearce and his orchestra for dancing, entertainment from Vic and UC for relaxation, lots of food for that hungry feeling, 8.30 to 12.30 for lots of time, a-t-l card for admission and ... all for fun!

Strictly for UC's mermaids is the swimming meet this coming Tuesday from 5 to 7.30 in the L.M. pool. There'll be free style, back crawl and breast stroke races, diving, ornamental and style events with a medley race as a novelty. No one has been practising for the meet. It's just a "splash party" when UC women get together to have a lot of fun— the only one of its kind during the whole year. To the girl who ends up with the highest number of points, goes the Taylor Trophy. ... Anyone intending to enter the meet, who has not had a medical check-up this fall, is required to do so before December 7. ... Zi Murray, MI 3243, may be contacted for further information.

"Lady of Larkspur Lotion"—sounds intriguing, doesn't it? No, it's not a new make-yourself-beautiful concoction. It's a drama by Tennessee Williams being presented next Wednesday, December 8, in the Women's Union Theatre by the UC Players' Guild. The same evening the Guild is presenting another one-act play, this a comedy, called "Rizzio's Boots". Directors are Art Livingstone ("The Lady") and Isobel Ward ("The Boots").

The answer to that pre-Christmas thin-wallet feeling and those essay-test blues is UC's annual Christmas Dance. It's being held a week from this Friday on December 10, in the Women's Union ... super decorations, good music and scrumptious food. ... Attendance is limited to 175 couples and with the admission price only 50 cents per couple, need we remind you to get into the lineup early when tickets go on sale in the rotunda this Friday?

The Music Club, new this year, will get a chance to show how hard they've been working all fall, when they present a Christmas Musicale on Sunday, December 12, at 9 p.m. in the Women's Union Theatre. The UC Singers, one branch of the club, will sing special Christmas music and there will be a guest artist. ... Members of the Music Club are already hard at work preparing for their Musical Evening to be presented February 8 and 9 in Hart House Theatre. The program will include works by the choir and the orchestra, and a brand new operetta, never before presented in Canada.

*Women ... if you're going to be around on the last day of the term, keep the Settlement Party in mind. The women of all the colleges entertain settlement children at a Christmas party and volunteers are always needed to buckle up galoshes, serve refreshments and so on.

See you here next week and in the meantime be thinking about amalgamation.

Ace's Blues, Carabins Clash

Prepping for Friday's invasion by the University of Montreal Carabins, Varsity Blue puckchasers skated through a practice skirmish with St. Michael's OHA Jr. "A" Majors at the Arena last night.

The Blues had their work cut out for them as the fast-stepping Bay Street kids showed the benefit of many weeks of practice.

For Ace Bailey's men it will be the first Intercollegiate game of the season Friday and they face a high-flying club in the 'Bleu et Or' from Montreal. Les Carabins have already taken the measure of McGill and Queen's in College loop games this season and are hoping to fatten their record with a triumph over the Blues. However, they will have to overcome tough opposition by Varsity's defending Intercollegiate champs who are keen to get off on the right with a win.

Vic Seeks 3rd in Row At Stadium

Victoria College will be seeking their third Mulock Cup championship in a row when they take on St. Mike's in Varsity Stadium at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Also if they win it will be their fifth title in eight years, and 13th in 28.

For St. Mike's it will be their third championship since 1920 — if they win. And the odds-makers around the University apparently think they will. Last night the smooth St. Mike's club were 3-1 favorites in most wagers, with the possibility that odds might become longer before game time.

New officials for the game were announced yesterday by Miss Boyd of the intramural office and Alec Campbell who was ousted Monday. They are:

Referee—Fred Sgambati.
Umpire—Don McReynolds.
Judge of Play—Ted Luck.
Head Linesman—Dick Hodges.

Rivalry has already been shown between the two colleges. Last night St. Mike's held a pep rally outside Brennan Hall and for two days Vic students have been sporting football shaped cards bearing a printed "Sink the Saints."

COLE SCAN

According to competent opinion, bacteriological warfare is still a dangerous threat to what is left of humanity, whatever that is, but we're of the opinion that the threat is highly over-rated. Scientists, and those others, engaged in devising more efficient methods of exterminating those of us labelled humanity, as we are so charitably referred to—why use cruelly specific terms—have ignored the immunity we have built up by exposure to radio gas. Surely, a populace able to withstand the lethal doses pumped through our radios day after day after day, has nothing to fear from an invisible, innocuous little germ. We think that all news analysts, scientists, radio announcers and other doom-ringers, should go soak in their own radio and test tubes. The air is getting too polluted.

St. Mike's Topple Vic To Win Mulock Cup

Cup Changes Hands

Lorne McIntyre of St. Mike's goes over the goal-line in the final play of the Mulock Cup title. The Vic player trying to grab McIntyre's arm arrived too late with too little. Mikesmen Jim Kite (3) and Tony Adams (27) look very happy. That's Ron McDonald (19) in the foreground. He was hole maker for McIntyre.

Final Count 19-12 In Hard-Tackling, Close-Fought Game

By BILL ROSS

Coach Lou Barnes' St. Michael's "A's" wrested the Mulock Cup from its two year old niche at Victoria College when they overpowered the former titleholders by a 19-12 margin. The game was a much closer affair than the score would indicate and featured what was undoubtedly some of the hardest tackling witnessed in the interfaculty loop this year.

Scoring majors at the start of the first and second quarters and in the final 25 seconds of the game the double blue demonstrated some of the all around power that carried them through their eight games this year with a clean record of the same number of wins.

Tight Battle

The red and gold aggregation from Vic proved very definitely that underdogs always fight hard as they toppled the predictions of unwary prognosticators who quoted as high as three to one odds against them. They held a 6-5 lead at the end of the first quarter and made things most uncomfortable. Boyd's end flip went over and Little converted to tie the score at twelve all in the third stanza.

St. Mike's rolled up 18 first downs to Vic's 16 and both squads completed five passes with Vic attempting 16 to the victors' 11. The Mikemen gained 242 yards via the rushing route while the Red and Gold gained 187. The game saw 11 fumbles of which seven were committed by the winners.

Quick Major

Barnes' "Nippers" started strongly when Tom Popp recovered a costly Vic bobble on the Vic thirty-five. Lorne McIntyre plunged twice for yards and Bill Kelly's two end runs picked up an additional 10 yards. McIntyre continued his plunging effectively through the centre of the Vic line and carried the ball down to the Vic three from where Tony Adams went over on a quarterback sneak. Brennan's convert was called back for holding on the line.

Fumble Stops March

St. Mike's started to march again soon after and went to the Vic 27 where they lost the ball for failure to make yards on a third down pass attempt. Rob Dowsett recovered a midfield fumble by the Mikemen and a Damp-to-Boyd aerial carried the ball down to the St. Mike's 30-yard line. Harry Damp rolled up a first down on the ground and then tossed to Stew Howard who was stopped at the double blue eight-yard-line. Damp advanced the ball to the three-yard-line on an off-tackle slash and Lorne Lodge worked his way over on a quarter sneak just four minutes after the Mike's major. Little made the convert good.

A short kickoff hit a Vic lineman and was recovered by Adams on the St. Mike's 44 yard mark. An Adams to Tex James toss was good for 16 yards and McIntyre and Coghlin combined for a first down through the centre of the line. An Adams to Fullerton pass connected and put the Collegians on the Vic 11-yard line. Coghlin and Sam Neill plunged for six to put the ball on the Vic five at the end of the quarter. As the second quarter began McIntyre plunged over for a touchdown which Ed Brennan converted.

A placement attempt by Ed Brennen resulted in a rouge as Gerry Fullerton rushed in to stop Lodge before he reached the goal line. The rouge boosted the score to 12-6 for the Mikemen as the half ended.

Stew Howard recovered a St. Mike's bobble early in the third and Vic rolled up four consecutive first downs to reach the Mike 35-yard line. A 30-yard runback of Little's placement attempt brought the double blue to comparative safety.

Dryden passed to Lodge and moved the ball to the St. Mike's 22. Dryden and Little bulled their way to the seven from where Harry Boyd made a lovely run on an ex-

Cabinet Minister Places All Hopes In United Nations

The only hope for a lasting world peace is the United Nations, said Hon. Lionel Chevrier last night before a meeting of the Osgoode Hall Liberal Club.

Transport Minister Chevrier spoke on "The United Nations." He said the three things that impressed him most at last summer's meeting of the general assembly in Paris were the tenseness of the meetings over the death of Count Bernadotte, the vile language used by the Russians and their satellites, and the delay in proceedings because of quibbling indulged in by the U.S.S.R.

"Some 70 items were on the agenda and in the seven weeks I was there only three of these matters were settled," the minister said. "While the western democracies contributed to the long discussions, it was primarily the delaying tactics of Russia that were responsible."

Chevrier said three important things were discussed by the general assembly. First, the atom bomb, atomic energy and its control; secondly, disarmament of the powers; and lastly, the Balkan question.

Russian Veto

Canada is vitally interested in the question of atomic power because of her position as one of the greatest producers of the raw materials, the minister asserted. It is apparent to all that some of this force is necessary, he said, but Russia turned down the American proposal because it "would violate their sovereign rights." "But if we are to have lasting peace we must pool our sovereign rights just as we have pooled other rights," Chevrier said. "There can be no agree-

University Staff Change Affects Three Scholars

Two promotions and one new appointment in the Department of Policital Economy have been announced by Dr. Sidney Smith.

S. D. Clark has been promoted to the rank of Associate Professor. He was educated at the Universities of Saskatchewan, Toronto and McGill and at the London School of Economics.

W. T. Easterbrook was appointed an Associate Professor, after spending a year on the staff as a visitor from Manitoba. He has studied at the Universities of Manitoba, Toronto, Harvard and California and held a Guggenheim Fellowship during 1941-2.

K. F. M. Helleiner now has the rank of Assistant Professor. Educated at the University of Vienna, he arrived in Toronto at the end of 1939, after a few month in Oxford.

All essays, short stories, poetry and photography must be in THE VARSITY Office for the Christmas Literary Issue by Dec. 8. Art work will not be accepted.

I.S.S. Letter Exchange Needs More Applicants

Preliminary reports of the first day of the I. S. S. correspondence drive being conducted on the campus indicate student interest in correspondence exchange with students of other countries

The drive is to give Varsity students an opportunity to correspond with students in other parts of the world.

Writers will be able to stippulate the countries with which they desire to correspond.

Daily Ubyssey Censured For Fostering Discord

Vancouver, Nov. 29,—(CUP) Censure of the Daily Ubyssey has resulted in the appointment of a liaison officer to work between student government and the undergraduate paper at the University of British Columbia.

The paper was termed "detrimental" to the university by students at a parliamentary forum debate.

UBC law student Frank Collier won support from the forum audience on a four-point attack. The daily was charged with fostering inter-student discord, especially between engineers and the rest of the student body last year.

Collier said the paper had not been ready to accept criticism, particularly on two charges of inadequate news coverage

Convocation Hall

"An Immense, Sprawling Turtle..."

Special to The Varsity
By HARRY RASKY
(Feature Editor)

"Yes, I would say that I am the world's greatest living architect. But, doesn't every man," said Lloyd Wright in an interview with The Varsity, Tuesday. As a matter of fact, most people agree with him.

To most students, Frank Lloyd Wright may be just a name. To anyone who has read Ayan Rand's "The Fountainhead", he may appear a modern Casanova. To the student of architecture, however, Wright's position would be comparable to that held by Bernard Shaw in literature or Einstein in physics.

As a professor of art put it, "I would go to hear Wright speak if they brought him here stuffed."

Wright was far from stuffed when he appeared on the Hart House stage Tuesday afternoon. The audience wanted to be impressed and insulted and that is what he did. The front row was lined with professors and deans; he declared education to be useless. In the second row were the leading architects of Toronto; he had a word for them too—they were commercial and outdated. Mr. Wright rarely says that he likes anything—unless he has created it himself.

Fraternity Fellow

It was at the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house on Bloor Street that this reporter finally interviewed the granite-haired architect. He referred to the fraternity members as "brothers". He became a member of the branch of that fraternity at the University of Wisconsin He has joined no organizations since. He had sent a telegram saying he would arrive—collect.

Sipping coffee (with hot milk) and surrounded by the fraternity members, he thought nothing of declaring, "If I was at school now I would not join a fraternity because it makes a university degenerate into cliques." He smiled and added, "Of course I couldn't see myself going to a university anyway. It's the wrong way to be educated."

Wright Refutes

He is supremely egotistical about his work. As many sceptics have found when tests were carried out on some of his radically different buildings, everybody was proved wrong, except, of course, Frank Lloyd Wright.

Commenting on the local university structures, he said that they were no worse than any other university, and maybe a little better. About the University in general, he declared with a sweep of his cane, "Isn't this the most commercial looking university you've ever seen."

About Convocation Hall he spouted, "An immense turtle sprawling over the campus."

Concerning Union Station, he breathed fire, "My, didn't the Romans have a high opinion of themselves."

The great man sat in the fraternity house chair surrounded by the group who were willing to listen to anything he would say. He talked with inexhaustible eloquence and always with humor. He resembles a combination of a Kentucky colonel, a ham actor, who is ready to play any princely part, and a moral god. Wearing a cape-like coat and an "arty" haircut, he looks his eighty years, but seems stronger than a brick.

Fountainhead Fake

He does not deny that Ayan Rand had him in mind when she wrote the personality of Howard Roark into "The Fountainhead". But he will not allow Miss Rand to say it is the story of his life. Evidently, she had sent him the first three chapters of the book when she had first written them and he returned them. "I never posed for that portrait or any other portrait for that matter. The man she painted could not possibly be a good architect," he said.

He admitted that Keating in the DVA Red Tape?

The Department of Veterans' Affairs — an organization regarded fondly by many students on this campus — has been the target for an increasing amount of criticism lately by students in Graduate Studies.

With the fall term almost over and Christmas rapidly approaching graduate students are still waiting vainly for D.V.A. allowances owing since October. Faced with considerable hardship, many of them are becoming increasingly impatient and with good reason.

It is difficult to understand why so much time must elapse before D.V.A. can authorize further educational benefits to graduate students. In many cases applications have been on file since mid-September — applications which have been supplemented with letters of reference, interviews and more interviews.

In a statement issued last week by D.V.A., A. R. Whitten, Supervisor of Counselling and Training Services, pointed out reasons for the delay. Before getting D.V.A. approval, he said, a veteran must produce evidence of high scholarship, show the need for post-graduate work, and prove that his course is in the "public interest". In addition, it is pointed out that the task of reviewing is a considerable one "and must be undertaken at the local D.V.A. office by staff fully acquainted with university training, particularly at the post-graduate level, and also fully cognizant of the policy of D.V.A. and of the university with respect to post-graduate studies."

Any evidence of high scholarship is usually forthcoming during the summer when examination results appear and should cause little delay. How D.V.A. is qualified to assess the "need" for post-graduate training is a little more difficult to see. It is a need that exists, for the most part, in the student veteran's desire to acquire as complete a training as possible and should require little deliberation on the part of D.A.V. officials.

It is true that the task of reviewing hundreds of applications is a considerable one. But surely, since D.V.A. has been handling the problem continually since 1945, it is reasonable to expect that its staff — by this time — is efficient enough to be completely acquainted with all the details involved in post-graduate applications. And it seems to have created a bottleneck with a ruling that commits every post-graduate applicant to be interviewed by the same official.

In an office serving the needs of a university containing the largest number of veteran students in Canada, it is ridiculous to channel all post-graduate applications through one man. The fact that graduate students are still waiting for D.V.A. authorization indicates that more personnel are required to handle the load with efficiency and despatch.

In any case, the need is urgent. By setting up a committee to prod D.V.A. the graduate students may get a little more action. A little prodding certainly seems to be required.

Demand So Great Fake Ducat Sale Is Said Possible

An affair similar to last week's 'bogus ticket scandal' may develop on the Varsity campus according to officials of the medical faculty's Daffydil Committee.

"There has been such a terrific demand for tickets that the committee is concerned over reports that fake tickets are being printed for sale to those who will be unable to buy them through the proper outlets", Art Chisholm, chairman of the Daffydil Committee, said.

Show Improves

Chisholm explained that the show was growing in size and excellence every year and that last year's spread in a national magazine advertised the show to such an extent that graduate ticket sales had increased 150% over last year. "The North Toronto Lion's Club was so impressed with our last presentation that they asked us to run it at a downtown theatre for two weeks. Of course we refused because it is strictly a campus show", Chisholm said.

In 1939 Daffydil Nite was banned by the Caput on moral grounds and production was not resumed until 1945 when the show ran for two nights. Its popularity has been so great that it is necessary to run for four nights. "The show is getting bigger and better all the time. This year will be the best yet.

"It is still on the way up. Our big problem is whether we will be crowded off the campus in an effort to find a hall big enough to accommodate the people wishing to see the show" Chisholm said. "There are bound to be many people disappointed when they are unable to get tickets and the rumor of bogus ducats has us worried. There is some suggestion that this is a scheme of a group of Skule men who wish to make extra money for Christmas".

"Daffydil Nite" will be presented Monday to Thursday nights, December 13 to 16.

Professor Boyd To Speak Today At Medical Club

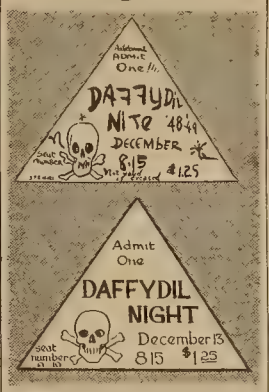
Professor William Boyd, Professor of Pathology at the University of Toronto, will speak to a meeting of the Medical Arts and Letters Club in the Banting Institute at 5.00 p. m. today.

Professor Boyd will read "The Miracle of Purcen Bhagat" by Rudyard Kipling.

Dr. Boyd was Professor of Pathology at the University of Manitoba from 1919 to 1937. In 1937 he came to Toronto to assume the post of Professor of Pathology at this University.

He is the author of four texts used in practically every University in the world and is accepted as a world authority on pathology. The texts he has written are as follows: "Boyd's Text of Pathology", "Surgical Pathology", and "Pathology of Internal Diseases".

Carnival Continues Today



A gala midway and various colorful booths lined the walls of Brennan Hall yesterday afternoon as St. Michael's second annual carnival in aid of the European Relief Fund got under way.

Fortune telling, nail driving in three easy blows, a penny-toss and games of chance were among the main drawing features. Cartoons and shorts with Abbott and Costello ran continuously from 7 p. m. in the movie room.

A television set donated by Danforth Radio gave a re-broadcast of Sunday's football game between the Buffalo Bills and the New York Yankees. Telenews, the news in pictures, showed excellent views of European peoples, President Truman and such prominent opera personalities as Margaret Truman and Andre Kostelanetz.

Peter Mosteller, chairman of the organizing committee said, "It was a very gay and successful evening and we are looking forward to another such success tomorrow."

Bogus!

Fake tickets for the medical faculty's annual stage show, Daffydil Nite, are being distributed according to rumors about the campus. Shown above is the type of ticket that students are warned to watch for. "Beware of badly printed ducats," the chairman of the Daffydil committee warned.

Workers Respond When Recognized Says Union Head

Charles Millard, MPP, Director of the National Steel Workers of America, speaking in a panel discussion before the Political Science Club last night, affirmed the readiness of organized labor to accept the responsibility for maintaining its end of any agreement in which it participates, "provided it is given proper recognition."

The panel consisting of Professor Finkleman, Faculty of Law, as chairman, and Russel Harvey, AF of L organizer for Ontario, and member of the Labor Relation Board; McCaulley Dillon, KC, and Charles Millard discussed their concept of an ideal Labor Code. The proposition that harmony between Labor and Management is the first object of a Labor Code was generally agreed to, but the methods proposed by Mr. Dillon, speaking from the viewpoint of management for accomplishing this were hotly contested by Mr. Millard and Mr. Harvey who bitterly protested the managerial concept that a workman should have as little voice as possible in the conduct of a business in which he invests his labor and his life.

Interest In NFCUS Sharpens As University Organizations Discuss International Link

Lit Open Meeting Backs Affiliation Of NFCUS - IUS

The executive of the UC Lit decided that there would be no purpose in calling a special Open Lit meeting to discuss NFCUS affiliation with IUS as they felt the Open Meeting Tuesday evening which passed a resolution favoring affiliation, was truly representative of opinion at the college.

The motion, passed Tuesday by a vote of 21-9, read, "That this society instructs the SAC representative and recommends to the NFCUS representative that they support the position that NFCUS affiliate with IUS".

The Lit's NFCUS rep, Bruce MacDonald, IV M and P, is not constitutionally bound by any decision of the open meeting or the executive, in casting his vote.

The SAC representative, Joe Potts, IV Political Science, however, is bound by such decisions and when the NFCUS resolution for affiliation, which was passed yesterday, comes before the SAC for approval, he will be required to support it.

Open Lit Meeting

In the debate which took place at the Open Meeting before the resolution was passed, MacDonald said that NFCUS received a grant of six cents per student from the SAC. IUS would ask for 10 cents per student, he said, so that financially NFCUS would not be able to support the affiliation unless SAC increased its grant per student. He said, however, that he felt affiliation would take place regardless of his stand which was anti-affiliation.

Gary Clarke, IV Classics, said he thought there would be a world student organization but felt that IUS was not the medium through which this could be accomplished.

Harry Rasky, III Pass Arts, said he felt MacDonald's report to the Lit was biased, showing only the points where IUS was dominated by Communists. Rasky said he favored affiliation.

Pat Daniel, IV Sociology, also spoke in favor of affiliation saying that NFCUS could join IUS for two years and withdraw at the end of that time if the affiliation was not satisfactory.

Varsity Story Salutes S.P.S.

The third chapter in the current University of Toronto radio season will be written tonight when "The Varsity Story" salues the 70th anniversary of the founding of S.P.S. over CJBC at 9 p.m. The program will tell the story of "Skule's" growth from the Little Red Schoolhouse to its present status as one of Varsity's largest faculties with a branch at Ajax.

Written by Oscar Helina, IV SPS, the script tells of the problems confronting a group of undergraduate engineers, struggling to obtain an all-round education in a modern university.

Featured in the cast are Eric House, John Walker, Grad. Stud., Joyce Bochneck, Sheila Craig, U.C., and Marg Bronson. The show will be produced by Ross McLean of the CBC.

Grads' Committee Proposes Liason To Aid Veterans

The Graduate Veterans Committee said in a statement issued yesterday, that close co-operation between Varsity students and the Department of Veterans Affairs would see a satisfactory solution of their problems.

Members of the recently formed committee are H. K. Ralston, W. L. Holmes, M.A., and J.C.F. Macdonald, M.A.

Prior to the new group there has been no student representation of graduate veterans. As the Graduate Union is not connected with the S.A.C., no graduates are represented on the Ex-Service Committee of the University.

"However," said Mr. Ralston, "we still intend to work in close co-operation with them." He said further that the purpose of the committee is to seek answers to problems of graduate veterans.

UC Lit Society Comes Under Fire By NFCUS Group

A resolution, calling on the SAC to instruct the Toronto delegates, who will attend the Christmas Conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students, to support unconditional affiliation of NFCUS with The International Union of Students was passed at a meeting of the Toronto NFCUS Committee yesterday afternoon. The Committee voted 12 to 4 in favor of the resolution.

Postponeme Motion Defeated

A move to postpone the question was defeated. Some members of the Committee felt they should have more definite opinions from the bodies of students they represented before voting on the resolution. A further resolution recommended to the SAC that they hold a plebiscite "to determine student opinion re IUS affiliation; after the Christmas conference."

Two observers to assist the Toronto delegates to the Christmas Conference were elected at the meeting. Delegates to the conference will be SAC President Gordon Gwynne-Timothy and N F C U S Chairman George Wilkes; the observers are Malcolm Blackburn, I Knox College and Bob Watson, IV Victoria. A motion was passed asking the SAC to buy train tickets to Montreal for the two observers.

Bruce MacDonald, NFCUS representativ for the University College Literary and Athletic Association reported that a report presented by him at Tuesday night's meeting of the U.C. Lit had been "entirely rejected." This was done MacDonald stated, apparently because of the stand he had taken on NFCUS - IUS affiliation. The NFCUS Committee passed a resolution expressing "extreme disappointment that the U.C. Lit disapproved of all our recommendations.

Toronto Recommendations

Recommendations from the Toronto NFCUS Committee to the Constitution Committee of The NFCUS Christmas Conference will include a clause "to uphold the principles of political democracy." The Committee decided that, before the recommendations are presented, the term 'political democracy' would require clarification. Another recommendation will call for an increase in the student body levy from six to ten cents per student. It is hoped that a permanent paid official for the national organization could be provided out of such an increase.

Report To Be Presented

Bob Watson, Chairman of the Committee on Text Books reported that his committee is continuing its investigation of prices of text books and would present a complete report at the earliest possible date.

NFCUS Chairman George Wilkes reported that the Toronto Committee will recommend that the following items be placed on the agenda of the Christmas Conference: Student university fees, text books, NFCUS publicity, the establishment of a NFCUS magazine, the student seminar to be held next summer in Quebec, student ships to Europe, a full panel discussion on IUS, undergraduate exchange, the amendments to the NFCUS Constitution, and relations with ISS.

Best All-Varsity Revue Of All Time As Talent From Every Faculty Drills

A tinkling bar-room piano and six French waiters serenading a lovely Parisian girl; a blackface boiler engineer shouting "Alabamy Bound"; flashing legs and twinkling toes beating out a rhythm to the music of South American melodies; all these and more at the rehearsals of the All-Varsity Revue.

The Drill Hall rocks every time producer Norm Jewison calls a rehearsal for his show. "This is probably the greatest show that has ever been tried on the Toronto campus, because it is a blending of talent from all faculties," Jewison said. "Our rehearsals show that the show is shaping up very well and will soon be ready for staging."

Dunc. Newton and Jean Cringan, coaxing higher kicks and straighter lines from the chorus; Bud Priestman banging the piano for Ben Foreman's blackface solo; Bob Cringan correcting music scores and discussing style with his chorus; this is an All-Varsity Revue rehearsal.

"We have the star of the Airforce Blackout Show in a French restaurant scene. This star, by the way, is a girl, Nipper Benson," Bob Cringan, musical director said.

"Male chorus sings a song written especially for this scene. Cliff Broggin, Jewison and Priestman wrote this song—it's called 'I Love These French Girls'."

Mike Roth practicing his sleight-of-hand tricks; chorus girls in shorts and slacks stretching muscles on the exercising bar; stage manager, Jack Gray, worried over problems of staging; you see all this at an All-Varsity Revue rehearsal.

"This staging is driving me slowly mad," Gray wept. "Everything is so upset. I like order, and a minutely detailed scheme and I haven't got it. Everytime I get something in shape, plans are changed. A stage manager's life is not peaceful. But I'm persisting and I'll get some order into this show yet."

A male chorus line dancing and swishing about; manly men and womenly women on their shoulders; Dunc. Newton dashing from one dancing group to another in his ballet slippers; All-Varsity Revue rehearsals are interesting.

"The line isn't perfect yet but they are getting closer to it every practice," Dunc. Newton, dance director averred. "We have plans for a male ballet scene that should be a knockout."

Choose Delegates For Peace Parley

The resolution to send four delegates to the Toronto Peace Conference was adopted yesterday at a students' Peace Council meeting. Delegates chosen were Joan Eddis, Bill Gagnon, George Hogan and Omar Walmsley.

The delegation will ask the Toronto Peace Council to publicize the resolution passed by the World Congress of Intellectuals, a clause in which condemned American and European warmongers. These groups are disturbing factions in nations which want a lasting peace.

SCRIPTS

Scripts to be used by "Radio Playhouse" over CJBC should be handed in to Peter Dobell at Trinity College or the S.A.C. Office by Dec. 15.

Jane Hill Is New SAC Rep

Jane Hill, III Sociology, was chosen women's SAC representative for UC yesterday. Present secretary of the W.U.A., Miss Hill will not assume her new office until the 1949-50 term but will attend SAC meetings this year to learn procedure and so on.

Approximately one-quarter of the eligible voters cast ballots yesterday. Other candidates were Joan Crysdale, III General, and Jane Young, III Psychology.

Forestry Scholarships Given by Lumber Firms

P. J. Pointing, IV Forestry and J. L. Ladell, II Forestry, were awarded the Forestry Industries Entomological scholarships President Sidney Smith announced. The scholarships are valued at $200.

The scholarships are awarded by firms connected with the lumbering industry. The awards are offered in the hope of encouraging Forestry undergraduates to engage in entomological work.

Movie Review

Hamlet

It is very difficult to review "Hamlet" Sir Laurence Olivier has turned out a production which will require all my superlatives. But, somehow I was not fully satisfied with what I saw on the screen at the Hyland, last night.

The acting was superb. Olivier delivered his lines with beautiful restraint. The soliloquies were made particularly effective by using a technique of part being heard using the "Strange Interlude" style and part being spoken by Hamlet.

The King (Basil Sydney) gave a movingly sincere performance of the man who could not give up his crown, his ambition or his queen. His manner, baseness, even his drunkenness were the honest traits of a real person. Polonius (Felix Aylmer) was a good portrayal of a character to which Olivier chose to give a little more sympathy than did Shakespeare. Nor did Olivier see eye-to-eye with Shakespeare in the presentation of Ophelia (Jean Simmons). The Nunnery scene always has been contentious and this interpretation will add fresh bones.

The rest of the players were more than adequate. Terence Morgan, as Laertes had a nice balance; fervent enough to say, "To hell allegiance", and ingenuous enough to become the tool of the King. Unfortunately Osric was treated as a buffoon and required to do a part fall down a staircase—neither of which added to the picture.

The Queen (Eileen Herlie) seemed a little young in the early part of the story, but in the bed-chamber scene she vindicated her right to the role. That scene was the best thing I have ever seen.

Another star was the camera. It tied the action together beautifully, by wandering through the castle corridors and "discovering" the players. Then too, during Hamlet's first soliloquy it travelled from chair to chair with great effect. During the plotting scene of the King and Laertes it approached them for a close-up three times, as each scheme was hatched, and then drew back to the balcony where I, the eavesdropper, stood.

There was little lacking in the technique of the movie "Hamlet"—the lighting, costumes, setting, all were good (only a carping criticism of the ghost's voice clarity and the use of flashbacks). But my quarrel is with the interpretation of the play "Hamlet". Why did Olivier make Hamlet aware of the unbaited sword? Why was the Queen aware that there was poison in the cup before she drank it? Why did he move the climax of the play from "we defy augury . ." to the bed-chamber scene? The result in the first two was a break in the original forces of tragedy, as Shakespeare wrote them. The result of the last was to have a tremendous emotional peak just past half-way through the story, which neither Osric's piteous antics nor the abbreviated grave-diggers scene could let them down. This peak lasted until the end of the movie, which likely explains the exhaustion of the audience on leaving the theatre.

But, all in all, "Hamlet" is possibly the best motion picture ever made. And it is not the fault of Olivier that he had to use expedi-

Mendelssohn Choir

The main dish of the substantial offering by the Mendelssohn Choir with the T.S.O., under Sir Ernest MacMillan, was W. Walton's "Belshazzar's Feast", a work that combines the virtues of conciseness and breadth of conception. One may not feel entirely comfortable over Walton's perhaps too obvious literariness, into the service of which he presses the weirdest instrumental devices, but whatever the means, they never overwhelm biblical text. Here orchestra and chorus are combined in a manner which exploits the tonal qualities and climactic power of each. This was magnificently exemplified in the "He commanded us" and "Praise ye" choruses and the finale. The ingenious uses of contrasts between the lyrical moods of mourning and thanksgiving and the planned confusion of Babylonic depravity could only be shaped into a meaningful pattern by such effective and strong-minded leadership as Sir Ernest's. The tendency towards obtaining effects by sheer volume to the point where the raised roof threatens to become more than a manner of speech seems to me a dangerous on because it blunts the senses in the long run instead of enhancing sensitivity. I dare not decide whether to leave the entire responsibility for this at the composer's door.

Among the various works of the first half Holst's setting of the Rig Veda hymns takes easily first place, especially the Vena hymn. The choir was altogether admirable in its rendition of Holst's wonderfully delicate yet by no means diluted music. Here was strangeness that never stooped to labored exoticism. Here, too, the orchestra seemed in just its right relationship to the choir, a balance that was not entirely present in Brahms' "Song of Destiny". Sir Ernest's own setting of "Te Deum" concluded that part. Mr. Ernest Adam, baritone, assisted in "Belshazzar" and in Stanford's "Sea Songs" and, whenever audible, gave evidence of fine training.

The Mendelssohn Choir is an organization rich in the possession of tradition, vocal material and mature leadership; it could not have afforded to do without a single one of these assets in the satisfying realization of so ambitious an undertaking as was last night's concert.

Mary Bothwell

The program of Mary Bothwell, soprano, was well above the average, both in intrinsic musical value and in artistry of presentation. Miss Bothwell has a charming, even dynamic, stage personality and sings with unusual intensity of feeling. She excels in the interpretation of lieder and, if her emotional drive were consistently under control, might bear comparison with Lotte Lehmann. There were times, however, and we refer only to the German groups and, specifically to Schubert's "Rastlose Liebe", when emotional exuberance threatened to break out of bounds and interfere with musical values and even with the voice itself.

Her diction is superb and shows a sensitive appreciation of the color and content of words. Her modulations of vowel quality in the Wolf and Strauss songs were welcome to ears wearied by the unimaginative and monotonous intonation of too many visiting recitalists.

The Ravel group was another matter altogether. It crowned the evening. The sensuous text of the Schehrezade cycle was beautifully handled and the expression intense, controlled and flexibly adapted to each of a succession of contrasting moods. We should like to hear this cycle again but cannot hope to hear it more admirably sung.

COLE SLAW

We know a young married couple who insist upon embalming each other with the expression, "beloved". We don't regard this expression with their dewey-eyed benevolence, but look upon it as thinly disguised evidence of a deep-seated resentment. This theory was proven while at dinner with them just the other evening. "This steak is tough, beloved," he said edgily. "It is not, beloved," she replied, rising to her feet. "It is, beloved," he insisted. "Beloved," her voice took on an ominous tone. "But - - -" he began. With one swift movement she scooped the steak off his plate and brought it down upon his head. As he slumped, senseless, to the floor she was transfixed in horror. "Beloved," she whispered, "say it isn't tough. Answer me, beloved." We left to the accompaniment of his head bouncing vigorously off the floor as she tried to get that admission out of him.

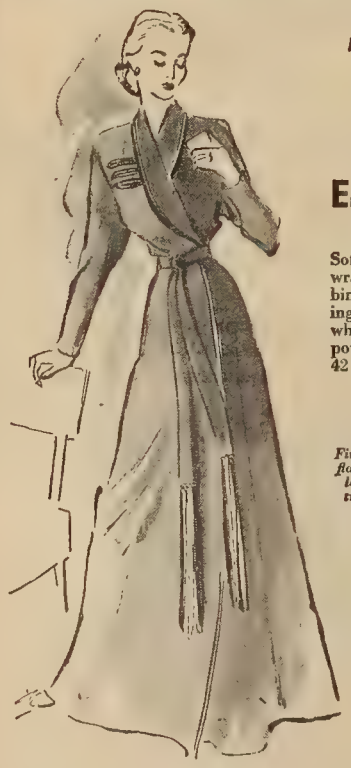
Final Figures Released Regarding Registration



Final registration figures show 16,190 enrolled at the University of Toronto this year, President Sidney Smith announced yesterday. The total is only 901 below last year's record of 17,091. There are 6,715 ex-service men and women included in this year's student population.

Effects of the large post-war registration are still evident in the plans already being made to arrange graduation ceremonies for a record 4,000 next summer.

Foreign Service Officers Needed By Civil Service

Ever-increasing interest and participation in foreign affairs has created a Dominion-wide competition for Foreign Service Officers, grades 1 and 2, the Civil Service Commission announced.

The age limits are 23-31, 31-35 for groups 1 and 2 respectively. A ten year residence in Canada is also required.

Candidates must be university graduates, preferably with specialization in political science, history, geography, economics or law. Both men and women must file their applications with the Civil Service Commission at Ottawa by January 6 and accompany them with a transcript of their university marks signed by university authorities. Applications will also be accepted from students in their final year, appointments being subject to the satisfactory completion of the year.

Following appointment, the Foreign Service Officer will be assigned to Ottawa for a period of training and then posted abroad, with a living allowance appropriate to the locale. Salaries range from $2,500-$3,600 a year for the grade 1 class and from $3,300-$3,900 for the grade 2 class.

Free pamphlets describing the work of the Department of External Affairs and the duties and responsibilities of the Foreign Service Officer may be obtained at any office of the Civil Service Commission. Other details will be found on posters in Post Offices, and National Employment Service offices.

Maritime NFCUS Meet Calls For Unity Now

Sackville, N. B., Dec. 1—(CUP)—Unification of Maritime University students for better understanding of Maritime student affairs was urged here on November 21 by 11 delegates at the Maritime Regional meeting of the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

Representatives of five voting universities — University of New Brunswick, Mount Allison, Acadia, St. Dunstan's and Dalhousie—also passed a resolution recommending immediate confinement of NFCUS to national student affairs.

The resolution, which will be presented at the NFCUS national conference at Montreal, December 26-31, asks consolidation of Canadian organizations and sole participation in international student affairs by the International Student Service.

General feeling was that the controversy over the proposed affiliation with the International Union of Students contributed to the "detriment of the positive aims and objectives of NFCUS."

book was Raymond Hoode in real life and Louis Sullivan was his fictional tutor. About the woman in the book with whom Howard Roark had many affairs; he has a very definite opinion. "Miss Rand tried to create a paragon of all the virtues. But all she got was a first class bitch." Hollywood has already asked him to do the movie sets for the four-million dollar film they are making of "The Fountainhead" starring Gary Cooper. He refuses to have anything to do with it or the novel.

Smoking Smothered

Wright does not smoke or drink and has very definite views on morality. "Man is weakest when it comes to morality." He pointed out that he has been asked to withdraw from Christianity. He claims he can not quite understand this, because "Jesus raised hell wherever he went in his day". Wright thinks that "Jesus might have been a good architect."

Wright's life history has become a mixture of fact and myth. He has had three wives. The first one he got tired of and left with his house and six children. He ran away with a mistress who was burned with a child in his home by an angry negro servant. His second wife had a monocle and later a divorce. He lives with his present wife, a "Montenegran dancer", at his two Taleisin houses surrounded by 55 young students who pay him $1,100 a year to do odd jobs around his house and live in his shadow.

When asked if he wanted a copy of this article, declared, "No, I've seen too many stories written about myself. The only accurate one was the one I personally wrote."

Afterthoughts

St. Mike's Supporters Deliriously Elated

By JOHN KENNEDY

Championship coach Lou Barnes looked like the happiest man on the campus last night after his boys kept their record intact in defeating the Scarlet and Gold machine from "the old Ontario strand". The deliriously elated St. Michael's fans, aided by the players, raised Lou on high after the struggle and paraded him around while many cameras ground to record the event for posterity. Father Ruth, the athletic director, was the next to be acclaimed by the rabid throng.

When asked by The Varsity for a comment after the game, verbose Lou said he had nothing to say. He later relented and said that he was worried all the way through the game and he gave lots of credit to the Vic team. He selected no special player star on his team but thought that Brown was a factor in pulling the boys together in the third quarter.

The Vic dressing room was not at all gloomy as the players knew that they had done their best and figured that the Mikemen deserved to win. Co-Coach Pat Patterson had no regrets and said "We send congratulations to the St. Mike's team." He thought that Brown's third quarter single was the heart breaker of the game and that the Collegians had capitalized on breaks they made themselves.

Over at St. Mike's the players were preparing to celebrate at a well-known local oasis. They were praising everybody but especially McIntyre and Brown.

Star kicker Bill Kelly, was hit on the head in the second quarter and sat out the rest of the game. He showed symptoms of a slight concussion said teammate Jim Coghlin.

Harry Damp was lost to Vic for the second half after he incurred a severe charley horse. Alex Watson, Vic lineman, also had to leave the game after he aggravated an ankle injury sustained in the semi-final.

The Vic supporters were aided materially by Ted "Slush Pump" Snider's jazz band arrangement of their beautiful skule, I mean school song.

The Saints fans augmented their already tremendous turn-out with scores of their younger brothers and sisters from the Bay St. College and from St. Joseph's.

Orchids to Dick Brown for his coffin-corner kick that put St. Mike's right back in the game in the third quarter and also for his field generalship that seemed to put that old zip back into the game. He was only using one leg too.

AJAX SPORT NOTES

Boxing holds the spotlight in the second Ajax Athletic Night to be held on Monday, Dec. 6th, in the Rec Hall. Jim Follwell, Supervisor of Athletics, outlined the program he was organized and although plans are not fully completed, it promises to be a great show.

The boxing will consist of five short bouts. The first two will be between Ajax students. For the other three, Tony Canzano, the boxing instructor at Hart House, Toronto, is bringing out three of his best men to pit their brawn and skill against three of the Jaxmen. Jim hopes that Tony will also bring along a certain outstanding Canadian boxer but arrangements are not yet complete. Between the matches Pat Sheehan is arranging for a novelty bout.

In addition to all this, Dean Young will be there to present the Dean Young Pennant to the residence with the highest number of points in athletics for November.

That music you may have heard while passing the laundry building next to the cafeteria will materialize into the Ajax Dance Band which will make its debut on Monday.

To round off the program, the film will be shown of the Western-Varsity game in which the Blues copped the cup.

The program starts at 7.45 p.m., but Jim advises everyone to be out early and get a front seat as he expects a capacity crowd.

Speaking OF SPORT

By BOB JONES

Ring out the Gold! Ring in the Blue!

St. Mike's capture of the Mulock Cup came as no great upset since they had been touted as the team to beat throughout the latter part of the schedule. They must have gained a full measure of satisfaction, though, in taking the championship directly from the 1946-47 winners, who had put away the Irish so handily in last year's semi-finals.

It would not be coining a phrase to say that Victoria went out like true champions and did not relinquish their honors without a bitter fight. After a poor start the thin red line held remarkably well and, sparked by Dowsett and Hill provided the punch that kept their team into the game until that fateful last-minute fumble.

Bill Patterson deserves a lot of credit as a freshman coach for guilding his rookie team to the finals and laurels must also go to Bamber Allen for his line-coaching job. Lou Barnes, aided by Ron Hall, needed only two years to make a championship squad from the limited material of a small faculty and was one of the originals on the T-formation bandwagon of Canadian football. Like others he has made it pay off in a big way.

The refereeing squabble was an unfortunate prelude to the crucial contest and the official concerned displayed a competent awareness of the pettiness of the situation when he refused to make an issue of it. The manner in which the protest arose and the decision put into effect was the unfortunate part of it; the ruling was not unjustifiable but seemed unnecessary, particularly when the demonstrated capability of the involved referee was taken into account. It is all very well to say that personalities don't enter into the matter but we say that only one party got a raw deal in this matter and that he was entirely undeserving of it. In future it would be wise for any jurisdiction over refereeing appointments to be removed entirely from the scope of competing teams and their representatives.

Corner Boys Hand Bees First Loss

Corner Boys handed Varsity Junior Bees their first setback of the season Tuesday night when they won 4-3 in Varsity Arena. It was the second win in two tries for the Corner Boys and ties them for first place in the league with Varsity.

Varsity took a short-lived lead in the first period when Sinclair scored from Fox, but Couch and Hawkrigg put Corner Boys ahead before the period was over. Varsity tied it up again at the 2.49 mark of the second period, but the visitors forged ahead 10 minutes later when Gray fired the first of his two goals of the night.

Line-ups:—

Varsity—Goal, Leuty; defence, MacDougall, Clement; centre, Holmes; wings, Raftis, Conboy; alternates, Prendergast, Hyde, Howson, Walters, Fox, Sinclair, Sims.

Corner Boys—Goal, Battaglio; defence, Jefferies, De Marco; centre, Haddleton; wings, Henderson, Craig; alternates, Preston, Couch, Hawkrigg, Gray, Romagnola, Forbes, Lindsey.

tension to score which with Little's convert deadlocked the count at 12 all.

Dick Brown, St. Mike captain and doubtful starter in the title contest passed to Carolan who went to the Vic 36. Brown shot a 45-yard aerial which Ed Brennan caught but was out of bounds in the end zone. Brown uncorked a long kick which was good for a rouge giving the Collegians a slim one-point-lead.

The fourth quarter play seesawed until three incomplete Vic passes left the double blue on their opponent's 19-yard line. Gerry Washington combined with McIntyre and Adams to make up a first down. McIntyre went off left middle for his second major of the game which Brennan converted with only 25 seconds left in the game.

Line-ups:—

St. Mike's—Centre, MacDonald; Insides, Bourke, Brennan; middles, McDermott, Dwyer; ends, Fullerton, E. Brennan; quarter, Adams; halves, James, Coghlin, Kelly, McIntyre; alts., Kite, Neill, Washington, McDonald, Brown, Knollmeyer, Lancefield, Timmins, Popp, Aprile, Carolan, Prendergast.

HOCKEY

By HAL HOLDEN

The local curtain-raiser of the 1948-49 Intercollegiate hockey season will take place tomorrow night at 8:00 in Varsity Arena. Varsity Blues, Queen's Cup winners of last year come up against the University of Montreal Carabins in the first defence of their Intercollegiate championship.

The Carabins finished in third place last year but so far this season they have won their only two games against Queen's and McGill. These two triumphs put the U. of M. squad in first place in the league standing. McGill Redmen are in second place with a win and a loss and the tricolor from Queen's are in the cellar without a victory in two games.

A troupe of 40 U. of Montreal students will arrive in Toronto ot celebrate the ISS French-Canadian weekend. The Blues naturally wish to do everything they can to provide a pleasant time for the Carabins, short of a Montreal victory, that is.

BASKETBALL

By ED VOIGHT

The 1948-49 edition of the Varsity Blues basketball team faces its first big assignment of the season starting tonite and continuing Friday and Saturday nights.

For tonight in Buffalo, the Blues take on the Buffalo State Teachers College in Memorial Auditorium. Friday p.m., the Blues hop over to Hamilton, New York, for an engagement with Colgate U., and on Saturday, the Varsity boys will be in Syracuse for a game with the University of the same name.

Coach Bob Masterson is taking only ten players on this first pre-season trip.

Back from last year's second-place squad, Masterson has veterans Wally Zeaton and Johnny McManus, along with Bill LaChance, Jack Gray and Glen Pettinger.

From last year's Intermediates, Masterson has drafted Ted Luck and Doug Tyndall. Filling out the team are Adam Smalley, John Mackenzie, and Bob Henderson, three American boys who played for the St. Mike's Western team in the Hart House league last year.

ment on atomic energy if the Soviet will not allow observers to enter the country."

The proposal of the U.S.S.R. for disarmament has raised doubts in the minds of the western powers, he added. The small nations of Europe are afraid that unless the Soviet allows observers within her borders to ensure enforcement of the proposal, that the imperialistic tendencies of Russia will engulf them as it has others.

The committee set up to investigate the Balkan Question learned that the Balkan satellites of Russia were assisting in the attempt to overthrow the government of Greece, Chevrier said.

"In the face of all these problems it is difficult to see how the U.N. is working satisfactorily," the minister added. "But the U.N. is our principal hope for peace. International cooperation or isolation is no longer a choice."

BASKET BALL FINALS

The end of the Intramural season is close at hand with the final game being played tonight in Hart House at 8:30. The participants will be none other than the PHE III (last year's runners up) and Physio A. (their first appearance in the finals).

It has been a big season this year with the semi-finals last Tuesday night setting the stage for the all-important games tonight. The PHE III downed the UC sophs in an exciting over time first game on Tuesday night while the Physio girls downed their own B team, in the other.

It might be of interest to note that the Physio players are not only good basketball players but have come forth in other sport activities. But the sad point of all this is that these girls are barred from Intercollegiate participations. Barred not through any fault of their own (unless you consider that their academic choice of courses is a fault) but through peculiar rulings in the Intercollegiate Rules which does not consider that the Physio, OT's, and others are working toward a recognized degree. Toronto will certainly lose, as do probable many of the other Universities, top ranking athletes.

On the subject of Intercollegiate participation it is up to all the other girls on the campus to see that Toronto has the best basketball team yet. This can be done by simply turning out to the first practice next Monday at 5:30 at OCE.

Mickey Barnett, former intercollegiate basketball player will be your coach. Toronto will be the scene of the Intercollegiate Basketball Meet this year so we not only have to present a top team but should remember the responsibilities of playing host to the visitors.

MONTREALERS TO STAGE REVUE

Plan Meeting On IRC Policy For January

Tentative plans for a conference of International Relations Clubs to be held in Toronto in January, were discussed at a meeting of the I.R.C. in Emmanuel College, Wednesday.

The conference would be similar in scope and purpose to that held at State College, Pennsylvania, from November 19 to 21, when students from Ontario and Quebec and 400 students from 120 universities in the United States took part in the fiddle Atlantic Regional Conference of International Relations Clubs.

In his report of the Atlantic Regional Conference to the meeting Wednesday, Kent McDonald, III Trinity, attributed much of the success of the conference to the active participation of the 10 Toronto delegates.

U.S.S.R. Relations

The conference at State College championed the possibility of friendly relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. The "fear hysteria" complex became apparent as the American speakers assured their hearers that they were not Communists, before expressing criticism of the American P[illegible]cy, McDonald said.

McDonald said Dr. Clyde Eagleston, professor at New York University and consultant to the State Department, had summarized his address to the conference with the view ...t the United States had weakened the United Nations at the begining by giving it no authority to prevent aggression except by veto and by offering little in the way of compromise.

Atomic Energy

Dr. Phillip Morrison, a leading physicist of the United States, told the conference the United States must realize that atomic energy cannot be a monopoly, and that security lies not in the possession of the bomb but in the power of negotiation and agreement, McDonald said.

Many American delegates wished to see the establishment of world government, but were not willing to see the U.S. surrender any of its sovereignty. There was a tendency to direct attention to "pet absorptions" such as the arms to China and Greece, he said. The Toronto delegates took a long-run viewpoint he stated.

Mise-En-Scène

Les Carabins apportent leur joie à Toronto! Après un étonnant succès à Montréal, ils présenteront demain soir la même revue, avec les mêmes décors et la même musique. Revue chargée de gaité, de rires et de satires d'un intérêt national. La représentation aura lieu à St. Hilda's a 8 hres. 30 et sera suivie d'une danse au Trinity Buttery. Billets en vente au S.A.C.

In case you can't "parlez-vous" all the above says is that the Carabins from Montreal will present their show in St. Hilda's on Saturday night.

Students Learn Technique At Varsity Radio Lectures

By SUSAN BURGESS

Wandering by UC the other day, we found ourself, in spite of ourself, drawn by some mysterious magnetism, inside the building, and into a room full of eager students. Still under the spell we sat down beside a fairhead young man whom we recognized as Buz Thomas, IV Phil. & Eng. Before we could enquire further, a voice from the front of the class—it proved to belong to Mr. Mayor Moore—nailed us with, "How would you say, with great anger 'You come to me'?" Frankly we were confused. We had stumbled, we discovered, into a lecture on radio acting. Buz Thomas turned out to be the Varsity Radio Workshop Director.

The University of Toronto has a thriving Varsity Radio, organized by a committee of the SAC under Paul Fauteux, III St. Mike's. Although this year is only the second year the U. of T. has ventured into radio, it now has about 170 students of all years and sexes participating.

Script Waiting

At the moment the training consists of writing scripts, acting and producing them in a room at UC. We dropped in on one of these rehearsals later. Here we found students reading parts from Callaghan's Varsity Story under the direction of pretty blond Beth Robinson. "Just relax. Don't try. It'll come" she exhorted with a bewitching lift of her left eye-brow we were informed that after Christmas voice tests will be made on the new tap-recorder to be installed in a room in the Electrical building. Here also will be installed, with the help of the electrical engineers, several microphones and sound equipment.

As well as the practical work, the

'Religious Spirit Forgotten In Christmas Preparations'

That "Christmas for generations now has failed to convey the real Christian spirit" was one criticism levelled by Fran Latter, II Vic., at the spirit in which the winter holiday is celebrated. She was speaking in a panel discussion held yesterday in Victoria College's Alumni Hall on the subject, "Let's abolish Christmas," under the auspices of the college's Student Christian Movement.

Of the panal speakers, Professor Love, Vic. English department, and Paul Bennett, III Vic, spoke for continuation of the holiday, and Miss Latter suggested the abolition of all but its religious features. Miss Latter complained of the greed encouraged by gift-giving and said the religious spirit of Christmas is forgotten in the hustle and strain of preparation for the holiday. Bennett and Mr. Love emphasized the beauty and traditional nature of the Yule season. Although all the speakers from the floor refused to accept Miss Latter's conclusion, they admitted the truth of some of her criticisms.

In support of her argument, Miss Latter mentioned the attitude of some children in a Christmas play she had supervised. When rehearsals had come to a part in the play dealing with the bringing of the gifts to the infant Christ by the Biblical "wise men," the children had said they "could not understand why we give gifts to each other in remembrance of God's gift to us."

Appoints Zoology Head As Professor Emeritus

Dr. E. M. Walker, Head of the Department of Zoology at the University of Toronto since 1934, has received the title of Emeritus Professor of Zoology, Dr. Sidney Smith, U. of T. president, announced today. Professor J. R. Dymond has succeeded Dr. Walker as Head of the Department.

Son of the late Sir Edmond Walker, Dr. Walker was born in Windsor in 1877 and won his first degree at the University of Toronto in 1900. Aside from a period of study at the University of Berlin, most of his life has been spent here. He has been active in various artistic and scientific societies in Canada and the United States and is the author of many papers on Zoology.

Dr. Smith also announced the promotion of Dr. F. E. J. Fry and K. C. Fisher to the rank of Associate Professors in the Department of Zoology.

LITERARY ISSUE

All essays, short stories, poetry and photographs must be in The Varsity office for the Christmas Literary Issue by Dec. 8. Art work will not be accepted this year.

Visiting Carabins Arrive On Campus At ISS Invitation

Tonight at 8:00 o'clock the University of Toronto's first student effort to bridge the gap between the two great cultures of Canada, French-speaking and English-speaking, gets underway at Varsity Arena.

President's Welcome

Yesterday, President Sidney Smith issued the following message of welcome to the group of Carabins — students from the University of Montreal, who will be guests of Varsity students, under the auspices of Toronto ISS.

"Canadians, it should be proudly remembered, are the heirs of two great traditions and cultures, each of which makes a rich contribution to our national life. It is of the utmost importance that the bonds of understanding that already exist between the two cultures should be strengthened, for our national well-being grows out of a salutary diversity in outlook and background. No institution can make a more vital contribution to this process of mutual appreciation than the university. For the university, by its very nature, can identify itself with no one tradition, no one language. The only guardians it can acknowledge are those of truth and tolerance. We at Toronto, therefore, welcome the visit of this group of fellow Canadians, who come from a famous university of the province of Quebec. To each of you I extend a warm welcome. I hope that your stay here will be an experience as enriching to you as I know it will be to us."

Hockey Opener

At 8 o'clock in Varsity Arena, the Intercollegiate Hockey schedule will begin, with the Varsity Blues meeting the Carabins from University of Montreal. Arrangements are being made, said Joe Potts, Blue and White chairman, to have this game in the tradition of the football game this fall, that is, "a great display of Varsity spirit."

Following the game, the Blue and White has organized a dance to be held in the O. T. huts at 6 Devonshire Place, from 10:30 to 1:00. The music will be on records, and the cost will be 20c per person, or 35c per couple. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Potts emphasized that for the entire evening, plaid shirts, stocking caps, and smelly pipes, are the preferred dress. At the dance, there will be $25 in prizes, one prize will be for "the person most likely to succeed as a woodcutter." There will also be entertainment by Alec Campbell with his accordion, and songs, both French and English. "Informality will be the keyword," said Potts. "To make the Carabins feel right at home, this should be a 'come-single, go-double' dance, because the Carabins will all be without dates, and that way you will have a better chance to get to know the Montrealers."

Bleu et Or

Also at the dance, said Pat Daniel, ISS Chairman, tickets will be on sale for "La Revue Bleu et Or", which will be presented Saturday evening, and Varsity hosts will meet their Carabin guests for the weekend.

Saturday morning activities will begin with a tour of the university for the Carabins, followed by an official reception in the University Senate Chambers by President Sidney Smith. In the afternoon, several tours to points of interest around Toronto have been arranged.

At 8:00 p.m., the Carabins will present in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's, their show "La Revue Bleu et Or." (See picture on this page). Reports from Montreal say the show had a very successful run last week. The various acts cover the atom bomb; Quebec, Closed City; "Pin-Up"; Surprise, and Samson and Delilah.

Following the presentation, there will be a party, to which a Revue ticket will be the admission, in the Trinity Buttery, with dancing, songs, skits, "and fun for all", said Daniel.

Ambassador Gay To Speak Monday In U.C. West Hall

His Excellency M. Francisque Gay, French Ambassador to Canada, will deliver an address in French on Monday, Dec. 6th, at 10 a.m., in West Hall of University College. M. Gay will speak to the Alliance Francaise meeting at 8 p.m. that same day in the Toronto Art Gallery on Dundas Street.

Before coming to Canada this spring M. Gay was prominent in the field of journalism and politics in France. In 1932 he founded the Paris newspaper "L'Aube" of Christian Democrat inspiration and directed it until June, 1940. He refused to allow his paper to appear under the Vichy regime and from 1941 devoted himself to a committee of the clandestine resistance movement which studied problems of post-war reconstruction and rehabilitation, including the restoration of a free-press.

Minister of State in the provisional government of General de Gaulle, Vice-President of the Assembly in the government of M. Gouin, again Minister of State in the government of M. Bidault, M. Gay had an active career and is one of the principal leaders of the MRP, (Movement Republican Populaire).

Bishop To Head Student Mission After New Year

A group of 12 missioners will lead the University Student Christian Mission to be held at this university, January 16 to 20.

Leading the group will be Bishop Stephen Neill, Assistant to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

If any college, club, fraternity, or group would like to have a missioner to answer questions or lead discussions it is requested to make application to the Secretary, Rev. D. C. Candy, in Hart House. The applications should contain the name of the missioner desired, the time and date," Padre Candy said.

The list of Missioners includes: Canon Davison, minister of the Church of St. John the Evangelist in Montreal; Rev. Gerald Gregson, General Secretary of the Scripture Union; Miss Muriel Jacobson, Associate in the Administration of the Student Division of the Y.W.C.A.; Dr. C. P. Martin, Professor of Anatomy at McGill; Professor A. T. Mollegan of Virginia Theological Seminary; Miss Catherine Nicoll, staff member of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship; Archdeacon E. Reed from Gaspe; Rev. James Robinson, minister of the Church of the Master in New York and Chairman of the Committee on Negro Affairs for the Presbyterian Church; Dr. Robert Smith, head of the Philosophy Department, Dubuque University, Iowa; Dr. Charlotte Whitton, Executive Director of the Canadian Welfare Council, and Rev. Lex Miller of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, who will be chief missioner at Ajax.

Why Is Drone A Drone?

Although relatively little has been done to break down financial barriers to a university education, it is generally acknowledged that money should not be the key to open college doors—especially for the mediocre student.

It is easy enough to say that selection should be based on scholastic rather than financial ability, but much work remains before the theory can be put into practice.

That students should be helped more generously is obvious. But coupled with the plea for greater financial aid comes a sharp warning that students will have to be screened more strictly, that the mediocre would-be freshman and the drone-like undergraduate will have to be ruthlessly eliminated. Unfortunately, no one seems to be quite sure what standard should be applied. Should present requirements—based on a calculated degree of proficiency in specified academic subjects—be raised to a higher percentage? Should other non-academic factors be taken into consideration? Or should the screening be applied at the end of one college year rather than at matriculation? No one seems to have come up with the answer yet.

It is not enough to admit that many students are mediocre, that many are, by inclination, unsuited for a university education. Why are they mediocre? There is too great a tendency to assume that the capacity to think is an innate characteristic, when it is in reality governed to a large degree by the type of education to which a student is exposed. Too often in the high school—and in the university—the student is confronted with instruction that is dull and unrewarding.

In many cases the student, by his own energy and initiative, can rise above the handicap of poor tuition. But there are many others whose quest for knowledge is stifled almost from the start by instructors who have little ability.

There is a greater need for prophetic voices in the classroom than there is for unreadable professorial dissertations. There is a greater need for teachers who can teach with authority and imagination. Great teachers are great because of their ability to kindle their students, not because they reproduce detailed information.

The capacity to think cannot be created by itself. It is an art that must be taught. And the success of the lesson depends largely on the calibre of the teaching.

To The Editor, The Varsity

Dear Sir,

I am extremely annoyed at your music critic's opinion about Mrs. Mary MacKinnon Shore's recital at Wymilwood last Sunday evening. I disagree with everything he says.

The Beethoven Sonata, Opus 31 No. 3, was not one of Beethoven's earlier works. It was written at the end of the second period of his life and is considered by the great artists (Myra Hess) as one of Beethoven's best works—not a warhorse as Mr. J. Ferguson writes.

What is unfortunate about being a derivation of Haydn, Mr. Ferguson? He is considered a great composer.

In the opinion of many others at Wymilwood, Mrs. Shore's program was very colourful and warm, especially the Debussy.

I can't understand why outstanding artists as Mrs. Shore consent to even perform for the University students when they receive such shallow criticisms from your so-called critics.

I find nothing wrong with critics who know what they are talking about—but as for a few on your staff, I am very doubtful.

To restore my faith in your paper, will you please have all your critics give a mass concert at Wymil-wood or Hart House some evening, regardless whether their instruments be piano, voice, or piccolo, so that the students may judge for themselves the qualities of the critics they read.

To Designate Special Days For Allotment

Books for the Christmas reading from the University College Reading Room and the Main Library will be given out on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Dec. 15-17.

In order to accommodate the large number of applicants, and to avoid long queues, books will be given out only on specified days. NO reserves will be taken beforehand, and it is understood that each student must apply for his own books. Each student may take two books on a subject. A subject is understood to mean a course in which a separate examination is written.

Those who will want books not at present on the students' shelves should ask well in advance to have these recalled or brought up from the stacks. However, a recall will not be considered as a reserve. These books must be returned on or before the morning of Tuesday, January 4.

Books will be given out on the following days:

Wednesday, Dec. 15—Philosophy, Psychology, and all the languages and literatures.

Thursday, Dec. 16—History, economics, sociology, and political science.

Books in all subjects will be available Friday, Dec. 17.

Contrast Novels Of Early French And Later Works

"The fundamental difference between English and French novels of a century ago was that the French novelist kept foremost in his mind his own race and its needs," Dr. D. M. Hayne stated in a University College lecture yesterday on "Our Canadian Ancestors and Their Novels". He contrasted the earlier French Canadian writing with the later English Canadian increased interest in novels.

The speaker described the difficulties of early Canadian novelists, including indifference inside Canada and competition outside. Novels in Canada were at first considered an immoral type of literature.

The first era of Canadian novels, according to Dr. Hayne, was from 1824 when Canada produced its first novel, until the time of Confederation.

Economic, literary, and educational factors hampered the development of the French Canadian novel. English Canadian literature developed earlier in the Maritimes than in Upper Canada.

University Library Unique In Reading Room Division

The "personality girls" behind the main desk of the University Library have a tough job. With 2,000 student-customers a day, the girls are kept on-the-go all the time. When a wrong shelf-number gives them an extra jaunt to the basement, five storeys down, you are surprised and pleased when they smile and politely ask you to check again. But behind the scenes at afternoon-tea many a girl is nursing a pair of sore feet.

"To the girls, is due the credit for keeping the library running smoothly under conditions that are four times below normal," said W. S. Wallace, chief of the University Library.

An MA of Oxford and editor of the "Encyclopedia of Canada" (1935-38), he prefers not to mention these facts. He is an accomplished and prolific writer specializing in Canadian History ("Chronicles of Canada Series"), and Pioneer Life ("The United Empire Loyalists"). A few weeks ago, when along with the librarian of the Library of Congress, Washington, Wallace was presented with his L.L.D., he said to his friends the honor was more a recognition of the library profession.

Member of Staff

A member of the teaching staff in the beginning, Wallace became assistant librarian under H. H. Langton and later became chief in 1923. In his first report, he emphasized the overcrowding in the library and recommended a new building. That was 25 years ago.

Today, under a bulging enrolment of over 16,000 the library is handling four times as many students. In the men's reading room, eight people are crowded around a table that should ordinarily hold four. Believe it or not, there is a fan in the roof of the room but what chance has it?

Reading Rooms

The division of the students into separate reading rooms was not deliberate. Mr. Wallace recalls the "happy days" as a Varsity undergrad, when girls and boys met in what is now the men's reading room. But the whistling, scraping of feet, and throwing of paper always brought the frowning librarian to restore order. In 1910 the library was revamped, a new stackwing was thrown over the "Taddle" ravine and the old stack room turned into a reading room. Why the girls moved into the other reading room is uncertain. Thus the University of Toronto set a precedent among such universities as Western, Queen's, and McGill who all enjoy mixed reading rooms.

"It is thanks to the girls on the library staff," said Mr. Wallace, "that the wheels in the library go around as smoothly as they do. The machinery may be creaking, but there is no friction," he said.

Technique Of Anthropology Described By McIlwraith

"Observation, participation and gossip are three of the most important field techniques of the anthropologist," said Professor T. F. McIlwraith at a meeting of the Anthropology Club Wednesday night.

The professor, who was addressing the first public Canadian meeting of an undergraduate anthropology club, discussed the aims and responsibilities of the anthropologist and recounted some of his experiences in the field.

"The peoples," he stated, "that we are most interested in are those whom we call primitive, although we do not really know who are primitive and who are not." He warned that these primitive communities must not be regarded as simple in social structure but, rather, complicated. In studying them participation, observation and gossip are important techniques. "I am not sure if gossip is not the most important of the three," he said.

Language is one of the difficulties which faces the anthropologist. If possible he should learn the language because good interpreters are practically unobtainable, commented the professor. In addition, he added that "you must persuade the native you are not a game warden, looking for bootleg whiskey, or trying to send him to jail."

Concluding, he stated that no science makes such strong demands on the investigator; he must use his judgment constantly and since his results cannot be checked he must also be absolutely honest.

HART HOUSE DEBATE

There will be a Hart House Debate at 8.00 p. m. on Wednesday, December 8, in the debates room. The Hon. Visitor will be Professor W. E. Blatz, Director of the Institute of Child Study.

The House will discuss the conventional attitude of our society toward the sexual behavior of our society members.

NFCUS-IUS Link Is Debate Subject As Dispute Rages

University of Toronto NFCUS officials will participate in a debate on the question of NFCUS-IUS affiliation in the UC Junior Common Room, Monday at 4 p.m. Under sponsorship of the University of Toronto Debating Union, the motion will be: "Resolved that NFCUS should affiliate with IUS now."

Chairman Pro Motion

Upholding the affirmative will be George Wilkes, chairman of the Toronto NFCUS committee, and Nancy McCormick, NFCUS representative from St. Michael's. Opposing the motion will be David Stanley, IV Trinity, and Joan Bowers, NFCUS representative from St. Hilda's.

One point of agreement between opposing debaters George Wilkes and David Stanley in interviews yesterday was that political grounds should not be the reason for NFCUS not joining IUS.

Wilkes maintained NFCUS should affiliate with IUS so that students in other parts of the world would not get the "impression that a considerable group of Canadian young people are not interested in youth in other countries, in their problems, or in sharing experiences and helping them."

Stanley's main argument against NFCUS-IUS affiliation was that NFCUS "is not representative of Canadian students" and thus has no right to speak for them.

Time Is Now

While admitting NFCUS is not as strong an organization as it should be, Wilkes declared "the times are such that we cannot afford to wait to join IUS." Outlining some of the positive benefits of affiliation he saw an exchange of ideas, information, literature and experience between Canadian students and those of other parts of the world; opportunity to share in faculty groups which have been set up; participation in IUS conferences in different university fields such as agriculture and medicine; opportunity for Canadian students to participate in winter and summer games organized by IUS; the "moral assistance which can be given to colonial students," and opportunity to learn their problems; and opportunity to join others in defending student rights from any attempts at suppression whenever such incidents occur.

Students Don't Care

Countering the case for affiliation, Stanley claimed "Canadian students don't know what NFCUS is, and they care even less." He felt NFCUS' first job was to build and strengthen the national organization before consideration is given to joining any international group.

"I don't want to see NFCUS railroaded into affiliation with IUS when it doesn't represent Canadian university students," Stanley said.

Says Psychology A Formal Science Under Philosophy

"Any science, including psychology, which advances beyond its scientific task becomes philosophy or nonsense" stated Professor C. W. Leslie in an address to the Junior Philosophy Club. The two subjects philosophy and psychology, are supplementary, and not debatable as announced in the advance notice, he pointed out.

He traced the history of psychology from its inception, and emphasized that it was not a later approach to problems nor was it superior to philosophy. The recent independence of psychology from philosophy and religion has encouraged a tendency by some people to disparage the past.

He divided the subject of philosophy into three major phases, the question of what is real, what is true and what is right, and emphasized that it is a search and not an achievement. He stated that religion was the mother of all arts and the task of philosophy was to give meaning to the science. He intimated the world would not be returned to its normal balance until religion becomes in the world as articulated and mature as philosophy and science in the present scene.

Psychology, dating back to Plato and Aristotle and even before, is an attempt to describe, predict, and understand people and not to control them. A serious mistake he pointed out, is the failure in practice, to distinguish between delinquency and disease.

Quoting from one of Professor Bernhardt's books he showed there is a tendency to confuse cause of behaviour and motive of behaviour, and that there is a difference between attempting to control individuals and inanimate objects which must be taken into account. Conformity and moral philosophy are integral parts of this discussion.

He stated that there is no progress in science if there are only facts, must be hypotheses and theories also. No science can avoid being philosophical even though it is independent and the value of philosophy is to act as an exhortation to develop ideas, as it is better to attempt an understanding than not to seek truth at all.

Humanist Club Raps Denial Of Hall For Dean's Speech

The Humanist Club believes the reasons given by the Superintendent's Office and other University authorities for the denial of a hall during the Dean of Canterbury's visit "were often invalid and inconsistent" said Al Noble, Committee chairman, yesterday.

Noble was commenting on a recent meeting of the Humanist Club at which all the facts concerning the obstacles met in securing accommodation were reviewed in their chronological order. The club feels that one way of eliminating the difficulties in the future is to publicize these facts and to obtain from the university authorities a definite statement of policy regarding the use of rooms.

"It was suggested at the meeting," said Noble, "that a complete statement, too large for inclusion in The Varsity should be mimeographed and circulated among the students. This procedure could be followed for similar incidents in the future."

'SILVER CORD' PREMIERE

St. Michael's College Music and Drama Society will give the first public arena-style production to be attempted in this city when they play "The Silver Cord" in Brennan Hall next week.

"The stage will be without properties and there will be no scenery" stated President Jim Hamelin. This is a major production for the College and capacity crowds are anticipated for the full run.

Henry Kaplan, well-known campus producer and actor will be in charge of the production which will have its premiere on Monday, December 6, and will run to Friday, December 10.

Godfrey Hewitt

The second Casavant Organ Musicale was given by Godfrey Hewitt, Ottawa organist, assisted by Park Road Church Choir directed by Miss Muriel Gidley at Easton Auditorium. The first part of the organ program, five Bach pieces, revealed not only a profile of Bach's genius but Godfrey Hewitt as a master of his chosen instrument, the organ. The noble St. Anne Fuge was played with a most conservative registration, almost barochial, but gradually yielding to a crescendo that demanded all that the organ had. The two chorale preludes were contrasts of volume, style, velocity, and even rhythm, while the Trio-Sonata No. One was a study in strict classical expression packed with all the intricacies that old Bach knew. The mighty Fantasia and Fugue in G minor was an appropriate farewell indeed to Bach's part on the program.

Marcel Dupre's Passion Symphony, full of mixed emotions, was brilliantly played. Vierne's Scherzetto and a Noel by D'Aquin were encores.

To say that the choir is good is an understatement. Their clear voices blend well despite a rather poigant tenor section and are most responsive to Miss Gidley's clean-cut yet ever graceful gestures. The applause of an appreciative audience was truly well deserved.

W. Mould

For a business firm (Northways) to sponsor publicly a young artist's concert debut in conservative Toronto is a musical precedent, let alone a commercial one.

Last evening's Eaton Auditorium recital of youthful, 22-year-old pianist Warren Mould was exactly that.

Currently a pupil of Miss Mona Bates, Warren played a typical stock 'Bates' program in typical stock 'Bates' interpretation and style. Included were concert war-horses "Jesus Christ, the Son of God" (Bach-Rummell), Chopin's A flat major waltz, and Beethoven's Waldstein Sonata.

Pianist Mould plunged through the Bach like a Marathon swim—left all majesty and reverence well buried in his flight. The D minor Chaconne was attacked so vigorously I felt any minute the keyboard might give way.

The Chopin A flat waltz and Nocturne fared better, but neither these nor the Polonaise bore the crisp punch of well-articulated notes or the rubato melodic line so characteristic of Chopin. Mr. Mould pressed the damper with abandon through the entire night and it had the usual effect.

Chopin and Beethoven runs and trills were muffled in a hangover of aftertones, as were the voices in the Bach. Contrasts were often so sharp as almost to destroy the unity of the piece. The adagio in the "Waldstein" really became an interlude between the first and last movements. Seldom did full chords strike the keybed at the same time.

Apart from those few distractions, planist Warren Mould's debut went rather well.

—William Glenesk

Marian Anderson

Any fears of a deterioration in Marian Anderson's singing, which may have been occasioned by last year's recital, were entirely dispelled last night. We heard not merely the Anderson of former years but at times an even greater Anderson.

The opening group of songs by Handel, Gluck, Caldara and Scarlatti gave further proof of this singer's impeccable taste and were marked by flawless production of unwavering sustained tones and perfectly controlled crescendi and decrescendi. The only disturbing note was provided by the admission of latecomers between the numbers of this group—a practice which should be discontinued.

We would welcome an all-Brahms program by Marian Anderson, but, this being a dream untroubled of hope, we were moderately content with a mere six of that composer's songs. In her handling of the delightful intervals of "Dein Blaues Auge" and the broad phrases of "Die Mainacht", she surpassed the standard set by her own recordings, while her singing of "Von Ewiger Liebe" made necessary "Der Schmied" as an encore.

While the "Suicidio" aria from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" was certainly well sung, the Anderson genius is not operatic. Her English songs, however, were excellent and included the sombre "Night On Ways Unknown Has Fallen" by Griffes and a Franz Rupp arrangement of the traditional song "Sweet Nightingale".

In the customary group of negro spirituals Lawrence Brown's arrangement of "Hear de Lam's acry-in'" was possibly the most generally effective, but in all four songs the Anderson voice was beyond criticism.

Franz Rupp continues to be our idea of the perfect accompanist. This is to say that he is not an accompanist at all, but a co-artist.

Trend Reversed Many U.S. Grads Study At U. of T.

Contingents of students from many countries and from all sections of Canada have pushed registration in the School of Graduate Studies at the University of Toronto to a new peak, President Sidney Smith has announced. Enrolment is 1301 compared with 1198 at the same time last year and may reach 1400, he added.

Dr. Smith says the final check may show even wider representation than last year when graduates of 102 universities made up the School's student body. "Progress of the School of Graduate Studies in a high degree is the academic barometer of the whole University," he said.

Rapid growth of the School has been encouraged in recent years as a means of keeping Canadian talent in Canada. Dr. Smith points out that the record shows that when Canadians go to the United States for their postgraduate work they often stay there. Now the trend is being reversed. Sixty U.S. graduates are studying at the University of Toronto this year.

Next largest foreign group is made up of 23 from China. British Columbia has the largest representation of any Canadian province outside Ontario, with seventy.

Political Economy remains the most popular course with 198 registered but Psychology with 131 this year is the fastest growing division.

Varsity Radio Committee is responsible for the half-hour program over CJBC every Thursday night called "The Varsity Story." Introducing each program is a special version of the Blue and White song by Ward McAdams, sung by the Hart House Glee Club.

Future Shows

To demonstrate the cultural activities on the campus the Hart House Glee Club, the University Chorus, a student Musical comedy, and a script on the problems facing the engineers will be presented. There will also be discussion groups with students and faculty members on topics like, "Is Conversation a lost art," "A student looks at God," and public misapprehensions about the university.

The CBC, insists that "The Varsity Story" is as good as any student program in Canada. To prove its point, the CBC pays, apart from the time it loses, at least $50 a week in musicians, extras and talks chairdinary scripts, the CBC is offering $75 for a special university prize script for this month. The CBC prints the scripts, procures the organist and looks after rehearsals.

For the future the Radio Committee hopes, in the proposed Student Memorial Union, to have a regular studio with an office. It would like this to be a sound-proof, fully equipped studio. The hope is that with a Varsity radio station strong enough to reach over the city of Toronto, or even with a line to one of the city radio stations, the University of Toronto could broadcast a one-hour show twice a week.

flailing and wailing lost sheep — what does the ordinary Canadian do? He pulls his cloak of apathy a little closer to protect himself from the storm and elects a comfortable compromiser like W. L. MacKenzie King.

Before this era of unprecedented warfare, Canadians could afford the luxury of localism and ignore the government's British heritage of muddling through with triumphant indecisiveness. What's going to spark the rebirth of the individual responsibility — God, George Drew or Joe Stalin? The first reminds me of the story of the little boy who fell on the ice and said, "Pick me up, God." The last two alternatives do not seem particularly democratic.

If we want to ensure our democratic institution and way of life, we need positive constructive LEADERSHIP in students, newspapers, in government, in the churches — leadership that can force Canada to stand out in the United Nations as a constructive example of a state ready to give up some sovereignty to ensure world peace through a stronger union of nations—ultimately a world government. It will cost selfish and apathy-ridden Canadians a great deal in many ways but it means an end to Canada's self-satisfied do-nothingness, and would give us a better chance of survival. Here endeth the lesson.

COLE SLAW

The exhilaration of an after-the-bath glow is something that has been sadly under-rated in the field of human relations. We are of the opinion that if the spokesmen for the nations of the world approached each other at six o'clock each evening, immediately after the daily bath, the world outlook would be much brighter. There's something about that luxurious after-bath glow that would make niggardly national ambitions shrink to their true, grubby proportions. We would like to go on record as advocating that before any world councils are convened, each member must swear to bath within one hour of the session attended. We're positive that a fresher, more fruitful conclave will only result in this manner.

Meds Firsts Favored To Annex Dafoe Cup

The interfaculty lacrosse league has only another week of scheduled games to play before the playoffs swing into the Hart House gym. Meds firsts, perennial boxla titlists, are favorites again this year to capture the Doctor W. A. Dafoe Cup, emblematic of the campus lacrosse championship. The doctors have won their group and stand head and shoulders above the contenders who face them in the finals this year.

Sr. SPS stand second in the first group, followed by the UC/PHE firsts and Vic firsts in that order. St. Mike's A has cinched the second group with Meds II the runners-up. Two teams from the second group and three from the first will compete with the top team in each of the four other groups for the title.

Hockey Blues Meet Carabins Tonight

Visitors Boast of Double Victory

By HAL HOLDEN

"Skate fast, shoot hard, and don't get hurt." This is the order of the day issued by Coach Ace Bailey to his Blue charges as they prepare for their first action of the 1948-'49 Intercollegiate campaign.

The first objective is the high-flying University of Montreal crew. Les Carabins upset the powerful McGill team picked by most pre-season "guessperts" as the team to beat. They also downed Queen's to break a tie in the standing with McGill and jump into first place.

Although tonight's game is the first of the season for the Queen's Cup holders, the Blues are not at full strength. Football, basketball and hockey injuries have combined to slow down the Blues in the first defence of their Intercollegiate title. Captain Harry Boyd injured his ankle while playing in the backfield for Vic gridders in the Mulock Cup game on Wednesday. Boyd probably will be out on the ice tonight but his injury may restrict his effectiveness. Captain Harry netted two goals as the Blues bowed to Barkers last Friday and the team needs his scoring power.

Bell Out

Art Bell, diminutive winger, also hurt his ankle, but Bell was playing basketball. Manager Ian McIntosh said last night that the injury will keep Bell on the bench tonight. The bouncing juniors from St. Mike's are responsible for rearguard Gord Ecclestone's sore shoulder suffered in Tuesday's practice game. However, Ecclestone's injury is not considered serious enough to make him a bench-rider. Jerry Larmer's cut over his eye is no worse and the smooth skating forward will work on on a line with Wes Moore and John Fox.

The Carabins boast a number of holdovers from last year's third placers in Andre Laperriere, Roger Pinad, Georges Emblem and Andre Charest. Laperriere is the boy who was picked as a defencemen for the Canadian Olympic team. Pinard is in his fifth season with club. His speed and experience make him a valuable member of the squad. Emblem is the starry center player of the Carabins. According to advance publicity from Montreal his "constant fighting and experience are a just encouragement for his teammates."

The game is scheduled to start at 8:00 o'clock.

HOOP BLUES TOUR

Coach Bob Masterson's big basketball Blues are on the road still. Tonight they meet Colgate University at Hamilton, New York. Colgate are publicising this meeting as their warm-up game before their season-opener with NYU at Madison Square Garden. Last night the Blues tangled with Buffalo State Teachers in Buffalo but the final score was not available at the time of this writing. Probable starters for the Colgate game will be McManus, LaChance, Gray and Pettinger.

VARSITY SPORTS

Hershorn Cup Series Start At Hart House

The intercollegiate champion Varsity water poloists will meet the aquamen from Queen's tonight at the Hart House pool at 6.30 p. m. This is their opening game in defence of the Hershorn trophy and their second and final tilt will take place against McGill in Montreal tomorrow night. A lightning quick schedule which the Blues hope to complete without a loss.

In addition to winning the intercollegiate title last year the Varsity aggregation beat out Montreal YMHA for the All-Canadian finals. This year's edition is riding the crest of a two game win streak in the Ontario Water Polo League, and hope to continue this weekend.

Bob Dunston, sophomore coach, has the large chore of replacing key men Al Marshall and Warren Clayson, lost through graduation last year. Derry Hubbard and Norm Mortimer are promising rookies who bid fair to help fill these stars' places. In addition, Rosen, Crang, Curry and Peacock are back again which causes no undue happiness in the enemy ranks.

Granted that the fixture does come off rather early, nevertheless the team deserves a large and enthusiastic crowd to help them continue their long winning ways. The boys are at least assured of six partisan fans as no less than that number of the aquamen are expecting their wives to be there. As an added attraction the evening has been proclaimed Ladies' Night and all females coming either alone or with escorts will be admitted free of charge.

Speaking Of Sport

By BOB JONES

The trophy cabinet in the Hart House Athletic Office is, at the present moment, so crowded that the resting place of the Yates Cup is the current major problem of the staff. There is a truly imposing array of gold and silverware within that hallowed cupboard which offers mute evidence of our fair university's proficiency in the various intercollegiate athletic fields.

This evening two of those hard-earned trophies will be put on the block and may or may not secure a new harbour within months to come. The fate of the Herschorn Cup, emblematic of Intercollegiate water Polo Supremacy, will be decided, so far as Varsity is concerned, within thirty hours of the first splash; immediately after taking on Queen's at Hart House tonight Bob Dunston's crew embark for McGill where they will attempt to dunk their arch-rivals for the second straight year.

Varsity collegians have established a fine record in aquatic circles since the end of the war and despite the loss of star swimmers, Al Marshall and Warren Clayson, this year's polo team should retain the honours if the tight-packed schedule doesn't prove too much. Swimming is one of the most arduous pastimes going and a 24 hour break is hardly adequate for such important games. All those in the vicinity of Hart House at 6:30 p.m. would be well advised to take in tonight's classic water battle if they are looking for good competitive entertainment.

A little later, Varsity Arena will be the locale for the intercollegiate debut of Ace Bailey's senior hockey Blues. Any judgment as to how they will fare in defense of the title they have held for the past two years must be reserved until the opposition's ability has been displayed. Varsity's showing in their two exhibition encounters has not been outstanding but Bailey seems to be satisfied that their play is improving with practise. Indications of previous scheduled encounters are that tonight's opponents are the toughest in the league and the Carabins, spurred on by forty enthusiastic school-mates, will be doing their best to avenge several humiliating trouncings which they have suffered in the past at the hands of the Blues.

We have a feeling that Kryzanowski and Bark are going to be sorely missed this year but are confident that Bailey will ice a team of the calibre that makes Varsity a perennial contender in the college hockey scene.

Swimmin' Women To Face McGill In Splash Meet

This afternoon the Women's Intercollegiate Swimming Team leaves for McGill, by train, and tomorrow night they face their first big competition in the Notre Dame de Grace Community Pool.

Misfortune has hit the team twice in the last few weeks. Jackie Tobian, Art and Meds, after working out a very smooth routine in synchronized swimming with Peggy Quiggin, Vic, found that she was not in a degree course and ineligible for competition. Louise Willard, St. Hilda's, started to train but the Health Service discovered that she had a strained back and will thus be unable to compete.

However, Miss Baxter has found Ena Chuhaldin, Vic, to do the job with Peggy, who is looking after style as well.

The free style relay team will be made up of Phil Manning, St. Hilda's, Marian Mulloy, Vic, Ann Malcolm, St. Mike's and Marg Harrington, PHE, while Zaira Murray, UC, Phil Manning, St. Hilda's and Pam Perrin, Vic, are on the medley relay team.

Other events that our team will enter are: diving, free style, back stroke, breast stroke and medley.

PHE Hoop Finalists Down Physio 25-10

PHE III's more acurate shooting and better team play gave them a 25-10 victory over Physio A, and the women's intramural basketball championship last night in Hart House. Although the Fizz Ed team led the scoring race by a fair margin throughout the game, the play itself was not as one-sided as the score indicates. During most of the game, especially in the last quarter, Physio had the ball at their end as much or possibly more of the time but the PHE guards, sparked by tall intercepting Betsy McFaul, were guarding them closely and they missed shot after shot.

However, in the third quarter, Fizz Ed tightened up, and almost completely dominated the play. The PHE forward line of Anne Bradshaw, Gwen Smith and Jane Cloke was a smooth passing combination throughout the quarter. They dodged in and out, confusing the guards with their tricky passing until one of them had a clear shot at the basket, which she potted easily.

The Fizz Edders used one-handed hook shots to good advantage and displayed shooting far more accurate than the fighting Physios'. Anne Bradshaw racked up nine points for the winners while Gwen Smith tallied eight points.

The play was fast but rather rough and many passes were wild. Rosanna Kelly, basketball rep for the university, said at half time, "The game is sloppy. Players are falling all over one another." When it was all over she said, "PHE played a much smoother game than they did on Tuesday when they nearly lost to UC Sophs."

The Physio girls gave PHE a bottle all the way, not letting the lop-sided score dampen their spirits. Jeanne Cossar and Phyl Wilks jumped untiringly throughout the game, intercepting passes and grabbing the ball. Although they accounted for most of the Physio points (Cossar six, Wilks two) they missed countless shots.

Their guard line neld up bravely but could not cope with the razzle-dazzle PHE passing under the casket. Joan Gault, tall, dark and handy Physio guard, thwarted a goodly number of the Fizz Ed attempts to score and was one of the few on the floor who consistently passed accurately up the floor.

Consolation Game

UC Sophs downed Physio B, 18-12, to make them third in the championship play-offs. The game was rough, fouls were frequent, and the players did not have the same drive or enthusiasm shown in the other game.

BLUES CONQUER CARABINS 5-2

Gallic Gesture Of Carabins Sparks Show

Last week-end, for the first time, a lot of students at the University of Toronto found that Canada is a much bigger country than they ever knew. They found that things are much different in another part of their own country than they are across the border.

The Carabins came and took the university by surprise.

Riding all day in a hot train coach, the people from P.Q. thought nothing of advancing to an exciting hockey game and dance. They spread their culture wherever they went.

It was at the "Bleu et Or" review and dance that the tremendous spirit of the Montrealers spread through the cold Anglo-Saxon crust to warm up the Toronto students. By the time the dance was over, local learners were shouting "Vive Montreal".

The review itself was completely different in every way from any of our college shows. The French gesture was used to great advantage. Unlike our inhibited actors they they spoke with their complete bodies. Even those who didn't understand the language could appreciate the humor and song because of the visual activities involved. The Carabins had little scenery or room, but did well without.

Warmed by the Buttery cider (with donuts) the Montreal men took over the pleasant party that followed. They introduced French-Canadian folk dances and songs. One of the songs sounded suspiciously like "Old Susanna" and one of the dances had a glaring similarity to the "Virginia Reel."

On the dance floor les enfants du Montreal had little trouble conversing with the one-tongued co-eds. The English-speaking moaned "Oo-lah-lah" and the French dancers replied "c-est hot stuff."

This attitude of friendly interprovincial relationships is something completely different for students at the "Good City" University. In previous years the cry had been for "buckets of blood". This year the only blood seen was that belonging to a tiny young lady from the number one Canadian city. Her nose had started bleeding when she went to the top floor of the Park Plaza. The bar was closed.

LaBrie Promoted In Law Faculty Announces Smith

F. E. LaBrie, B.A., LL.B., LL.M., who has been a lecturer in the Faculty of the School of Law for the past three years, has been promoted to an assistant professorship of law, Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, announced.

Mr. LaBrie is a first class graduate in Arts and a medallist in Law of the University of Alberta and a member of the Alberta Bar. On graduation he entered the School of Law in the University of Toronto as a graduate student in Law and obtained his Master of Laws degree. He will receive his D.Jur. degree in June. He has acted as Secretary of the Faculty for several years.

Mr. LaBrie has already distinguished himself as an authority on the law of taxation and his first monograph—Deductions under the Income War Tax Act—(with J. R. Westlake) has just been published by the University of Toronto Press. He has contributed to legal publications and is an active member of the Canadian Tax Foundation.

Alumni Meeting Plans New Work, Elects Officers

A new constitution, which will make the Alumni Association a more effective rallying point for the University of Toronto graduate body, was approved at a recent meeting of the Alumni representatives in Burwash Hall.

The constitution, presented by Arthur L. Fleming, K.C., provides for a board of directors, on which will sit graduate representatives of University faculties and colleges and of groups living in many parts of Canada and in other countries.

The graduate body, now numbering more than 50,000, is expected to be increased by another 4,000 next summer. The goal of the Alumni Association is to have an active membership of 20,000.

Officers elected at the meeting were W. A. Osbourne as president of the Alumni Association, Dr. D. L. Selby, vice-president, Warwick H. Noble, honorary treasurer, W. H. Clarke, honorary secretary, and Dr. J. A. Bothwell. The full-time executive director appointed earlier this year is Morley V. Sparling.

It is important that all members of The Varsity Masthead report to The Varsity News Office this afternoon before 4 o'clock. If unable to come, phone in.

Graduate Engineer '24 Official Of Galt Firm Named Alumni President

W. A. Osbourne, vice-president and general manager of the Galt firm of Babcock-Wilcox and Goldie-McCullough Ltd., and an engineering graduate of the class of '24, has been elected president of the University of Toronto Alumni Association, it was announced Saturday.

Mr. Osbourne has been chairman of the Galt Board of Education and chairman of the Engineering Education Committee through which guidance is given boys in secondary schools. He has been closely associated with Varsity Alumni affairs for some years. In his new post, Mr. Osbourne automatically becomes a member of the University of Toronto Senate.

Reader Writes, Air Returns To Library

The control wielded by the press over the destinies of human institutions, was illustrated by the response to a letter published in Wednesday's issue of The Varsity.

Complaining of the poor ventilation in the University Library, Bob Dickson, IV Poli. Sci. and Ec., wrote "Even if you slept ten hours a night for a week, you would still experience the same smothering results after being enclosed in that suffocating roundhouse for reading. The air in that structure is downright stale!"

Results were soon forthcoming.

On Thursday the faces of the female members of the library staff were blue and their teeth were chattering with the cold. Whispered comments were exchanged concerning the advisability of removing certain red-colored undergarments from the moth-balls.

Every window in the place was wide open.

U.C. Parliament To Debate Merits Of Student Union

Pros and cons of the proposed Students' Union will be on the slate when the University College Parliamentary Club debates the resolution: "That this house deplores the proposed building of a Student Union War Memorial," Thursday in the UC Junior Common Room.

In view of the controversy aroused on the question, the UC Parliament has extended an invitation to all supporters and critics of the proposal to take part in the debate. "These debates are open to all members of any college or faculty on the campus, said Speaker A. K. Dixon, IV Poli Sci and Ec, in a letter to The Varsity, "and an opportunity is provided for speakers from the floor to present their opinions, in accordance with parliamentary procedure. Unfortunately our constitution permits only members of University College to vote on the issue, but attendance and participation are free to all men and women on the campus.

The letter from Mr. Gwynne-Timothy, President of the S. A. C., published in The Varsity (No. 30), has clearly stated the facts of the

Howson, Hutzulak Shine As Varsity Gets Victory In First Puck Encounter

By HAL HOLDEN

The league-leading University of Montreal Carabins blew into town Friday accompanied by French-Canadian week-enders and before the first night of their spree was over, Les Carabins had suffered their first loss of the Intercollegiate hockey campaign at the hands of the defending champion Varsity Blues in the Arena.

Hutzulak Solid

The 5-2 score does not tell the whole story since the Blues made the most of scoring opportunities while Paul Hutzulak in goal was red-hot to keep the Carabins from increasing their goal total.

In the first league game of the season the Blues were forced to take on the Carabins without three of their regulars. Captain Harry Boyd sat out the game because of an ankle injury suffered in Vic's unsuccessful defence of the Mulock Cup, rearguard Bob LaRose is still recovering from a jaw injury received in practice, and forward Art Bell hurt his ankle playing basketball. Rich Howson was brought up from the Junior Bees for the game to bolster the lineup and really came through in the clutch, scoring the first two Varsity goals and assisting in the third. It's going to be tough to keep him out of the regular lineup after a performance like that.

Not A Cinch

Although they did not overpower the Montrealers, the Blues showed themselves as a team that will definitely not be a cinch for any of the other members of the league. And with the club at full strength and a few more games under its belt, Ace Bailey's crew will have a good chance to capture the Queen's Cup for the third year in a row.

Les Carabins have some excellent talent and will probably beat the Blues before the season is over. Friday night their individual play was good but their passing was erratic. Several times they booted great scoring chances with ill-directed passes.

Rich Howson gave Varsity the lead after fifteen minutes of play in the first period, driving home a hard shot from a scramble in front of the net. Georges Emblem evened the score for the Carabins when he picked up a loose puck just to the right of the goal and beat Hutzulak cleanly with a waist-high shot.

Howson Tallies Two

Member of the Canadian Olympic team, Andre Laperriere was given a two-minute penalty for interference early in the second period and the Blues cashed in on the advantage as Howson got his second counter on a pass from Ernie Frey. Bob Henry scored the Blues' third goal with a long shot just before the period ended.

John Fox finished the scoring job for the winners counting two goals within 40 seconds of each other in the last frame. Roger Pinard sank the last goal for the Montrealers with less than a minute to go.

Puck Drop-Kick

Paul Hutzulak had a few uneasy moments in that last minute of play since twice after Pinard's goal Carabin forwards hit the goal post. But although Hutzulak might have been lucky on these chances he was just plain sensational many other times during the night. On one occasion with a Carabin waiting at the goal-mouth to bat in the careless rebound of a teammate's long shot, Hutzulak drop-kicked the puck out past the blue line, leaving the frustrated opportunist leaning on his stick.

Besides Hutzulak and Rich Howson, Bob Henry and Paul Kavanaugh starred for the Blues. For the University of Montreal, Laperriere showed well on defense while Gregoire Giguere, "Peanut" Flynn and Jean Bruneau led the attack.

ISS Announces Resignation Of Gord Campbell

Gordon Campbell, ex-executive-secretary of the International Student Service, gave two reasons for his resignation in a recent interview.

Firstly, he said, he feels that it is of benefit to any organization to get new executive blood. Secondly, although he feels that his work with I.S.S. has been of the utmost importance, he wishes now to continue his studies. He will be taking graduate studies at the University of Toronto.

Mr. Matthew Saunders of Ottawa has been appointed to succeed Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell declared that the work of I.S.S. in enlarging student horizons is of the utmost importance, since "Canada may be the Belgium of the next war and yet we are so very isolated."

Mr. Campbell's work as travelling I.S.S. secretary has carried him to campuses all across Canada as well as to Europe. His work culminated last summer in the first International Summer Seminar held in Germany, sponsored by I.S.S. in co-operation with the Canadian Council through UNESCO and the provincial governments.

An era in the development of I.S.S. is coming to an end with his resignation, said Mr. Campbell, and a new one will commence with the new secretary. In the past three years I.S.S. has developed from a small local organization with one or two branches to a far-flung structure with member branches on almost every Canadian campus. Mr. Campbell's speaking tours stimulating international thinking have been an important factor in this development.

Gordon Campbell graduated from the University of British Columbia in 1944, specializing in Economics. He was in the Navy and spent a year in post graduate studies at the University of Toronto before becoming the first executive secretary of I.S.S.

As a token of appreciation for the outstanding work of Mr. Campbell, the National Executive of I.S.S. recently presented him with a leather brief case

Movement — But No Action

Last week Julian Huxley, chairman of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, was eased out of his post.

The reason for this action, according to reports, was that Dr. Huxley had allowed the organizations work to bog downdown in a welter of petty problems.

Yet, in reviewing the work accomplished by many of the committees working under the aegis of UNESCO, a more plausible excuse appears. A scapegoat was needed. And a scapegoat was found—in the person of Dr. Huxley.

Despite the dreams of its founders UNESCO has not begun to show the promise of contribution to human welfare originally conceived. Like its ill-fated predecessor on the shores of Lake Geneva, it has fallen far short of early expectations.

The UN Commission on Human Rights spent an entire session debating the exact status of the two hundred odd wives of an African chieftain. Though the world would undoubtedly benefit from learning how an African chieftain can handle two hundred wives at the same time, it is significant that little has been done so far about the status of minority groups in the democracies—or of the treatment meted out to the political opponents of the regimes in Russia, Spain or Argentine.

Dr. Huxley was accused of being an idealist. It would seem that the entire UN organization could use a few idealists who are not afraid to turn the light of information on any country and the social and economic conditions of its citizens or subjects.

No matter who acts as chairman of UNESCO, concrete action on problems affecting the welfare of the world's citizens will be impossible as long as the present hypocrisy exists.

UNESCO may have accomplished little; but it was not allowed to accomplish more.

The current interplay of pressure groups inside UN necessitates the ousting of men from important posts who might have any ideals concerning absolute human freedom. For such investigations make explosive weapons in the hands of professional diplomats.

A well-executed inquiry into the political rights of American negroes or the treatment of political prisoners in Russia might help to let the force of world opinion influence the deliberations of political leaders.

UNESCO's members may be trying to avoid antagonizing the powerful member states bottling for control of UN Such a course may be politically shrewd, but it leaves the organization a hollow shell, fulfilling an innocuous role.

It seems highly unlikely that anyone will do very much about it.

Gen.-Governor Kicks Off At Rugby Game

Twenty thousand cheering fans on hand for the East-West football final in Varsity Stadium Saturday afternoon were stricken to silence just before game-time by one of the saddest events of the year. Just before the game was scheduled to start, Governor-General Salamander of Tuna kicked off.

Reporter There

At centre field when the tragedy occurred, Herb Bird-dog, three-star Ssso reporter for The Varsity, gives a word-by-word description.

"It was only a few minutes before the opening gun," Bird-dog said, "when the G. G. strode out to centre field. It was a well known fact that he would try to smash the record, held by himself, for the Honorary Place-Kicking Championship of Canada. The air was hushed.'

"From a distance, the G. G. appeared calm enough but closer up one could see that his moustache twitched twice and that he was clenching and unclenching his fingers. A drop of sweat ran down his cheek.

"These signs of strain went unnoticed by those at centre field. Since everyone knew he would be trying to smash the record, a certain amout of anxiety was to be expected.

Sudden Demise

"He approached the ball with a steady trot but flinched perceptably just as he reached it. Then, at the same time as he hoisted the oval, he kicked off. His collapse was so unexpected that three steel-eyed sports reporters fainted and fell to the turf.

"The General's demise was sad enough in itself," Bird-dog said "but the tragedy was heightened by the fact that he will never know he holds the new Canadian record for the ceremonial kick-off. He beat his previous mark by a good twofeet." (With a heavy sob and a wave of the hand, Bird-dog signified he could go on no longer.)

Government heads at Ottawa listening to the game over the radio were reported greatly distressed to hear that the Governor-General had kicked off in front of 20,000 people. "He went out in grand style," their spokesman said.

A minute's silence was observed during the playing of God Save the King.

Sex Limitation Debaters' Topic At Hart House

An unusual subject is in the offing for discussion in Hart House this week with the announcement that Wednesday night's debate topic, will be: "That in the opinion of this house the conventional attitudes of our society represent a desirable limitation of the sexual behavior of its members."

The motion will be introduced by J. G. Morden, of Wycliffe College, and opposed by last year's S.A.C. president, Dr. Phil Ashmore. Hal Rosenthal, University College, will be the second speaker for the affirmative, and D. D. Evans, also of University College, for the negative.

The honorary visitor, in a surprise departure from the usual procedure of selecting outside authorities, will be Dr. W. E. Blatz, director of the Institute of Child Studies, who will speak for the affirmative. Dr. Blatz was out of town over the week-end, and could not be reached for comment.

The debate will, as usual, start at 8 p.m. on Wednesday in the Debates Room, and speakers from the floor will follow the four main speakers. Speaker of the house will be Myer Brody, University College.

College Graduate Still Partly Child Claims U.S. Doctor

Chicago —(Special)— The reason why the college graduate frequently fails at his first job has been given by Dr. Robert McMurray, who says that the college man is still a child in one way or another because he lacks one or more of seven basic traits. Dr. McMurray's findings are based on a survey he made studying more than a thousand college men hired by 247 companies.

These are Dr. McMurray's all-important basic traits for success on the job:

The ability to stay long enough with a company to repay the investment in training.

The ability to accept responsibility.

Perseverance, or the ability to follow a path to the end.

Self-reliance.

The quality of being agreeable to different groups and different persons.

Identification of his personal goals with those of the firm.

The ability to exercise authority without belligerence.

New England

A winding drive leads up to this modern building which is a part of Wheaton College, New England. The crisp lines of the building are a contrast to many of the other buildings on the campus which are an older Georgian style. Students at Toronto University may be able to drive up to a building such as this when the Students' Union comes into existence.

St. Mike's Drama Society To Present New Technique

A unique departure from conventional ideas of dramatic technique will be presented to a Toronto audience for the first time tonight when St. Michael's College Music and Drama Society presents an arena production of Sidney Howard's three-act play, "The Silver Cord," directed by Henry Kaplan.

In accordance with the arena type of production, the audience in Brennan Hall will be seated in an ellipse surrounding the space in which the action of the piece will take place. The players will wear costumes and use properties (contrary to an erroneous report in Friday's issue of The Varsity) but the furniture will be specially built so as not to obstruct the view of any member of the audience and no curtains or flats will be used.

In undertaking the direction of this type of play, Mr. Kaplan is following a pioneer movement in the theatre which is attempting to re-establish contact between audience and players. This contact, which was maintained in pre-Elizabethan times in the amphitheatre production, was lost when the "picture frame" stage became the standard medium of conventional drama.

"The Silver Cord" will run from Dec. 6th through Dec. 10 and includes in the cast such Hart House players as Audrie Lowrie, Clarine Jackman and Dan McCarthy. Henry Kaplan is noted for his work in many Varsity productions, including the U.C. Follies and for directing one of the first Canadian summer stock theatres at Bracebridge, this year.

Hart House Staff Dinner Annual Christmas Custom

"The staff Christmas dinner is a big family party", said Miss Eames, supervisor of foods at Hart House, speaking of the annual dinner and party to be held on Dec. 17, for the Hart House staff.

Details are being worked on now. The traditional trimming of the Christmas tree will take place in the great hall about a week before the party.

On the night of the party, a herald will go through the corridors of Hart House announcing the event with a drum. The staff will follow behind him and he will lead them into the great hall. Their way will be lighted into the great hall by the fireplace, candles and Christmas tree lights.

The administrative personnel of Hart House will be the waiters and waitresses that night. Dressed in chef's and waitress' uniforms, complete with big white chef's caps and all, they will wait on tables. After the dinner a buffet supper will be set up for them.

A program of varied entertainment will follow.

The affair was originated about ten years ago by Miss Ramsom, then on the staff of Hart House, for her department, and has grown steadily.

Revue Rehearsals Feature Jive, Can-Can, High Kicks

Arthur Murray and Madam Lazonga may get paid for it, but they don't work any harder than Jean Oringan or Dunc Newton. When it comes to dancing, these two have "it" and know how to put "it" across.

Directors of the All-Varsity Revue dancing line, Mrs. Bob Oringan and Newton are working full time whipping the smart routines into shape. "The show opens Jan. 10," Newton said, "and while the numbers still need a lot of work, every practise sees big improvements. Look at that line there —a week ago they couldn't do that step at all. Now, they have it almost perfect."

The line in question was a group of de-lovely coeds in shorts practising in high kick routine. And Newton worries about keeping the line straight!

At the other end of the auditorium in the Women's Union, Jean Oringan was demonstrating a Can-Can number for 12 chorines. "This line is doing the Can-Can in a big production scene," said Mrs. Oringan. "It's to be a French restaurant locale—singing waiters, sultry Parisienne vocalist, you know, the real Bohemian atmosphere." "Nipper" Benson, who starred in the RCAF show "Blackouts," will be the vocalist.

In another corner, a mixed line was practicing a high-kicking jive routine. Bud Priestman, feet on piano, was playing a tinkling accompaniment. "Coffee-shop routine," he explained laconically, "topical interest — survey shows 99 99-100 per cent of the students spend an average of six hours a week in coffee shops. This number's got universal appeal."

"We've got a South American number in rehearsal, too," Newton said. "Really a snappy scene. Music will be played on authentic instruments from Cuba. Sambas, rhumbas, tangos—all the Latin American atmosphere."

In short, the All-Varsity Revue is going to have a little bit of everything. Or almost everything.

Smashing Success Made By Carabins On Toronto Visit

By ED. EBERLE

"Au revoir," "A Montreal", "Bon voyage," were the cries heard as the Carabins from the University of Montreal boarded the bus to return home after the ISS-sponsored Carabin Weekend here at the University of Toronto campus.

Unqualified Success

"An unqualified success" said Pat Daniels, IV UC, and Warren Goldring, IV UC, who were in charge of the arrangements for the week-end. "Thanks are due to President Sydney Smith, to the SAC, especially Mr. E.A. MacDonald and Gordon Gwynne-Timothy, to the Newman Club, to the Blue and White Society, to Mr. Ignatieff and the Hart House staff, and to all others who helped toward the success of the affair," said Goldring.

Pioneers

Jean-Yves Grenon, chairman of ISS at U. of M. called the ISS Committees of the two universities "pioneers in inter-university exchange."

Arriving during the Intercollegiate hockey game on Friday night, the Carabins went immediately to the Arena, where they were welcomed by the Toronto ISS Committee. However the welcome did not include the hockey game. The Montrealers lost, 5-2.

At the Blue and White Dance in the O. T. Huts after the game, the Carabins met their hosts for the week-end, and were given an outline of the weekend's activities.

Welcomed By President

Saturday morning, the guests were shown through Hart House and then went to the Senate Chambers in Simcoe Hall where President Sydney Smith gave an address of welcome. Having just returned from a trip to the Maritimes, president Smith said that he felt very keenly the diversities of culture across Canada. But, he said, that very diversity was the strength of Canada, not its weakness. He stressed the fact that it was "culture, not 'kultur' ". The Carabins, said President Smith, were really "well come" to the Varsity campus.

La Revue Bleu Et Or

The Carabin show, "La Revue Bleu et Or," was presented in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's College, to an audience of about 270. The show consisted of a series of acts from the original revue presented in Montreal last week.

ISS executive members said they were entirely pleased with the show. Bill McDougall, III Trinity, said "It couldn't have been better." The biggest difficulty, according to Robert Lefebvre, director of the show, was the limited facilities of the stage. "We have complete scenery for the whole revue in Montreal, but we were unable to use it here," he said.

First Of A Series

"We hope to make this weekend the first of an annual series," said Goldring, "and next year perhaps a larger stage will be available."

French-Canadian songs and dances, and University of Montreal yells and songs, were displayed in the Trinity Buttery, where the audience and the performers of the revue were able to get acquainted.

Sunday morning mass at Newman Chapel was followed by breakfast at the Newman Club.

At three o'clock, a farewell tea was held in the Women's Union. Guests, as well as the Carabins and their Varsity hosts, included Mr. E. A. MacDonald of the S.A.C. and President Sydney Smith.

Return Weekend

Plans were discussed for a return weekend in Montreal sometime in January or February. However, said Goldring, they are still in the tentative stage.

No Language Barrier

"The most outstanding feature of the entire affair," said Pat Daniel, "was the amazing spirit of friendliness and exchange between French and English-speaking students. Although there was a language difference, it was not a barrier."

This aspect of the weekend was stressed also by Gordon Gwynne-Timothy, SAC President, who pointed to the "late hours kept by most Carabins, as they were plied with questions by Varsity students, about their university, about Quebec politics, about their courses."

Snow Making Lecture Topic At RCI Meet

How Nature is imitated by science in the making of rain and snow was explained by Dr. Vincent J Schaefer, research chemist of the General Electric Company in Schnectady, N. Y., Saturday evening in Convocation Hall. Dr. Schaefer spoke on "Scientific Adventures in the Fields, Mountains and Sky" to the Royal Canadian Institute.

Using movies and slides to illustrate his lecture, the visiting lecturer discussed his laboratory research, his experiments on Mount Washington and in aircraft. Snow can be formed, explained Dr. Schaefer, out of cloud droplets that continue to exist as water even many degrees below freezing point.

Experimenting with aircraft during World War II, Dr. Schaefer found that flying difficulties in snowstorms were due to static electricity charged by the snow crystals. As the snow flakes shattered, they brushed over the surface of the plane and highly electrified the body. This produced so much static interference, the aircraft radio was rendered useless.

In the field of snowflake photography, Dr. Schaefer invented a method of making plastic replicas of the flakes so that the forms may be preserved and photographs taken whenever desired. Further study revealed that the large hexagonal flakes came from low-level clouds and each of the nine snow crystal forms come from a definite cloud home.

Experiments with a deep-freeze unit brought out that by using dry ice and water vapor, simple six-sided flat-plate crystals are produced, while with the substitution of nitric acid vapor, a triangular snowflake was formed. Similarly, other vapors produced other shapes of snowflakes.

Very little water exists in an ordinary cloud, Dr. Schaefer explained. In the gray stratus clouds found overhead in Toronto during winter, there is but one-tenth of an inch of rain and even in the thick summer thunderclouds, only an inch of rain if all cloud droplets were transformed to raindrops.

Optometry Show To Be Produced Early In March

The "Spectacle '49", annual stage review of the College of Optometry, will be presented in Hart House Theatre, March 7 and 8. The College was unable to obtain the theatre for a date earlier than the first week in March.

The show received the unanimous support of the undergraduates at a special meeting on Friday. It was felt by the student executive and faculty that the decision to have a show should rest with the undergraduates themselves.

Dean E. J. Fisher of the College promised the students the full support of the faculty to prevent examination dates conflicting with the show.

Ron McClung, director of "Spectacle '49", outlined the new plans for the show, including the award of a trophy to the class making the outstanding contribution.

May Get Paul Robeson To Be Debate Mentor

The University of Toronto Debating Union will send a team to Osgoode Hall to participate in a debate to be held there Tuesday. The topic for the debate will be, "Resolved that musicians and artists have contributed more to the progress of civilization than lawyers and politicians."

Martin Shubik, Graduate Studies, and Harvey Hay, Victoria, will be the University of Toronto team supporting the motion.

It is hoped that Paul Robeson, who will be coming to Toronto this week, will be able to act as one of the judges of this debate.

Claudia

Saturday night the University Extension Players extended their talents to "Claudia", a rather unrewarding vehicle in my opinion. After frequent exposures to Rose Franken's rudiments of reality I suppose one would learn to swallow such capsules as "You have to make friends with pain", but they still stick a little with me. Miss Franken is one up on other modern footlight prilosopher though: she's optimistic, which is different. Claudia not only swallows the above capsule (her mother dies), but has a baby, and hence grows up.

Of the cast, I liked Marilyn Headley best, in a lesser, somewhat pointless role. Michael Hamilton, as an English wolf, was also more than adequate. But it would take a skillful actress to make David's child-bride even tolerable (believable is out of the question): Grace Mazurek's Claudia was so hugely cute that I felt my rights as a private spectator were being encroached upon, and she seemed less naive than not quite bright. However, the whole thing had that charming, folksy intimacy it was supposed to have (intimacy is rather compulsory though in the Women's Union Theatre.); and the highlight of the evening came when one of the cast literally laid an egg.

Jazz Band Ball

Is New Orleans Jazz a thing of the past? If you think it is, the concert presented in the Lansdowne Assembly Hall on Thursday night would have changed your mind. Three bands were presented: The Delta Jazz Band, The Queen City Jazz Band, and Ken Dean's Hot Seven. There was some fine jazz played by all three of these groups, but I must make special mention of the Qneen City Band. They played with a wonderful ease, and yet their ensemble work was never untidy. "Dallas Blues" was the highlight of the evening. Soloists Bud Hill, Clyde Clark, Frank Mowatt, and Jack Pillips all played well. The number came to a close with five rousing ensemble choruses that brought the crowd to its feet cheering. Trombonist Hill was featured in a memorable edition of Waller's "Squeeze Me". This was the second time I had heard Mr. Hill this fall, and he again impressed me. His ideas were clean and he played with an amazing facility.

Trumpeter Bob Connelly and Trombonist Ron Sullivan were the best of the soloists offered by the Delta band. I couldn't hold back a slight shudder when the band lit into "Dark Town Strutters' Ball". Every man in the band seemed frantic. The gentleman playing the soprano saxophone assumed a facial expression not unlike Bugs Bunny chewing carrots. However, the Delta boys did offer two or three fine pieces of jazz. Ken Dean's band did not fare quite so well. They seemed to have trouble keeping together and in tune. Their rendition of "Jazz Me Blues" was one for the archives. Dean, however, played some fine trumpet, the best being his growl solo on "At the Jazz Band Ball".

EDWARD KYLIE TRUST AWARD

Application may be made to the Secretary of the Edward Kylie Trust on or before Saturday, December 11th, 1948, by candidates for the Edward Kylie Trust Award for the year 1949-50. These applications should be made in writing and should give particulars of the qualifications and record of the applicant with a view to the following requirements. The Award will be made to a male student who is a British subject, either a graduate or an undergraduate of Arts, preferably in the course of Modern History, at the University of Toronto, to enable him to pursue his studies in Great Britain. The Trustees shall make their award to that candidate who appears from his record at the University to be most likely to occupy a position of leadership and influence in the Community.

The sum available is Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($850.00) for the year 1949-50 and the Trustees may renew the Award for a second year if they are satisfied with the first year's record.

The Trustees, upon receiving applications, will arrange for the examination of the candidates and if the Trustees are not satisfied as to the suitability of any of the candidates they will have the right to withhold the Award.

Dated this 22nd day of November, 1948.

The Honourable Dana Porter,
Secretary, Edward Kylie Trust,
Room N220, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

COLE SCAN

In a recent editorial in Toronto's morning paper, there was a glowing tribute to the liberal ways of the University of Toronto. A fact of unusual significance prompted their ringing words of praise—a fact that should make every student, fraternity member, or anyone else associated with the University, look at the world with an untroubled eye and a mind of unbroken serenity. The Globe and Mail has discovered that over 200 negro students are in attendance at our university, and to quote them, 'It is good for the character of students to mingle with those from far-off lands.' It's nice to know that such a liberal attitude governs the policy at U. of T. In this manner, we are taking giant strides towards the destruction of racial prejudice.

TWILIGHT TEMPO BALL

Below The Surface

We usually think of the Quakers as the most peaceful of all men. Yet Logan Pearsall Smith describes the reaction at the Yearly Meeting in 1827 when Old-Elias Hicks used words considered heretical by strict Trinitarian Quakers. "Hundreds rose to their feet, canes were pounded on the floor. Many left the meeting, more remained with flushed faces and angry eyes." The Quakers split into two groups: Hicksites and the Orthodox.

Dr. Smith says, "At the time of the division these two factions fought each other like Quaker demons, quarreling over their meeting houses and burial places, and digging up their dead to save them from pollution, and these quarrels had left behind them a legacy of undying hate."

Such scenes can be documented from the history of Roman Catholics, Protestants, and Jews. There is always a tendency to violence when man meets an argument greater than his own powers of logic. It has been said that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Yes, and the vigilance had better be internal also. We need to examine the motives of our own souls.

There is a tolerance that consists merely of inertia or complete skepticism—nothing matters. On the other hand there is the tolerance of one who so profoundly believes in the faith he embraces that he fears no hostile criticism or nonconforming action. Those who have such a faith will probably accept this definition: "Tolerance does not mean that all men are equally right. Tolerance means that all men have an equal right to take their own chance of being wrong." This tolerance is based upon principle and not upon mere expediency. Minorites always believe in tolerance. It offers them their only chance to live and their only hope of ever becoming a majority. Canada is a nation of minorites. We have the right and the duty to ask every minority group including our own, "What will be your program if you become the dominant power in the State?"

I am ready to say and wish all men would say, "We promise to protect and preserve religious freedom of all men for all time in all countries as a matter of permanent principle and not as a program of temporary expediency. We promise the unbeliever no other molestation except that of being persuaded by love and logic to consider the claims of our faith."

It is only fair to recognize that there are some great Church leaders who do not accept the viewpoint presented in this article. Monsignor John A. Ryan frankly says in his book "Catholic Principles of Politics" (1940) that Protestants and other religious groups "may" be permitted to practice their own form of worship in a Catholic State, providing it is "carried on within the family circle or in such an inconspicuous manner as to be an occasion neither of scandal nor perversion to the faithful."

ART - MUSIC and DRAMA

Paul Robeson

Saturday evening Paul Robeson filled Massey Hall with a sound, perhaps best described as "black velvet." The voice of "Old Man River" fame is sufficiently well known to deman no further comment. Due partly to the type of song he sang (folk songs and spirituals) Mr. Robeson's delivery and demeanour were marked by ease and informality. There was no sense of ostentation or conscious artistry; he purely and simply sang. In the death scene from Mussorgsky's "Boris Godounov" he was dramatic without being theatrical, creating an emotional intensity which we associated with the greater parts of Robeson's "Othello."

Emil Gartner, conductor of the Jewish Folk Choir, is one of the few choir-masters who has consideration for the ceiling plaster. With his highly disciplined choir he created volume without noise and quiet tones without thinness or strain. The "Palestinian Nights" was a triumph in tone colour. In the Eastern European songs (Nishka, Un Du Akerst, Shir Haemek, Ovnt Glock) the intricate timing, compelling rhythms and fluid cadences were handled with an ease indicative of intense training and coordination. One carping note: Integration of soloist and choir was sometimes not as close as it might have been; possibly this was due to insufficient practice together.

Intruder In The Dust

The negro problem is not a new topic for Faulkner, for the world of Yohnapatawpha County is tied up inextricably with the black man. Hitherto, however, he has been concerned with recording the decadence of the South, exploring and interpreting by the use of myth the spiritual and material cataclysm of the Civil War, railing against the vicious and degrading industrialism that has left the agrarian South impoverished and morally empty.

With "Intruder in the Dust" (Ambassador: Random House $3.50) he has moved forward to an analysis of the negro-white situation in a strictly contemporary setting. In the central figure of Lucas Beauchamp, the negro who is almost lynched for someone else's crime, he has created again the symbol of the white man's guilt. Lucas, who refuses to accept anything from the white community is used by Faulkner to state his thesis, that the South must itself expiate its crimes against the negro, that anti-discriminatory laws are of no value, that the rest of America must mind its own business and allow the South to work out the problem itself.

It is interesting to see Faulkner, who has been one of the most outspoken critics of the South, take up the same stand that is held by most Southerners, in the insistence on being left absolutely alone to work out their problem. The recent Dixiecrat rebellion of Thurmond shows to what lengths the South will go to preserve what it construes to be its rights. Whether it is or not is questionable, but Faulkner has one strong point when he reminds the rest of America that although the slaves were freed almost one hundred years ago, their position, in the South at least, can not be said to have shown any considerable degree of improvement.

At one point in the novel Faulkner pauses to make a plea for the South. It is for him a guilty country, but at the same time an admirable one in that it has resisted strenuously the attempt to be forced into a sameness with the rest of America. He reiterates the value of a regional culture, claiming that in the homogeneity so achieved lies the moral and artistic strength of the nation.

Despite the sincerity of this novel it is one of Faulkner's less successful ones. It lacks the powerful contrast between violence and sensuous beauty that gives to Faulkner's style its peculiar beauty and intensity. Its main deficiency, however, is caused by a tendency to simplification. Since Faulkner has never before treated this problem as one of simplicity, it is rather dissappointing to see him solve it so glibly. "Intruder in the Dust" would seem to suggest that Faulkner had made his final statement on the Southern situation. I doubt very strongly that such will prove to be the case.

Yet this is an honest book, and almost certainly better than anything else the reader is likely to see published for some time.

How Penicillin makes jobs for Canadians

Penicillin, life-saving product of medical research, begins with cultures of green mold. As the mold grows it secretes small amounts of penicillin.

The production of penicillin and other drugs and vaccines demands absolutely sterile conditions. So the tanks, trays, tables, filters and other equipment used are made of Nickel alloys for ease of cleaning and resistance to corrosion.

Practically all drugs, medicines, serums and vaccines in use today are products of scientific research. In designing laboratory equipment for their production, International Nickel has cooperated by supplying technical information regarding the most suitable metals.

The large quantity of equipment required for pharmaceutical laboratories creates a new market for Canadian Nickel, and so increases employment for Canadians. Thus does research develop better products, increase the use of Canadian Nickel and create more employment.

HOCKEY

Women's hockey practices started last week in Varsity arena. This year thirteen teams are entering the inter-faculty leage which started January 6. Vic, UC, St. Hilda's, and PHE are all, producing two teams, while OT, Physio, Meds and School of Nursing will be represented by one each. A new addition is the entry of the girls from Institutional Management. Following up on last year's experimentation, women will referee all the games.

Lists were put up ahead of time for enthusiasts to sign but if anyone failed to do so she can still turn out for the try-outs if she watches the bulletin boards for practice schedules. The only requirements are skates, hockey stick, and good health. All participants must have a medical examination.

others close races throughout, but only managed to gain one point.

Marg Merrington set the pace for the new medley race, one length breast-stroke, one backstroke, and one freestyle. Her time was 54.5 seconds which will be a challenge to future medley racers. Marg also won the 50 yds. freestyle.

Another record was set in the Medley relay. The McGill team broke their own record with a time of one minute, 45 seconds. The Toronto relay team did better in the freestyle relay when they won by half a length. All te races except this one were very close.

Helen Currie swam in fishlike style for Queen's, winning the ornamental swimming, and pairing with a teammate to take the synchronized duet.

The water-polo players were at the pool cheering on their college mates. Their support did a lot toward egging on their team.

Hoop Blues Lose Three In US Trip

Playing their first games of the season in a tour through the United States, the senior basketball Blues failed to win even one game in three starts. Thoroughly outclassed in all games except the one against Buffalo State Teachers College, the Blues showed sad lack of practice, particularly in the line of defence.

Thursday night the Blues met Buffalo College in the Buffalo Armories before 1500 people. Varsity put up the best showing of all three games there, and the final result was Buffalo 44, Varsity 36.

A crowd of 3000 fans saw the Blues bow before Colgate University by a score of 99-30 in the Colgate Field House on Friday night. Two of the Colgate players were on the All-American second team last year, and the Blue players predict that one at least, Ernie Vanderweghe, will make the first string this season.

Colgate defensive play managed to keep Varsity from scoring for a full twelve and one half minutes after half time. Wally Zeaton twisted his ankle in this game and did not play on Saturday night.

Syracuse University downed Varsity 76-34 in the Coliseum on Saturday night. Over 3,500 enthusiasts attended the game. Adam Smalley netted 11 points for Varsity in this contest, and that proved to be the highest single scoring for the Blues in any one game.

Jack Gray suffered the not-too-enviable distinction of being forced to leave all three games as a result of fouls committed. The Blues attempted a new type of offensive which somewhat resembled their football attack. However, the Blues took too long putting it to work to make it effective. Large gyms and huge crowds also seemed to have their effect on the Blues' play.

The Blues play their next game on December eighth at Niagara, and their first home game will be played against Albion College on December eleventh. The regular league schedule strats on December seventeenth with Toronto playing at Buffalo.

Varsity lineup: Wally Zeaton, Johnny McManus, Bill LaChance, Jack Gray, Glen Petinger, Ted Luck, Doug Tyndall, Adam Smalley, John Mackenzie, Bob Henderson.

CARABINS vs. QUEENS

University of Montreal Carabins defeated Queen's 7-5 in Kingston Saturday to take a four point margin in the Intercollegiate hockey standings. Montreal have three wins and a loss for 6 points. Varsity and McGill have one victory each for two points, while Queen's has yet to break into the win column.

Outplay Carabins

Hershorn Cup Is McGill's Despite Friday Night Win

By DON WEINERT

The Hershorn Cup, indicative of Intercollegiate water polo supremacy, will leave its niche in Hart House trophy case and go to McGill by virtue of a McGill 3-2 win over the University of Toronto team Saturday night. The Toronto team defeated Queen's Tricolor Friday night by a 7-4 count, and immediately entrained for Montreal to take on the Montreal polo seven.

The Varsity team are current Dominion champs, having defeated Montreal YMHA in last year's Canadian finals. The squad got off to an auspicious start this year securing two wins in their first two starts in the Ontario Water Polo League.

Varsity had little trouble in disposing of the Queensmen on Friday night in Hart House Pool and Coach Bob Dunston and his men were pretty confident they had the team to win after their three wins in as many starts. This year's team started off with several gaping holes in the lineup left by graduates of last year. Dunston had to find replacements for Al Marshall and Warren Clayston who had dominated the intercollegiate acquatic scene for years.

McGill University's water polo squad in their first game of the season won a very close victory over the Toronto water-polars. McGill took an early lead in the first quarter on a goal by Don Walters. Before the clock had rolled around to the end of that quarter McGill had the Varsity team on the short end of a 2-0 count when Arthur Earle of the Redmen got the sphere into the net.

The University of Toronto seven fought hard to retain their crown in the second quarter and goals by Jimmy Crang and L. Rofen evened up the score at a 2-2 count, to end the second quarter.

In the last quarter Toronto was plagued by penalties. The McGill seven took full advantage of their opportunities and McGill centreman Walters came through the Toronto defense with a tally to put the Redmen out in front by one point. Toronto tried desperately to even up the count, but McGill were able to hold them out in the dying moments of the game for a 3-2 win.

Line-ups:—

Toronto—Goal, Newmen; defense, T. Rofen, H. Peacock; centre, L. Rofen; forwards, L. Curry, N. Mortimer; rover, J. Crang; subs., B. Maslen, T. Lloyd, D. Hubbard.

McGill—Goal, Austin; defense, Dickstein, Young; centre, Walters; forwards; Earle, Corrigan; rover, Cameron; subs., Berry, Johnston, Taylor.

McGill Women Edge Toronto In Swim Meet

Just like the men's water-poloists, the Women's Inter-collgiate swimming team were edged by McGill in Montreal on Saturday. The Varsity swimmers placed in every event but lost 28-25 to the Redwomen.

The Toronto team was ahead by two points until the diving results were announced after all the events were over, McGill won the diving and the Blues placed third to give the final count.

The whole meet was close. Queen's (21 points) led the scoring race at one point and Western (15 points) took the second race—the 50 yd. breaststroke. Their Jan Hicks won the event in 36.4 seconds to break the record held by Toronto's Phyl Haslam since 1935. McMaster had two good divers and gave the

By ED. SOKOLOWSKI

Whenever television makes its debut in Canada, the Collegiate Sports will be viewed from an entirely different angle. No more worries about obtaining ducats for that all important game, or standing in line at six in the morning will be a thing of the past.

With television, all that needs to be done is to grab a pennant of your favorite college in one hand, wrap your other hand around a bottle of refreshments, then make yourself comfortable in a nice easy chair and watch the fireworks.

The only disadvantage to this setup is that the host sometimes objects to dropping cigarette ashes on the new plush rug.

Where the stadium is large and the seats obtained are some place in the troposphore, then that's where this television comes in handy. The camera operators are handy. The camera operators are usually very efficient and can follow the complete play.

Watching the Notre Dame, Washington game, which Notre Dame won and extended their undefeated streak to 27 games (same as the Western Mustang record), we saw only one play where the cameramen followed the wrong player. The Notre Dame, operating from a T formation featured a fake buck through the line while the ball carrier went around the end. The deception was so good that the operator followed the man making the fake buck.

The picture viewed on the screen is a close up and the offensive backfield is shown in full view. The ball in a pass play can be followed through the air very easily and the intended receiver is also shown. With the commentary, this presents an even better picture of the game than actually being present at the Stadium.

Although this may not cut out the attendance record at the games, it will popularize sport to a great degree. In Toronto with a limited seating capacity in the biggest Stadium (which is Varsity Stadium) the television will allow the game to be seen by more people and thereby increase the popularity of the sport.

Fall Roundup

Masterson Reviews Rugby Year

By ED VOIGHT

"I was very, very pleased with Varsity's win over Western; pleased not only for the sake of the players, but also for the school. I was especially happy for those ten or twelve fellows who are graduating this year."

So said Bob Masterson, head rugby coach of the Varsity Blues in summing up the team's recent success in capturing the Yates Cup.

Championship In First Year

It isn't very often that a new coach wins a major championship in his freshman year. In fact, Warren Stevens himself has said that "Bob was really a year ahead of my schedule." And so, to coach Masterson must go well-earned congratulations.

"With some of the fellows like Steve Karrys, Pete Bennett, and Bruce Coulter flunking out, we really didn't know just what we were going to have this year till we hit that training camp. And even then, it was rather difficult with many first-year fellows and a brand-new system for the team," Bob went on.

"Yes, I was disappointed after the first Western game. But we made a few mistakes. Western got a big lead, and we just couldn't catch up to them."

Improving In Queen's Game

"And even though we lost that first Queen's game, I still had high hopes. Our timing was better, the line was blocking better, and—well—we just started to go better, that's all. For the rest of the schedule, I felt the team was getting better all the time, and in our pass plays especially."

We asked Bob which of the Western games had given him the bigger thrill?

"Well, for myself, I was just as happy after both games. But the added fact of winning the championship makes the final game just that much better, I suppose," Bob replied.

Broke Big Record

"I will say though, that it was really something for the boys to have a chance to beat an undefeated team like Western. It isn't often that a team runs up such an impressive record as the Mustangs did, and it must have been very pleasing to our boys to knock 'em off, especially to the dozen or so graduating this spring."

Bob had a gripe with those reporters who lamented over the extent of the Mustangs' injuries.

"Western's injuries weren't really that bad. Why Bob McFarlane was only a sub in that first Western game. And for the rest of their injuries, they were mostly subs."

"But look at our own injuries," Bob pointed out. "I lost Beatty, Lloyd, Peppiatt, and Clarke for a large part of the season. I was counting heavily on those boys, too."

"At any rate, the students here at the U. of T. won't have to wait till the McFarlanes and Parry graduate from Western till Varsity beats them."

"Toogood Deserved Trophy"

When we asked him about the Popular Player trophy, Bob replied that "Teddy Toogood certainly deserved it. The students voted for him, so I guess that's all that's necessary."

"You might also say that Tommy Waldon called real good football all year. Although Ken McIntyre was listed in all the dailies as the quarterback, and even though he called the numbers on snapouts, it was Tommy who called the signals in the huddles. He called some real nice games."

Now It's Basketball

"But the basketball season is here now," Bob commented. "I haven't had time to look after the practices, Barry Lowes taking over for me. But I've got high hopes, and with some good new boys coming up, I think we'll have a better team than last year."

All we can say is that the student body here at the U. of T. will be quite satisfied if the hoopla squad has as good a season as the rugby Blues. Yes, we'll be quite satisfied, Bob.

Support NFCUS-IUS Union To Help World Student Body

Undergrad Debaters Plead

Insular Attitude Seen Detrimental To Student World

A strong decision in favour of affiliation between the National Federation of Canadian University Students and the International Union of Students was registered at a debate held in the Junior Common Room, University College yesterday afternoon. The vote was 50 to 14 in favour of the motion. "This House believes that NFCUS should join the IUS now."

George Wilkes, Chairman of the Toronto NFCUS Committee and Nancy McCormick, Vice-President of the National NFCUS Committee spoke for the motion. Joan Bowers, NFCUS representative for St. Hilda's College and David Stanley, IV Trinity, opposed the resolution.

Important Decision

Wilkes, opening the debate stressed the importance of the subject. "The decision that this house makes will be of importance to Canadian students as a whole," he stated. "We have been too long in making a decision", he claimed, "too long have we been sitting on the fence between isolationism and international co-operation."

"We have a responsibility not only to Canadian students, but to the youth of other countries," he said. Attacking the charge that neither IUS nor NFCUS are representative student groups Wilkes declared that IUS is the most representative international student body today, and "certainly will not be representative if we stay out of it."

"We of the opposition favour NFCUS affiliation with IUS", stated Joan Bowers, speaking for the opposition, "but we differ on one major point." She claimed that NFCUS was not strong enough to join IUS at the moment, and should wait until it does a better job at home before attempting to provide concrete assistance to IUS. The opposition felt that work in the international field be left to other organizations like ISS. "In this way," she declared, "NFCUS would not be avoiding the problem but leaving it on the shoulders of other organizations."

Not only would NFCUS not be avoiding the problem but they would actually be helping IUS, Miss Bowers stated. "IUS will know that they are being watched by 75,000 Canadian students and that will act as a check on IUS because they will not antagonise such a large group." One of the speakers from the floor later doubted that IUS would worry too much about what Canadian students thought about it, pointing out that the membership of IUS was over "two million".

Nancy McCormick, in a stirring address for the motion, declared that if "NFCUS were to assume a mugwump position it would have no voting power, no voice in IUS policy, and if they did join later it would look as if they were "jumping on the bandwagon when we

Contributions for the annual Literary Issue of THE VARSITY may be delivered to THE VARSITY news office in the east basement, University College. Entries will be received of short stories, essays on any subject, serious verse and light verse. This year a photography competition will replace the competition for art exhibits. Cash prizes will be awarded. The deadline for contributions is December 8.

The Literary Supplement is planned to give all undergraduates an opportunity to have their literary material published. Judges will be members of the university staff.

Victoria College Student Assembly Favors Affiliation

By a vote of 27 to 18, the Victoria College Assembly voted in favor of affiliation of the National Federation of Canadian University Students with the International Union of Students at its meeting in Alumni Hall last night.

The resolution, submitted to the assembly by Miss Pat Coles, women's SAC representative, read as follows: That this Assembly recommend unconditional affiliation of NFCUS with IUS.

Speaking in support of her resolution, Miss Coles said our duty is to enter IUS now and prevent any blockade in the exchange of international ideas. She said we must not adopt an ivory tower view and remain aloof from this organization. We must work now for the ideals for which in the past we were ready to fight.

Most of the opposition to affiliation arose from a misunderstanding of what it would do. Affiliation, she said, would lead to the exchange of ideas and ideologies.

Doug Love, Men's SAC representative, said he opposed affiliation of NFCUS with IUS on the grounds that the latter organization did not carry out the full obligations as laid down by its constitution; i.e., the betterment of all students all over the world. Proof of this could be seen in the way they handled the plight of the Czech students after the coup d'etat of the Communists last spring, he stated.

The IUS is Communist-dominated and there is no chance of NFCUS altering this policy he said. If we were to enter affiliation with the idea that we would try to alter this policy, it would lead to a conflict of political ideas and the organization would not do anything towards the betterment of students, Love said.

The main opposition to the motion, if the remainder of the speeches from the floor can be taken as any criterion, came from the belief that IUS was Communist-dominated.

"The decision of the Assembly is fairly indicative of the overall student body of this college," Stan Kurisko, Publicity Director of the VCA said.

Canada's Students Spoiled States French Ambassador

Although Canada has made a phenomenal advance in the world of economics and politics since the turn of the century, in the intellectual world it has not attained its place as yet, said His Excellency Francisque Gay, French Ambassador to Canada, addressing a large audience of staff and student members in West Hall, UC, yesterday.

M. Gay who was prominent in the field of journalism and politics in France before the war and his subsequent appointment as Ambassador, showed a high degree of knowledge about the economic development of Canada. This knowledge he traces to his "avid and passionate interest in anything Canadian ever since my early youth."

Admired Laurier

M. Gay was a great admirer of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the 1900's, and, like Laurier, he believes that Canada has a great part to play in the world and that in the future "the world will turn to Canada."

Commenting on the part being played by Canada in the United Nations Assembly, M. Gay said that Canada is now recognized in the role of director and conciliator, and possesses a permanent seat on the Assembly. M. Gay pointed out that this success of Canada is greatly due to its rise in the economic and political world especially since the war. "The 19th Century was the century of the United States," said M. Gay, "but the 20th will undoubtedly be that of Canada."

Visits All Canada

In his travels in Canada, M. Gay has visited everyone of our universities and his general impression after doing so is that the students here are being spoiled. "Our students in France do not have the laboratory equipment which you have here in your universities to work with. As a matter of fact we are a little ashamed when we look back on the conditions under which our scientists work. But on the intellectual level Europe still has a lot from which Canadian universities benefit through imitation."

Appeals To Races

Concluding his address, M. Gay issued an appeal to the two races of French and English Canadians to strive towards unity through an honest attempt at understanding each other.

The French Ambassador to Canada was introduced by M. Paul Martin, the French Consul. Also on the platform was President Smith who, while thanking M. Gay for his address, said "an ambassador has been called an honest man sent abroad to lie for the good of his country. In this case, it does not apply."

Students Protest Law Society Ban Of Gordon Martin

Vancouver, Dec. 6 —(CUP)— One thousand University of British Columbia students protested the action of the British Columbia Law Society in banning Gordon Martin on grounds of his Communist sympathies and called upon the B.C. Legislature to amend the Legal Profession Act "so that a candidate's beliefs and political affiliations may not be considered in judging his fitness to practice law in British Columbia."

Martin told the meeting that the decision of the benchers in banning him because he allegedly supported the opinions expressed in the Communist Manifesto of 1848 made no more sense than would the banning of a Liberal because he supported the revolution of William Lyon MacKenzie 111 years ago.

VIC DEBATING PARLIAMENT

Victoria College Debating Parliament will debate the question of Canada's sending of military aid to China at 4 p.m., in Alumni Hall, Vic.

Complete Report On Student Union To Be Presented

A complete report on the proposed Students' Memorial Union is expected from the SAC Working Committee by the end of this week. Gray Perkins, I Trinity, stated in an interview yesterday. Perkins is acting for Gordon Gwynne-Timothy, President of the SAC and Chairman of the committee. Reports from the sub-committees are in and the committee will spend the rest of this week integrating and writing a final report to be presented to the next meeting of the SAC.

Both Gwynne-Timothy and Perkins expressed their thanks to the more than 150 people who have assisted the Working Committee and to the individuals and organizations approached who co-operated with them.

The Working Committee divided its task into seven parts, each under a sub-committee: Social, Intellectual, Activities, Games, Service, Food and Maintenance. Every aspect of the proposed student union was investigated, including cafeterias, snack bars, lounges, music facilities, rehearsal rooms, offices for the SAC, Torontonensis and The Varsity, a radio studio, bowling alleys, card room, a ticket agency, a post office, a bank, and maintenance facilities.

Dinner, Dancing, Athletics, At ISO Christmas Festival

The newly formed Ajax International Student Organization has co-operated with the local I.S.O. in completing plans for a Christmas party to be held at Ajax, Monday, Dec. 27.

The afternoon program includes volleyball, bowling, and ping-pong, and a music hour in the Music Room of Hart House. Card, checker and chess enthusiasts will have an opportunity to pursue their interests.

The feature of the day will be a Christmas dinner with all the trimmings, followed by a sing-song led by Bill White, brother of the well-known Portia White.

There will be dancing between 8.30 and 10.30 p.m.

Tickets will be one dollar and a half for non-members and one dollar for members. Admission price will include transportation. Club members may purchase their tickets at the business meeting and dance being held in the Junior Common Room, on Friday, Dec. 19. The general ticket sale will start Tuesday, Dec. 14, in the U.C. rotunda.

Bus transportation to Ajax will leave Soldiers Tower at 1.30 p.m. Anyone driving with extra car space is asked to contact the executive.

P.C. Social Security Planks To Be Discussed by Fleming

Donald Fleming, Progressive-Conservative M.P. for Eglinton, will speak at an open meeting of the Progressive Conservative Club today at 4 p.m. in Room 8 U.C. His topic will be "Social Security in the P.C. Platform."

Mr. Fleming, who graduated from the U. of T. in 1925, received his LL.B. from the University in 1930, and was first elected to the House of Commons in the general elections of 1925, and was one of the three main contenders for the Progressive-Conservative party leadership at the conference in October. He is fluently bilingual and received much of his support from Quebec representatives.

Just two weeks ago, Mr. Fleming returned from a trip to Europe undertaken chiefly to attend the meetings of the British Empire Parliamentary Association in London. During a subsequent tour of Europe, he took advantage of an opportunity to see Berlin and inquire into conditions there.

Before being elected to the House of Commons, Mr. Fleming took part in Toronto city affairs. He has been a member of the Board of Education and the Toronto City Council. Created a K.C. in 1944, he is also a member of the Senate of the University of Toronto.

DONALD FLEMING

Members of the University who are interested in what the Progressive-Conservative party plans to do about measures of social security are invited to come to hear Mr. Fleming.

What's Wrong With College?

(Reprinted below is a student's letter published in the Queen's Journal last week. Although we don't agree with everything he says, he has some stimulating remarks to make about the whole concept of modern education.)

What is the matter with universities today? We find students dragging themselves to classes, falling asleep, wearily writing notes about things in which they cannot be? come interested, spending their spare time trying to escape from the monotony of living, filling their ears with meaningless music, their lungs with smoke, their bellies with beer, and their heads with sawdust. Are these the best years of our lives?

The causes of this deplorable situation are threefold: the system, the professors, and the students themselves.

Let us begin with the system. First of all, it seems to be divorced from life, cloistered, hermetically sealed. Dry facts are shovelled at us by experts, we copy down their statements, we regurgitate . . . we learn facts, thousands of facts about English, Philosophy, Economics, Geology, etc., 90 per cent of which we forget.

And a lot of us are bored to tears.

Education which should prepare us to meet life, to believe in something positive, to debate and discuss facts, stamped with our own mental sweat and tested by a thousand discussions, to get along in marriage and raise self-reliant, tolerant children, to be thinking citizens conscious of municipal, national and international problems, to be ourselves, has become a frustrating experience. University has become a place in which to hide away from the world, a way-side inn for pilgrims on the path of least resistance, a place in which to miss as many lectures and do as little work as we can, and to emerge with a degree so that we can earn our daily bread.

The final product is a dependent parrot, unsure of himself and his philosophy, skeptical about his religion, ignorant of his politics, wanting fun and more fun, worrying about the color of his tie, unable to think or discuss logically, anxious about the future, like a red zebra on a merry-go-round. We have become wastrels in a "waste land".

The professors come next. Instead of deliberately provoking and stimulating us to think and discuss things with them we get buried under a mass of facts which we must learn by rote in order to pass an exam. Our facts are swallowed too fast, poorly digested and used, with the result that we have constipation when we would be better off having diarrhoea. For the love of God, let us have half an hour of lecturing, where basic principles and important facts are presented, and then let us get into the intellectual arena and test the fibre of our minds, taking nothing for truth that we have not bought with our own mental effort.

Please, please, don't send us to read what somebody wrote about Marx or Spengler or Adam Smith; send us to read "The Manifesto" or "The Decline of the West". Then let us thresh out their weaknesses and strength so that they may mean something to all of us.

We Were Wrong

Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir:

May I beg humble audience with a distinguished graduate of the great University of Toronto? "Toronto is to be congratulated" on the fact that you received the skin of a sheep as one of its more magnanimous gestures. Perhaps that too, should "have been nipped in the bud."

In case you suffer from amnesia as well as delusions of grandeur, I refer to your editorial on page two of The Varsity, dated November 15th.

In fact, University of Saskatchewan students council wired Dean Johnson's agents in Toronto (that's where you are from isn't it?) on Nov. 7th, quote: Would it be possible to have the very Reverend Hewlett Johnson address an open meeting of the student body when he visits Saskatoon?"

I would refer you to article entitled "Red Dean's Tour" on page two of The Sheaf dated November 23rd (we assume you read), also quote: "no such onimous rumblings" (of veto at McGill, George Williams' College, and Alberta) have been heard from the university authorities or S.R.C. here nor are there likely to be. The University of Saskatchewan administration has more common sense and integrity than some."

Also read (hope your eyes stand the strain) quote: "Red Dean Johnson coming to campus Dec. 7th," in Ubyssey dated Nov. 12th. Please allow me the unique privilege of congratulating the University of Toronto the next time.

Please publish with best regards.

Ace Beach,
Editor of the Sheaf.

Editor Beach refers to an editorial in The Varsity of November 15th which asserted that the University of Saskatchewan refused permission for an address on the campus by the Dean of Canterbury.

We apologize for giving the wrong impression. Like so many other newspapers we have condemned in the past, we fell victim to a "usually well-informed source" which wasn't so well-informed after all.

The editorial was written one week before we received a copy of the Sheaf (University of Saskatchewan newspaper) indicating the Dean would be allowed to speak there.

RAPS PARKING BAN

The Editor, The Varsity:

Perhaps you can clarify a matter which has now attained the status of a public nuisance around the University. I refer to the parking ban in effect around the inner circle of the front campus.

Up to the present time no one has come forward with an explanation of this measure, and it is my purpose to bring the attention of those responsible to some of the discomforts and other consequences which this ban has brought about.

The Toronto Police Department (bless their little pointed heads) are presently engaged in enforcing a by-law which states that in effect no car may be parked in any street for a period of more than three hours. As a direct result of the present parking regulations at the University, the cars which would normally surround the front campus are currently collecting parking tickets.

I would like to suggest that the large staff now employed to prevent parking in the inner circle be used to make sure that parking is carried out in the approved manner in this area; and failing this restoration of privileges would be very interested to know the reason preventing same.

Derek M. Foulds, IV SPS.

According to University officials in the Superintendent's Office parking on the University grounds was becoming too congested, especially around the front campus road. They are concerned over the safety problem which this congestion was producing on the narrow roads. Parking on the inside road has been banned for greater traffic safety; a fear that some pedestrian might emerge from behind a parked car into the path of an oncoming car. The Superintendent's Office are also concerned about the fire hazard. They fear it might be impossible to get adequate equipment to a building in case of fire and expect easier access to buildings by having cars banned from the inside of the road. —Ed. Note.

Gilson's Talk Outlines Role Of Philosophy

The practical importance of philosophical knowledge was stressed in a Sunday afternoon address by Professor Etienne Gilson on "Science and Metaphysics," first of a series of annual lectures under the auspices of the St. Michael's College Thomistic Society.

Philosophy vs Science

Professor Gilson contrasted philosophical with scientific knowledge, stating that he believed a clearer picture of the place of philosophy could be gained by this opposition. "Philosophical knowledge," he said, "permeates society although many people do not even know the meaning of the word 'metaphysics.' Modern man lives according to ideas of whose philosophical origins he is often unaware."

"Science deals with the 'what' and the 'how' of things while metaphysics is concerned with the 'why' of them and the final causes of phenomena," said the speaker. "I know," he continued, "that there is purpose in the universe, for I find purpose in myself. Since I am a part of nature, I therefore conclude that there is purposiveness in nature."

Science Partly a Failure

Professor Gilson declared that science, as a rational demonstration of sense knowledge, was within its rights. It has, however, he maintained, been a failure insofar as it has broken away since the 17th and 18th centuries from philosophy and tried to set itself up as philosophic system in itself.

Science, he concluded, must leave to metaphysics the questions it alone is qualified to answer.

Local Males Lax; Girls Take Lead As Cupid's Aides

Wolfville, Dec. 6—(CUP)—Canadian girls may not know how to use their eyes for that "come hither" look as the University of British Columbia's Costa Rican boys claim, but with Canadian men as backward as they are, the women folk could certainly use something like that.

That's the opinion of Acadia's girls from away south of the border. Canadian girls don't exactly have to go out and club down their men, but their tactics have to be too near that level for comfort.

"Canadian men just aren't aggressive enough" was the unanimous opinion of the South American girls. "They leave altogether too much to the women." Canadian boys go in for high romance or nothing. They don't know the meaning of group fun or double dates. Their only idea in going out is to get a girl off by herself.

CHINESE TEA

A Chinese Tea will be held in Wymilwood, 4.00 - 6.00 p.m. There will be Chinese folk dancing, and a short talk will be given by Dr. Marcus Cheng of Shanghai.

La Revue Bleu et Or

Fernand Laflamme, one of the cast of the Carabins' "Revue Bleu et Or" does a lively imitation of "Charles Tenet" during the colorful presentation here last Saturday evening. A visit to Montreal by Toronto students to renew old acquaintances is hoped for in the New Year.

New Jump at Collingwood To Attract Varsity Skiers

Since the first snow flurries a number of questions have been asked concerning skiing at the University. "Where can I ski?" "Is there any competitive skiing?" and "What are skis?" This last question cannot be answered othen than by "boards". The ski club functions to provide both recreational and competitive skiing for both skiing he's and shes. The club has a women's and a men's executive and a combined standing committee on skiing with representatives from each faculty. Anyone paying athletic fees is eligible for membership to the club.

The activities on the campus have been bi-weekly meetings with pictures and talks.

For those interested in recreational skiing there is the Newmarket property with a tow. There is also a cabin with facilities for cooking meals. This is a good training ground for the cross-country enthusiasts and the jumpers. The 20-meter jump is an excellent practice jump and has been used yearly for the inter-faculty meet. To use this property the skier is obliged to contribute thirty cents.

The University of Toronto ski team competes in the senior division of the Intercollegiate Ski Union composed of teams from the top ten skiing colleges in eastern America. Toronto skis against such topnotchers as Middlebury, Dartmouth and McGill. The skiers for this team, eight in number, train and are picked from their showing at Collingwood. For training the club has constructed a cabin at Collingwood. A new addition this year is a 50-meter jump. This jump was constructed in conjunction with the Toronto Ski Club. Also new at Collingwood is the hair-raising downhill cut of the Toronto Ski Club. This area now offers training for four events.

The women also field a team composed of four members. This team competes against McGill.

Sports Cup For Reporters Is Donated By G. W. Porter

A $50 trophy was presented to The Varsity yesterday by George W. Porter, head of the Porter Construction Co. The new trophy, to be known as the George Porter Trophy, is to be presented yearly to the team making the highest aggregate points in a series of inter-staff football, basketball and hockey games.

Two teams will be chosen yearly, one from the sports staff and one from the news. The teams will play one football game, one basketball game and one hockey game.

The points are to be granted as follows: Two points for a win and one point for a tie

Mr. Porter, a resident of Highland Creek, was on the board of the Toronto Harbor Commission for 15 years. He is a governor of the Toronto East General Hospital and active in civic affairs.

AWARD FELLOWSHIPS

Dr. Geraldine Maloney, Dr. Nelson Henderson and Dr. Crawford Shier of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology have been awarded fellowships by examination in the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada.

"Political Trickery" Is Charge Levelled At Hogan's Speech

"Hogan's speech was a political trick. I am convinced that his remarks were not based on what I said in my keynote speech, but that it was made up ahead of time in the Progressive Conservative headquarters," said Dr. J. G. Endicott, national organizer for the Toronto Peace Council, yesterday.

Charges Fraud

He was referring to the charge made by George Hogan, one of four delegates from the University of Toronto Peace Council to the Toronto Peace Conference held last Friday and Saturday. Hogan, president of the U. of T. P.C. Club, said the conference was a "fraud" and that it was inviting Russian aggression by "tearing down... measures of security" and "placing... our security in the hands of the United Nations."

Hogan added: "When I go back to the university campus I therefore intend to expose this organization for the fraud it is..." Questioned how he meant to "expose this fraud" yesterday Hogan stated "At the next meeting of the Students' Peace Council I intend to make it clear what this so-called Peace Council is doing. The provisional committee of the Toronto Peace Council was loaded with communists and fellow travellers."

Calls It "Mean Trick"

One of three other Varsity delegates to the Peace Conference, Bill Gagnon, III U.C., provisional chairman of the Students' Peace Council said "George was representing the Progressive Conservatives. From the beginning I felt that he was in there to sabotage the whole thing but, in all honesty, it was only fair that he should be able to express his views." Gagnon was not present at the conference.

"I was surprised," Gagnon continued, "that he lowered himself to the extent that he did in political manoeuvring. He should go places in the Progressive Conservative party from now on. As far as political manoeuvring goes, he is thoroughly within his rights although it was a mean trick."

Another Varsity delegate, Omar Walmsley, I Divinity, was present at the conference for all but the last two hours on Saturday afternoon. He did not hear Hogan's speech because he was preparing the report for the "Church and Peace" panel discussion held Saturday morning. The statement he issued was supported in its entirety by Joan Eddis, the fourth delegate from the campus.

"Unfortunately," said Walmsley, "I was not present when Mr. Hogan spoke, but I cannot agree with the attack he made on the Peace Conference, as reported in the Toronto Globe and Mail. The conference welcomed divergent view points as long as they resulted from a sincere acceptance of one basic principle,—namely that 'World peace must be maintained at all costs (and) that all disagreements must be settled through .... the United Nations', as Dr. Endicott said in his keynote address Friday night."

Say War Necessary

"No sensible man to-day", Walmsley continued, "whether Christian, Capitalist or Communist, doubts that there are fundamental ideological differences between the east and west. The issue at the Peace Council was rather whether or not this is sufficient grounds for fighting another suicidal war. The majority opinion of the Peace Conference was that war is not necessary and can be prevented.

"Naturally the first concern of the conference was to study and analyse factors in Canada and the U.S. which are helping increase the danger of war. This does not mean that the conference condoned the policies of Russia, rather we realistically worked in the only area which we could effectively influence,—our government and its relations to the U.S. and the U.N."

Steve Endicott, LPP Club president and provisional secretary of the Students' Peace Council, said "Hogan did not fulfil his duties as a delegate of the Students' Peace Council. He didn't attend the panel discussion on resolutions. Furthermore Saturday afternoon he brought two reporters with him, delivered a prepared speech and then walked out without listening to any discussion."

Dr. W. Thompson Named New Head At Saskatchewan

Saskatoon, Dec. 6. —(CUP)— Dr. William Palmer Thompson has been appointed the new president of the University of Saskatchewan, Mr. Justice H. Y. MacDonald, Chairman of the Board of Governors announced last week.

Dr. Thompson will assume his new post on June 1, 1949. He replaces Dr. J. S. Thompson, present president, who leaves to take over his new post as Dean of the College of Divinity at McGill at that time.

In making the appointment, Mr. Justice MacDonald said, "With his scholarship and background of wide experience in academic and administrative affairs, we feel that we have in Mr. Thompson a worthy successor to the distinguished gentlemen who filled the office before him."

Dr. Thompson is at present Dean of the College of Arts and Science and head of the biology department of the University of Saskatchewan. He is president of the Royal Society of Canada and a member of the National Research Council.

He graduated in biology from the University of Toronto in 1911. Dr. Thompson took his master's degree and doctorate at Harvard. He was appointed head of the biology de-

No Daffydil Night Tickets For Pre-Medical Students

Pre-medical students who had hoped to be able to purchase tickets for Daffydil Night are "just out of luck," according to Art Chisholm, chairman of the Daffydil Committee.

"There has been tremendously increased interest shown in the production this year," Chisholm said, "and it is unfortunate that pre-med students will be unable to see it. However, the committee feels that the show is primarily designed for medical students, and the type of humor is based on terms and situations not yet familiar to the pre-med student. There are few, if any, pre-med students in the show."

Chisholm said that, based on ticket sales in previous years, it had appeared earlier there would be a sufficiency of tickets for all those who wished them, including students of outside faculties. But, owing to increased popularity, all show tickets had been spoken for by medical students and graduates. "No tickets were sold this year to outside faculties," he added.

To Discuss China At Debate Today

"That this house disapproves of sending military aid to China," is the resolution to be discussed in Victoria College's Alumni Hall at 4 p.m., today, during the third in a series of debates currently sponsored by the Victoria College Debating Parliament. Roy Neehall, III Vic, and Shirley Endicott, I Vic, will defend the resolution; speaker for the opposition will be Andy McEwen, IV Vic, and Gord McLelland, IV Vic.

Neehall said, when asked for a comment on the resolution, "The revolution of the Chinese people against the Chiang-Kai-Shek type of government has been going on for a hundred years and concerns the Chinese people and the Chinese people alone. No foreign intervention is necessary nor appreciated by the Chinese people."

McLelland commented, "China is in a strategic position, not only in relation to the Far East, but the whole world. The security of the democratic nations and the Christian way of life depends on the outcome of the struggle in China. It is a question of ideologies. If we don't send military aid to China we are courting disaster."

PLAYERS' GUILD

Victoria and U.C. will hold their first co-operative studio night Wednesday in the Women's Union Theatre.

"Rizzio's Boots", presented by U.C., is directed by Isabel Ward, and features Alla Filippula. Their second play is "The Lady of Larkspur Lotion", by Tennessee Williams and stars Estelle Creew, with Art Livingston directing.

Victoria will offer August Strindberg's "The Stronger", a monologue type drama, starring Eleanor Swan. The play is directed by Dave Gardner.

Gift Of Understanding

By JANET HARBRON

Christmas is a time of giving, one of the few seasons in the year when people en masse feel a responsibility to others in a general way. It's also an excellent time to stop and think in terms of continuity of responsibility, to people as people during the 365 days of the coming year.

We all find it easy at this season, when commercialism is at fever pitch, to develop an acute awareness of the needs and desires of others. But couldn't this awareness be carried on in a non-materialistic sense through the less exalted months to follow?—a carry-over of the Christmas spirit.

At university we seek one of the most valued possessions in life, understanding. Sometimes it is an understanding of situations, political, economic, or social; in other cases an understanding of people as individuals. But at least we are able to open our collective minds at the door marked understanding. This opportunity can be shared with others. In the season of giving it is equally wise to consider giving of the intangibles as well as the tangibles.

Theoretical and idealistic we might say. Very true, but it is within our powers as members of the University to apply understanding in one practical field, the University Settlement.

Here there are people of all ages commencing with the very young, eager for the companionship of those sincerely interested in them. Most of us have talents to offer. Some shine in the field of interest groups, which encompass music, arts and crafts, dramatics, sign-painting, dancing and many more. Perhaps our aptitudes lie in other directions. At the Settlement there is a wonderful opportunity for students if they are concerned with human problems, a common denominator for us all.

It has been suggested that a Volunteer Bureau be established to indicate to the Settlement, and similar social agencies, the available supply of students who would undertake this type of extra-curricular work. Perhaps it has possibilities as a student project. Whatever the talent we possess, whether understanding in the field of emotions, or in the arts, such groups as the University Settlement are eager to welcome us.

Distaff Side

By PAULA ZUMSTEIN and MARGOT MURRAY

Discussions and questions have arisen following addresses on the Student Union by Gordon Gwynne-Timothy, president of the S.A.C. The greatest concern of the women was the desire for a swimming pool and the fear that athletic facilities would be forgotten.

What is the attitude of the university women toward the proposed Student Union?

We want a Student Union is the almost unanimous reply but also we want a Women's Athletic Building. The necessity of obtaining better facilities for women's athletics has been recognized by the university. A power plant, library and a residence for University College men head the University Expansion priority list but a women's Athletic building is on that list. It is coming. Whether the needs of the whole university will be best fulfilled by making it a wing, or floor of the Student union will be determined when plans for the construction are developed.

What facilities do women want most in the Union?

The survey conducted by the Students' Administrative Council revealed that women's desires are practical. A Beauty Shoppe, outdoor barbecue, and lounging terrace were felt to be unnecessary. Much more popular were Commuter's lunch room, Varsity, Torontonensis and S.A.C. offices, dining halls and men's and women's lounges. The American colleges have found that women are much more apt to use a co-ed lounge than their own, while men stay in the men's lounge.

Who would use the Union?

Everyone. The Blue and White Society, the language clubs, the debating union, the Players' Guild, the band and many other campus organizations are dependent on the various colleges for rooms in which to meet. Wymilwood, St. Hilda's and the University College Women's Union arrange to let these groups use their facilities but there is not enough space for everyone.

What if I have no money to give toward a union?

Money will not be the only way in which to help realize the dream for this living war memorial. Organization and planning committees will need members. Take the example of McMaster University students who built their recreation hall with the help of student labor. The men assembled the materials and the women painted and decorated the interior.

The women of the university have a definite responsibility in helping to make the proposed student Union a concrete reality. Anyone who has suggestions or questions should direct them to his or her college representative on the Students' Administrative Council.

Work Proves Interesting For Modern History Grad

By NAN McKENZIE

A little man about four feet high was walking upstairs backwards with a large silver hat that came down over his eyes and a cane to match gripped in his left hand. The other hand was the object of a tall, trim, laughing woman's reach.

"He's so sleepy," chortled his adult companion, "that he doesn't know what he's doing."

I left the University Settlement on Grange Street, with the mental picture of a grubby little boy being guided kindly and jocundly up the stairs by the pleasant-faced Miss Donaldson, Head Worker of the house.

A short while before, we had been sitting in a room, "the confused condition of which is typical at the moment of my mind", said Miss Mary C. Donaldson. "I love children", she told me, and indeed after 20 years' association with mischievous little boys and girls, she has proven her point. "It isn't monotonous; I wouldn't have stayed this long," smiled the easy-mannered, dark-haired woman, "if I hadn't liked it. I started in Modern History and in those days all women graduates were teachers or nurses." So Miss Donaldson taught History in the winter and for an adventure went to Camp Bolton in the summer.

Teaching she disliked, but her summers brought a new enjoyed occupation for she found she just had the knack of conducting people. She liked it and found that they did; so she applied and was accepted as a social worker at the Settlement house. "I led boys' hockey teams," she grinned. Keen participation in Varsity Women's Sports stood her in good stead on those chill windy Saturday mornings blowing her whistle at the fellas charging down the hockey cushion.

A problem child is given special attention but if emotional disturbance is apparent it is sent to the Mental Hygiene Clinic or to case workers like the Big Brothers. The noisy hubbub is a natural thing on the premises and concern is called forth only at the sharp pitched shrieks or lusty yells that occasionally pierce through the general busy commotion.

One such call summoned quick Miss Donaldson to her feet and out her study door to send back down stairs one exceedingly energetic little chap who had chased three small screaming girls into hiding behind a locked bathroom door.

She gets a holiday though. A whole month is given every worker along with ten days in the Christmas season. You might think she would choose to spend that month in some environment extremely different from her year-round setting—some exotic spot with scented nights and a band of rodeos and bronchos. She stays on at the settlement's summer camp. However, she does make one concession; she takes her holidays after everyone has left and she can enjoy the blue lakes and shady trees in peace and contentment.

The house, where children are such an important part of life, just has to include animals. Two black cocker spaniels, Patsy and Dusty, are "really characters", and Ricky an amiable little puss keep the children happy. In turn the vivacious children large and small keep Miss Donaldson so happy and busy that she looks with mild amazement at the calendar and reckons up the two decades that have given her some of "the best years of her life."

Group Activities For All At University Settlement

By ANNE BURTON

If you happen to walk into the University Settlement House at 23 Grange Rd. (we did) some morning about ten o'clock, you will probably find a score or three of children happily engaged in "expressing themselves." Danny and Laurie are having a tea-party, Margie builds a skyscraper—of blocks, three or four youngsters race around on tricycles, and the rest of the swarm are just as busily occupied with an assortment of other toys. If you stay on the scene a little longer, you will find that this is only a fragment of the morning nursery class which includes periods for music, dancing, drawing, recreation, a small snack, and a "rest."

The University Settlement, however, is not merely a prekindergarten venture. Far from it. The Settlement is the community centre of its neighbourhood. Any man, woman, or child living in the district bounded by Yonge, Bathurst, College, and Front Streets may become a member at the Settlement. All races, nationalities, and creeds are represented. It sponsors all kinds of recreational and educational activities for ALL ages, tots, teens, and adults, and is supported by the Community Chest.

Its original purpose when founded by Sir Robert Falconer in 1910 was to provide an introduction for University students, grads, and faculty to the people and problems of the neighbourhood. There, it was thought, joint discussion groups and activities would interest both parties by providing a common meeting ground, and the two might then join forces in investigating social conditions with a view to improving them. But in practice this ideal does not work out. Although Psych and Sociology students volunteer for supervisory work and although the Board of Directors is almost entirely made up of Varsity grads or staff members, aside from these factors the Settlement is completely independent of the U. of T. Lack of interest, enthusiasm, time, and knowledge of the Settlement's purpose have kept the University from getting in the swim.

The money used for the settlement House was originally collected for a YMCA for the campus. The student gift of Hart House to the men of the University left a large amount of money with no express purpose for it's use. It was then that the idea of founding such an institution was formed.

There's not a minute to spare, week-in and week-out, at the Settlement. Life is a continual round of activities for nursery age children (2-5 yrs.), juniors (6-12 yrs.), intermediates (13-15 yrs.), seniors (16 and up), and adults. Each group is encouraged to form clubs, and has its own council to decide on programs including crafts, hobbies, dramatics, parties, and other activities. A "Boys and Girls" Branch of the Public Library in the building provides reading material. In addition to its regular timetable, the Settlement runs a summer camp near Gravenhurst, Muskoka, which takes care of the different groups in two week periods throughout the summer months.

The Music School is the Settlement's biggest baby. It occupies the top floor of Bolton House, two doors away from the main House. The Music School is no small organization, for it sports 150 pupils and a small orchestra. There, for fifty cents a lesson, children may learn to play the instrument of their choice — the vogue is (unaccountably) the piano, though the violin is almost as popular, and even a few cello and trumpet enthusiasts have crept in. Teachers at the school are from the Toronto and Hambourg Conservatories. The young musicians can strut their stuff at monthly recitals.

Art Hallman: "I hear you're going to be married to the lady who owns the house at the corner. An excellent choice, if I may say so."
Politician: "Ah! So you know the house, eh?"

Ever been lost in the Economics Building? If so you won't be surprised to hear that all sorts of strange things are being unearthed there these days, new doors leading her and there, have been discovered an' old cupboards holding duty and terrifying amounts of this and that. One of these produced a valuable but very dirty set of wall maps. A petite femme cartographer for a department buried in the catacombs of the Ec building spent a hilarious day unrolling maps of New Zealand (two islands) one continent each of Africa, Australia.

By the way, if you see a cartographer who looks like a black-face man in a minstrel show please send her back to the Economics building.

So your starting to play hockey again. The girls are out practicing already but there is one, or should we say two, sad players on the campus who just won't get together so that they may play.

"Veni, Vidi, Vici." Last Wednesday afternoon about 1,600 Vic students came, they saw and they conquered. Yes, although the Mulock Cup now rests at St Mike's these Vic fans proudly witnessed their fighty fighting footballers refuse to say die until the final horn had sounded . . . and everyone of us felt a moral victory. By their fighting example the football team probably did more for Vic prestige on the Campus than anything else this year. Although they didn't sink the Saints, they scuttled a lot of ideas to the effect that Vic was losing her spirit and drive. Some of us may have felt unhappy at losing the championship of last year, but remember, that's the ONLY thing we did lose.

Nice going, fellas. We'll all be out there again next year when the football season rolls around

Campus Show

Bleu et Or

Lively, spontaneous, natural — this show was all of that. Its liveliness sprang from the inherent enthusiasm of the performers; spontaneity reached at times its barest form, improvisation. The actors furthermore were very natural, no doubt because from the beginning they sensed they were playing before a species of family audience.

This "Review" was not the expert performance of professional actors, rather it seemed that these "Carabins" were hardly conscious of their presence on the stage. Quite generally the audience felt they were witnessing a gathering of French-Canadians who, to amuse themselves, would each in turn exhibit prowess in mimics, dancing, recitation or singing.

A Quebecker tells me his people are very fond of amateur acting in their "soirees" or parties. Sketches are quite the common thing, mingled with folklore or American dancing. Indeed, the skill of a few of these "Carabins" can be explained only through reference to such informal practice. Otherwise how could a student in first-year University mimic a poetic satire on surrealism and automatic writing with such brilliance.

Without the qualities of naturalness and enthusiasm "La Revue bleu et or" could not have met with such success. As it happened, the actors had to rely entirely on their own ingenuity. They could use none or nearly none of the props brought from Montreal, because Carlwright Hall couldn't contain them. Besides, the music they had recorded at various performances in Montreal could not be played: Toronto 25 cycle wouldn't run their machine.

Consequently the integral "Revue bleu et or" was not staged here — for these obvious practical reasons, not to mention additional moral ones. We missed an apparently very stagey take-off on Saint-Saen's "Samson et Delilah," several ballets, and countless sketches. Nevertheless, this abridged version was an immense success. Seldom have I seen a Toronto audience react so uninhibitedly and whole-heartedly. The exuberance of these "Carabins" was truly contagious.

Material difficulties broke the unity of the show. Monologues and sketches were excellent, not so the ballet that followed.

They excelled particularly in solo numbers: songs and recitations where music or stage-setting were not a strict necessity. Thus the best of the evening was the very literary, but just as hilarious, satire on the recent surrealist explosion in Montreal (published work: "Refus global"). This exceptional piece of imagery, rhythm, and ridicule was by a student of professional ability.

The show opened with a satire on the U.N.O.—not a deep view into international affairs, rather, a humorous glimpse at the national faults of most countries. This comedy relied rather on mimics than the spoken word, which was true of most of the Review. Slapstick was introduced but not overdone. A very remarkable imitation of three ways of reading a fable of La Fontaine; a fine satire on the Don Cossacks; and even some show-girl stuff! But the girls were three fellows: who were tantalizing to a degree to rouse a blush in most show-girls.

Let's LOOK at it!

ANYONE RING-HUNTING around the gift season this year will do well to drop into Scheuer's and study the engagement rings they feature at one hundred dollars. Two styles, a three stone ring with plenty of glamour, and a solitaire both exquisitely mounted are included in the special offer, which has long been a feature of Scheuer's merchandising plan, by which cash payments make greater value possible. See them at 131 Yonge St., facing Temperance.

STILL MORE CASHMERE SWEATERS are in at the F. J. Watt's Park Plaza sportswear shop, the comfortable long-sleeved kind that you've been hunting for these long, long months. Also you'll be happy to know that you can buy a full line of Nylons. And, happy suggestion, Watt's is also providing the college girl with a Nylon mending service . . . very cheap too, we may add, makes a good pair of stockings last half as long again. The coats and dresses are tops in campus wear right now.

THE EVANGELINE SHOPS are making it easy to gift shop for males as well as the ladies . . . pride themselves on the way they show items which suggest themselves as gifts, thereby saving wear and tear on the over-wrought imagination. Neatly boxed gloves, scarves, handkerchiefs are always tops with the ladies, and when chosen by a man, with the help of an Evangeline salesgirl who has been specially briefed on how to instruct the male in gift-purchasing, these items, plus the Evangeline quality, are standard.

JOAN RIGBY'S is where you find the glamour holiday clothes that make partying the breathless season. Always there are clothes at Joan Rigby's which have that extra charm which is personality in styling, and always there are smartly suave new accessory ideas that perhaps you never dreamed up, but which are there to take a run-of-the-mill ensemble out of the dead-pan level. At Fifty-Four Bloor Street West you'll find a sense of direction in which is certain and deft and sophisticated and feminine.

TRAVERS FOX clothes have already made themselves a name . . . reason being that the shop specializes in service as well as sales. A dress doesn't leave the T. F. showrooms unless it has been fitted to your satisfaction, and more than that, the clothes themselves are assembled with that particular deftness and understanding of flattery which adds up to artistry, and which is so often the case, with man-chosen collections. Travers Fox invites you to have a personal inspection of the ultra modern new showrooms, at 1175 Bay, just below Bloor.

ALWAYS THE PERFECT thank-you for holiday hospitality is a box of cut flowers or a growing plant. Jerry Cooper's Park Plaza shop does a rushing business among the College crowd from now on through the festive season, one reason being Jerry's is near by and you can pick your own, order in advance, and be certain of a square deal. Another, Jerry being one of the guys himself knows exactly what to suggest and how you can save on the deal if it's saving you're up against.

Hart House

Doubtless, one of the strongest influences on Toronto's musical background has been that of the English organist, choir leaders and composers who have made their homes here. Sunday night a Hart House audience heard one of the finest of these men and his choir. Dr. H. Willan and his choir from St. Mary Magdalene presented a program of madrigals, anthems and carols. In the matter of time, the music included the works of some seven centuries from the medieval "King Herod and the cock" to Dr. Willan's setting of "Ave verum corpus".

The choir was small, fourteen voices in all, but there was purity of tone and intimacy of feeling and interpretation which would have been impossible in a vaster group. It is something so rare to hear such a group the very size of which demands clarity and flawless attack. The rich and infinitely varied contrapuntal lines wove in graceful threads from voice to voice until the listener's consciousness was overwhelmed by the most complex and wonderful sounds. It was quite astonishing how Dr. Willan achieved such variety of quality within the relatively limited range of such works which do not rely on pretentious vocal histrionics but on a direct appeal to less sophisticated and more genuine human emotions. The warm applause indicated the profundity of the appeal.

What's Wrong

Let us have more enthusiasm, more willingness for professors to rub shoulders with us, shout at us, curse at us, get us stirred up about things. Let us smoke in the classroom and feel free to criticize a man's thought if he doesn't make sense to us, without the threat of failing on an exam because we disagree. Let us learn to think and discuss our own ideas!

Now, lastly, let us look at ourselves.

If we have become fact-collectors, parrots, let us wake up to the need of learning to think. Let us get our degrees so that we can earn our daily bread, but, more important, let us develop into useful thinking personalities with tested approaches to our problems.

If the system and the professors are not what they should be or could be, neither are we. Let us be a little more serious about our college life. Let us discuss and ponder the basic questions of life.

Let's wake up and think! There may not be much time!

COLE SLAW

We were just introduced to some fascinating astronomical data, and we're still staggering from the impact. For instance, did you know that there are as many stars in the heavens as there are grains of sand on all the beaches of the world? This information made us feel rather silly, for we can remember our daring childhood estimates which ran to the colossal sum of one million. And now we think of puny little man, scheming for power on this fleck of the universe, conscious of only himself on this insignificant, disintegrating planet. We think that there's an interesting, but chilling, corollary between our childhood conception of the universe, and man's estimate of his present, relative importance.

League Lead At Stake As Bees Meet St. Mike's

Speaking Of Sport

By BRIAN LAND

Ace Bailey's senior hockey Blues demonstrated Friday night that they are extremely reluctant to relinquish the Queen's Cup, emblematic of Intercollegiate supremacy. Although outskated most of the way, the Blues came up with a tenacious display and outfought the 'Bins over the route to take down their first decision. The Montrealers iced a sextet which Ace rates a 30 per cent improvement over last year's team which will be a tough competitor in home surroundings.

Coach Bailey feels that his squad should be as strong as his 1917-18 champs once it gets a few more games under its belt. His defence fivesome of Digby, Ecclestone, Kavanagh, MacDougald and LaRose has been augmented by a new campus discovery in the person of Bud Hayes. Bud who has not been in a hockey game for three years, shows a willingness to hit which pleases Bailey; with the return of Bob LaRose after Christmas, Toronto should have strength and depth in rearguards.

Up front, Captain and star centre Harry Boyd hopes to return in time for the two-week-end contests; meanwhile he is receiving heat treatments for his injured ankle. If Boyd is ready to go, it means that capable Rich Howson who led the way Friday with two goals and an assist, will play his hockey with the Junior Bees. However under intercollegiate rules Rich is eligible for two more senior games without endangering his junior status.

The real test of the team's mettle will come this week-end when they step into the Forum at Montreal to do battle with McGill. On Saturday they meet the Carabins in their home surroundings.

By the way . . . the downtown papers seem to disagree somewhat on what they did see Friday. The Tely headed its story "Blues breeze to 5-2 win over Carabins"; said the Star "Best ice horse didn't pick up the marbles" while the G. & M. summed up proceedings with a prosaic "Carabins outplay Blues, lose 5-2". Take your pick, or better still welcome the Blues back in the new year by attending a few of their games . . . they'll appreciate it.

HILLEL

Casting for the three-act play to be presented by Hillel in February, will be continued this Friday at the B.B.Y.O. House.

Those in the know are still trying to figure out what Warren Stevens, Director of Athletics has to kick about, what with all the recent sport victories. But kick he did, somewhere, sometime (even he's not sure when), and stubbed his toe, aggravating an old football fracture. Yesterday he stayed at home nursing it, but figures he'll be up and around in time to make an important New York engagement later in the week.

have seen which way the wind is blowing."

"NFCUS as a student organization, can bridge the gap between the East and the West better than any other group today," continued Miss McCormick. Claiming that IUS presented both a duty and a challenge to NFCUS, Miss McCormick said that NFCUS should "expect to give and not receive from IUS." We must give and the best way we can do that is through active participation."

David Stanley said that the affirmative arguments had misrepresented the negative's stand. "Our arguments are humble and earthy ones", he claimed, "and our main objection to affiliation is that NFCUS is not a representative group." Quoting figures taken from an informal poll of 183 students that he had conducted he claimed that most students "don't know about NFCUS."

Stanley recommended that NFCUS should wait at least a year before they joined IUS, and in that time should attempt to build "a representative union." He suggested that the local council be reorganized "along the lines of the Blue and White Society."

Opportunity Knocks . . .

Scenes similar to the above will prevail at Hart House gym as the preliminary bouts of the boxing and wrestling championships get under way, starting tomorrow at 4.30. The same hour on Thursday will feature more prelim engagements with the finals capping the first Athletic Night of the year this Saturday at 7.30 p.m. All entries must be in by 5.30 today at the Intramural Athletic office.

Meds' Ted Pollock Leaves For Pasadena

By ED SOKOLOWSKI

One group in the sporting world that has been hitting the headlines lately is the six-man Canadian Badminton Champs. They defeated the crack team from India over the week-end that gained them the right to meet the United States team in the second round of the Thomas Cup finals. The Thomas Cup to Badminton is what the Davis Cup is to Tennis.

The Canadian team leave for Pasadena, California, this morning to engage the top U.S. team for the North American Zone championship. The winners of this tournament will meet the Malayans in England in February and the final match will be played a week later. The Canadian squad is a high favorite to win.

What makes this of interest to the students is that two of the six-man team are students. Ted Pollock is from the University of Toronto and Gord Simpson is enrolled at McGill.

Ted Pollock, III Meds. and Gord Simpson of McGill are two men who will make the trip to Pasadena. Both are crack bird men. Their style of play is very deceptive and their shots keep their enemy on their toes. In this way they are able to gain the edge that is needed to win.

Ted Pollock is usually teamed up with Roy Smith in doubles and although losing to the Indians they put up a terrific battle. They expect to do better in their next tussle. Ted and Roy are Canadian doubles champs.

Gord Simpson and captain Dick Birch clinched their doubles over the week-end but not until after the India team gave them a run for their money.

The tournament in the States will be for the North American zone finals and the team hopes that the championship will be brought back to Canada this year.

Corner Boys And Varsity Tied For Top

The Junior Bee Hockey Club meet the St. Michael's College Buzzers tonight in the second game of a double header in Varsity Arena.

The Varsity Bees are tied with the Corner Boys for first place, with two wins and one loss, while the Buzzers are tied for last place with the Marlboro Junior B team.

Coach Bill Wade again has a potent hockey club and this year he intends to win the Good Humor Cup. Last season the Varsity Bee team took top honors in their twelve game schedule but lost the Cup to the St. Mike's Buzzers in the play-off. A good part of the last year's team is back with Bill Wade and with more new excellent material, the Bee team should go far in the season.

It is not known whether Rich Howson, the star of the Blue-Carabin game last Friday, will return to the Junior Bees or not. In the Senior game, he notched in two goals and assisted on another.

Goaltender Leuty with three games under his belt, has done a wonderful job in keeping the pill away from his net. If this keeps up the Bees will have little worry about having large scores piled up against them. Also to help in keeping the enemy away from pay dirt, are defencemen MacDougall and Clement.

Frey, Walters, Fox, and Sinclair are the sparks of the team and so far have been playing very good hockey.

Bill Wade also has plenty of good material in his other players and this leaves him strong in reserves.

The other top team, Corner Boys, tangle with the Marlboro squad in the other game of the double header in Varsity Arent.

Jr. Vic, Dents, Win In 'Mural Puck Race

Two goals by Naylor gave Junior Vic a 2-1 verdict over St. Mike's A in another intramural hockey game yesterday. Naylor scored at the 17:32 mark of the first period and clicked for the other after 3½ minutes of the second session. McKillop averted a shutout for the St. Mike's squad when he scored at the nineteen minute mark of the second session.

Junior Vic: Goal; Batchelor; defence, Farlinger, McDonald; centre, Donor; wings, Laclie, Naylor; alternates, Rhame, Howard, Linton, Lodge, McLaughlan, Murry, Leach.

St. Mike's A: Goal, Wainhouse; defence, Kelly, Prendergast; centre, Duffy; wings, McLaughlin, McKillop; alts., McDonald, Mulhill, McIntyre, Robertson, Daly.

Dents took a 4-2 decision over Meds (III) in a scheduled interfaculty hockey game in Varsity Arena yesterday. Lyon clicked for two of the four goals for Dents, and Shuckett and Clumpers added the others.

Armstrong scored both goals for the Medsmen.

"Brrrr, it's getting colder!"

Snow is just around the corner and that means skiing and fun for everybody.

Several work parties have made trips up to Varsity ski grounds at Newmarket and hills and trails have been cleared of excess bracken and stones. Even the ski shack has taken on a "new look", after a thorough sweeping. The benches, tables, clean cups and a coffee pot are all waiting for the hilarious jokes and laughter of healthy skiers.

The new ski tow at the north end of the property will be a lifesaver to those who like to take their skiing the easy way. The hill it serves has several different runs that can be used by all grades of skiers.

Yes, everything is ready, and everybody is waiting for the one think that makes this sport possible . . . SNOW!

There's a skiers' get-together tomorrow. Movies in color are going to get us in the mood for long swoops down snowy slopes.

Ah, but remember that your skis have to have last year's waxes removed and a fresh, hard base wax applied. Your boots should be polished and what about all those woolens that you carefully tucked away in moth balls last June.

Get busy at your equipment. Don't let that snow sneak down and surprise you.

Aid To Chiang Opposed 21-15 In Vic Debate

Canadian military aid to China was condemned last night by the Victoria College Debating Parliament. The motion "that this house disapproves of the sending of Canadian military aid to China" was upheld by a vote of 21 to 15 in a debate held in Victoria's Alumni Hall.

In support of the resolution, Shirley Endicott said that China's peasants "were living in a state of feudalism and were faced with starvation." Alleviation could come "only by a program of land reform and industrialization." Chiang Kai-shek's government was "incapable of carrying out any such needed program as most of his officials were land-owners," said Miss Endicott.

Corrupt Government

Claiming that the struggle in China to-day "like Papineau's in Canada" was one for responsible government, the speaker declared that Chiang Kai-shek's government, "steeped in corruption and far removed from the principles of democracy" should not therefore receive aid from Canada."

Varsity Quoted

Opposing the motion, Andy McEwen declared that according to Salvation Army authorities their missionaries "had to leave their territories when the Communist armies entered." He referred to a statement made to The Varsity by Roy Neehall that "the revolution of the Chinese people against the Chiang Kai-shek type of government has been going on for hundreds of years and concerns the Chinese people alone", as being Moscow-inspired.

Mr. McEwen claimed that for the past three hundred years China had fought against "barbarism from the North" and that "Russian imperialism was today using the Communist armies as a new screen." In answer to a question from the floor the speaker said "there is no democratic government in China today, but if not interfered with Chiang Kai-shek's government would become democratic."

Send Aid

In support of the motion, Roy Neehall, who throughout his speech was repeatedly interrupted, declared that "rather than sending military aid we should send humanitarian assistance to China's stricken millions."

Declaring that "we should refuse to support the corrupt and tyrannous Kuomintang regime" Mr. Neehall invited the House to speak to Chinese students on the campus if they wished to learn popular reaction to Chiang's government.

Pledged To Democracy

Opposing the motion, Gordon McClelland said that Chiang Kai-shek's government was not feudal but was based on Sun Yat Sen's principles of national unity, political democracy and people's livelihood. He continued, "the nationalist government has pledged itself to democracy and freedom and it has worked wonders."

St. Mike's Women Approve NFCUS Joining With IUS

St. Michael's women, in an assembly yesterday afternoon, voted unanimously in favor of NFCUS affiliating with IUS now. There was a short discussion period, in which the pros and cons of affiliation were considered. The opportunity for NFCUS, as the student body representing a democratic country, to work for its ideals in cooperation with other democratic countries was pointed out. When it was made clear by members of the NFCUS committee that the advantages of joining IUS overshadowed greatly the difficulties involved, and that NFCUS could withdraw upon one year's notice if it deemed fit, a motion for unconditional affiliation was made and carried without opposition.

Happy Birthday!

The Honorable and Reverend Canon H. J. Cody who celebrated his 80th birthday on Monday, will be entertained at a dinner given by David J. Walker, K.C., prominent Toronto lawyer, at the Albany Club tonight. Dr. Cody was president of the University from 1932 to 1945 when he was elected Chancellor by a unanimous vote of the Senate. He was succeeded last year by the Honorable Vincent Massey.

Woodside Considers Soviet Thorn of Foreign Policy

The greatest factor to be considered by the makers of Canadian foreign policy is the Soviet Union, Willson Woodside said last night before a meeting of graduate students.

Speaking on what he called a "deprecatory review of Canadian foreign policy," Woodside said, "Nobody but Mr. King can tell us what Canadian foreign policy is supposed to be."

According to H. M. Lower, the supreme test of statesmanship is to avoid enunciation of foreign policy, Woodside said. "In terms of this argument, the Canadian policy has been outstanding in regards statesmanship."

"On two occasions Mr. King told me personally, 'I have found in the course of a long public life that a man can make no greater mistake than committing himself'. It is this attitude that has characterized most of our policies," Woodside said.

Mr. Woodside praised the North Atlantic Pact as one of the first positive moves in Canadian policy. "St. Laurent has certainly brought new vigor and direction to foreign policy. Both St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson played leading roles in bringing about the North Atlantic Pact," Woodside said.

"The North Atlantic Pact is not a denial of the purpose of the U.N.," Woodside added. "It is a confession that the U.N. cannot do what was hoped for ..... provide security."

"This pact is a challenge to Russia," Woodside said. "The danger will become more accurate in future years, when the Soviet gets the atom bomb and long range bombers. Then we will live in uncertainty."

"The Soviet can wage a preventive war. We can not," he added.

New Constitution For Staff Group, Arts Represented

"The Committee Representing the Teaching Staff of the University of Toronto reorganized its constitution last month in order to give more representation to the various faculties," said Dr. J. K. W. Ferguson, Professor of Pharmacy and Pharmacology, last week.

This year, in order to make the representation more equal than it previously had been, the committee has divided the teaching staff into ten constituencies and representatives were assigned so that approximately 40 members of the staff would have one representative. This will bring more participation by the Arts Colleges who had had no representation in the former committee.

In 1941, when the original committee was set up, it consisted of 12 members elected by the entire faculty. This resulted in a certain portion of the staff getting a number of representatives while another portion received no representation whatsoever.

The committee explores problems referred to it by the annual meeting and initiates proposals which they consider to be in the interest of the entire staff. Such problems as housing, parking facilities, and salaries are looked after by the committee. During the past year, for

Ontario CCF President To Speak to U of T Club On Activities Of Party

Andrew Brewin, President of the Ontario CCF, will address an open meeting of the U of T CCF Club today at 1 p.m. in West Hall, U.C. His topic will be "The Programme of the Ontario CCF".

Brewin, who graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1930, has been the President of the Ontario CCF since 1946. He was a CCF candidate on two previous occasions—St. George (Provincial) in 1943 and St. Pauls (Federal) in 1945. A few days ago Brewin was chosen as the CCF candidate for the riding of St. Pauls in the forthcoming federal election.

All U.C. members are requested to remain for a few minutes after the speech for the purpose of forming a UC-CCF Unit.

Pre-Meds May Quit Daffydil Nite Cast In Ticket Protest

Pre-med students in the cast of Daffydil Nite, annual medical faculty show, were urged yesterday to withdraw from the show in protest over ticket sales at a meeting of II pre-med students.

Sales Up 150 %

The meeting was called to protest the method in which ticket sales were handled and to determine pre-med policy regarding the show. The statement of Art. Chisholm, chairman of the Daffydil committee, that "Few, if any" pre-med students were in the cast was branded as false. II pre-med sources said there were 12 men from each of the two pre-medical years in the cast.

Chisholm stated yesterday that the pre-medical years would be unable to obtain Daffydil tickets because sales to graduates had increased 150 per cent over last year. "Interest in the show has increased tremendously. It is unfortunate that pre-med students will not see the presentation this year," Chisholm said.

Russ Proud, II pre-med, suggested that "in view of the attitude Daffydil is taking, I suggest that our classmates withdraw from the show." Fred Fallis, one of the cast, urged continued co-operation. He said he could not understand Chisholm's attitude but loyalty to the faculty and to the Daffydil tradition, which undergraduates had built, should be kept in mind.

R. W. Shepherd, president of II pre-meds, appealed to the class to bear with Chisholm for a few days. He said he would ask Chisholm to meet the two classes to clear up the misunderstanding about the ticket sales. "Every member of the medical faculty was promised two tickets, in view of which the unsympathetic attitude shown toward the pre-medical years is hardly understandable," he said.

J. Adelberg took exception to Chisholm's statement that pre-meds students would be unable to understand the type of humor in the show. "We pay $4.00 per year for a Medical Journal which is full of medical situations. Surely we could understand Daffydil."

Fleming Asks Canadian Help In Berlin Lift

"It is impossible to have economic and social security at home unless there is assurance of security in the relations with the other nations of the world", said Donald Fleming, M.P., Toronto Eglinton, at an open meeting of the Progressive Conservative Club yesterday. "Freedom and security are reconciliable, but freedom should not be bartered or compromised," he added. "We will not be able to fulfil our quest for freedom in Canada unless there are stable, orderly, international conditions".

Big Stake

He pointed out that Canada is a large exporter and thus has a heavy stake in world conditions. He said that he and his party favored a redistribution of income for the help of the unfortunate, and larger incomes would help establish economic and social security. He stressed the need of encouraging private enterprise because the expansion in income would result in increased social security.

"There has been a glaring lack of co-operation between the Dominion and provinces," said Mr. Fleming. "We want a Dominion-Provincial conference, so that definite attempts may be made to alleviate the overall security problem. Social security measures presently existing are definitely inadequate," said Mr. Fleming. "For example", he added, "one has only to consider the old age pensions. Under the present division of the expense between the Dominion and the provinces, there is no adequate division for the aged." He emphasized that the P.C. party scheme called for pensions on a contributory basis, without a means test.

Social Security

He noted that there were no provisions in the present Canadian social security scheme for accident and health insurance, and that in addition there should be extended unemployment benefits, and a non-contributory scheme to provide assistance for the unemployable. He added that his party did not believe in state medicine, because it would be detrimental to the medical profession. Instead, they want health insurance, calling for adequate medical and dental care.

Saw Berlin

Mr. Fleming, who had just returned from Berlin and Greece, stressed the importance of the continuance of the airlift, as an indication of the determination of the Western powers to stand up to Russia in the face of aggressive Soviet policy. "Discontinuance would mean throwing the Germans to the wolves of Communism", said Mr. Fleming, "and Canada's abstaining from the airlift in spite of the active participation of her three sister dominions, cannot possibly better relations with countries behind the Iron Curtain. Any improvement must be brought about by a definite recognition of the present dangers."

Greek Participation

The P.C. party advocates active and immediate participation. Speaking of Greece, Mr. Fleming said that the situation is much more serious than mere civil war by guerilla Communist bands, and that we should realize these deplorable conditions and assist in every possible way.

Cross-Sectional Of Campus Views On Sex Behavior

Discussion about tonight's debate at Hart House—"That in the opinion of this house the conventional attitudes of our society represent a desirable limitation of the sexual behavior of its members"—has revealed that campus opinion is divided on the question of sex.

Opinion ranges from the conviction of Miss M. Ferguson, U C.'s Dean of Women, that conventional attitudes should be respected in regard to sexual behavior, and that any desire for satisfaction before marriage should be repressed, to a plea from Bud Haddon, II Vic, for organized, legalized prostitution. Mr. Haddon contended that convention does not affect the individual's behavior, but merely drives him underground, and that the people should be re-educated and free love, or prostitution, brought out into the open and condoned.

Hal Rosenthal, U.C., who will be upholding the resolution, stated that in his opinion there are essential sociological and psychological reasons why the sexual habits of the individual have to be limited. Our sociological order, based on the family, would break down if it were otherwise.

Dr. Philip Ashmore, a graduate of last year in the Faculty of Medicine, who will oppose the resolution, said that he intended to point out the neuroses and psychical difficulties set up by the modern concept of social behavior.

Michael Hornyansky, IV U.C., declared that bigamy is the only kind thing. There are so many women "who are going to be old maids that we should do anything we can for them."

Contrast

While students at this university are combatting the increased cost of university tuition, a report from New York indicates that American educators are uniting behind a bill to provide a huge system of federally supported college scholarships.

The bill, which seems to have an excellent chance of passing Congress, would provide 20,000 scholarships at an estimated federal cost of $100,000,000. Being prepared under the sponsorship of the National Education Association's Department of Higher Education, the bill is designed to provide from $500 to $1,000 annually for any high school graduate who could qualify.

While our southern neighbor takes giant strides toward the ideal of free university tuition for qualified students, we here seem faced with a grudging acknowledgement that free tuition is desirable—in principle. But little is being done to translate that principle into action.

The Ontario government, which appointed a Commission more than two years ago to investigate the problem of higher education, has still not discussed the question. And it is apparent that many more months will elapse before the report is brought in, although it is difficult to understand why such a lengthy delay is necessary.

ART - MUSIC - DRAMA

The Silver Cord

Notes on St. Mike's central staging of "The Silver Cord": Arrived to find seat on edge of neat, furnished room without walls; nervously avoided locking glances with spectator directly opposite; nervously wondered how to come to terms with actors within arm's length; relaxed when discovered proximity not mutually embarrassing. Have never liked the play for reasons which have to do with its melodrama, its shallow psychology, but have to admit that whatever's in it salvaged by actors and director and worked up into a series of convincing performances. Director Kaplan understands new method depends on consistency, got this from cast and setting; might have used pantomime window for complete illusion.

Cast of five, not including brief appearance of Jean O'Shaughnessy (Maid), all exacting roles. Clarine Jackman (Mrs. Phelps) made two-dimensional mother dignified, almost real. Helen Armesto (Hester) sincere, alive, brought hysterical theme to pitch of unbearable poignancy which ultimately embarrassed; leads to suspicion that new method better suited to comedy. Audrey Laurie's Christine sustained, utterly believable, might watch posture; kept long speeches at peak of interest. Dan McArthey and Paul Garner as Phelps' whelps, David and Robin respectively, got more out of roles than author put in; McArthey added note of common sense which Howard never gave David much chance to use, and Garner added engaging charm to leaven the puffy pudding of younger son.

So home with feeling of superb satisfaction.

U.C. Lecturer Honored By French Ambassador

M. Francisque Gay, the French Ambassador, conferred the title of "Officier d'Academie" on Miss Isabelle Balthazard, of University College, at a reception in the Art Gallery yesterday.

The coveted award was made to Miss Balthazard in recognition of her untiring service to the cause of French culture on this continent. Having received her early education in France, Miss Balthazard then came to Canada, where she had a brilliant career as an undergraduate in the University of Toronto. From here, she went to the University of Illinois for her M.A. degree. Since 1931, she has been on the staff in French of University College.

SPORTSWOMAN

On Monday night Meds, Nursing and St. Mike's held their splash party, the first of six similar swim parties for other colleges and faculties.

Aided by a slight advantage of numbers, St. Mike's came out well on top with 39 points to Nurses' 17. Betty Jane Frazer of St. Mike's earned 16 points in speed and diving for the top individual honors. Her collegemate Agatha Leonard was second by virtue of her nine points which she also gained in speed and diving. Margo Masters of the School of Nurses was a close third with eight points for style and breast stroke.

The twenty swimmers present were enthusiastic and each one entered the speed and the relay races and many of them swam in the style event. The closest competition was in the diving.

Last night UC held their splash night and Marg Fleming won the Taylor Trophy with 19 points on two firsts—Style and Ornamental—and three seconds. Zira Murray was second with 16 points, making a clean winning sweep of the Free Style, Breast Stroke, and Back Stroke. Helen McDonald was third with 11 points with a first in Diving and three seconds.

Tonight it's OT's and Physio's turn to splash.

Don't forget the intercollegiate basketball tryouts tonight at 5.30 in OCE. Everyone and anyone who played on an intramural team and is willing to come to practices regularly is urged to turn out by coach Mickey Barnett who says that Western, McGill and Queen's have all but chosen their teams.

We hate to bring this up, but, when we were in England during the recent war, we had a Joe in our Mess who always grew mistle-eyed when he heard 'I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas'. He insisted on giving loud voice to everyone's secret sentiments, and succeeded in making a sticky mess of our own private Christmas worlds. When we found out he was an American who'd never even known a white Christmas, we decided to realize his dreams for him. On Christmas Eve, after he was sufficiently stunned, we put him to sleep in a specially prepared bed. Throughout the night he slowly sank, mattress and all, into a trough of whitewash that we had thoughtfully provided. On Christmas morning he awoke to the whitest Christmas that ever landscaped his wildest dreams. We all had a Merry Christmas that year.

AJAX SPORTS NOTES

The Ajax Athletic Night, held in the Rec Hall Monday night, was declared a high success with five displays of boxing. The bouts each lasted 15 minutes with the following taking part: Tim Hennessy—Ajax, (155 lbs.) vs. Pete Petcoff—Ajax, (155 lbs.); H. Maisonneuve—Ajax, (140 lbs.) vs. E. Van Clieaf—Ajax, (140 lbs.); Mike Wright—Toronto, (147 lbs.) vs Roberto Coucero—Ajax, (147 lbs.); Pete Webb—Toronto, (155 lbs.) vs Norm Green—Ajax, (155 lbs.); Sam Toye—Toronto, (165 lbs.) vs. John Folinsbee—Ajax (165 lbs.). The third man in the ring who did an outstanding job of refereeing was Tony Canzano.

Between bouts, Dean Young climbed into the ring for a more peaceful purpose—the presentation of the Dean Young Pennant to Mr. Pentti Koivukoski who received it on behalf of Res. 724.

The novelty bout, organized by Pat Sheehan and consisting of those whispers from the Hall of Fame—Killer Lawson, One Punch McCagherty, Buffalo Kid Turner and Punch Drunk Leitch gave Jaxmen a picture of what boxing isn't. The four were blindfolded and turned loose in the ring and among them they were able to whale the tar out of the ropes and canvas. Unknown to Turner, the other three were taken from the ring, and he was left alone to battle with some gloves on the end of long sticks held by Pat Sheehan and Jack Hart on the sidelines. When he finally figured out what was going on, after a lot of sparring, the sprint out of the Rec Hall by the culprit Pat with Turner in hot pursuit would have made Olympic headlines.

The newly formed dance band, under H. Goodmanson, made its debut. Although organized only about a month ago, the boys gave a great performance.

Let's hope we see them more often.

The final item on the program was the films of the last Western-Varsity game with Jim Follwell commenting on and explaining the plays.

ED. NOTE:—We congratulate "Stan 13" of Vic's Corner. That boy knows how to get a reading public! (See yesterday's Varsity.)

To borrow a phrase from a particularly nauseating popular song, let us comment quote 'my, how the time goes by'—unquote. We find it tough to realize that this term is all but over, and though we feel that a lot has been accomplished during the fall semester by the U.C. crowd, we woefully admit that few of these accomplishments have been in the realm of academic endeavour. Oh well, next year we'll get down to good, hard, solid, substantial, soul-satisfying work—on the first day of the term.

Before we do anything else, we want to give carloads of congratulations to "Mac" Allan of Victoria and "Jumping Jack" Hoolihan and Gret Ratz of U.C. for the tremendous job they supervised in arranging the third year "do" at the C.O.T.C. Drill Hall last Friday. There was a tremendous influx of students into that mausoleum after the hockey game, but there was enough food to feed them all, despite the fact that the few raucous engineers that managed to move in with the crowd stuffed themselves in a most disgusting manner. There are a lot of people who really put in a lot of time and trouble into this affair whose names unfortunately, we do not have room to print. They deserve a lot of credit and the thanks of all those who enjoyed their efforts.

And while we are still on the subject of year parties, U.C.'s John Christensen, Marilyn Craig, and Ted Fielder are spending a lot of time in conference with the representatives of the other arts colleges (there are one or two, we're told) in the planning of a huge first year party that will take place sometime next term.

We have been asked to give you the word on the Christmas Musicale that is being held in the Women's Union at nine o'clock. Since December 12 is a Sunday night (and you can't even buy a package of cigarettes for amusement), and since a very pleasant evening of song has been planned, we urge you to attend.

The U.C. Music Club are planning quite a production for the month of February. No detail as yet—but we do know that in addition to an operetta that is making its initial Canadian appearance—selections from "Brigadoon" will be presented.

The U.C. parliament meets this Thursday to debate on the merits of a student union as a war memorial. It should be interesting and is certainly topical.

I'm not sure if there will be any tickets left for the little Christmas caper that is being held in the Women's Union, but if there are, I advise you to get them fast. It's one of the most enjoyable informal parties of the year—and the addition of "Live" music should be welcomed by those who are tired of getting their music out of a can. So if there any tickets left, grab yourself a date and join the rest of us for a little eating, a little dancing, and a little anything-else-you-want, this Friday Night.

Blues Drop From Top Junior B Rung Lose To St. Mike's

By ED. SOKOLOWSKI

The Varsity Junior B hockey team dropped their second game of the season, this time to the St. Mike's Buzzers by a score of 5-3. Although they had many chances to score they could not hit paydirt, as the Irish goalie MacLellan put on a terrific show of net-minding.

The Junior Bees opened the scoring with Raftis scoring in the first stanza, assisted by Al Conboy. He later scored again on a solo effort that baffled MacLellan.

The Buzzers retaliated and added one more for good luck. Stock shot the puck over the fallen Leuty for the Buzzer's first goal and 20 seconds later added another with the help of Sandford. The Irish took the lead when Ingoldsby scored on a pass from Posivy.

The Buzzers added another marker in the second period with a three-man effort, McGillvary scoring on a pass from FitzHenry and Ingoldsby.

In the last stanza, Sandford scored for the Irish on a pass from Harrison and finally the Bees netted a point on a goal by Pendergast, assisted by Holme.

Line-ups:—

Varsity—Goal, Leuty; defense, MacDougall, Clement; centre, Holme; wings, Conboy, Raftis, alts., Howson, Frey, Arrowsmith, Fox, Sinclair, Walters, Pendergast, Hyde.

St. Mike's—Goal, MacLellan; defense, MacDonald, Posivy; centre, Roy; wings, Skelton, Sabourin, alts., Hall, Fitz Henry, Sandford, Stock, Ingoldsby, McGillvary, Harrison, Elliot.

"We have no choice but to get a preponderance of strength on the side of peace. Before the U.S.S.R. can get a stockpile of atomic bombs we must take action that may be disagreeable to us."

"Perhaps it would be better to wage a cold war and help the Russian people rid themselves of a tyranical government," Woodside said. "I believe there is considerable sentiment against the government amongst the Russian people that could be developed." He advocated formation of Soviet committees for national liberation among the displaced persons.

"This is the type of war I would fight," he concluded.

Zeaton, McManus Absent As Blues Test Niagara U

By ED. VOIGHT

The University of Toronto Senior and Intermediate basketball teams continue their pre-season schedule with an exhibition doubleheader against Niagara Falls U. in Niagara Falls, N.Y., tonight.

For the Senior Blues, tonight's encounter will be their fourth exhibition contest within a week. The Blues have just returned from an exhibition swing through Buffalo, Colgate, and Syracuse, where they lost to each of these teams.

Some insight into the ability of Niagara's Senior hoop squad is derived from the rumors we've heard that the Niagara boys are regarded as highly as Colgate, who defeated the Blues handily last week.

Wally Zeaton, still bothered with a sore ankle from the Colgate game, and Johnny McManus, who has already started his Christmas job, will not make the trip. Coach Masterson is using Bill Stockman and Nick Volpe from the Intermediates to round out his squad.

The Intermediates have played only one exhibition match yet this year, that against McMaster U. last Saturday in Hamilton. Toronto lost that game 50-42, so like the Blues are also out after their first taste of victory.

Uphold Conventional Attitude On Sex

Duty Of Home To Teach Sex Debaters Say

The motion that "in the opinion of this House, the conventional attitudes of our society represent a desirable limitation of the sexual behavior of its members" was supported by a vote of 86-84 before a capacity audience. Dr. Blatz, Director of the Institute of Child Study was the guest speaker.

Chastity Before Marriage

"The conventional attitude of our Canadian society towards chastity before marriage and fidelity after is absolutely unknown in Canada", said Dr. Blatz at the Hart House debate last night. "We have no Kinsey Report here in Canada as yet and therefore we can only judge others by ourselves. This can make us very pessimistic," he said.

Dr. Blatz reminded the audience that the strong language used in the debate would not have been used had it been a co-educational group. "It is not conventions which should be changed, it is our society which should decide how it will live within these conventions."

The motion was introduced by J. G. Morden of Wycliffe, first speaker of affirmative, who traced the sexual conventions of our society and brought out the point that sex education is the responsibility of the family and that it should be begun in the home at an early age. The conventions of our society say that our sexual behavior should be kept within the bounds of morality and chastity. "In other words," said Morden, "there should be no fornication nor adultery. Permanent and magnanimous marriage is desirable and possibly only in this way." Going on to say that sex plays a large part in our life, the speaker said that "we should therefore accept the limitations which make our society possible."

Change Wording

Dr. P. G. Ashmore, the first speaker for the negative pointed out to the house that the motion could only be opposed if the wording was changed to "undesirable" instead of "desirable". With this attitude he went on to show how disastrous the supposedly desirable limits of sexual behavior in our society had been in specific cases. "In our society," said Ashmore, "early marriage is frowned upon. This is a good limitation for some," he went on, "but others, who reach puberty at a very early age and cannot satisfy their urges, overstep the accepted bonds of society and result in problems."

He then pointed out that the many maladjustments which result from the "desirable" limitations of our society, such as frigidity and homosexuality, are not taken into account by our social conventions and therefore not "specially and carefully treated". "Social conventions do not represent the sexual limitations on sexual behavior because society does not understand sexual behavior."

The second speaker for the affirmative, Hal Rosenthal, III UC, warned the House that it was not the purpose of the affirmative to argue for the 1890 bourgeois morality because "it would be hypocrisy on our part." Rosenthal said that we should accept the conventional attitudes of our society not "because they are enforced by the Daughters of the Empire nor defended by Comptroller Balfour, but because these attitudes are definite needs. If you accept society per se, you have to accept the conventional attitude of our society as desirable limitation of the sexual behavior."

Infringements

Ralph Campbell, UC, second speaker for the negative, brought forth the point that many infringements on rules of society, such as embezzlement, legally are treated very lightly and hardly condemned morally whereas sex offences are treated very harshly.

Reflection on Society

"This reflects on our society", said Campbell. To further support his argument, Campbell said that the Kinsey Report points out that 95 per cent of the people of the United States sometime during their life overstep the accepted bonds of society. This means that only five per cent would have the right "of throwing the first stone". This, said Campbell, is a blow at the moral foundation of our society. He further charged that our con-

Highest Enrolment to Date In School of Social Work

By ABE CADESKY

The enrolment in the School of Social Work of this university this year is the highest in the history of the school. Four foreign students help to make up the total enrolment of 180, and come from China, Italy and Jamaica.

More Male Students

Particularly noticeable in the school is the large increase in the number of male students. This is indicative of the very real need for greater numbers of male social workers. Out of 41 students taking Master of Social Work degrees, 29 are men and only 12 are women. There are a great many branches of social work, and the whole field is broadening out and penetrating new areas. Each branch has a strong demand for professionally trained social workers, men and women.

Although the proportion of men in the field has been steadily increasing, the present shortage of men is particularly acute even though their prospects for quick promotion are excellent. Minimum salaries in the professional field have nearly doubled in the past ten years. Salaries are now on as high or a higher level than high school teaching. The number of trained workers in Canada is not more than 1,200 while social work positions are probably at least four or five times as numerous.

Chinese Student

One of the foreign students is Miss Doris Gwan. Miss Gwan was born in Canton, China. At an early age her family moved to Shanghai. When the war came, the Gwans moved to Hong Kong and then to Chengtu, where Miss Gwkn started studying for her university degree. When the war ended, she went to Nanking and finished her education at Grenling College.

Her decision to be a medical social worker prompted her to come to Canada and to the University of Toronto School of Social Work, to "attain a good knowledge of social work". Miss Gwan says, "I find Canada, Toronto, the University of Toronto, and especially the school most interesting, and have been anything but disappointed".

"Social Work is the technique and skill in applying knowledge of social science to every-day life," said Laurence Best, Publicity Director of the School of Social Work Student Association. "This is one field where all social sciences are applied and therefore a firm foundation is needed".

Demand Affiliation Without Condition Delegates Advised

By JACK GRAY

Unconditional affiliation between the National Federation of Canadian University Students and the International Union trative Council. In a motion passed last night at the SAC of Students will be supported by the Student's Adminismeeting members instructed the University of Toronto delegates to the NFCUS Conference in Montreal this Christmas to support "unconditional affiliation".

Reject Plebiscite

A motion to hold a plebiscite on the question of affiliation after the Christmas holidays was defeated. Members felt that such a plebiscite on the campus would not be effective since it would come after the conference and would possibly weaken the Toronto delegates position at the conference.

The question of the position that the Maritime members of NFCUS will take on affiliation was discussed. It was pointed out that if affiliation with IUS is pushed at the conference Maritime members will leave NFCUS and form their own regional union. Delegates Gordon Gwynne - Timothy and George Wilkes stated they understood the position and would take the Maritime opinions into account at the conference. It was pointed out that if necessary some compromise may be necessary to keep the Maritime members in the national union, and that in any case NFCUS is more important than IUS.

Calls For Affiliation

Chairman Phil Ashmore then relinquished the chair to deliver a personal opinion. "IUS, as an organization can be of great value to NFCUS," he declared. "It is not the great bogey we have been led to believe." Ashmore stated that he thought NFCUS should join IUS, because it could put in some good things and get out concrete benefits. "It is time we started being practical about this matter and stop worrying about the red menace," Ashmore said.

The council passed the motion as introduced and left the matter of interpretation and execution up to the delegates to the NFCUS Christmas conference.

Love Chides Ashmore

Doug Love, representative from Victoria College said he felt in future the chairman should refrain from expressing his personal opinions on matters brought before the Council. Ashmore apologized to the Council for speaking while in the chair, but said he felt his previous experience in the field would be of value to the members in their decision on the question. Ashmore was a delegate to last year's NFCUS conference.

NFCUS Chairman George Wilkes also introduced a motion to cover proposed changes in the NFCUS constitution. Amendments will be presented at the Christmas conference to allow NFCUS to constitutionally support the stand it will have to take if it affiliates with IUS. One section to be added states NFCUS will uphold the principle of "political democracy". He said the NFCUS committee will clarify the term "political democracy" before such an amendment to the NFCUS constitution is introduced at the conference.

S.C.M. Proposal Suggests Relief To All Of China

The Student Christian Movement is planning to promote, in cooperation with other campus organizations, a study of the Chinese situation with the aim of taking some creative action in the way of relief and recovery, Bob Munro, Associate President of the SCM, said yesterday.

One of the first steps to be taken in this direction will take the form of a letter to be sent to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Hon. Lester B. Pearson.

The letter requests the Canadian government to desist from sending military aid to the Chinese and in its stead to send medicinal supplies, food and clothing for the relief of the Chinese people as a whole.

The letter in part reads as follows: "We do not feel it is in the best interests of the Chinese people, of Canada, of world peace or of the Christian church to interfere in the internal affairs of another country except through the agency of the United Nations Organization. As members of the Student Christian Movement, we advocate instead a program of relief and trade on a non-political basis."

The decision to send the letter was reached at a meeting of the SCM held recently.

With Malice Toward None?

Because it has always been our belief that our august morning contemporary, the Globe and Mail, is sympathetic to the Conservative cause, we were pleasantly surprised to read an editorial in yesterday's edition which indicated that fearless political impartiality still flickered—if sporadically—in some professional newspaper circles.

The reference, while obscure, seemed to indicate that the verbal scuffle in Rockwood between the national Progressive-Conservative leader and a CCF member of the Provincial Legislature on Monday was not a one-sided affair.

In fact, if we are to accept the validity of the Globe's logic, it appears that Mr. Temple's attack on Mr. Drew was completely justified.

Says the Globe: "Mr. Temple is a personality of no public interest or significance whatever; and this is the chief reason for regretting the fracas in which he and Mr. Drew were engaged at the nomination meeting in Rockwood on Monday night."

It is difficult to understand why the scuffle should be deplored on the grounds that one of the participants was of "no public interest." But, carrying the Globe's inexorable logic to a conclusion, we must assume that it is perfectly in order to hurl abuse on a public platform—provided the recipient is a man who does command public interest and significance.

And since the Globe, in the same editorial, implies that Mr. Drew will occupy a niche in history similar to that of Winston Churchill's, no less, we may safely assume that Mr. Drew is a personality of public interest.

If so, are we then to assume that Mr. Temple was justified in hurling abuse at Mr. Drew? The Globe and Mail seems to think so, although it is not apparent to the casual reader.

We have the utmost respect for the sincerity of Toronto's other morning newspaper, but we doubt whether such an editorial attitude will add any lustre to its editorial reputation.

Any such pitiful display of poor taste such as that shown at Rockwood on Monday, whether it be on a political platform, in a municipal council, or in any other public place, is to be condemned. The degree of public importance—or lack of it—attained by any of the participants is no excuse for such conduct.

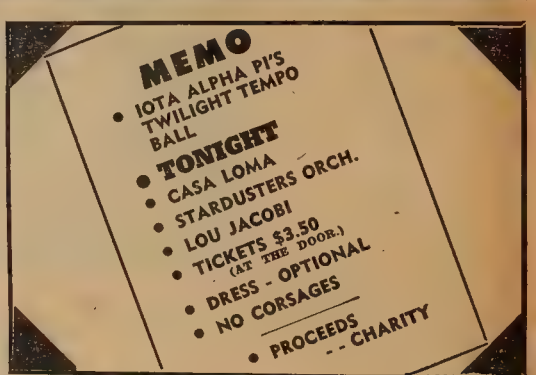
A new slogan was coined over the week-end by George Slogan, the president of the streamlined party with more slogans than anybody. Slogan himself was at a meeting composed entirely of people, and voiced his convictions in no uncertain terms. (He made quite a point of this, in fact, saying: "I can state my convictions in no uncertain terms.")

Then, in one of those strokes or semantic genius such as are seen only rarely, Slogan said: "Peace is Hell."

Slogan said it was obvious that the only way to have Peace was to prepare for Hell. Another speaker, J. G. Bandicoot, objected to this, saying that he knew all about Hell, and that Slogan had the thing twisted. What he should have said was that the only way to have Hell was to prepare for Peace. Or, putting it another way, let's not buck Buck.

Slogan, taking twenty Bucks from his pocket, laid them on the table, and offered to shoot the works.



"Shoot!" cried Bandicoot. "That's the very thing we're trying to stop here. There's too much shooting. What we want is to start another game—like bridge. That's it!" His face lit up with inspiration.

"We must build a bridge between the . . ."

His voice was drowned out by a wave of cheers from the audience, who knew that Bandicoot had solved the whole problem. Three men in long black capes were passing out microfilms from hollow pumpkins, and the gay throng threw the films up to spell out "YEA BRIDGE!"

"I know all about bridge, too!" yelled Slogan. "Contract, that is."

Policies Vary As Politicos Debate Peace

Differences of opinion on methods of preserving world peace were indicated when the presidents of the four campus political clubs described their parties' policies in relation to "the future of Canada's foreign policy" at an International Relations Club meeting yesterday.

Harvie Hay, president of the campus C.C.F. Club, stated that Canada should work with the British Commonwealth and the democratic countries of Europe in order to form a third great world power compatible with the United States and Russia. Defensive pacts, European aid, and co-operation with the Social Democrats were points in the C.C.F. program.

U. S. Businessmen

The president of the campus branch of the L.P.P., Steve Endicott, stated that the views of his party were based on the idea of maintaining world peace. He placed the responsibility of the desire for war on a small group of American businessmen who needed it to maintain high profits.

George Hogan, president of the University Progressive Conservative Club emphasized the need for a Canadian foreign policy independent of party politics, which would be formed by members of all parties. He stated that Canada should make itself strong, as the only alternative to an appeasement policy.

David Stanley, the head of campus Liberal party, outlined as three measures for maintaining world peace, support of collective security in the U. N., a policy of working with the rest of the British Commonwealth, and a compromise between L.P.P. peace policies and P.C. support of defences. He emphasized that the Liberal policy could best be found by examining Canada's present foreign policy.

Carols Recorded For Rebroadcast On CBC, CJBC

The annual Christmas broadcast of the Hart House Glee Club will take a slightly different form this year.

The regular Blue and White Society program, carried by the C.B.C. coast-to-coast network and the C.J.B.C. provincial station hook-up, will be devoted to a rebroadcast of transcribed Glee Club carols Thursday, Dec. 23rd, from 9 to 9:30 p.m. The actual recording of the program, under the direction of Dr. Charles Peaker, will take place in the Great Hall, Hart House, Tuesday, Dec. 14th, at 6:30 p.m. when the singers will congregate on the dias, 135 strong, to give their traditional after-dinner recital of Christmas music. The C.B.C. transcription will be broadcast again over C.B.L. Toronto on Christmas Eve between 10:45 and 11 p.m.

As another part of the Glee Club's Christmas activities, the members plan to meet at St. Paul's Church, Bloor and Jarvis Streets, to participate in the annual Carol Service at the Church at 7 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 12th. Full rehearsal for the broadcast recordings will be held Monday at 5 p.m.

SAC At A Glance

At its meeting last night the Students' Administrative Council:

....Heard SAC President Gwynne-Timothy explain that a full report on the Co-ed Student Union would be brought in next week.

....Heard Temple Kingston of the University Christian Mission request full co-operation of the Council to make the Mission a success.

....Heard Finance Commissioner J. C. Holtom report Blue and White Society activities had thus far resulted in a net revenue of $1,037.

Uphold Artists, Musicians In Varsity-Osgoode Debate

The resolution "That musicians and artists have contributed more to the progress of civilization than lawyers and politicians," was upheld in a debate held last Tuesday in Osgoode Hall between two university students, Harvey Hay, IV Vic., and Martin Shubik, graduate student, and an Osgoode team. The two students were speaking in support of the motion.

Hay and Shubik pointed out that it is the function of lawyers and politicians to consider public opinion and to ensure that progress and change are not too rapid nor too radical for society to assimilate. Lawyers and politicians were the "janitors of civilization," patching here and sweeping there. Their duty to maintain the status quo tended to make them enemies of progress.

Musicians and artists, Hay and Shubik said, are little concerned with public opinion. Their only function was to create. Their creations expressed "the energy and vitality which is the human personality."

The Osgoode team insisted that lawyers and politicians are essential for the well-being of the musicians and artists. The professional men created the structure within which musicians and artists were at liberty to continue their work.

Holiday Conference Slated For Winnipeg

The S.C.M. of the University of Manitoba is sponsoring a five day conference in Winnipeg to deepen the understanding of the Christian Faith in everyday life.

The S.C.M. of all the universities across Canada have been notified, and will send delegates to this conference, which will start on Dec 28. Universities of the Northern States of the United States will also send delegates.

All persons who are interested in going to Winnipeg to attend the conference may call in at the S.C.M. office in Hart House.

Europe's Socialists Foes of Communism Says CCF Official

"The best answer to any attempts to link the CCF with the Communits is that throughout the world it is the democratic socialists who are putting up an effective resistance to the inroads of Communism," Andrew Brewin, president of the Ontario CCF party, told an open meeting of the University of Toronto CCF Club in West Hall yesterday.

Reactionary groups are increasing rather than retarding the spread of Communism, Mr. Brewin said. "Freedom of speech is frowned upon by these people, who are detrimental to democratic principles in that they aid the Communists."

Collective security through the pooling of economic, political, military and moral resources, he said, is the only way of preventing the threatening world conflict between the western nations and the Soviet Union. This pooling of resources needs the co-operation of all the western nations.

"Political strength and security must be sought within the framework of the United Nations," he said. "That is why the CCF has supported the western union and will no doubt support the North Atlantic pact."

At the conclusion of the meeting a temporary committee was elected to form a UC CCF club. The committee consists of Norm Chalmers, acting chairman, Joan Easser, acting secretary, Walter Terentiuk, acting organizer, and Joe Casse, program director.

Big Head, No Feet Possible Trends For Human Race

The organic theory of evolution has made such progress in the last century that in a few more centuries it should be perfected to the point where biologists may be equipped to predict future trends of development, Prof. A. F. Coventry told the Hart House discussion group, Tuesday evening.

Man in particular has great possibilities for a new look, he said; he may develop a big head and no feet or some such thing.

Professor Coventry argued the Validity of the organic theory as opposed to the theological or philosophical explanations of known facts.

Man's possession of somewhat unique mental powers has been the greatest stumbling block to accepting the theory completely, he said, but primitive reasoning powers are possessed by such animals as chipmunks. With this, as with most of our physical characteristics, a direct line of continuity may be established back to very primitive non-human ancestors.

Organic Theory

The organic theory, he said, is in fact the most adequate explanation that biologists have yet proposed to account for the origin and development of the species. It is based completely on known and verifiable facts and is being constantly expanded to include new facts.

CBC Eavesdrops As Mike Records Campus Chatter

Something new has been added. The U of T radio program, The Varsity Story, conducted a tour of the campus with a travelling mike yesterday and made a sound picture of a university day.

The festivities started at the Trinity Buttery. A number of students, including SAC President Gwynne-Timothy, answered such questions as "What does the Buttery mean to you?" Singing and chatter filled the background. The mike next moved to a philosophy lecture on Rousseau. At noon the UC Rotunda was the scene of action. Campus personalities such as Joan Crysdale, John Walker and Harry Rasky were questioned about the rotunda as a camping ground between lectures and extra-curricular activities.

Another step on this tour was made at a Political Science lecture at Convocation Hall where preferential voting and other methods of making the government more representative were discussed. Students in the night-book line-up presented another side of campus life—the library. Liners-up expressed their opinions of the library system.

At an SAC meeting, discussion of the pros and cons of the Students Union were put on the record. The cross-section of the university was wound up by a visit to The Varsity office.

If you want to hear your own voice or those of people you know, don't forget to listen to the broadcast of this view of Varsity at lectures, leisure and learning. It will be broadcast Dec. 16th.

HENRY KREISEL

Henry Kreisel's first novel, The Rich Man, has recently been published by McClelland & Stewart. Born in Vienna in 1923, Mr. Kreisel fled from Austria in 1938 after the Anschluss. Interned at the beginning of the war, he came to Canada with a group of internees, but was allowed to enter the University of Toronto under the sponsorship of a Canadian family. Though he had been speaking English only three years, he enrolled in Eng. Lang. & Lit., and consistently led his course. During 1945-46, he was literary editor of the Undergrad. He took his M.A. at the U. of T. in 1947, and is now lecturing at the University of Alberta. A review of Mr. Kreisel's novel appears elsewhere in this issue.

Book Review

The Rich Man

The Rich Man (McClelland & Stewart, $3.00) is Henry Kreisel's first novel, and has met with overwhelming acclaim. Perhaps one reason for this is that fact that is it one of the few modern novels which has managed to carry a high dramatic purpose through the vehicle of a simple plot. The framework of his novel is anything but complex, yet into it Mr. Kreisel has drawn a number of telling incidents which enhance the dramatic significance of his theme.

The period of time with which the nevel deals is comparatively short—covering in fact six weeks in the life of its hero, Jacob Grossman. Yet into these six weeks the author skilfully weaves threads of memory from Jacob's childhood, revealing glimpses of his life in Toronto with his daughter and her family. Constant throughout is the theme of the monotony of Jacob's job, that of a presser in a local sweatshop, one aspect of his life which the author never allows his readers to lose sight of—the humming of machines is one of the mental sound effects which he utilizes most effectively.

The home-coming of Jacob Grossman to his family in Vienna just after the Dolfuss assassination is the concident around which the book centres. Sacrificing his life's savings to make the voyage, Jacob Grossman knew for the first time on board ship the experience called leisure. He hobnobbed with a surrealist artist and enjoyed the conversation of the "distinguished" passengers in the course of the voyage, arriving finally at Vienna which fell short of his idealized conceptions. For no couples danced on the street then and hatred and fear filled the hearts of many, including the Jewish population. Jacob's family were simple people and they speak as such—his mother says of 1934—"It was a terrible year . . . They were bombarding the Goethe Hof just across the Danube. And I lay in bed and prayed because the children of other mothers were dying." No pretense, no sophistication here—Mr. Kreisel portrays these people sympathetically and with a good deal of concealed admiration. Particularly well-handled is the death of his brother-in-law, Albert; tension and pathos there is here but always in proportion for the author seems to sense the dangers of overdrawing character and situation. It is a profoundly sincere book written about people, occupations and situations which Mr. Kreisel knows at first hand and understands thoroughly. The Grossman family are present, both as individuals and in their family group, and the relations of the latter to the Jewish community are clearly defined throughout. Through Jacob's eyes we see the persecution which the children Herman and Bernie come to accept as one of the hypotheses of life. One of the most memorable scenes is the visit to the children's cave where Herman and Bernie are terrorized by two Austrian boys. Not until this moment did Jacob fully realize the fantastic proportions to which anti-semitism had grown in Austria.

The climax of the book comes with Albert's death and the impoverished situation in which Shaendal and her children are left as a result. But the tragedy is presented, not merely as Jacob's tragedy or Shaendl's tragedy but as a cloud which envelops the entire family and in which each member shares. Here Mr. Kreisel's ability to convey all the aspects of a situation in a minimum of space comes to the fore—compressed language is one of the main points of interest in his style. The author's command of

T.S.O.

This season's fourth subscription series of the Toronto Symphony was given over in its entirety to Richard Wagner's music. The orchestra under Sir Ernest MacMillan gave a reasonably good account of itself in the "Siegfried Idyll" though not through any prodigies of insight on the conductor's part. The music has a serene charm and is interestingly worked out of you can manage to stay awake.

Eileen Farrell, staff soprano for the Columbia Broadcasting System sang the five aquarelles of the Mathilde Wesendonck cycle with lovely tone and was heard as Bruenhilde in the final pages of "Goetterdaemmerung". I think this was pretty good too; in fact, the vernal splendour of this voice is stunningly relevant to the particular kind of exuberant vulgarity one finds in the apotheosis.

Prior to this, there were two orchestral slabs from the same opera: the "Rhine Journey" played sloppily by the brasses and suffering from a wanton cut about two minutes after the start, and the "Funeral Music", an admirable performance by all concerned.

Doug Ross.

Iolanthe

The Victoria College Music Club is presenting on the Hart House stage this week Gilbert and Sullivan's Iolanthe under the musical direction of Godfrey Ridout with Geoffrey Hatton handling stage craft. Future Music Club productions will have to be good to surpass this year's show. Opening "cold" is hard for any cast and Iolanthe's was no exception. The Overture by the orchestra was hardly inspiring, the accompaniment took time to find its complementary sphere, and the Fairy Chorus was too stiff, at first, to be thereal. The success this operetta merits is due to the grand way it found its natural pace and built on that to the climax.

To Harold Burke and Marie Evans go the stars for the evening. Mr. Burke's Lord Chancellor kept the audience laughing and his capers and cut-ups were delightful. His voice as well as his acting made him a "natural" for the part. Miss Evans has a beautifully pure high soprano voice and her stage deportment was excellent. These two "sparked" the cast. Francis de Carrol's Strephon was sel-assured and he provided a charming hero whom he enjoyed more when singing than speaking. Margaret Grubin sang Iolanthe's lovely ballad of supplication with a poignant simpleness that climaxed the last act. Margaret Carmichael was a very regal Queen of the fairies and her contralto voice was warm in "Oh, foolish Fay." Paul Dilks and Gerry Taylor took their roles with confidence and Ed Campbell was a very convincing Private Willis. The men's and women's choruses moved and sang with the required spirit. Iolanthe was attractively staged, although the costumes were uninspired. The sets were applauded by the audience.

At the word "contract," the crowd booed. "Down with the Marshall Plan! Down with the Wall Street-Bay Street - capitalist - social - fascist - Trotskyite - diversionist - anti - democratic - war-mongering - counter - revolutionaries!" Naturally out of breath, they stopped, and the hall was silent.

A Mop and Pail reporter asked hastily: "Is there a Marxist in the audience?"

"No!" roared the crowd as one man (which it was by now, everybody else having gone downtown to contribute three cents to keep the Kremlin in red flags). "Throw the dirty Wall Street - Bay Street - capitalist - you - know - what out!"

The general opinion is that the meeting advanced the cause of world peace by at least a hundred years. J. G. Bandicoot said so himself.

Let's LOOK at it!

WHERE you see a collection of the district's top executives lunching every day as a habit, there you can expect the best in food preparation. At George's Restaurant and Grill on Yonge just south of Bloor, people congregate who know good food and insist on it. Gourmets have long patronized Feinsod's delicatessen counter as well as the restaurant section of the house, where rare imported cheeses and delicacies are obtainable at down-to-earth prices. For catering that is vitamin-conscious as well as chef prepared, no wonder. 691—3 Yonge Street is the logical students' rendezvous.

BEFORE DOING HOME for the holidays a gift to Mama can excel expectations if it is chosen from the Joan Rigby Accessory counter. First, because every shop-wise woman of any age covets a Joan Rigby label; second, because a Joan Rigby item is a perennial ... comes up season after season with plenty of perky new freshness. They welcome the college crowd, have a way of helping without straining to make a sale. Drop in any time if you find yourself thinking in terms of J.R. selectivity ... even just for a look.

FOR THE FORMALS there will be Jerry Cooper doing the corsages for same these next few weeks. ... Jerry likes to know just what kind of a dress the girl is going to wear, just what flowers she dotes on, just what price the student wants to pay. Moreover, he does not believe corsages are required ... only nice. And he thinks the very fact that a corsage is not required is what puts the excitement in the giving of it. The Park Plaza corner.

THERE WILL BE the usual shindig at the Christmas Box Symphony Party at Massey Hall ... the usual irresistible orchestral clowning by Sir Ernest, and as usual in addition, Canada's own Anna Russell, fresh from Carnegie Hall and Town Hall triumphs ... doing a German Lieder Singer's Nacht und Tag, and an eye-dampening number entitled Anemia's Death Scene. For her second act Miss Russell will do some impersonations of "Pianists we all know." Muriel Kilby and her Mirimba will be starred as well, and it looks like a fun evening with more than the usual hilarity. Tickets on sale Dec. 13th, Box Office.

LOOKING FOR EXOTIC GIFTS? ... Go to Shanghai, Bloor Street, corner of Brunswick. Those exquisite Chinese items which attracted the multitude this summer at the International Trade Fair are now being offered at public sale. You may pick anything from a lounging robe woven from pure gold threads, or something as inexpensive as a bridge set for 2.95. These are modern Chinese craft and art at its best. Worth a trip, educationally, and for fun, as well as shopping delight.

BECAUSE SCHEUER'S has been this writer's favourite jewellery and costume jewellery centre these several years, we were in there today. The costume jewellery is gay and it's fun and it's new and starts with an exciting collection at one dollar. Watches are another Scheuer gift suggestion ... and the rings ... engagement diamonds at the special price of one hundred dollars ... another collection at eighty dollars with substantial four-stone shoulder mounting ... both price levels worth a long, long look before paying more for less. 131 Yonge Street, faces Temperance.

TEASDALL'S at 804 Yonge gave your shopper quite a turn. It's not always you run into such good old-fashioned bargains as men's rayon dressing-gowns, navy blue polka-dot style, well cut, and masculine in styling, for 5.00. Also there are some white shirts at 2.95, socks at 95 cts. And woven shirts are only 4.95. Arrow shirts and pyjamas are being featured in a wide gift assortment. English is amazing, yet he has only spoken it for a decade.

Mr. Arthur, who is well known to the undergraduates of the university for the excellent work he did on the undergrad last year, is responsible for the typography of The Rich Man. The cover and frontispiece of the novel strike a new note in the layout which is highly original throughout.

..The Rich Man is one of the most significant and moving novels to appear in recent years and it is to be hoped that Mr. Kreisel's next novel will continue on the same high plane.

ventional attitudes teach children that sex is "dirty and shameful".

Martin Shubik, Graduate, speaking from the floor in favor of the motion said "that our society is a good healthy Ontario society and not prudish. We should be proud that we don't live in vile Montreal where they even go as far as acknowledging sex."

Harvey Hay, IV Victoria, pointed out from the floor that if the motion was true, Dr. Blatz would not have been present because it is unconventional in Toronto to debate publicly the question of sex.

Hoop Blues Beaten Twice By Niagara

Niagara Frosh Win Decision Seconds By 58-28 Margin

By ED VOIGHT

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.:

Varsity's Intermediate basketeers were outclassed last night by a superb Niagara University frosh aggregation last night in Niagara Falls, New York. The seconds went down by a 58-25 score in a game which reasserted the old story concerning the superior brand of ball played south of the line. Three Varsity men were ejected from the game for having five fouls called against them including the top scorer on the Blue squad. Warwick, Maher and Tisdale were motioned toward the showers on this grounds.

The American club proved better in almost all departments as they featured a fast breaking attack, expert ball handling and a high degree of shooting accuracy to pile up a half time score of 38-17. It took the Seconds seven minutes before they could break the tight purple and white defence to hit the scoring column.

Andy Andrews was forced out of the game when a previously injured lip hemorraged in the starting moments of the second period. the other three plays who left the game on fouls impaired the efficiency of the intermediate squad.

The Niagara guards stood out especially when they gave a picturesque display of ball hawking and rebound work which was one of the highlights of the game.

Jennings of Niagara showed much prowess around the Varsity team and came out of the contest as top scorer with a total of seventeen points to his credit. Teammates Donohue and Delaney followed with twelve and eight points respectively. Al Warwick played a sterling game for Toronto and contributed five points to the Blues' cause. Maher and Stockman came up with four point efforts and Tisdale and Volpe garnered three apiece.

Niagara sharpshooters missed a total of sixteen out of thirty-six free shots while their opposition missed ten out of fifteen.

Lineups:

Varsity—Warwick (5), Stockman (4), Tisdale (3), Maher (4), Volpe (3), Andrews (2), Gough, Cole (1), Anderson (1), Furlong (2), Wigle.

Niagara Frosh—Donohue (12), Jennings (17), Delaney (8), Socis (2), Matiello (4), O'Connor, (2); Stanbauer (4), Monohan.

Junior Class Bone Breakers, In Four Bouts

Four of the junior interfaculty wrestling bouts were contested last night at Hart House gym in the wrestling room. St. Michael's College colors were worn by two of the four victors in the day's festivities.

Thurston of St. Mike's won the bout in the 125 pound class as he claimed two falls over Novitsky of UC. Curtin of St. Mike's decisioned Ringwood of St. Mike's in the 135 pound class. Pitman of Trinity defeated Gallivan, St. Mike's and Laundy of UC beat Quinn, Wycliffe; one fall in the first round. Quinn and Laundy fight at 155 lbs.

Speaking Of Sport

By BOB JONES

To—pocketa—pocketa—pocketa—pocketa. . . .

The rhythmic tattoo of the punching bag droned steadily in Walter "Newshound" Mitty's ears as he strode with measured tread toward the boxing room. At the doorway he paused momentarily to inhale deeply of that healthy fragrance which overhangs the Hart House Athletic Wing.

As Mitty hesitated for an instant, his massive build framed imposingly in the broad entrance, a hush fell over the entire pugilistic crowd. Squaring his immense shoulders the cub reporter marched to the centre of the floor and raked the assembled crowd with a steely blast from his steely blue eyes.

At this point "Testy" Merton, ebullient impresario of the swing and sway gang, advanced majestically toward the sturdy fellow and began, "Now see here Mitty. . . ." Without swerving his steely glance and without uttering a sound Mitty extended his right arm just far enough for Testy's proboscis to protrude through his fingers; then the dauntless newshawk gave a twist and a shove and the Terror of Hart House slumped speechless against a wall.

At this juncture the Intercollegiate heavyweight champ made a lunge at Mitty and Mitty allowed a smile to play at the corner of his steely mouth, for this was his meat. Sidestepping the bruiser's bolo punch Mitty felled him with a single blow to the solar plexus; after wiping his feet on the fallen pug's hair, Walter proceeded to the door. There he turned dramatically and spoke in steely tones, "The next time anybody crticizes my write-ups in a letter to the editor, be sure to spell my name right." And, tightening the knot in his tie, Newshound Mitty strode away.

* * * * * *

Well, that's how the dream goes but the real happenings when a scribe hits the boxing room shouldn't happen to a sportswriter. He manages to manoeuver past failing fists and swinging bags and what happens? The fifth-ranking flyweight pummels him into a corner and punctuates his remarks with smashes to the cub's anatomy. "Forget to dot the i's in my name, eh?" Ugh! "Billinsgley has two i's in it" Ugh! "And the first name's Herbert." Ugh! And as they carry The Varsity's accredited representative out the door they ask why boxing never gets covered.

Huh!!!

Saturday Marks Sports Night Premiere

Saturday night marks the presentation of the first Sports Night of the '48-'49 season in the Athletic wing of Hart House. Mac MacCutcheon has lined up an imposing programme to afford the uninitiated an opportunity to see what goes on in the featured, weekly, post-Christmas Athletic Nights.

Activities commence at 7:00 p.m. and continue without interruption in the various sections of the building: basketball in the big gym, boxing and wrestling in the upper gym and swimming in the pool (that's bright) will prevail until 10 o'clock when the spectators will take over the lower gym for terpsichorean purposes.

The intermediate basketball team, coached by Barry Lowes, open the proceedings in the big gym when they take on the powerful Central Y. Senior team. This promises to be a ding-dong battle for the Blues have been sharpening their play in exhibition matches at Niagara Falls and Hamilton; they will need to be at their best to beat the Y-Men who have already racked up one win against no losses in the highly-regarded T & D Senior loop.

Immediately following the Intermediate tilt, the Senior Blues will resume their attempts to knock off an American college quintet when they take on the Albion team from Albion, Michigan. This game should be the highpoint of the evening for the invading team are figured to be within the range of the Varsity sharpshooters; the latter should be rapidly approaching a stage of integration considering the practice against experienced opposition they have had.

The finals of the novice intramural boxing and wrestling tourneys will be staged simultaneously with the hoop games and will take place in the upstairs gym. The preliminary bouts, Wednesday to Friday, are culling the weaker contestants from competition and the cream of the various weight crops will fight it out in eight exhibitions of each sport. The bloodthirsty fans are advised to put in some time before ten chimes at ringside on Saturday night.

A novel feature of this Sport Night will be the presentation of the intramural freshman swim meet which will find the novice natators at their splashing best.

The programme will be rounded out by the usual dance from 10:00 to 12:00 and a sound night's sleep is guarantted after your night's activity at Hart House. The tickets may be purchased at the door for the ridiculous price of fifty cents; a ducat that entitles you to such varied and excellent entertainment at the rate of ten cents per hour is a precious thing, indeed, as Mr. MacCutcheon has pointed out.

Large Turnout For Ski Movies Badge Sellout

Well over a hundred students turned out for the Varsity Ski Club meeting yesterday. The supply of membership buttons was completely sold, but there are more, for those who missed getting them, at the Athletic Office in Hart House and the S.A.C. Office in UC.

Only one reel of film was shown because the others were so badly torn along the edges that it was impossible to run them through the projector. However, a great deal of laughter was the result when another film was started at the end and a skier started to do a herringbone down hill.

The prospect of practice races for both men and women to be held every Sunday at Newmarket was outlined by John Rankin, SPS, who urged all those interested in this phase of skiing to enter and get some experience in downhill and slalom.

Russ Smart would like to meet all men who want to try out for the Intercollegiate Ski Team, at 5:00 this afternoon, in the Debate Anteroom in Hart House, while Conn Sparrow, President of Women's Skiing, will organize their team at the beginning of next term.

Big Blues Losers By 75-42 Score Niagara Powerful

By ED VOIGHT

Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The University of Toronto senior Blue hoopsters proved no match for the powerful Niagara University senior squad which handed them a very decisive 75-42 setback last night in the honeymoon capital. The purple and white clad cagers displayed smooth play in every department and set a pace that the Blues could not match.

Toronto held the Niagara team scoreless for the first four minutes of the game but when the Falls City men broke loose they netted a total of twenty-three points in the first period to Varsity's seven.

Niagara picked up 15 points in the second quarter while Varsity scored ten and the half time score was 38-17. Equalling their first quarter spurt the purple and white added another twenty-three points to their total to the twelve which the Blues annexed.

Led by Harry Foley and Bill Moran the Niagara first line, used only in the first quarter and part of the third proved too polished in the ball handling art for the Blues and featured fast breaking plays which concluded in a frenzy of fast short passing under the Toronto nets.

Harry Foley of Niagara led the scoring parade with 13 points followed by Adam Smalley of Toronto with 11 to his credit. Glen Pettinger, Blues forward, accounted for ten points and Moran of Niagara followed with nine.

John McManus was banished from the floor for five fouls in the latter part of the third period but not before he had counted four points toward the Toronto total.

Jack Gray of football fame and Henderson of Varsity grabbed off four points while Bill Stockman and Nick Volpe who played both games last night were good for three and two points respectively.

Line-ups:—

Varsity—Tyndall, (2); LaChance, (2); Gray, (4); Pettinger, (10); Henderson, (4); Volpe, (2); Stockman, (3); Luck; Smalley, (11); Mackenzie; McManus, (4).

Niagara—Holroyd, (5); Paterson, (2); Foley, (13); Hutson, (4); Birch, (5); Rooney, (7); Hiernes, (6); Sinecola, (5); Moran, (9); Mink, (3); Johnson, (8); Smythe, (3).

Pugs Perform In Five Bouts At Hart House

By JOHN KENNEDY

The followers of the blood and gore pastime got their first look at the junior pugilists last night in Hart House. The occasion was the start of the tournament held for novice fighters which will continue to-day and to-morrow and wind up at the Sports Night Saturday, when the various championships will be decided.
